Guard unit learns war ropes--quickly

Although they were new to military field training exercises, the men in Pelham's Army National Guard unit were quick to learn the ropes.

After four days in the field at Camp Shelby, Miss., SFC. Eddie Barrett said that the men in the unit commanded by Capt. Frank Cook had almost caught up with the more seasoned units.

The 34 Guardsmen from Pelham's Co. B, 1st Bn., 167th Infantry, who participated in the exercises at summer camp, were part of a force composed of more than 5,600 Guardsmen and Army Reservists.

One of the visitors at the camp last week was Alabama Governor Fob James.

After riding in the Army's newest tank, the M-1, the governor gave the new weapon high marks and called the joint training exercises part of a rebuilding of military efficiency in this country.

Another passenger in the M-1 Thursday, was Montgomery Mayor Emory Folmar, who is also an aide to the Secretary of Defense.

The training exercises conducted during the two week encampment at Camp Shelby were called one of the largest held there since WW II.

Lasting from July 24-Aug. 7, the cost was listed as somewhere in the neighborhood of $4 million.

As a test of their ability to maneuver, communicate and execute their assigned missions under simulated combat conditions, Guardsmen and Reservists were called on to repel an aggressor force which had supposedly invaded the Gulf Coast.

An active Army unit, the 5th Infantry Division from Fort Polk, La., played the role of aggressors.

Describing Company B's task as first level, since the unit is relatively new, Sgt. Barrett said the men had been performing firing missions.

But some of the men in B Company, got their field experience the hard way.

While manning a machine gun on a moving vehicle, SSG David Coffman turned his head momentarily and the weapon swung around, striking him in the head.

The accident required several stitches in his scalp.

Sgt. Bill Kline, a Pelham fireman, was sent to the hospital after his cheek became swollen from a bite and Lt. Mike Strong was the victim of heat exhaustion.

Collapsing in the field, Strong was air lifted to the base hospital by a medivac helicopter.

His condition was not thought to be serious and Barrett said that several men usually succumb to the heat every year.

The temperature at the camp last week was in the 90's.

The Pelham unit is part of the 31st Armored Brigade, all of which was present for the training exercises.

'Business' at home stirs ire in Pelham

by David F. Moore

Eighteen wheels and an alleged zone-violating business have angered at least two residents of a Cahaba Valley subdivision. The subject of the complaints, however, said he's doing nothing wrong.

Bill Hartzog and W.E. Chadwick, Jr. told the Pelham Council Monday night that something should be done about enforcing its laws.

Eighteen-wheelers are making deliveries to the Crosscreek Trail residence of Donald Hosey, they said. Hosey, their neighbor, was not at the meeting.

Hartzog and Chadwick pointed out that a sign at the entrance to the subdivision restricts truck weights to one ton, unless they're making local deliveries.

Since Hosey's deliveries apparently require such large trucks, Hartzog said it appears that Hosey must be operating a business from his home.

The entire neighborhood, however, is zoned residential. If Hosey has a business there, they said he's clearly in violation of city zoning laws.

Over the past few years, Hartzog said he's complained to police about the deliveries, and to Mayor Burk Dunaway about the alleged business, but nothing has been resolved.

"The truck driver will defy you that's he's in violation of the ordinance" because he's making a local delivery, Hartzog said. Therefore, he said police had been unable to fine delivery drivers in the past.

Hartzog speculated that Hosey is running a parts or tool distribution business from his residence. He said the last delivery was made by Jones' Truck Line at 4:30 p.m. July 29.

"The Vestavia Council would go wild if an 18-wheeler came in their residential areas," Hartzog said.

"An 18-wheeler's got no business in a residential area delivering," said Chadwick, who works for a trucking firm.

The men indicated that the city should enforce its zoning regulations and perhaps stiffen its weight laws on trucks in residential areas.

Dunaway said the city has been unable to prove that Hosey operates a business from his home. It was pointed out by several councilmen that moving vans and construction trucks made it impossible to ban all heavy trucks.

"I do not run a business here," Hosey said when the Reporter contacted him Tuesday morning at his listed home phone. "This is my home."

"I was under the impression that a business makes sales. You can't get anything here but a cup of coffee."

Hosey admitted he does operate a business--DH&F, Incorporated--but not from his home. He said he sells adhesive products to hardware stores and building suppliers, and his corporate offices are in Memphis, Tennessee.

Merchandise is delivered to his house, and he said he stores it in a shed in his backyard.

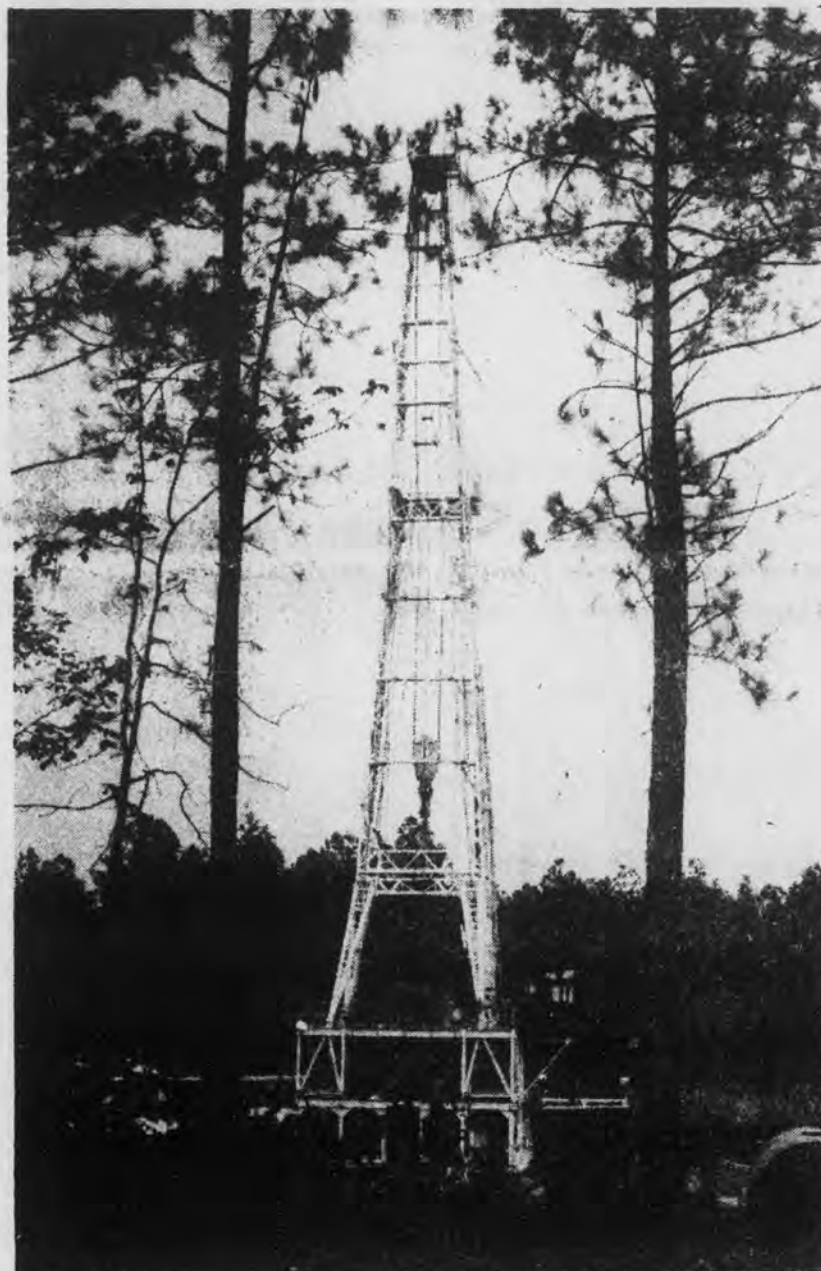

He said he makes absolutely no sales from his home, but instead visits stores in his van. He parks the van at his house.

In the past, Hosey said he talked to the mayor, police chief, building inspector, license inspector and fire marshal about storing merchandise in back of his home. He also said his attorney wrote the city about the matter.

"This was supposed to have been taken care of a year or two ago," Hosey said. "I guess we'll have to write the city again."

He said the trucks that make two or three deliveries per month to his home are not "road trailers," but instead lighter weight "city trailers" with only one set of wheels.

"I don't know what (Hartzog and Chadwick) are trying to prove by this," Hosey said. "It sure would be nice if folks would ask you personally before they start raising hell."

Wild shot

An unusual sight for Alabamians may be seen three miles south of Westover. Just off a dirt road near the intersection of county roads 55 and 51, an oil rig towers above the surface of Shelby County on Gulf States Paper Company land. The rig which has been operating for two months is drilling a wildcat test well for Arco. See story on page 10. (Photo by Fred Guarino)

Two youths killed in Shelby car collision

Two 18 year old youths from Columbiana were killed in a two car crash on County Road 47 Saturday night.

The fatalities were Alan Sigle, who was driving the car, and his passenger, Kevin Gene Jones. An out-of-state visitor, 16 year old John Bell, who was riding in the back seat, was seriously injured.

Both occupants of the other vehicle were taken to Shelby Medical Center but their injuries were not severe.

According to the State Trooper's report, a 1979 Pontiac driven by Mark Jones of Shelby was heading south when it hit Sigle's '79 Oldsmobile as it pulled out of county road 308. The intersection is near the Church of God in Shelby.

Both Jones and his passenger, Russell Bentley of Columbiana are 21.

Bentley was released from the hospital Tuesday; Mark Jones remained hospitalized.

University Hospital listed Bell's condition as poor Tuesday. A resident of Ohio, he was visiting Kevin Jones.

The two had reportedly met in Greece where they both attended high school last year.

Sigle was said to have been returning to Columbiana after dropping a friend off in Shelby when the accident occurred at 10:40 p.m.

Calera brakes speed increase

by Fred Guarino

Calera is rejecting a state highway department recommendation to increase speed limits on highways 31 and 25.

Upon the recommendation of police chief Harry Deal, Mayor Carl Prichard announced at Monday night's city council meeting that he will advise the state highway department of the city's position.

Deal told the city council, "I would recommend that we leave speed zones as they are posted. I don't see any need to change what we have."

The chief did request permission, however, to review the city's ordinances concerning enforcement of speed zones with the city attorney.

He was instructed by Prichard to bring his findings to the next council meeting.

The state highway department recommended that the speed limit on highway 31 coming in from Chilton County be increased from 30 to 40 miles per hour until it reaches Calera High School. At the school, the highway department recommended that the limit be reduced back to 30 miles per hour.

Currently, the speed limit on highway 31 is 30 miles per hour the whole distance from the point it enters Calera from Chilton County and past the school.

The state highway department recommended that the speed limit on highway 31 going out of the city at its north limits be increased from 40 to 50 miles per hour.

In the area of Oliver Park, the state highway department recommended that the speed limit on Street light requests cut off

Unless it's an emergency situation, Alabaster Councilman Jack Reagin said he won't recommend any more street lights for the city this year.

The council approved the placement of one street light at Monday's meeting at the intersection of 13th St. and 5th Ave. SW.

But after the vote, Councilman Willie Arrington expressed concern over two lights he had mentioned earlier in the Simmsville area.

Reagin said that "a lot of lights" have been put up this year and he had been turning down requests where only one or two houses were affected.

"We need to stay within our budget," the utilities chairman said, adding that it was already in the red.

The city pays $4 per light which amounts to a monthly bill of $2,500.

According to City Clerk Dot Henry, approximately 12 lights have been put up this year.

Another topic of discussion at the meeting also pertained to residents of the black section.

The difficulty of finding homes in that area because they are not numbered, had been brought up at the last meeting by Councilman Cal McCune.

He noted that it was perplexing for delivery people and could prove tragic in an emergency situation.

It had been suggested that the Beautification Board, now in the process of being organized, might be responsible for getting the numbers up.

But Reagin said he didn't think it should be thrown in their laps.

Since streets are Arrington's area of responsibility on the council it was suggested he be in charge of seeing that streets and houses are numbered.

McCune agreed to work with him on the project.

Although the wheels are turning on the Beautification Board which Reagin proposed, more members are needed.

It was announced that the ordinance creating the board has been completed and will be turned over to the city attorney for approval.

So far, 15 people have agreed to serve, but Reagin said 10 more volunteers are still needed to get a good representation from all areas.

One of the most pressing problems the board will deal with is the neglected houses and property in the city.

With the powers of enforcement the board is expected to have, Reagin said, "I think we can make a lot of headway."

County Democrats will hold fund raiser at UM Friday

The Democratic Executive Committee of Shelby County is planning a major fund raising dinner on Friday. James R. Knight, Chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee will be the speaker for the evening.

All local party candidates are expected to attend, and many are bringing their close supporters with them.

In addition, candidates running for statewide or region-wide offices have also been invited to attend. The Democrats expect upward of 300 persons to attend.

The event is open to the general public, and all members of the county executive committee have tickets available.

The fund-raiser will be held at the University of Montevallo dining room, beginning at 7 p.m.

Drink break saves Caveman

by David F. Moore

A Pelham man was stuck in a cave Sunday evening for four hours. Now he's stuck with a new name: Caveman.

Except for putting up with the nickname, joking from his friends, and "peeling a little hide off in a couple of spots," 27-year old Tommy Shelton said he was none the worse for his dark experience.

The experience, however, did teach him two lessons about cave exploration: "If I do go in a cave again, I'm going to take a shovel and a Pepsi," Shelton told the Reporter.

It was the soft drink that finally enabled rescue workers to drag the stuck spelunker from a narrow shaft of the cave.

The cave is located about two-thirds of the way up Little Oak Ridge, across U.S. 31 from Valley Elementary School.

Shelton said he and two other Pelham residents, Bobby Brasher and David Bean, went to the cave late Sunday afternoon to see some Satanic looking figurines someone had carved in the cave during the past two years. Brasher had seen the odd figurines the day before and wanted to show the other two men.

While Bean went one direction, Shelton said he and Brasher wormed their way some 100 yards down a narrowing shaft. Shelton went first because of his thin build.

The shaft became too narrow to continue. Shelton tried to back up, but discovered he was stuck.

"I couldn't get enough leverage to push myself out," he explained. "But I still had movement in my head and arms, down to my sides."

"Johnny tried to drag me out by my feet, and I tried to wiggle out, but I couldn't."

Shelton managed to pass the flashlight back to Brasher, who took it and went for help.

Shelton was left alone, stuck under the mountain in the pitch dark.

"It was a strange feeling," he said, "but I never really was scared. I knew I was going to get out sooner or later—I figured I was—but I didn't know how."

Brasher called Pelham rescue workers from a phone on the highway. Oddly enough, a crew of Pelham firemen had practiced cave rescues the week before at the same cave.

Two of those men and three police arrived at the cave about 7 p.m. After trying unsuccessfully to pull Shelton out by his feet, fireman Brian Cleveland spotted a bottle of Pepsi the cave explorers has brought with them, and suggested using it as a lubricant.

Brasher managed to pass the bottle up to his friend, and Shelton said he poured it over himself. The soft drink made the clay slick, and with rescue workers pulling Brasher by the feet, the men finally managed to drag Shelton out.

"It's not my favorite soft drink," Shelton later said, "but I'll have to write the Pepsi Company about it anyway."

Shelton is an underground cable installation foreman with a Pelham company. Since the incident, co-workers and friends have started calling him "Caveman."

One year ago, Shelton said he attended the Talladega 500, which was also held last Sunday. That day he was run over by a four-wheel drive vehicle.

"I don't know what I'll do next year," Caveman said, "but something will probably happen..."

Calera eyes grant for emergency squad

by Fred Guarino

Calera will look into getting a grant for its rescue squad. The squad wants a new truck and a telephone switching station.

After hearing a report from rescue squad member Frank Nix Monday night, councilman Doug LeSueur recommended that the city consider the matter seriously.

Nix stated, "We feel that this is a piece of equipment that we desperately need. We are all new at this and need your assistance in the planning and action that needs to be taken."

Mayor Carl Prichard assured Nix that the council would look into the matter. Councilman W.B. Watts informed Nix that he is already discussing it with J.E. Andrews who is involved with the state's block grant program.

The only official action taken for the rescue squad, however, was the approval of the purchase of a new battery for the unit's back-up rescue truck.

Nix also reported that the rescue unit has added three new members in the past month who have all attended a first responder training course. The new men are Jessie Legg, Hugh Morrison, and Ronnie Walton.

Nix said the men have each answered calls and are a great addition to the unit. He said that the unit hopes to add more men in the near future so that shifts of rescue workers may be kept on duty at all times.

According to Nix's report the rescue squad made 13 runs in July and 74 runs during the year to date.

Five of the runs were for heart cases, two were 'other medical', one was for an individual accident, one was for a home accident and four were for fights.

Calera tables arcade hours

by Fred Guarino

Over the objection of councilman W.B. Watts, the city of Calera tabled a request to remove restrictions on a game room.

Ruby Hamm and Perry Collins, co-owners of Calera Arcade, appeared before the council Monday night to request that they be given the same treatment as that of other businesses with electronic games.

During summer months, the arcade is restricted to hours from 9 a.m. until 10 p.m. during the week and closed on Sundays.

During school months, the arcade is restricted to operate from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and closed on Sunday.

Collins asked the council that operating hours be left up to the arcade's management.

Mayor Carl Prichard pointed out that the arcade is located close to Calera United Methodist Church and a residential section. He stressed that the restrictions were imposed for good and valid reasons.

Collins asked about other businesses such as the Majik Market which has no restrictions.

To this Prichard responded, "I don't think they operate to the extent of your arcade in attracting children." He also stated, "It would totally restrict their other business."

Collins told the mayor that he did not believe that the number of games available is an indication of how many children are attracted. He added that adults also use his game room.

The mayor told Collins that the restrictions were agreed to by Calera Arcade in a signed statement when it was first licensed. He asked why Collins waited until now to complain.

Collins stated that the agreement was only signed in order that a license could be received. He later said that the statement was made mandatory by the city and "We signed it under mild duress."

Collins told the council that he proposed that the arcade be allowed to operate on Sundays from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. and weekdays until 12 midnight.

He pointed out that as the arcade is sound proof, "There is no noise pollution and no special lights."

He also said that members of the church said that they were glad to see some outlet for their children.

Prichard responded, "That was not my impression. I had a few members of the church speak to me who were against it."

Councilman Watts said he felt the same consideration should be given to the arcade as other businesses in Calera. He said, "If we don't have some place for these kids to go, they will be on the highway."

Councilman Doug LeSueur asked police chief Harry Deal if he had problems with other businesses which have no restrictions. He stated that there was nothing specific and usually only a single individual was involved.

Prichard asked Collins, "What assurance do we have if we grant this request, you won't ask us for more?"

Collins asked in return, "If we are given the same consideration as others, why should we come back?"

Councilman Roy Hadaway moved that the matter be tabled until the council's next meeting. Watts voiced the only opposing vote.

Budgetary requests presented to Shelby County Board of Education

One of the requests made at last Tuesday's Board of Education budget hearing was to hire nine library aides.

Valley Principal Dr. Norma Rogers made the request for the nine county schools who have over 500 students.

She said that for schools of that size, a library aide was one of the requirements for state accreditation.

Taking into consideration the possibility of a wage increase for support personnel, Dr. Rogers figured the cost of the nine aides to be $70,000.

Speaking for the Chelsea Board of Trustees at the board meeting following the hearing, chairman Earl Niven also requested a library aide.

He gave that need priority over a second request, the completion of a press box before the opening of school in three weeks.

Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles told the Chelsea trustee chairman of the need for library aides at other schools and said it would be taken under consideration as an item in this year's budget.

In response to board member Paul Sumner's suggestion that the board help Chelsea get the press box ready for the opening of school, Knowles advised further investigation.

Saying he'd hate to see the board expend the $3,600 for materials that Niven asked for and not meet a need, the superintendent said he thought it would be wiser for him to first meet with principal Brad Stephens.

Sumners urged that the matter not be put off for another month or two. But he did concur with Knowles' opinion that an inspection of buildings constructed with local funds be completed if the board is going to insure these facilities.

At a previous meeting, the board agreed that they were responsible for all buildings on school campuses and that insurance coverage should be provided.

Another request for financial assistance in the amount of $18,240 came from Jess Horton, president of the Athletic Boosters' club at Thompson High School.

That amount, he said, was the cost of a classroom that was included in the field house the club constructed.

Listing the clubs' projects since 1972 and the cost of each, Horton said that the actual construction cost had come to $108,000.

He compared that to the $250,000 estimated value of the projects, noting that the donation of labor and materials had reduced the cost.

Over a ten year period the THS boosters have provided bleachers, a weight room and dressing room, stadium lighting, running track and field house.

Horton reported that the organization still owes more than $39,700 on the track and field house.

When the booster club president finished his presentation, the board moved on to other matters without taking any action on the request.

Others who presented their views at the budget hearing on where money should be spent this year included Thompson Middle School teacher J.B. Denham, Riverchase PTO President Barry Brubaker and Shelby County High Band Booster Terrell Guthrie.

Marie Murphy also spoke on behalf of Calera Elementary School.

Denham wanted prize money in the amount of $1,200 for the county social studies fair; Guthrie asked for the construction of a new band room because of the expansion of the program.

In order to meet the state requirement of ten books per pupil, Brubaker said Riverchase needed approximately 1,750 books which would cost $12,650.

The need at Calera Elementary was for an indoor play area with additional classroom space.

The sheriff's department investigated eight burglaries and thefts last week. One of the burglary cases was closed.

Deputies arrested nine other people in apparently unrelated incidents, according to the sheriff's department's records for July 26-30. One attempted suicide, two phone harassments, two vandalisms and one accidental shooting were also investigated.

A juvenile was arrested in connection with the closed burglary case. The name was not disclosed.

According to reports, a resident of Crestwood Trailer Park had a video game stolen when his mobile home was burglarized Wednesday. The suspect was arrested the same day by deputy Lloyd Anderson.

Last Monday a cabin at Glasscox Camp on the Coosa River was burglarized. The same day the theft of large chain was reported in Shelby, and several undisclosed items were taken from a house on Caldwell Mill Road.

A key was apparently used in connection with the theft of paint and plexiglass, stolen Monday evening or Tuesday from Chelsea High School.

Investigators have a suspect in the Wednesday theft of a number of young peacocks from Twin Pine Conference Center in northeast Shelby County. No arrest had been made by Friday. Also Wednesday, deputies investigated a break-in and the theft of tools from a residence at Sewell Hill on Old 280.

Friday, a Dogwood resident reported the theft of his wife's wedding rings from their house. All thefts and burglaries were turned over to county investigators.

A Rt. 2, Montevallo resident was hospitalized Tuesday afternoon after an attempted suicide. Friday, a man was accidentally shot while at the residence of a Vincent man.

A Rt. 4, Alabaster woman was threatened with rape and death in a message left Thursday on her answering device. Friday, a Harpersville woman reported she has been receiving obscene phone calls for the past month.

On July 26 someone threw a rock through the window of a residence on Indian Forest Trail. The next day, another vandal broke a window from a piece of state highway equipment near Westover.

The last day for persons to register to vote in the September 7 primary will be Friday, August 27.

That is also the last day for former voters to re-identify themselves, although they can re-identify on election day if they travel to the courthouse to do so.

The re-identification process is available only to those who were registered voters in Shelby County at an earlier date, and have not already re-identified themselves. The re-identification process was started three years ago to purge the poll list of persons who had died or moved away from the county.

The board of registrars is open from 9 a.m. to 3:30 in the courthouse in Columbiana five days a week. They will also hold special registration at three locations in the county at the following times: Saturday, August 7, American Legion Hut in Sterrett, 5:30-8 p.m.; Tuesday, August 10, Chambers Realty in Pelham, 4-8:30 p.m.; Thursday, August 12, Wal-Mart in Pelham, 5-9 p.m.

Alabama Scene

by Bob Ingram

A few years ago a professional basketball coach (obviously an opera fan) made a memorable quote. His team was trailing three games to one in the play-offs...it seemed it was all over. But when he was asked if his team had a chance the coach responded: "It ain't over until the fat lady sings."

It would seem that the "fat lady" hasn't sung in the 1982 Democratic Primary for governor. With the first primary now less than five weeks away, most observers still figure the race is still up for grabs between the three front-runners—Joe McCorquodale, George McMillan and George Wallace.

Wallace still remains the favorite to lead the ticket in the eyes of most of those courageous enough to make a prediction, but even some of them are beginning to hedge. For one, the Wallace campaign of '82 is a far cry from his campaigns of the past. The fact is, Wallace talking about jobs isn't nearly as exciting as some of the issues he used so effectively in the past.

Another question that will not be answered until election day—will the very same Alabamians who gave Fob James such a powerful endorsement four years ago (and at the same time rejected Wallace-endorsed Bill Baxley), now do a flip-flop and return to the Wallace fold? That's a question that is wrinkling some brows among some Wallace supporters.

If it is not Wallace, then which of the two Mc's will it be—McCorquodale or McMillan? As of now, McCorquodale does not appear to have set off any groundswell, but it is known that he has broad appeal among the business community and the white middle class. He is the closest thing to a Fob James candidate in the primary, and his backers are confident that McCorquodale—like Fob four years ago—will catch fire the final two weeks of the campaign and surge to the top.

McMillan could be the "sleeper" in the crowd. If he can corral most of the black vote—and of the three he has the best shot at doing that—if the A.E.A. goes all-out for him, as it should, and if he can destroy his opposition in Jefferson County (where more than 150,000 votes will be cast).

The other two candidates in the race—former Gov. Jim Folsom and Reuben McKinley—shelled out their $1,000 qualifying fees for reasons known only to themselves. McKinley may well be remembered as the most unusual candidate in years—he wears two pistols at all times, refused to allow his picture to be taken, and will not even reveal his address. He takes these precautions, he says, for reasons of "security." He is the ultimate law-and-order candidate, advocating the death penalty for arson, burglary and dope-peddling.

Letter to the Editor:

Having spent my first twenty plus years living in and around Helena, I would like to say Hello to everyone I knew...and does the Cahaba river still run free and easy, without human clutter and waste?

I decided to write a "round about" letter covering a few "happenstances" from the Reporter the past few months, especially.

Reginald Lowery certainly would not have allowed being called anything other than Reginald. His fingers would have fast become a fist that would just as fast land on somebody's jaw!

Now, Helena - and about six measly chickens. How I'd like to swap the all night barking and yapping of dogs and their penchant for finding my beautiful lawn for their nature calls. The chickens go to roost at twilight and roosters crow with daylight. Dogs bark constantly day and night. Now, might the guy keep his feathered friends? They're nicer than hairy ones anytime.

Now - Sorghum - Molasses - A mule being a mule is dumb, stubborn and must be lead or driven. Had the Sorghum makers only used a lead pole for that dumb mule, he (it) would have worked patiently and well.

Molasses, to be the real thing, needs to be cooked in a copper pan - the juice going into the pan at the higher end of the pan, and coming out at the lowest corner, a fine finished product. My dad's first cousin, Frank Butler, had such a pan - and I personally "stoked" its fire the last year my daddy farmed. Cousin Frank brought his equipment to our field, and stayed with us during the time of molasses making. Cousin Frank's granddaughter, Madine Butler Evans has the old pan and I should be happy to see it once again - regardless of the hot days and hot work those fifty-one years ago brought.

Now - about Confederate markers to mark the graves of long ago soldiers. I just hope that the gentleman who refused to allow markers installed at graves that were on his property will have a change of heart. For once there, he'll feel better about himself. Don't we all, when we do what is right?

And lastly - I am hoping the above will bring a few smiles and even cause recalls of happy things, long asleep in their minds. And that every person I ever knew can recall a skinny small girl who was called "Splinter" for most of her years in beautiful Shelby County, for there are so many relatives and long time friends who live there still.

I would love to visit Helena and vicinity once again.

Sincerely,
Ione Naish Fox

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

We left the driving to Jake Laboon and the planing to Opal Leach, and for two weeks we had the time of our lives, with 31 of the most beautiful people you ever saw.

We went from Bourbon Street to Beale Street, by way of a million lovely sights and things. But let the folks tell you about it -- those beautiful folks who shared this trip with us. I asked them what they liked especially.

Mr. and Mrs. George Beirley: "We liked the Grand Canyon and Hoover Dam and the folks we met."

Margaret Swartzell: "The homes of the famous people in Las Vegas and the unique experience in old Mexico."

Roy Swartzell: "Everything - just everything."

Jake Laboon: "Senior citizens pulling the levers at Las Vegas."

Opal Leach: "Thirty-two lovely people who made this trip something a little special."

Marie Marsh: "The mountains of Utah -- just like God made them."

Myrtle Bradberry: The Chapel at the Air Force Academy -- so pretty you almost wanted to join the Air Force."

Velma Carter: "New Mexico -- every lovely inch of it."

Ethel Morris: "Utah -- so beautiful you just had to look and look, and still didn't see it all."

Paul and Mildred Robbe: "Memphis -- what a beautiful and exciting place."

Elinor Armstrong: "Mountains -- Mountains everywhere. So beautiful they take your breath."

Katie Pike: "The mountains in Vail, Colorado, and the houses stuck around on the hills."

Nell Kachelhofer: "Pike's Peak -- and a flurry of snow that made a person wonder."

Alyne Suell: "The Grand Canyon -- too big and beautiful to be real, but real anyhow."

Betty House: "The mountains in Colorado and Utah. No wonder He rested on the 7th day after making them."

Billie Stewart: "Carlsbad Caverns -- it's so fantastic you almost don't believe it. But you have to, since it's right there in front of your eyes."

Francis Roberts: The Painted Forest -- it just takes your breath. And Las Vegas - it takes you money."

Margaret Meinzer: "The Grand Canyon: why he made it and when, I don't know. But I'm glad he did."

Cecil Sizemore: "Carlsbad Caverns -- if He had made it half as big, it would have been almost unbelievable. But He made it twice as big."

Mary Houston: "The mountains - all of them. They kept popping up, one at a time, all of them beautiful."

Edna Purnell: "The whole state of Utah. Just like a big rainbow reaching from one end to the other."

Jo Zeigler: "Frank Sinatra. It cost fifty bucks, but it was worth it."

Annie Bell Bishop: "Carlsbad Caverns -- you look and look, then you look some more. But, you don't begin to see it all."

Louise Vanderburg: "Frank Sinatra. Every pound of him."

Lucile Debarcleren: "Las Vegas. She's a fickle hussy, but I like her."

Pauline Jones: "The Grand Canyon. You look at it a little at a time, and wonder and wonder."

Mary Tanner: "Carlsbad Caverns -- if I had to pick out one beautiful thing, I guess this would be it."

Huldah Stevens: "The vastness and simple loveliness of their world."

Carrie Gardner: "The Petrified Forest -- as pretty as a rainbow and a trillion times larger."

George and Amy Bird: "Whatever came next. It was all so beautiful."

It was all too big to see, but we looked anyhow. It was too beautiful to believe, but we believed anyhow. We were just glad He made. And glad He let us see it.

Reader says release names

Letter to the Editor:

We have just been reading the write-up in the Shelby County Reporter (July 22) by David F. Moore entitled 'Juvenile gang booked for $1200 from heists.' The gang members' ages ranged from 8 to 15. It was described as being 'extraordinarily organized' with a regular system. Then it states that their names were not released as they were juvenile offenders. Why not release them?

If their names, addresses, school they attend, their parents' names and address (or addresses) were published, it might curb juvenile crime and the parents would keep a closer watch on the activities of their children.

I wondered how they were able to have at least 7 bikes without their parents knowing...and what of the man that was buying the goods?

It seems that if a juvenile is old enough to commit an adult crime he should be tried as an adult.

One person states that they need professional counseling. It seems to me that they need a few licks across their behinds with a switch and made to work to pay for what they have stolen, instead of just a pat on the shoulder and being told, "you should not do things like that it is not nice."

sion "The Courthouse Dome".

Why don't the people of Shelby County be content with something that is already done and has cost a lot of money? It looks all right to me, kind of like chocolate ice cream, although I prefer vanilla myself. The ones who want it repainted, let them pay for it, and not the county. Or if the committee who chose the color to paint it, and if the people who painted it, didn't go by what the committee chose, let the painters redo it themselves for free.

If 12 people were asked what color they wanted, there would probably be 12 different answers. Now if it had been painted bright red, bright green, yellow or orange, there could be many more complaints, and be justified in doing so.

If Alpha Lowe, Don Murphy, Jake Morris, and Harold Davenport would ride over the road, off 61 to Mrs. Frances Lokey's on the river, they'd get a good idea of what to do with the money they have - or get somewhere. It is just like a rub board in places, and has been a public road since I moved to Wilsonville at the age of 10, and will soon be 67. I have friends that live over there and would like to visit them occasionally, but last year I lost a wheel cover and hub cap. But was lucky because Mr. Newman found my whole cover, but had to buy a new hub cap.

It wouldn't hurt Tommy Snowden to ride over that road either! Might shake some teeth loose.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Mozelle Eastis

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

While I've driven through the woods on some occasions, I don't think I've ever ridden along with the woods attached to the vehicle I was in.

But I had that experience last week riding in a camouflaged jeep during a visit to an Army National Guard training camp.

I was part of the media group invited to see the Guard in action during a simulated combat situation.

Actually, I didn't think I'd get there at all.

We were supposed to be at the air base from which the plane was leaving at 7 a.m. And I wasn't even sure of where it was.

But for the first time ever, I believe, I made it to my destination without a hitch.

Of course I missed the briefing they gave, but I made it in time to board the plane with the other folks.

Since there were no stewardesses on the aircraft, we were invited to help ourselves to coffee and soft drinks.

Apparently I went forward a little too soon though. The water had not reached boiling yet, I was told, so I engaged in a little chit-chat with the cockpit crew.

They warned me how hot it was going to be out in the field and said they planned to stay cool at one of the town's shopping centers.

It was also mentioned in the course of the conversation, that there was a bar in that particular shopping center. However, I refused to consider the possibility that they might be planning to spend the afternoon there.

They were right about the heat - it was devastating. In fact, I saw a man collapse right before my eyes.

Since he was part of the unit I was with, I jumped into the jeep with my escort and we raced along with the ambulance to the cleared area where a helicopter was to land.

As it touched down, we were enveloped in a dust storm which added another two inches to what I'd already collected.

The rain which had been threatening all day, fell as we drove in our open top vehicle to the hospital to check on the fellow.

But it wasn't too bad. My Guard buddy didn't get me a roof, but he whipped out a poncho - which was almost as good.

When we arrived at the hospital area, we found some of the media folks had been taken up in the helicopter.

But apparently it was a one time deal because my friend couldn't finagle a ride for me.

Another ride I missed would have taken me underwater. And in a way, I'm kind of glad I didn't get to go on that one.

The unit I was visiting was taking their armored personnel carrier across a lake and invited me to climb in and submerge with them.

Always willing to try something new - well, almost always - I agreed.

But then one of the brass who was on the scene had second thoughts and put his foot down.

He thought about the possibility of the thing turning over or having some other mishap occur. And it would have put the Guard in a bad position if I was aboard - to say nothing of the position I'd be in.

They call getting the track vehicle across a body of water "swimming" it across.

While the top of the carrier is above water, the passengers are in a compartment below the surface, which to me, does not sound like a very good way to travel.

However, the Guardsmen made it just fine.

On the flight home, my taste in drinks had changed from hot to cold. So I was just coming back to my seat with a softdrink when the plane went up and I went down - or maybe it was the other way around.

I briefly wondered about the pilots' condition, but quickly realized it was the weather.

Before I went flying, a TV cameraman grabbed me and hung on till we were over the bunks.

So other than being covered with a layer of dirt and a face red from the sun, I returned in fine fettle after my day in "combat."

Shelby Medical Center has its own helipad for emergency air ambulance landings. See story. Cutting the dedication ribbon, Tuesday morning, were SMC officials, left to right: Faye Hylton, assistant administrator of general services; Jay Stuman, assistant administrator; Alabaster Mayor H. A. SMC gets helipad

by Fred Guarino
Shelby Medical Center now has its own official helipad for the landing of emergency helicopters. It is located behind the hospital, near the emergency room entrance.

The pad was designed by assistant hospital administrator Jay Stuman and was officially dedicated Tuesday morning.

Dewey Green, vice president of Rotar Wing, a company which contracts helicopter services and a representative of Bell Helicopters which builds the crafts, were on hand to demonstrate what a helicopter can do.

Present for the ceremony were SMC Board chairman C.E. Carter, County Commissioner Harold Davenport and Alabaster Mayor H.A. Rubin.

Representing the hospital were Barbara Lyles, assistant administrator of nursing, Faye Hylton, assistant administrator of general services Stuman and Roland Bradford, hospital administrator.

Bradford stated that the new helipad provides emergency aircraft a safe place to land and pointed out that in the future, SMC may have its own emergency air ambulance.

It was reported that in the past emergency craft have landed in the hospital parking lot.

Commissioner Davenport said of the emergency helicopter, "I think it is the thing now. It is a fast way to get someone where they need to be in a hurry. Anything you need is good."

He stated that he supports the SMC board of directors in whatever their needs are.

Green told the Reporter that his company is putting together a program in which SMC can purchase an air ambulance which would be operated by Rotar Wing.

He said, "We contract the services, pilots, maintenance, planning and take care of regulations."

Highway 25 gets governor's attention

by Fred Guarino

Mayor Carl Prichard informed members of Calera's City Council Monday night that the governor has thanked him for pointing out the problems with highway 25.

The mayor, who has been carrying on a fight to have the highway widened, stated, "I don't know what this means but that he is aware of our problem."

Joe Middlebrooks, who attended the meeting, stated that he has spoken with State Representative Walter Owens of Centreville about the problem. He said that Owens indicated that the state will probably go along with widening the road at Oliver Park.

In other reports:

Mayor Prichard told the council that a pay telephone will be installed at the main entrance to the Calera High School football field, which can be used from a car.

The mayor stated, "I feel confident that it will pay its own way."

In addition, Prichard reported that as soon as Tac Can Cablevision Company receives its state permit, it will begin signing contracts in Calera.

He said, "They have a lot of money invested in cable and permits and are interested in getting going."

Councilman Roy Hadaway reported that Southern Natural Gas will increase its rates by 12 percent by October 1.

As city budgets are due by August 16, Hadaway requested that he, the mayor and city clerk Lemoyne Payton hold a meeting on the proposed budgets Monday, August 30 at 7 p.m.

On another matter, Mayor

Prichard reported that the governor has signed a law which allows cities to double the homestead exemption on city ad valorem taxes.

He said that there is no deadline for increasing the exemptions.

The mayor suggested that all members of the council give consideration to the matter for its next meeting.

Operation warned of federal violation

by Fred Guarino

A Dogwood coal operation has been warned that it is in violation of the Federal Clean Water Act.

According to Bill Gibson of the Alabama Water Improvement Commission (AWIC), a certified notice of violation was mailed to Tennor Land & Development Corp., Inc. on July 26, stating that its Dogwood operation is exceeding water pollutant permit limits.

Gibson informed the Reporter that Tennor has been given 14 days to file a letter with AWIC outlining actions it will take to improve the situation.

Failure to file could result in a $10,000 per day fine or six months imprisonment or both.

Tennor is separating coal from gob in a washing process. Gob is a combination slate and shale which was discarded by mine operations in the past.

The operation is located just off county road 221 at the site of a 60 year-old mine on Little Gem Coal Company Land.

According to the AWIC solid waste in their affluent discharge exceeds 142 milligrams per liter. This exceeds Tennor's National Pollutant Discharge Elimination Discharge System permit limits.

When contacted for comment, Tennor president Richard Izdebski told the Reporter that he had not received the letter but that problems had already been corrected.

He commented that the AWIC was on the Tennor site a week earlier, and suggested changes which he said were completed in a matter of hours.

Izdebski said, "We immediately shut the plant down, made the correction and went back on stream."

He stated that the company had 24 hours to do the work.

According to the company president, "If it was anything serious, they would not allow us to continue operation."

Pioneers help

The Riverchase Pioneers donated a wheelchair to DPS for use by the needy. DPS director Susan Treadwell held the door open Tuesday morning so club president Sara Baker and project coordinator Ralph Faulk could make the delivery.

Riverchase Pioneers fill needs for service groups in county

In three years, the Riverchase Council of Pioneers has made a lot of friends in Shelby County.

The group is one of the newest branches of the 71-year old, Bell System affiliated service organization. It came into being when South Central Bell opened its Data Center in Riverchase.

Some of the Riverchase Pioneers' projects to date include buying an ice machine and washers for King's Ranch, animal traps for Shelby County Humane Society, paying visits and taking tray favors to residents at Briarcliff and Estes Nursing Homes, playing Santa Claus to needy welfare recipients, and others things. (Some of these projects were done in conjunction with the Pioneers South Council, based at the phone complex on U.S. 280 at I-459.)

"We're always looking for ways to serve people," said Riverchase Council president Sara Baker. "We look at the general area where we're located, and see how we can best serve the community."

The club's latest project is the donation of a wheelchair to the Department of Pensions and Security in Columbiana. The chair will be made available to needy people who are temporarily handicapped.

Baker said the Pioneers' statewide theme this year is aiding abused children and problem teenagers.

Although only three years old, the Riverchase Council has some 300 members. Four other councils operate in the Birmingham area, and a total of 12 operate in the state chapter.

Baker said the Pioneers are the largest industry related service organization in the world, with 550,000 members in 94 chapters. The Pioneers were formed in 1911, she said, and its members all have at least 18 years service with the phone company, or are retired.

The new officers for the Riverchase Council, elected in June, are: Baker; vice president R.D. Beaty; treasurer Dundas Fowler; secretary Deanna Wynn; and executive committee members Grover Morgan, Claude Morris, E.C. Skinner and Henry Cook.

Painting scenes on the way Brothers canoeing Tennessee River

by David F. Moore

Stroke by stroke, a Pelham man and his brother are canoeing the 1,000 mile length of the Tennessee River.

Stroke by stroke, the brothers are also recording scenes of the river in a series of water color paintings.

A crazy idea? Maybe. Maybe not.

True, the adventure sounds like something a slightly off-balance person might do. But Lewis Hughes, a 35-year old computer planner for South Central Bell, appears normal. When he's not working or paddling, he lives quite sanely with his wife and two children in Oak Mountain Estates.

His brother, Larry, is 31, lives in Knoxville and works for TVA. From all reports, Larry is also basically sane.

The brothers aren't tackling the Tennessee in one lump, but in three and four day segments. Since the spring of 1981, they've paddled nearly two-thirds of river--and haven't once flipped their 17.5-foot fiberglass canoe.

Their segmented odyssey began near Knoxville, where the Holston and French Broad Rivers flow together to form the majestic Tennessee.

The brothers plan to complete the expedition next year when they finally glide their canoe into the Ohio River, just north of where it flows into the Mississippi.

"The idea was to do the river slowly and have enough time between trips to research the next section," Lewis says. But their research has shown there's a noticeable lack of history written about the Tennessee.

So besides painting, the Hugheses are taking extensive notes on all the old Indian villages, forts, riverboat landings, homesteads--any historic sites they come across. They'll write a historic text to accompany a major water color show they have in the making.

"Unlike car travel, where you tend to drive past places, we park the canoe wherever we want," Lewis says. "Averaging 10-15 miles a day, we have plenty of time to stop, paint, fish--whatever we want to do."

"We take lots of notes and photographs, and do a lot of sketches along the river. Back home in Pelham in my studio, that's where I do my honest to goodness painting."

Lewis, who did a stint in the Air Force, graduated from Auburn in 1976 with a degree in commercial art. Larry graduated from Alabama the following year with a degree in fine arts. Lewis, in his realistic style, has completed 15 river paintings so far. Larry, the impressionist, has done about 10.

Their differences in style reflect underlying differences in personalities. But "The Great Tennessee River Canoe Expedition" is washing away differences, strengthening the bond of brotherhood.

"It wasn't until after I was in the Air Force that we found out we even liked each other," Lewis says. "We never really understood we had anything in common until we started painting together."

With 300-400 miles left to paddle, the brothers have already had several wild experiences: the morning their riverbank camp was surrounded by 200 curious cows; the night hounds began howling like demons and sent them streaking from the tent in their underwear; the day they paddled all day against a 30 mph headwind on Lake Guntersville, and got nothing but eight miles and rubber arms.

A tradition of dubbing campsites with appropriate names gives insight to other experiences: Pig Island, Bug Point, Mud Town, Spider Lagoon, Wishy-Washy Creek.

Two sections in particular greatly impressed Lewis. A 35-mile stretch from Nickajack Dam to Scottsboro, Alabama was beautiful for its remoteness and the pair of nesting eagles they spotted. And the section from Florence to Pickwick Lake, Tennessee, was memorable for its bluffs, clear water and good weather.

The river has shared much with the brothers.

"I think I've always related to the river," Lewis says. "We grew up near it in Huntsville and that's where we camped as kids."

"We decided that if we were going to do something, we might as well do something that's never been done. I'm not aware of anyone ever doing a trip like this--at least not any artist."

Unlike backpacking, Lewis says carrying gear is no problem in a canoe. The brothers carry perishable foods (lots of it) in an ice chest, and toss in a camping tent.

A crazy idea? Maybe. Maybe not.

"People always think you're strange when you do something like this," Lewis admits. "But at least Kathy is real good about it. It helps if your wife has a modicum of understanding." Whenever Lewis returns from canoeing a section, he says it always "makes the rat-race seem trivial."

River to studio

Lewis Hughes (above) and his brother Larry have thus far paddled about two-thirds of the Tennessee River, making reference sketches and photographs along the way. Back in his Pelham studio, Lewis uses the references for a series of water color paintings he and his brother will tentatively show at the TVA exhibit at the 1984 World's Fair in New Orleans. The theme of the fair is "Rivers of the World." (Photo by David F. Moore)

Football sign-up set for Columbiana

Columbiana Youth Football begins registration this Saturday, August 7, and will continue through August 28. It will be held at the Columbiana Park behind the Girl Scout building from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. each Saturday for football and cheerleaders. Parents must be present at registration and provide a proof of birth date with each child.

Cheerleaders will be chosen on a "first come, first serve" basis, and all parents are urged to register as early as possible.

Coaches for the year will be Steve White, head coach for the Bobcats, Fate Bryant, assistant coach; Mike Hunt, head coach for the Leopards, Jimmy Epperson, asst. coach; and Mickey Gannon, head coach for the Cougars.

The next meeting for the Columbiana Youth League will be August 16.

On August 15 the entire Shelby County Welterweight Association will meet at 3 p.m. at the Columbiana Library. Business on the agenda for the meeting is a discussion of league by-laws and rules that need to be changed or amended, and the election of officers for the coming year.

Chelsea, Calera, Vincent, Childersburg, and Columbiana are included in the league.

Theft suspect jumps policeman

by Fred Guarino

A Calera policeman has been injured as the result of a fight with a stolen car suspect. According to Police Chief Harry Deal, officer B.J. O'Bryan suffered broken bones in his right hand and will be off duty for some time.

The chief said that O'Bryan arrested Jessie R. Miller, age 23 of Calera, for attempting to steal a car at the Dixie Shopping Center Friday, July 30.

The chief said, "The man was vocal and unruly. When they arrived at city hall, he jumped O'Bryan and in the fight O'Bryan broke bones in his right hand."

The chief stated that Miller has been charged with public intoxication, third degree assault and second degree theft of property. He said that Miller is being held in the Shelby County jail.

According to architect Bob Wanninger the society wants these photos to hang inside the building when it is restored as a museum.

The photos could also serve to help in the restoration process.

The courthouse was originally built in 1854.

After the new courthouse was built in the early 1900's, the older building was used alternately as a bank, a hotel, auxiliary courthouse offices, and the Columbiana city hall.

It is located at the fork in Columbiana's Main Street, and is undergoing extensive repairs.

Anyone with photographs is asked to contact Wanninger at 328-1100 or 678-6459; or Ken Penhale at 325-7897 or 663-0269.

Drilling continues but info kept tight

by Fred Guarino

Delta Drilling Company is keeping mum about a wildcat oil well it is drilling for Arco in Shelby County.

The well is on Gulf States Paper Company property about four miles south of Westover and three miles southeast from the intersection of county roads 55 and 51.

Although the well is to be drilled to a depth of 16,000 feet, no one is saying what depth has been reached or what formations are being hit.

The well is being termed a "tight hole" according to Delta employees. They say that the term is used for Wildcat wells on which information is not being given out.

One reason for the closed mouth attitude, according to the employees, is because if people could find out details they would know what success is being had.

Petroleum service engineer Robert Bowles and tube pusher Tony Moss indicated that Arco's hand could be tipped with information such as the depth the well has been drilled, how fast that depth was reached or what formations are being found.

They indicated that if such information proved to be good, other people might try to lease land around the well.

Twenty-four employees from Alabama, Mississippi and Florida are working the wildcat well in this county.

Moss and Eddie McHenry are tube pushers, that is they are responsible for the above ground operation of the drilling.

Arco is keeping two geologists on the site and two drilling foremen.

Roger Russell and Lee Howard are Arco foremen and are responsible for how deep the well goes below ground.

According to Moss the operation in Shelby County has been underway for two months. He said that it could last up to six months or two years.

All Moss would say about the well was that its drilling rig is rated at 18,000 feet, which means the rig could drill that deep.

But he reported that the well in Shelby County must stop at 16,000 or another drilling permit will be required.

He stated that all employees

Operations are powered by one AC and three DC generators which in turn are powered by four diesel engines. The engines are rated at 750 horsepower each.

When asked the expense of such an operation, Moss stated that Delta charges about $7,100 per day for its rig.

He pointed out that four crews of six men are working 12 hour shifts on the job.

Six men work days and six men work nights seven days a week and then a new six and six crew comes on.

When asked if the ground would shake and a blast of oil would reach the skies if oil is struck, as it does in the movies, Moss just laughed.

He stated, "If wells blew like they did in the movies, you would be better off in the next county."

Bowles and Moss explained that mud is pumped into the earth to keep pressure in the ground.

The fluid is continuously recycled so that cuttings are removed and pressure is maintained.

A lagoon has been constructed to hold the cuttings and to recycle the liquid.

Other equipment being used includes centrifugal pumps, mud mixers and cleaning equipment.

Mud test

John Dennington gathers mud samples for a wildcat oil well operation in Shelby County. Dennington will weigh the mud which is pumped into the ground around the drill. Keeping the mud the right weight will keep pressure from blowing out the well in the event oil or gas is struck. The well is being drilled for Arco by Delta Drilling Company. (Photo by Fred Guarino)

Columbiana rally set

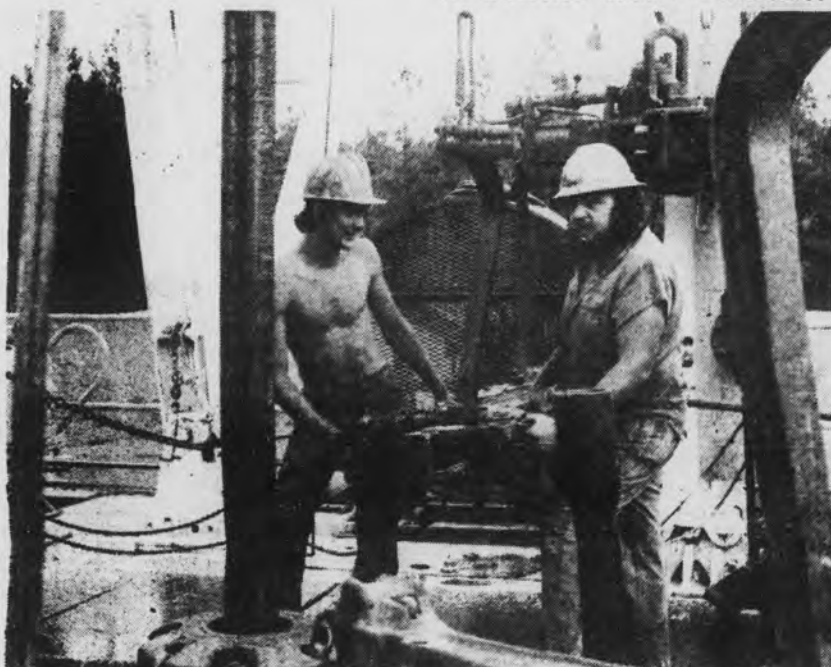

An "Old Fashion Political Rally" planned for Columbiana is expected to draw both local and statewide politicians. The rally is set for Saturday, August 21, and is being sponsored by the Coontown Reelers square dance club.

Club spokesman Leila Horton said local politicians have responded very favorably to the rally, and so far, state candidates for the Public Service Commission and Alabama Supreme Court have said they would attend. Horton said club members are trying to draw other state candidates as well.

Ice cream, barbeque, watermelon and other concessions will be available. Entertainment will be provided by square dancers, cloggers and a blue grass band.

Horton said the club will use the proceeds to help sponsor the national square dance convention planned for Birmingham in 1985. The convention, she said, is expected to be the largest ever in the city's history.

The rally will be held in Columbiana at the intersection of highways 25 and 70. It starts at 11 a.m. and will run until 5 p.m. Admission is free.

What Does Jesus Teach - About Sorrow?

Romans 12:15 "Rejoice with them that rejoice; Weep with them that weep."

Our hearts go out to the Jones and Sigle families in the loss of their sons, Kevin and Alan in an auto accident this last weekend.

Ecc. 3:4 says: "A time to weep... a time to mourn." Indeed, we all mourn with them in this great loss.

At times like these we are reminded of the words of James 4:14, "What is your life? For ye are a vapor that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away."

As we all sorrow with these families let us all consider these words too; Ecc. 12:1 "Remember now thy creator in the days of thy youth."

A warm welcome awaits you at the Church of Christ at South Columbiana.

Alabaster Major Leaguers win District championship

Alabaster's Major League All Stars are headed for Auburn University of Montgomery and the State Championships.

The county team won the District Three Championship last Wednesday night. Alabaster came from out of the loser's bracket to face the TDM. In the first game played Tuesday night, Alabaster squeaked by 2-1, thanks to a two-run homer by Derek Wood in the fourth inning. On Wednesday night, Wood repeated the previous night's performance, but this time the bases were loaded to give him a grand slam home run. The fourth inning rally came to an end with Scott Newell slamming one out of the park as Alabaster coasted to a 14-1 championship victory.

Bryan Partridge was the winning pitcher on Tuesday and J.J.

Stanbridge took the win on the mound Wednesday evening.

At the tournament's conclusion, Derek Wood was named the tourney's Most Valuable Player.

The state tournament got underway Monday afternoon for the Alabaster team. At press time, results of early games were not known. We expect to have a complete report for next week's edition.

Columbiana officer wins annual FOP pistol shoot

by David F. Moore

Officer Frank Formby had the bulls by the eyes at Saturday's FOP pistol match. Formby walked away with first place trophies in both the police 'A' division, and the open division.

Although the rain cut down on the number of expected entrants, 31 Shelby County FOP members showed up packing irons and scratching itchy trigger fingers.

Pelham Police Chief D.O. Watson won first place in 'B' division singles, but only by the skin of his holster. Deputy Chris Curry took first place in the reserve division.

In team competition, deputies

Larry Doss and Mike Shaw, and Formby captured top honors in the 'A' division. Pelham won the 'B' division with Tommy Thomas, Bruce Mattson and Chuck Taylor.

Winners for the events are listed in order of first to third place:

Police 'A': Formby, 584; Virgil Rice, 579; Shaw, 577.

Teams 'A': Doss, Shaw, Formby, 1707; Rice, Bob Arnwine, Mark Delk, 1694, 49-x; Carter, Mike McGaughy, Eason Mitchell, 1694, 47-x.

7-10's; Billy Thomas, 486, 8-x, 6-10's; John Ellison, 471.

Teams 'B': Tommy Thomas, Mattson, Taylor, 1690; Billy Thomas, Chris Curry, Walters, 1643; Larry Lumpkin, O'Dell Caputo, Tim Genry, 1546.

wine, 553; Luther Johnson, 548.

Pelham police will host a shoot Saturday, August 14. The next FOP shoot will be Saturday, August 28. The public is invited to watch, and anyone in Shelby County law enforcement is invited to enter.

Football back on scene

by Richard Crosby

Finally! Football is back on the sports scene and none too soon for most of the county sports enthusiasts.

All county schools both public and private put on helmets and shorts Monday on the first legal day of practice. Most teams will remain in workout uniforms for the first week as coaches seek to remove the summertime excesses of relaxation and food.

Most parents and interested supporters will be leaning on chain-link fences this week, watching with anticipation as the various grid teams start taking shape.

This should prove to be an interesting year. Several teams will start the season on Thursday night, August 26. Other games of interest will be the Thompson - Vestavia Hills game.

Coosa Valley and Shelby Academy have changed their grudge match back to the end of the season instead of the start. Regardless of season records to that point, the game should be a barnburner.

The Reporter will be on the scene as usual - bringing lively accounts of the games played, interesting pictures, and the usual forecasting.

If you're not a regular subscriber, now's the time to call and get your subscription logged on the computer.

We hope that you'll take an interest in our reporting of the high school football season, and in being a part of the crowds that support your school.

Calera team finishes 22nd

Calera Chiropractic's softball team returned from the state tournament Sunday afternoon without the championship trophy. That's not too disappointing for the team, though. Just to play in the tourney was an honor.

The Calera team was invited to play in the Class B State Tournament after finishing seventh out of 48 teams in the District Tournament. That affair was held in Gadsden in July.

For the record, Calera finished the state tourney 22nd out of 68 teams. During the past softball season, the team claimed the Montevallo Open League Championship, won two tournaments and placed second in two others.

Members of the team are: Beaver Mobley, David Spivey, Tommy Lucas, Tommy Franks, Wade Dennis, Kenny Dale Cost, Dusty Ellison, Milton Skinner, Randy Whelton, Tony Davis, Fran Blanchard, George Reed, and Brad Rhodes.

Private School Football Schedules

Private schools are gearing up for the approaching football season. Teams will have their work cut out for them as both Coosa Valley and Shelby Academy will be trying to rebuild. Briarwood has a different line of thought - the school will not be playing any public schools in football for the first time in years.

Shelby Academy has scheduled two Saturday evening games this season. The first one will be the season opener, the second will be homecoming. The other two private schools are following a traditional Friday night schedule.

World Series underway in Montevallo

Some of the finest youth league baseball in the country is going on this week at the University of Montevallo's Kermit Johnson Field.

The occasion is the 1982 Dizzy Dean Senior Baseball World Series, which began on Monday, Aug. 2, and runs through Saturday, Aug. 7. Nine teams opened up in the tournament, and while a couple have been eliminated from the double-elimination affair, there is still plenty of baseball to be seen.

Monday's pairings had champions from West Bank (New Orleans), Louisiana, vs. Reisterstown, Maryland; Boynton, Ga., vs. Aiken, SC; Brookhaven, Miss., vs. Hoover; and Brent, Fla. vs. the host team from Shelby County. Middle Valley (Hixon), Tenn. drew the tournament bye and was to play the Georgia-South Carolina winner Tuesday.

Games are scheduled during the week for 2, 6 and 8 p.m., with games at 6 and 8 p.m. on Friday, and the finals at 6 p.m. on Saturday.

Shelby County reached the quarterfinals in last week's Alabama state tournament, beating Midfield 8-2 in 9 innings, losing to 31 North 2-1 in 8 innings, downing Midfield 6-5, and falling to Hoover 7-5.

Hoover won the state title in dramatic fashion, coming all the way through the losers' bracket after dropping their opener 14-9 to Hueytown. Hoover then downed Selma 3-0, Cahaba Heights 9-4, Shelby County 7-5, Hueytown 5-4 in 8 innings, and 31 North twice, 3-2 and 12-2.

For more information on the Dizzy Dean Senior Baseball World Series, contact the press box at Kermit Johnson Field, AC 205-665-2521, ext. 395.

Sports Scribbles

by Richard Crosby

We played golf together just a few months ago in Calera. I guess I've known him for several years. It wasn't the first time we had played together at Buxahatchee's course.

We were in a foursome with two other Columbians in the Shelby County High School Booster Club Tournament.

I guess what might have most impressed me about him was his maturity and friendliness. Of course he could hit that golf ball a mile, but during those times we waited in the fairways to hit, we talked about where he was heading after high school.

That's what hurts the most. The dreams, aspirations, and ambitions that won't be fulfilled.

The next time I tee-off at Buxahatchee it'll be hard not to think of Alan Sigle, the day we played and the thoughts we shared.

Sports Briefs

An organizational meeting for all Montevallo junior high football players is scheduled for Monday, August 9th, at 1 p.m. The meeting will be held in Coach Gilliam's room at the high school. Coach Kurt Pnasek will be coaching the boys this season and requests that parents or boys who cannot attend this meeting call him at 668-0741.

Shelby Academy has added another coach to the roster. Terry Morton from Centerville will be teaching biology and coaching junior high football, basketball, and girls' softball. Morton coached at Jemison High School before returning to school to further his studies.

The Dizzy Dean State Tournament held at the University of Montevallo brought in about $4,000 in gate receipts. According to tournament director Bob Reiserer, "That's a little less than what we thought, but we're still happy - not disappointed." Reiserer made no predictions about expected gate receipts at the World Series which is in progress this week.

Of the World Series, the championship game is set for Saturday at 6 p.m. That will mark the 16th game of the series. It necessary, a 17th game will be played immediately following.

Fishing is one of the cheapest sports to become involved with. Or so I'm to believe.

It says here (my here, not yours) that for less than $25 you can buy a balanced rod and reel complete with line and instruction booklet, plus a handful of lures to get you started.

What they failed to mention was the gas for your car to get somewhere to fish, a frying pan for cooking the fish in case you get lucky, and the new dress you'll have to buy your wife so she'll let you take the day off.

Karate students win trophies

Montevallo's Karate Club brought back 12 trophies from the regional championships held in Mississippi recently.

Montevallo is part of the Birmingham American Taekwondo Association which went to the regionals in Gautier, July 24.

Winning medals in the championships were: Heather Webster - third place yellow belt forms, and Rachel McKinney - second place green belt forms, both in the Super Tot division.

In the Mini Pee Wee div.: Jason Turner - third in white belt forms and third in white belt spars, Shane Hay - first in green belt forms.

Pee Wee div.: Jack Carter - first in yellow belt forms, Andy Garrett - second in yellow belt sparring. In the Junior div., Jim Turner took third in the green belt sparring.

Men's Division: Stuart Moore - third in white belt forms and third in white belt spars, Brett Collins - third in red belt sparring.

Karen Mitchell won second place in the Women's Division

The way I figure it, you'll be lucky to make it on less than $100: and that's only if the dress shop is having a sale!

Bibb County's slingshot championship was rained out last weekend. All events as listed in last week's paper will be held this Saturday.

Other students participating in the regional meet were: John Turner, James and Jonathan and Margaret Carter, Heath Posey, Steve Wilkinson, Gary Hil, Don Latham, Blake Moore, Steve Burdett, Todd Lovelady, Jerri and Allen and Deana Harris, Meador McClanahan, Brian Morgan, Patrick Thomas, Bo Hopkins, Jim and Russell Frazier.

Waltrip wins 500 as first repeater

by Johnny Holsombeck

Finally someone won it twice. NASCAR driver Darrell Waltrip won the Talladega 500 in 1979 and again this past Sunday afternoon.

He became the first driver in Talladega 500 history to repeat as the Victory Lane driver, and that distinction earned him over $68,000.

With speeds over 200 mph, Waltrip held off Richard Petty, Buddy Baker, and Cale Yarborough. 1971 winner Bobby Allison began his move with just four laps remaining in the race, but ran out of gas and limped out of the chase.

Waltrip held on for the checked flag and the ride to Victory Lane.

The early leavers of the race were: Harry Gant, Kyle Petty, and pole-winner Jeff Bodine.

Waltrip's earnings for the win included $10,000 for being the first repeat winner of the August affair at Talladega's tri-oval.

The only accident of the 188 lap race occurred when Dale Earnhardt spun out on the first turn early in the race. By contrast, the day before an accident claimed the life of one driver during the ARCA 200.

Twenty-five cars finished the race out of a field of forty. Ninety-three thousand fans sat in the sunshine to witness the event.

Former pastor to give talk

Dr. Henry Newton Malony will speak at the First United Methodist Church of Birmingham on August 15.

Dr. Malony, who is a professor at Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena, Calif. has close ties with Shelby County.

When he was a ministerial student at Birmingham Southern College he was a student pastor at Camp Branch United Methodist, at Moore's Chapel and at Ebenezer Methodist in Shelby County. Later he served St. Andrews, near Childersburg and was associate pastor at Sylacauga First United Methodist Church.

he went on to earn an M. Div. degree at Yale University and a Ph.D. at Peabody College in Nashville.

He is the author of eight books and a contributor to four publications.

His wife is the former Suzanna Davis, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. H.C. (Grace Hays) Davis of Rt. 2, Alabaster.

Organizations join forces

The American Cancer Society of Shelby, Jefferson and Walker Counties has become a fund-raising partner of the United Way in commerce and industry.

The new partnership will allow the ACS to receive United Way funding in 1983 for the first time locally.

The funding will result from employee contributions solicited during the 1982 United Way campaign.

Community Chest-United Way President Jesse E. Miller said of the partnership, "Throughout its 59 year history, United Way has always provided a wide variety of services to the people of the three-county area and the addition of the American Cancer Society as a fund-raising partner is a continuation of this effort."

NELMA COMER CRAIGER

For 22 years

SMC honors Craiger

After 22 years of service to Shelby Medical Center, Nelma Comer Craiger, R. N. retired July 1.

Craiger was born in Shelby County in 1916. She completed her nurse's training at the Holy Name of Jesus Hospital in Gadsden in 1943.

She married her husband George W. Craiger in 1943 and they moved back to Shelby County in 1950.

Her career at SMC began in 1959 when the hospital was a 35 bed facility.

According to Brenda Lyles, SMC's assistant administrator of nursing, "A large part of Shelby Medical Center's success can be attributed to the dedication and service of employees like Mrs. Craiger."

"Her letter of resignation expresses her love for SCM. To her it was a place where people needed care and kindness and she was happy to provide these services in any way possible," said Faye Hylton, SMC's assistant administrator of general services.

A resolution from the hospital board of directors was presented at a reception in her honor, Wednesday, July 28.

The resolution expressed the gratitude of the board members and representatives of the community for her 22 years of service.

Helena gets veterans' program

Educationally disadvantaged Vietnam veterans in Shelby County will get the opportunity to prepare themselves for higher education.

The University of Alabama will sponsor a Veterans Upward Bound program at the Helena library, beginning Tuesday, September 7.

A teacher will be employed by the program to test veterans for their educational weaknesses in order to help prepare them for college or technical school. Once the tests are complete a 16 week GED and remedial refresher program will begin.

The only charge will be a $10 registration fee. Books and tuition will be free.

Classes will be scheduled for the convenience of the veterans.

According to Bruce E. Graham, outreach coordinator for the program, "If enough Shelby County veterans are interested, we would like to expand the program to fulltime instruction."

He told the Reporter, however, that before fulltime classes can begin, a place for classes to be held must be donated. He commented that the Helena library has been the only source of cooperation he has found in the county thus far.

Graham said interested veterans should contact VA representative Jim Mayhew at the community facilities building in Columbiana, so he can begin paper work for their GI Bill educational benefits.

County lowers tax $23 on homesteads

by Marcia M. Sears

The owner of an average Shelby County home will save $23 in taxes this year. The saving comes as a result of action taken by the Shelby County Commission Monday.

The commission agreed to increase the homestead exemption in this county from $2,000 to $4,000. Recent legislation increased the exemption on the share of ad valorem taxes that goes to the state, but legislators left it up to each county to decide for itself on the part that goes to the county. (The state's action reduced the average homeowner's tax by $13.)

The county commission increased the exemption (which decreases the taxes) on three funds: the general fund, the road and bridge fund, and the hospital fund. The Board of Education has the authority to do the same on the taxes that go to the schools, but has indicated it will not go along.

Single family, owner-occupied homes are the only real estate that will get this tax cut. It does not apply to apartments, commercial, industrial, or agricultural property.

The county's three funds will be reduced by about $571,000 by the step taken Monday. But commissioners agreed to it only after Tax Assessor Bobbie Reynolds presented certain figures.

She said last year's ad valorem income on this type of property brought the county $2,571,908. But with the reappraisal, that same property is scheduled to bring in $5,904,931 in taxes this year. She said that even with the county's granting the half million dollar exemption, the county's income will still be over $2 million more this year than last.

She admitted that the board of equalization is in session, and will not release its reports for three or four weeks. She expects they will lower some taxes, which will reduce her estimated income figure of $5,904,931. But she still felt there was room for the commission to make the adjustment.

In discussing it, commissioners mentioned that the tax estimates in the past have proved to be 'bad figures' but they hoped "She should have something to go on this time."

Strip mine rumors surface in north Shelby

by David F. Moore

Where there's smoke, there's fire—and coal can produce both. There may not be fire yet, but talk of strip mining coal near Indian Valley is fanning plenty of smoke.

Someone apparently has their eye on strip mining near the north Shelby subdivision.

The question is: "Who?"

More than 500 acres of mostly wooded land lies between Indian Valley and the Cahaba River to the north. Scatterings of coal can be seen on the surface and at least two old, abandoned mine shafts are in evidence there.

Rumors of strip mining in the area have surfaced before, but nothing ever materialized. However, renewed inquiries into the subject has put some Indian Valley residents on guard.

"There's enough smoke to be concerned," Charley Still told the Reporter. "If we catch something like this early enough, maybe we can stop it."

Still, who is chairman of the board for the Indian Valley Homeowners Association, said the only way coal could be hauled out of the area is through the heart of the subdivision, or out Coshatt Road to Caldwell Mill Road. Heavy truck traffic would not only pose a safety hazard, but destroy the roads, he said.

Still said blasting would also rock nearby residents.

Larry Dillard, another Indian Valley resident, said runoff from the striped land could ruin Indian Valley lake in the subdivision.

Mining worries were rekindled last week when two workmen stopped by the north Shelby fire station to ask directions to an area they said was to be strip mined.

Although several people at the station, including Still's wife, Roberta, talked to the men, no one got their names.

Furthermore, when the Reporter contacted Paul Owens at the county Planning Commission, he said two men visited him two months ago and asked what restrictions the county might have on strip mining north of Indian Valley in Beat 12.

He did not get their names, but described them as in their 30's. They mentioned strip mining some 40 acres in the area.

Owens told them that a section of the county's zoning bylaws prohibits the commission from restricting mining.

The men returned in June, Owens said, and informed him there was more red tape than they had at first thought, because the state required permits.

Owens said they did not mention backing out on their plans, however.

Dr. Robert H. Carlson, who owns 119 acres north of Indian Valley, told the Reporter he too has heard recent talk of the strip mining, but said he did not know who was behind it.

Ferrell Wood, land manager for Alabama Farm Bureau Insurance which owns 61 acres in the area, said he has heard nothing about it.

Monday, a logger in woods behind Indian Valley, who identified himself only as Brasher from Leeds, said his three-man crew is cutting pines for a woman he knows only as "Mrs. Mills." He said she is in Africa for six weeks, and that she is having the work done for a subdivision.

According to records in the tax assessor's office, Helen Crow Mills is trustee for about 160 acres in the area.

Several people who were interviewed mentioned the name of William K. Murray, Sr. in connection with land in the area. Murray, a Birmingham attorney with extensive land holdings in Shelby County (but none in north Shelby listed in his name with tax assessor), was out of town for the week.

Murray's son, William, Jr., reportedly lives in a trailer located in a field between Indian Valley and the Cahaba. No one was home when the Reporter visited the trailer Monday, and the phone has been disconnected.

Jim Dutton, a manager for Alabama Surface Mining Commission (ASMC) in Jasper, said he was unaware of any legal mining activities in north Shelby. A state law in February required all mining operations in the state to refile with the commission, and Dutton said that because of the backlog of permits, and the lack of any names to go by, he would be unable to verify if a permit was being sought for north Shelby.

Dutton did say a 40-acre strip mine would take some 2-3 years to deplete.

Before the ASMC grants a permit, Dutton said a legal description of the area to be mined would have to be advertised four weeks in a local newspaper. Following that, a 30-day period for public comment would have to be granted, and opponents could present their case to the commission.

Dutton said the commission would look hard at any proposed mines in this area because of runoff factors involving the Cahaba.

Ken McDowell with the Alabama Water Improvement Commission in Montgomery said anyone operating a legal surface mine would also have to obtain an EPA water discharge permit from his office. McDowell said no one has applied for such a permit.

Democrats blast Reagan

County Democrats heard the Reagan administration described as "an absolute disaster from an economic standpoint."

The charge came from James Knight, chairman of the State

Democratic Party, who was the speaker at the Friday night banquet of the county Democratic Executive Committee.

Knight also blasted the Republican administration of Ronald Reagan for being the most liberal in history with "more deficit spending in four years than all the other presidents combined."

Nearly 300 Democrats filled a large dining hall at the University of Montevallo for the banquet, which drew almost all the local Democratic candidates. Candidates were given an opportunity to introduce themselves but no speeches were allowed. Several representatives of candidates running statewide were also in attendance. Before and after the dinner candidates took the opportunity to meet people and shake hands. Everyone seemed to be having a very good time.

County chairman Teddy Brasher presided, and greetings were extended from UM president Jim Vickrey and his executive assistant, Joe Brindley.

Siluria couple arrested for child mistreatment

A husband and wife from Siluria, indicted by the grand jury, were arrested last Thursday for child abuse.

Alabaster police arrested Charles Lee Stroup and his wife, Joyce, around 1 p.m. at their residence. According to Sgt. Larry Rollan, the couple offered no resistance.

Police reports indicate the victim was one of the couple's four children.

The couple was released from the county jail Saturday on $10,000 bond each, according to booking deputy Jimmy Keister. Keister said preliminary hearings for the couple are set for 1 p.m., August 26, before District Judge Patti Smith.

Child abuse convictions carry from 1-20 years imprisonment, according to District Attorney Billy Hill.

Utility head talks to Pelham chamber

The Pelham Chamber of Commerce's annual dinner at Riverchase Country Club inspired a big turnout of political candidates. But they were there to see and be seen, not to make speeches.

The main speaker of the evening was Joe Farley, president of Alabama Power Company who outlined the history of the company, drawing parallels between problems of the past and problems of the present.

He noted how the company's founders had to go to England and Canada for the money to build Lay dam, because Americans would not loan money

"to this rural area of Alabama."

He pointed out that the company had to 'manufacture customers' and became the first utility in history to set up an industrial development committee to attract industries. Because of increased demand for electricity, rates continued to go down until 1964. At that time other factors entered in, and in 1968 the company had to ask for its first rate increase.

Farley said the company is preparing for the future by selling power from its plant in West Jefferson County to out of state companies that are still

Steam plant to be upgraded

by Fred Guarino

Southern Electric Generating Company (SEGCO) has been given permission to borrow up to $20 million to upgrade its steam plant near Wilsonville.

In addition, the company has received permission to enter an agreement with the Wilsonville Industrial Development Board to sell $10 million in tax free bonds. The bonds will be sold for the installation of pollution control equipment at the plant.

The authority to borrow the money and to enter the bond agreement was granted by the Alabama Public Service Commission for the Earnest C. Gaston Steam Plant on the Coosa River.

SEGCO is owned jointly by Alabama Power and Georgia Power Companies. Alabama Power's half of the facility produces 1,389,840 kilowatts of power.

Engineering work has already begun on the upgrading of the plant but actual work is not slated to begin until 1983.

According to Alabama Power's media representative Lorretto Kenny, the upgrading will add ten years to the life of the steam generating plant. However, she told the Reporter that no new jobs will be added other than temporary construction employment.

The upgrading will be done on four generating units at the plant. Kenny told the Reporter that some of the work will include:

Upgrading the turbine water induction system, work on the boiler feed pump motor, replacing obsolete switching gear, installation of new coal scales on individual boilers, replacing old and leaking tubes on high pressure feeds to water heaters, upgrading the water pollution system, upgrading the safety system on the turbine, and replacing the combustion control system on the boilers.

Kenny called the Wilsonville generating facility a "workhorse of a plant."

Property tax still up in air

by David F. Moore
Court-ordered, statewide property reappraisals have sent tax assessments soaring and complaints flying.

But Shelby County land owners who are protesting the appraisals to the board of equalizations, may be in for a pleasant surprise when tax notices are mailed out later this year.

According to county tax assessor Bobbie Reynolds, the board will probably be making some changes in a number of the reappraisals that have been brought before the board.

Because the mass appraisals were conducted in less than a year's time, Reynolds said it was inevitable that some mistakes occurred and that appraisers were unaware of certain factors concerning some parcels of land.

"I feel sure the board is making some changes and when the tax notices go out, I feel you'll hear a change in attitude," she told the Reporter. "Maybe they'll have a pleasant surprise."

However, land owners who had complaint hearings before the board will have to wait until some time in September before the extent of any possible changes are known. The board will mail all the hearing results at that time, Reynolds said.

Because of the extra complications brought on by the mass reappraisals, tax notices will be mailed out later than the usual September 15 deadline.

Reynolds explained that the board is booked through August 18 with complaint hearings. After the hearings are complete, it will take the board three or four weeks to investigate complaints and make any possible adjustments.

Reynolds said tax notices probably will not be mailed until mid-October.

Whether or not a grace period will be tacked onto the January 1, 1983 tax delinquency deadline, is unknown at this time.

Tax collector Fay Quick said the only extension ever granted was in 1979, the year of the last statewide reappraisal. Because of the large number of mistakes in that year's reappraisals, the notices were not mailed until the following spring, and the state issued a directive doing away with the late penalties. Quick said the county tax collector could grant a short grace period for this year's tax if the notices are mailed too late to give people a fair chance to pay. Quick, however, will resign her office October 1, and Governor Fob James has not yet announced her replacement.

Despite the large and often vocal number of landowners who filed for a hearing before the board of equalization this summer, Reynolds said about 30% of them have cancelled or not shown up for the appointment.

When tax notices are finally mailed this fall, anyone who still wants to appeal them will have 30 days to file for a circuit court hearing. Non-jury filing fees are $42, and an attorney is advisable.

According to Circuit Court Judge Harold Walden, if the landowner wins the case, the county will, in all likelihood, have to pay court costs.

Loophole cuts taxes

Taxpayers who are getting the biggest break on property appraisals this year, are those who claimed 'current use' exemptions.

For instance, one parcel of Shelby County timberland was appraised at fair market value of $367,680, according to figures from the tax assessor's office. Since the land was undeveloped, the owner filed for a current use exemption, slashing the appraised value to $62,720.

Current use cut the appraised value of another parcel of timberland from $292,180 to $39,160.

In all, current use exemptions have been granted for some 4,200 parcels of undeveloped land in Shelby County.

This year, the state granted a six-month extension to last year's deadline, giving land owners until June 30 to file for current use.

Before the extension, tax assessor Bobbie Reynolds said 2,439 parcels of Shelby County land were under current use. During the extension, more than 1,700 additional current use exemptions were filed.

Reynolds said it would not be hard to find another 4,000 parcels of Shelby County land that qualify for current use.

Several complaints have arisen that the tax assessor's office didn't publicize the exemption very extensively.

The state passed the extension in mid-June, and Reynolds said her office was only given a 10-day notice of the new deadline.

"We publicized it to the extent that we had time to publicize it," Reynolds said. "It was in the Reporter, all the state papers and on the news. We were flooded with current use claims."

She said her office has already taken numerous claims for current use exemptions on next year's assessments.

The deadline to claim current use for 1983 tax purposes, is December 31, 1982.

King runs for Ed board

Rev. Leo F. King of Pelham has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for place two on the Shelby County Board of Education.

King is stressing fair representation for all parts of the county, instead of specific communities and towns. He said the board often neglects some parts of the county in the delegation of financial priorities.

Another change King said is needed in the growing school system, is to concentrate on hiring qualified teachers from within Shelby County, instead of bringing them in from the outside.

"I represent honesty, truth and fair play for the entire county," King said. "As a board member, I will work for the good of all."

King is a lab technician, assistant maintenance supervisor and bus driver at Indian Springs School, where he has worked for 17 years. He said his dealings with students, teachers and administrators, has given him an inside, objective understanding of how schools operate.

His interest in public education stems from his seven children who graduated from Shelby County schools. He currently has two grandchildren attending county schools here.

King also works as a full time circuit minister, traveling some 500-600 miles per month to preach. He served as an Army staff Sergeant in World War II, and received battle stars for his part in the Battle of the Bulge and the Rhine crossing.

He and his wife, Ida Mae, have been married 36 years, have resided in Shelby County for 23 years, and are members of the Freewill Baptist Church in Alabaster.

A Shelby County grand jury failed to indict a Montevallo man who had been charged with the murder of a neighbor.

During their session last week, the grand jury determined that there was not enough evidence to indict 18 year old William A. Paschel Jr. for murder.

A continuing argument between Paschel's family and that of Andrew Gentry Jr. reportedly resulted in the shotgun blast which claimed Gentry's life.

The shooting occurred in June in Scott Village, a housing project near Montevallo Middle School.

Betty Gentry and Barbara Paschel, mothers of the victim and defendant respectively, both testified.

One of the 73 indictments handed down was against a Chilton County couple who are charged with abduction and rape.

Glenda F. Whitman allegedly helped her husband, Roy Gene Whitman in abducting a Shelby County woman who was raped and sodomized.

Another couple indicted by the grand jury is accused of child abuse. They are Charles Lee and Joyce Stroup of Alabaster.

The grand jury also indicted Billy Joe Nabors for attempted murder. Evidence presented in that case alleged that an argument over two pieces of bread was the reason for the attack on McCoy Buchannon.

The Alabaster man suffered a concussion and required surgery following the beating.

A domestic argument was purported to be the reason for a Harpersville shooting which resulted in an indictment against Jerry Jones alias Jerome Pelmer.

Jones is charged with the murder of Billy Norwood who was shot with a pistol.

Three indictments for escape were issued against inmates in the Shelby County jail. All three are back in custody.

Rex Lee Wideman and Bobby Satterfield reportedly walked away from a road work crew and Michael Sherrill Ray failed to return to the jail after being given a pass to attend his grandmother's funeral.

The grand jury considered 119 cases. There were 69 indictments issued involving felonies, four misdemeanors, 22 no bills (no indictment), 23 cases were continued and one was restored to the grand jury docket.

Twenty of the cases in which indictments were issued involved drugs, and 36 were on burglary and theft charges.

From stolen corn to stereos, crimes reported

Six dozen ears of corn were stolen from a Calera cornfield, and a car stereo swiped from Inverness. In all, the sheriff's department investigated 11 burglaries, thefts and break-ins during the week of July 30-August 5.

Among the assorted arrests made, was Birmingham resident Darryl Andrew Bishop, charged on an alias warrant of evading the entrance fee to Oak Mountain State Park. Because he didn't pay the $.25 entrance fee and failed to show up at the original court hearing, Bishop's affair ended up costing him $106.

According to reports: A set of silverware was stolen July 30 from an apartment in Altadena.

Deputies are looking for a red and white double cab pickup, tag PWM 788, in connection with the August 1 theft of tools from a residence on highway 76 south of Harpersville. The same day, a stereo was stolen from a car on Cameron Road in north Shelby.

Early August 2, a prowler was reported on Route 2 in Columbiana, but no one was found. That afternoon, articles from a rented trailer in Brantleyville were reported missing when James G. Penrose moved out.

That evening, tools were reported stolen from the storage room of a Route 1, Sterrett resident.

A Calera man's Ditch Witch was reported stolen August 3 from the side of the road at Dargin. That evening, another Calera man reported six dozen ears of corn illegally plucked from his cornfield.

That night, the owner of the closed Mountain Terrace Restaurant in Dunnivant reported that his place had been broken into, but nothing was stolen.

The next day an Irondale builder reported an AC/heating unit was apparently stolen last April from the Woodford section of Inverness. Deputy Louie Cosby apprehended two juveniles in connection with a burglary in the Oak Mountain area that day, but no charges were filed at the time.

Last Thursday a car stereo was stolen from a vehicle on Fieldstone Lane in Inverness.

A 16-year old girl reported missing by her Columbiana father, was located and returned by deputy Mike Shaw on August 2.

A Helena man's house checked out 'okay' August 3 after he reported receiving strange phone calls at work. On August 4, someone called a Calera resident at work in Alabaster and threatened to kill him. The next day, a Route 1, Columbiana woman reported receiving obscene phone calls.

A Maylene man reported his fence was torn down on July 31. The next day someone threw a rock through the window of a Pelham man's car while he was driving on Cahaba Valley Road.

A Chelsea man reported that a stranger driving a maroon car from Illinois came up his driveway August 2, and said he was taking a population survey.

Arrests during the week: David A. Ramsey, an escapee from a federal prison in Lexington, KY, was arrested August 1 in Alabaster. Ramsey, of Santa Fe, N.M., was arrested at 7:30 p.m. on U.S. 31 by deputy Loyd Anderson.

Burl Messer of West Blocton was charged with public intoxication and reckless endangerment, after the car he was driving hit a Wilsonville woman at Beeswax boat launch. The arrest was made August 4 by deputy Larry Doss.

John Milton Tinsley, Dallas, N.C., was arrested August 3 by deputy Mike Smitherman on alias charges connected with 1981 burglary.

Ethel Mullinax of Troy was arrested for DUI. Robert Dale Rich of Birmingham was arrested for alias DUI. Pat McCormick of Wilsonville was arrested for DUI and driving on the wrong side of the road.

Donald Ray Scurlock of Maylene was charged with the 3rd degree assault of his wife on August 3.

Michael Lewis Germany of Calera was arrested for non-support. Phillip Franklin Moore of Chelsea was arrested on a Jefferson County bench warrant for non-support.

Hubert Davis of Columbiana was arrested August 1 in Westover for public intoxication, disorderly conduct, menacing and resisting arrest.

A juvenile (name undisclosed) was arrested for public intoxication.

James Richard Thaggard of Pelham was arrested for passing bad checks.

Reader says education poll information false

Letter to the Editor:

Recently in your paper appeared a political advertisement of a candidate for Shelby County Superintendent of Education. The ad stated that 58 percent of Shelby County teachers were in support of this candidate according to a poll conducted jointly by the Shelby County Education Association and the Uniserv Director. This was false information.

I felt that I had a moral obligation as well as a professional duty to set before the public the true facts and figures concerning the opinion poll conducted in May while I was the President of SCEA.

657 professional staff people were sent ballots and only 318 responded. For the ad to relay the correct percentage of total sup-

Was straw vote representative?

Letter to the Editor:

I attended the Shelby Political Action Committee meeting on August 5, that met to endorse a candidate for Superintendent of Education.

Out of 657 professional staff members in the county, only 108 have joined PAC and only 68 voting members were present at the endorsement meeting. Of the 68 members voting, a majority represented the Thompson community.

Therefore, the decision to support Glasco does not represent the majority of Shelby County teachers and support personnel.

Factors to be considered for a SCEA-PAC endorsement according to the organization's hand-out are:

1. Candidate's position on key issues. 2. Support of the candidate within the group. 3. Electability of the candidate. 4. Past record.

Simmsville man corrects error

Letter to the Editor:

Recently a councilman from Alabaster has made several references in this newspaper and a Birmingham daily about the Simmsville area. Specifically, about it being mostly Black, and designating the Alabaster Beautification Board to assign house numbers to this area so fire, rescue, and police could better serve the residents.

I would like to point out that I reside in the Simmsville area and we do not have the aforementioned services, unless we have been annexed unbeknownst to us.

Also, our area is one hundred percent white. I don't need anyone to assign to my residence a house number. I have a mail box number and it suffices.

For the edification of anyone concerned, the community of Simmsville is located on Shelby County highway 11, 8.5 miles northeast of Alabaster. Could it be that the area the Honorable Councilman was referring to is in reality "Damp Bottom"?

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

Just outside of Flagstaff, Arizona, at a little truck stop was this sign:

"There are no employable people in this area. We are always short of help. The so-called work force is either on welfare or drawing unemployment. Please bear with us. We will do the best we can under the conditions. Thank you for your patience."

I think that was supposed to make our long wait more enjoyable. But it didn't. We waited anyhow. And waited. And waited.

We were in a Sambo Restaurant, somewhere between Denver and Amarillo, having breakfast on one of the prettiest mornings you ever saw. At the end of a long counter, two guys were having an argument. One was big enough to wrestle a hippopotamus and the other was small enough to fight a rabbit.

Suddenly, the big guy knocked the little fellow down. He lay on the hard floor as still as a picture, flattened out like a giant pancake.

A little boy, about ten, came over from his seat in a booth and looked at him. He took another long look, and then gasped:

"My gosh, ain't he flat!"

We went into old Mexico from Del Rio, all of us, piled into three cabs which meant about eight to the cab. The little Mexican town had a name, but I don't remember it, and probably couldn't spell it if I did.

It was late and just one store was open. A little store with every nook and corner stuffed with trinkets visitors might buy. And whiskey, too. And wine and beer, all of it priced lower than they sold it in Del Rio.

While the others browsed, I talked with the man who seemed to be the owner.

"How much English do you speak?" I asked him.

A lady came up with a trinket and he took her money and turned back to me.

"Not too much," he said. "Just enough to make a living."

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

I used to be a Girl Scout, but I've never managed to live up to the motto of being prepared.

Take the other night for example.

Arriving home around 9:30 p.m. after traveling to Montgomery and back to pick up a daughter, I decided to make myself a snack and settle down with a book.

After assembling the ingredients of a fruit salad, I had just started to hull some strawberries, when suddenly, with no warning, I was standing in the dark.

I think my courage wouldn't have fled quite so fast if I had been able to lay my hand on some candles and matches.

But this is one of the areas in which I was not prepared.

So, in fear and trembling, wondering if someone had cut the wires before coming in to strangle me, I groped my way down the hall.

My telephone was ringing by the time I made it to the bedroom. And much to my relief, I learned that my daughter who lives nearby, was also in the dark.

However, she was one up on me. She had candles.

Since neither one of us had a car at the time, I was still in a dilemma.

Then - like a bolt of lightning - I envisioned the mantle in the family room at the other end of the long, dark hallway.

On it, I remembered there was a candle. And then, as the fog began to clear from my mind, I remembered where some matches were.

Actually, the only reason I had matches were because of my teeth, so they were in my bathroom - the matches, not my teeth.

In case anyone hasn't used a match to clean their teeth, let me explain.

You chew the end of a wooden matchstick, dip it in baking soda, and scrub around in the places where your enamel is worn off where stains may have formed.

It was nothing short of a miracle that I managed to find the small box in pitch darkness, but I did.

As I groped my way down the hall again, I learned why the power had gone off.

A storm which must have been approaching, struck with all its fury - which was considerable.

But when I got that little candle going, it was amazing the difference the small glow made.

I managed to finish hulling my strawberries and as the rain poured down, I munched on my salad and read my book.

If you're wondering if I've learned my lesson and will be prepared with a good supply of candles for any future emergencies, you've probably already guessed the answer.

But someday - someday, maybe I will get on the ball and "be prepared!"

I sure hope I do it before the power goes off again.

Writer vents fury

Letter to the Editor:

What I am about to say in honesty and sincerity will probably make some people furious. Some will be within the ranks of my own family. I do not feel that it is honest politics to have candidates (those seeking office) and immediate relatives (wives, sisters, cousins, etc.) serving on the election polls.

It is not fair and equitable. Working as unpaid poll watchers? Sure, I agree to this! It is their duty.

The above was reported in the Shelby County Reporter. I've lived in this County all my life. I know these people. They are (some candidates) and many immediate kin folks (kindred-relatives). This is not republicanism or democratism, it's scared collusion. Get them off the polls!

They cannot serve in fairness and with a clear conscience. How do I know this? I've known most of you all my life. You think as I do.

Sincerely yours,
James O. Bonner, Jr.

Reader wants politics set aside

Letter to the Editor:

It seems that suddenly our most important asset, our children, has been forgotten in favor of politics and getting someone elected or beaten in the coming election. If politics serve to divide us in the field of education and if we put our own personal political goals ahead of our students' best interests we will be a lost nation. When this election is over we must all be able to work together to make our school system the very best. If we cannot or will not pledge to do that then we have forgotten our first responsibility as teachers.

It is time we identify those people that would divide us or fail to support every program designed to help our children. If no one else chooses to do so, I will.

Someone must speak up for the students. Students and their parents must be told that there are still many teachers that have the best interest of the students at heart.

For those political activists that seem to have forgotten their reasons for teaching, I would suggest that they could accomplish much more politically if they showed true care and love for their profession and the children they teach.

There are two areas where we must remain non-partisan. Nationally, it's foreign policy. Locally, it's education.

Working together, we can go far. But this is the only way. I want to be a part of correcting this situation and making our schools the very best.

Foresters, county commission make peace

by Marcia M. Sears

The county forestry commission is back in the good graces of the Shelby County Commission. At last Monday's meeting county forester Daryl Lawson said he would try to meet with the forestry committee the second Tuesday of every month. Members of that committee are H.R. "Bub" Gordon, Jean Glover and David Samples. Commissioners expressed satisfaction that the foresters had submitted all the information they requested, and would restore the county's share of funding. Commissioner Don Murphy said he is glad "the good relationship is back on track."

In other business, Commissioners turned down a request from Democratic party chairman Teddy Brasher, that extra telephones be installed in the courthouse on election night. Chairman Tommy Snowden said it would cost $1,452 in all to have six phones operating in the courtroom on the three election nights. Although Snowden seemed to favor it, other commissioners felt telephones could be used in other courthouse offices for reporting the results from polling places. Assistant county engineer Hilry King Jr., said two crews are working full time on grass cutting along county roadsides. He advised the commissioners, "We need to be thinking in terms of herbicides. Once things are killed, we can use a retardant." He said the state highway department is just now getting their roadsides in good shape. The state started using herbicides last year. He said, "It would take 10 crews the size we have," to keep the county roadsides in good shape without herbicides. Commissioner J.A. Lowe mentioned that a peach crop near Vincent was ruined this spring when the state sprayed a roadside 400 to 500 feet away from the peaches. King said that spray equipment is improving to prevent such accidents. When it came time to pay the county's bills, Commissioner Don Murphy asked why Gary Lester was being paid $360 in addition to his service contract. Clerk Mildred Ray indicated it was for additional accounting work. Murphy also asked why the sheriff asked for a "muscle stimulator" for a prisoner at the jail at a cost of $78. This led to a discussion of getting the state to pay its share on medical costs for state prisoners. Commissioner Harold Davenport mentioned, "I'm finding out we still don't have cablevision down highway 119 in the Oakdale subdivision and other places." Snowden said he would ask the county attorney to look into the matter.

PAC makes endorsements

Members of the newly organized Political Action Committee of the Shelby County Teachers' Association have been accused of forgetting about the students as they become involved politically. But a member of the support personnel group who belongs to the PAC organization stresses that, "Our interest lies with the kids."

"I believe we will be able to serve the students better if there isn't a fear of speaking out," she said. On Thursday, members of the organization let their feelings be known on candidates they will support for educational posts in the upcoming election.

Meeting at the University of Montevallo, the majority of those present said they preferred Ellie Glasscox for Superintendent of Education, incumbent Paul Summers for place 1 on the board of education, and Lynn Argo for place 2. The result was announced by PAC Chairman Sharon Gaydon. Gaydon explained that PAC was organized to improve the educational system and to encourage members to take an active role in governmental affairs and fulfill their civic responsibility. At the time of the meeting last Thursday, the organization had 107 members.

Wilsonville seeks MD

The Town of Wilsonville is seeking a doctor to serve its people. Although no official action was taken Monday night, the town council discussed finding a doctor to serve the Wilsonville area, and finding a suitable building. In other action, the council voted to pave the parking lot from the red light to the IGA store. It also agreed to sell to the highest bidder a 1977 LTD police car Monday, August 23 at 10 a.m. The town will display the car at Town Hall from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and reserves the right to reject all bids.

Single fund begun

A memorial fund for Alan Sigle has been started at First National Bank of Columbiana. The 18 year old youth was killed in an automobile accident near Shelby last week. Directors of the fund have not yet decided the details of handling the money, but are expected to use it for projects to help the schools. People can make contributions at the bank.

Columbiana ponders parking

by Bert Seaman

Speaking for the city's Beautification Committee, Columbiana businessman Jim Strickland says, "This is the time for the city to set the stage for the future."

At Thursday's council meeting, Strickland presented plans the committee has been working on to provide a parking area enhanced by plantings.

He emphasized that the good news is the fact that the plan provides for 6-8 additional parking spaces.

That had been the main argument of merchants who opposed fixing up the area on south Main Street.

But the plan drawn up by landscaper John Reeves reorganizes the parking lot across from the old courthouse by drawing off parking spaces at a 60 degree angle.

After looking over the area, Reeves also proposed putting 6-8 spaces in the rear of the lot adjacent to the city shop.

Giving the cost of the beautification, Strickland said that one plan would cost $14,534 while a second proposal in which smaller plants would be used, could be achieved for $12,500.

Asked by Mayor Buck Falkner what the city's part in the project would be, Beautification Board Chairman Mildred Harrison said, "We hope the city will pay for it."

With the present condition of the economy, Strickland feels that it will be to the city's advantage to undertake the project this year.

However, the motion to move ahead with the undertaking was tabled until the next council meeting when Councilwoman Jessie Jones said she would make a recommendation.

Another area of improvement affecting the safety of students attending the elementary school was also brought to the council's attention.

Thurston Sumners, architect for the county Board of Education, presented plans calling for widening Washington Street and putting a sidewalk on both sides.

"We've had a problem getting students in and out on that street since the school was built," declared trustee John Jones.

Because of the narrow street, devoid of sidewalks, Jones noted that it was fortunate that there hadn't been any injuries.

Sumner's plans also called for a separate bus entrance with a turnaround behind the school. He mentioned the need for a bridge with railings over the widest part of the creek which runs under the road, plus putting in some larger culverts.

Mayor Buck Falkner asked the board of education's finance coordinator, Jim Davis, if the board planned to help with finances.

However, Davis did not have the answer.

Mentioning the sum of $10,000, the council's finance committee chairman Lewis Walker wondered if the project could be done for that amount. "We'll have to," replied Sumner.

Street talk:

Probate, superintendent will be top races

by David F. Moore

Political posters crowd highways and intersections. Hand-douts are showing up on parked car windows. Smiling politicians are ringing doorbells, with a ready handshake and their versions of the whys and why-nots of the upcoming elections.

But what about the voters, the men and women of Shelby County who have the last say behind the curtained booth? What do people on the street think about issues and offices?

To find out, the Reporter asked people at random these questions:

•What do you think is the major issue or problem concerning Shelby County?

•Which of the offices up for election is the most crucial, or will have the most impact on the county?

•Are you excited about, or interested in the elections?

•Are you a registered voter and if so, do you intend to vote in local elections this fall?

Carol Clemens, Indian Springs: "Schools are a concern, and so is organized growth on 280. We don't need another mess like highway 31. The lack of libraries and parks is another thing."

She said taxes were so much lower when they moved to Alabama, that the difference was enough to send her children to a private school. Nonetheless, "The office of education is the most important office."

"I haven't been thinking about the elections that much, yet. I just hope they take down all the signs after it's over."

She is registered and intends to vote.

Betty McClure, Inverness: Noting that the superintendent of education is the most important office, she said "The reputation of the schools is a big problem. I think a lot of people would move here, but they're waiting for their kids to get out of school.

"Taxes are too low to help the schools much. Don't raise them very much, just a little."

"I usually wait till right before the elections, then bone up on the candidates. I don't just vote on a name."

She is registered and intends to vote.

W.C. "Shorty" Woodruff, Rt. 1, Sterrett: "I like Shelby County. These damn garbage dumps are the biggest problem we have."

"SHORTY" WOODRUFF

People tell me to look at them on the side of the road. I can't see them because I'm almost blind, but I can imagine!

"Also the prisoners should be out cutting grass, not watching tv. 'The (circuit) judgeship is the most important office. We have to keep the guilty from being turned loose."

"I'm interested in the men we elect, but how are you going to tell the man you should vote for?"

"I'm registered but I don't vote, so I can't squawk. I just can't see anymore to get in the booth and pull the lever. But I do care."

ROY ISBELL

Roy Isbell, Vandiver: "There's so many problems I don't know what to name first. We need better schools—we need that—but they've run this tax thing out of proportion. I think there's too much waste of our taxes, especially right here in our Shelby County government."

"The probate is the number one office. It should have more power."

"I'm getting excited about the elections, and you'd better believe I'm going to vote!"

William Turner, Caldis: "Crime-wise, it seems everything is pretty quiet on our side of the county. The biggest thing that gripes me is we're never able to get any work done on our driveways. It looks like with the taxes we pay, we could get something in return."

"As far as I'm concerned, the probate judge is the top job up for election."

"I haven't started getting that fired up, or reading that much about the elections, yet. I haven't had much time. But I'm registered and yes, sir, I'll vote."

WILLIAM TURNER

Otha Kelley, Jr., Harpersville: "I didn't get the education I really needed, but I want our children to get it. There's a lot of poor blacks and whites that need more education than they're getting."

"I really don't get excited about elections because there's not too much we can do about them because so many folks don't get out and vote."

"Yes, sir, I'm going to be voting. And I'm going to try and get my friends out to vote."

Margaret Cain, Wilsonville: "Always, education can stand improvement. And crime is on the increase--everywhere I imagine—even in small towns."

"They're all important, but I believe the superintendent of education and the probate judge are the most important office up now. 'I'm getting more involved in this election than I have in the past. I'm learning more about the political people. Also, I have

We need more classrooms and a person to work with and support the Board of Education.

We need to provide and maintain our road system to serve industry and its citizens.

WE NEED C. P. "RED" WALKER!

We need fair and equal appraisals of our properties.

We need proper planning in the expenditure of our tax dollars.

We need to improve our water and sewage treatment systems.

WE NEED C. P. "RED" WALKER!

We need more industry.

We need an active Industrial Development board.

WE NEED C. P. "RED" WALKER!

YOU need to become involved.

YOU need to elect a person capable of administering to the needs of the office.

YOU need a Planner to provide Positive Action!

WE NEED C. P. "RED" WALKER!

All of this takes Proper Planning.

Shelby Countians, be proud of Shelby County, you live here!

Let's elect a Planner.

If you have not registered or re-identified as a resident of Shelby County, do so. Don't wait . . . election day is September 7th.

Go to the Polls, encourage your friends, family and neighbors.

We wish to congratulate the County Commission for the adoption of the resolution to increase the Homestead Exemption from $2000 to $4000. With the present economy we do not need any further increase in our taxes.

MARGARET CAIN

She is registered and intends to vote.

A.C. Bryan, Four Mile: "Seems like things are pretty good where we live, but somehow it seems things aren't going just right. There's no certain things I can think of that bother me."

Bryan said he considers the probate judge the most important office up for election.

"I'm kindly nominal on the elections right now. We always vote, but usually it's a week or two before it comes on, that we start eyeing it good."

Don Bulger, Pelham: "I don't have a major concern that really bothers me."

"The superintendent is extremely important and we have three, good, qualified people running. The school business is the biggest business in Shelby County in more ways than one.

"The judgeship is very important. And the probate is the man who runs this county. "I don't get "all-fired-up" about the election, but it's extremely important. Yes, I'm registered and yes, I'm going to vote."

Miss Rhodes marries

Lee Ann Rhodes became the bride of Rick Jackson on Friday, August 6, at 8 p.m. at Calera Baptist Church. The Rev. Mack McCollum officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rhodes, Jr., of Calera and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Jackson of Jemison.

The bride wore a gown of ivory chiffon enhanced by matching peau d'ange lace. The scalloped lace formed a wide V neckline and capped the full bishop sleeves. Her long veil was bordered by the lace. She wore a strand of graduated pearls given by her maternal grandmother.

Lori Young of Prattville, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Regina Boulware of Clanton, Jonna Lee of Montevallo, and Denise Wyatt of Clanton. The attendants were gowned alike in jade chiffon dresses.

Shanda Bowen of Jemison, niece of the groom, served as the flower girl.

The bride's mother chose an ivory shadow floor length chiffon gown. The groom's mother wore a pastel pink chiffon floor length gown. Bryan Elkins of Thorsby served as the groom's best man. Groomsmen were Cary Rhodes, brother of the bride, Terry Jackson, brother of the groom, and Dusty Ellison of Calera.

Ushers were Arty Folk of Thorsby and Glenn Littleton of Thorsby. Nathan Owens, cousin of the bride, served as the ring bearer.

DID YOU KNOW?

Working close to power lines is too close for comfort.

Before putting up a CB or TV antenna, remember to check for power lines, both overhead and coming into your home. Make sure they are at least twice as far away as the height of your antenna. Wait for a calm, dry day and get several people to help. When climbing a ladder for any reason, stay clear of all wires. Also, don't handle aluminum siding close to wires. And never touch a fallen electric line. Report it immediately to Alabama Power.

Fire fighters hustle to park

When the fire call came, one of the men was in the bathroom. Four of them were cutting grass, two were repairing park equipment, two were driving to the shop. Surprise was one of the ideas behind the fire call. The volunteer members of the Oak Mountain State Park "fast response team," had their name tested Thursday afternoon by a practice drill.

The drill was part of a new cooperative training program that park officials and the county forestry department have initiated.

Park personnel have always doubled as firefighters, but until now they've never received any formal training, according to park security officer James H. Norris.

Norris said five or six brush fires usually hit the park every year. Most of them are contained to several acres, but last March a fire on the ridges near Peavine Falls burned some 300 acres.

County forester Daryl Lawson and park supervisor Phil Easterwood said that fire made obvious the need to better "mesh" communications and firefighting efforts at the park.

The forestry department and Oak Mountain officials have formed a mutual aid pact to help each other in the event of a serious fire. The forestry department has only three rangers, but does have two tractors with fire plows and other equipment; the park has a six-ton water truck, the "fast response team" and other park personnel to shovel fire lanes.

By ironing out communications, Lawson figures to save money by not trucking the tractors across the county for what could turn out to be a small fire.

From the time of Thursday's drill call, to arrival on the scene across the park, Norris said he would consider a 10-minute response time good.

In 11 minutes a van came hauling down the main park road, followed quickly by the water truck. Easterwood said he was pleased with the response time.

The first drill session was cut somewhat short when Easterwood and security chief Talmadge Butler were called from "fire" to attend a young boy who had received minor injuries when he slipped at Peavine Falls.

Bridge contracts let

The state highway department has tentatively accepted bids for two new county bridges.

Harbert International, Inc., of Riverchase was the apparent low bidder for the U.S. 280 bridge over the Coosa River. The contract calls for a new two-lane bridge and approaches totaling seven-tenths of a mile.

Harbert's bid of $3.38 million bested bids by RAM Contractors of Nashville ($3.55 million) and Tillett Brothers of Shelbyville, Tennessee ($3.58 million).

G.W. Norrell Contracting Company, Inc., of Georgian, Alabama submitted the apparent low bid for a bridge over Yellowleaf Creek on highway 55 south of Westover.

Norrell's bid of $387,000 was followed by bids of $394,000 and $404,000 by H.N. Donahoo of Birmingham, and Montgomery Bridge and Engineering, respectively.

Harbert also submitted the apparent low bid of $5.66 million for a half-mile bridge over the Tombigbee River west of Pickensville.

The bridges are among 58 projects in 41 counties that were up for bids July 30. Sixteen of the bridges, including the one over the Coosa, are being financed by windfall profits from the state's gas and oil leases on the coast.

The contracts will be formally awarded at the end of the month, pending analysis and verification.

Vandiver VFD slates rally

The Vandiver Volunteer Fire Department is sponsoring a political rally Saturday, August 14.

The rally will be held at the Vandiver Community Center and will run from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Both state and county candidates have been invited to speak.

Bluegrass music and games will be provided for entertainment. Barbeque will be sold to benefit the fire department.

Proceeds from the project will be used to purchase a bedroom suite for the church parsonage.

Historians meet

The main topic of discussion at the Shelby County Historical Society meeting last week was the progress of restoration on the old courthouse.

A tentative target date of Sept. 1 was set for the opening of two rooms in the historic building, which will be used as a museum.

Alabama's Bureau of Publicity, it was announced, plans to include the Columbiana structure in a series on courthouses that will be printed in "The Publisher," magazine.

Steering Committee Chairmen are: Ken Penhale, restoration; George Burton, museum and Miriam Fowler, fund raising.

Mention was also made at the meeting of the availability of the county cemetery census book II. The price per copy is $20.

An invitation from the Jefferson County Historical Society was accepted to meet with them October 6 at the Birmingham Botanical Gardens.

Dispute ends with one dead

A Saturday night argument in Montevallo exploded into a stabbing, leaving one person dead and one person in the Shelby County jail.

Dead is 27 year old Mack Postell. Charged with murder is 26 year old Donna Jean Fulgham.

According to police reports the incident began at 10:15 p.m. Saturday at 145 White Street. Both subjects apparently lived at the same address. Police were called to the scene at 10:30 and found Postell near death from a knife wound.

Rescue units were called. Postell was taken to the Emergency Room at Shelby Medical Center. Efforts to revive him were futile.

Miss Fulgham was arrested and taken to the Montevallo City Hall. She was later charged and transferred to the Shelby County jail.

What Does Jesus Teach About Priorities

When we are told to "Remember now thy creator in the days of thy youth." Ecc. 12:1, what is he telling us? Priorities.

In summing up the thoughts and concerns of life Jesus said: "Be not anxious for your life, but seek ye first his kingdom, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Matt. 6:25, 33.

Too often we let the cares of the world overburden us. Do we worry about today, right now, not usually, because we are fine right now, otherwise we wouldn't have time to worry. No we usually worry about tomorrow. Jesus said, "Be not therefore anxious for the morrow; for the morrow will be anxious for itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." Matt. 6:34.

Let tomorrow take care of tomorrow and let you and I seek the Kingdom and his righteousness TODAY.

A warm welcome awaits you at the Church of Christ at South Columbiana.

STATE OF ALABAMA A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, Act No. 81-889 of the Legislature of Alabama passed during the First Special Session, 1981, provides that an election be held by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon certain proposed amendments to the Constitution of Alabama; and
WHEREAS, said Act further provides that the election be held at the first statewide primary or general election after the expiration of three (3) months from final adjournment of the Session and that date being September 7, 1982; and
WHEREAS, The Constitution of Alabama, 1901, requires that notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, be given by a Proclamation of the Governor; and
WHEREAS, such Proclamation is to be published in each county in the State of Alabama for at least four successive weeks next preceding the day appointed for such election;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Fob James, as Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice that on Tuesday, the 7th day of September, 1982, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama in the manner and form prescribed by law upon the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, 1901:

"The following words and phrases, whenever used in this Amendment, shall have the following respective meanings:

"Basic Appropriations" means, with respect to any regular session of the Legislature, such appropriations as the Legislature may deem appropriate for the expenses of the State during the ensuing Budget Period for the ordinary expenses of the executive, legislative and judicial departments of the State, for payment of the public debt, and for education (excluding, however, any item within the scope of the foregoing that is at the time provided for by a continuing appropriation or otherwise).

"Budget Period" means a fiscal year of the State or such period other than fiscal year as may hereafter be fixed by law as the period with respect to which State budgets are prepared and State appropriations are made.

On or before the second legislative day of each regular session of the Legislature, beginning with the first regular session after January 1, 1983, the Governor shall transmit to the Legislature for its consideration a proposed budget for the then ensuing Budget Period.

The duty of the Legislature at any regular session to make the Basic Appropriations for any Budget Period that will commence before the first day of the succeeding regular session shall be paramount; and, accordingly, beginning with the first regular session held after

January 1, 1983, no bill (other than a bill making any of the Basic Appropriations) shall be signed by either the presiding officer of the House or Senate and transmitted to the other house until bills making the Basic Appropriations for the then ensuing Budget Period shall have been signed by the presiding officer of each House of the Legislature in accordance with Section 66 of this Constitution and presented to the Governor in accordance with Section 125 of this Constitution; provided, that this paragraph (C) shall not affect the adoption of resolutions or the conduct of any other legislative functions that do not require a third reading; and provided further, that following adoption, by vote of either house of not less than three-fifths of a quorum present, of a resolution declaring that the provisions of this paragraph (C) shall not be applicable in that house to a particular bill, which shall be specified in said resolution by number and title, the bill so specified may proceed to final passage therein.

Upon the signing and presentation to the Governor in accordance with the said Sections 66 and 125 of bills making the Basic Appropriations, the provisions of the foregoing paragraph (C) prohibiting the final passage of bills in the House and Senate (other than bills making any part of the Basic Appropriations) shall cease to be effective and shall not be revived or become again effective as a result of (i) the subsequent legislative history of any bill so signed and presented, including any veto, return with executive amendment, or any other action, or failure to act, by either the Governor or the Legislature under the provisions of the said Section 125; or (ii) a determination, by either judicial decree or opinion of the Justices of the Alabama Supreme Court, that any bill so signed and presented is wholly or in part invalid.

The Legislature may, by statute or rule, make such further provisions for the timely passage of bills making the Basic Appropriations as are not inconsistent with the provisions of this Constitution.

Nothing contained herein shall be construed as requiring the Legislature to make any appropriation not otherwise required by this Constitution to be made."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of this election upon Tuesday, the 7th day of September, 1982, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901, be given by publishing the same once a week for four successive weeks next preceding Tuesday, the 7th of September, 1982, in each county of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said county.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of Alabama to be affixed by the Secretary of State at the Capitol in the City of Montgomery, this 16th day of July, 1982.

FOB JAMES Governor

Amendment No. 2

STATE OF ALABAMA A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, Act No. 82-332 of the Legislature of Alabama passed during the Regular Session, 1982, provides that an election be held by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon certain proposed amendments to the Constitution of Alabama; and
WHEREAS, said Act further provides that the election be held at the first statewide primary or general election after the expiration of three (3) months from final adjournment of the Session and that date being September 7, 1982; and
WHEREAS, The Constitution of Alabama, 1901, requires that notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, be given by a Proclamation of the Governor; and
WHEREAS, such Proclamation is to be published in each county in the State of Alabama for at least four successive weeks next preceding the day appointed for such election;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Fob James, as Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice that on Tuesday, the 7th day of September, 1982, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama in the manner and form prescribed by law upon the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, 1901:

"The following amendment number three to the Constitution of Alabama is proposed, and shall become valid as a part of the Constitution when approved by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon and upon proclamation by the Governor:

WHEREAS, said Act further provides that the election be held at the first statewide general, special or primary election after the expiration of three (3) months from final adjournment of the Session and that date being September 7, 1982; and

Elephant's eye must look on up to the sky

The lyrics of a song in the musical, "Oklahoma," describe the corn being as high as an elephant's eye.

According to a veterinarian at the Jimmy Morgan Zoo, that could be ten feet high if the elephant is an African bull.

Even though those would be good size stalks, they still couldn't compare to the ones soaring skyward in Willie Bradley's Chelsea garden.

"My dad is 83," Bradley said, "and he declares he's never seen any corn this tall in his life!"

Bradley had estimated the height of the stalks at 16 feet. But he didn't want folks to think he was telling a tall tale, so he cut one Wednesday and measured it.

The ruler gave him the measurement of 16 feet seven inches.

Having gardened all his life, Bradley has no explanation for the unusual size.

He reported getting the seed from a man in Vincent who had saved it from his crop. "It's supposed to be Tennessee Red Cob," Bradley noted, "but I wonder if he didn't get it mixed up with something else."

Some people believe the phase of the moon when the planting is done has an effect on its growth, Bradley related.

But he doesn't put much stock in that notion and doesn't even remember exactly when he put the seed in the ground.

In addition to the half acre garden that he and his wife Dot work, the couple has also gone to Vincent to care for their daughter's garden since she was out of the state.

A sawyer by trade, Bradley finishes his work at a local mill at noon. That leaves the afternoons free for him to spend whatever time is necessary in the garden.

He and his wife have been busy lately trying to keep up with the harvesting and canning. What they can't use themselves, they give to friends and relatives.

Others have had abundant crop yields too. When Bradley's brother-in-law, Bill Syphurs, needed help with shelling his peas, Bradley gave him a hand.

"We shelled 25 gallons at one sitting," he declared!

In addition to the tall rows of corn in his garden, Bradley also grows pole beans, butter beans, tomatoes, egg plant, peppers, okra and squash.

An arbor laden with muscadines borders the garden. Bradley said that the original vine had been brought in from the woods and replanted.

On a bench near the back door of their home on the day the Reporter visited, were eight to nine watermelons from the Vincent garden.

When Bradley's corn reaches its full growth next year, it may only be as high as an elephant's eye - which is still pretty good size.

But he can still brag about how high it grew this year - and he can prove it isn't just a "tall tale."

Politicians eat well

Office seekers accustomed to eating on the run got a break in Sterrett Saturday.

The Birthday Club put on a political rally with a memorable spread of food.

The church ladies from Beulah Baptist Church really knew how to cook, and all the vegetables were fresh.

A crowd of around 60 filled up the Sterrett Legion Hut and overflowed into the yard. Since people were constantly arriving and leaving, the total attendance was probably over 200.

Annette Johnson, secretary of the 22 member Birthday Club, called the event a fundraising success for the church. (Time has erased the memory of what its name means, but the Birthday Club consists of married women in the Beulah Baptist Church.)

Out in the yard, a special session of the Board of Registrars signed up 20 new voters and reidentified eight.

Inside, political speeches were punctuated by the harmonizing of the Royal Masters Quartet. The gospel group featured Sterrett's own Don Garrett as second tenor.

Many political aspirants sent representatives because the meeting coincided with the Alabaster Suburban League and the Pelham Chamber of Commerce meetings.

Sky-high corn

Chelsea gardener Willie Bradley has to crane his neck as he looks at the top of a corn stalk cut from his garden which measured over 16 foot in height.

Montevallo trash service remains free

The residents of Montevallo's two housing projects will not have to pay to have their garbage picked up.

Montevallo Mayor Ralph Sears told the Reporter Tuesday night that he had discussed the proposal with the city's legal counsel and was accepting that counsel's advice to drop the matter.

During the last city council meeting in July council members voted unanimously to locate dumpster type garbage collectors at both Crow Village and Scott Village.

Council members indicated the current unit by unit collection method is inefficient and unreasonably expensive. The dumpster type collection method is already in use at all Montevallo businesses and apartment houses.

Council members voted at the July meeting to install the dumpsters at the beginning of the new fiscal year, October 1.

However, the Housing Authority's executive director Brenice Birdsong told council members that locating dumpsters and assessing a fee for pickup violates a 1970 agreement the Housing Authority has with the city.

Sears told the Reporter that the city's legal counsel considers the agreement to be unclear. The advice from counsel, according to Sears, "It's not worth a court suit."

In other business Monday night, the mayor reported that the proposal to divide the city into districts before the next election is being discussed by the city's attorneys and the Justice Department. The city is seeking guidelines to implement the proposal.

Montevallo's Police Department was commended by the mayor for its handling of a hostage situation last Friday night. Sears complimented the officers saying, "a potentially explosive situation was solved with no one getting hurt."

Sears also praised the department for its handling of a fatal stabbing Saturday night. Sears said the department performed well during a difficult situation.

Watermelons

James F. Creel is amazed that two of his watermelons reached 58 and 62 pounds this season. A longtime gardener in the Kingdom community, he says, "I've never seen as many watermelons in my life." Some of them are heading for a watermelon cutting at Antioch Church.

Vincent's Rangers win craft awards

Royal Rangers from Vincent's Assembly of God Church were chosen to carry their standard at the head of Alabama's 70 member delegation during the National Camporama.

But it wasn't until the closing day of the event, that the Vincent group learned that their standard had won the first place award.

According to John Lenn, Commander of Vincent's Outpost 141, Royal Rangers from 48 states and several foreign countries attended the event.

He said that 3,500 boys and leaders gathered at Pigeon Forge, TN to take part in the event which is held every four years.

Led by the Vincent Ranger's standard, the Alabama delegation marched to meals, services and various other places at the encampment during the last week of July.

On Friday, they joined with the other delegates in a parade reviewed by the commanders.

Their prize winning standard portrayed a Creek Indian, since they chartered as the Creek Outpost, a Royal Ranger and the cross.

It was airbrushed by Freddie Cooper, a Ranger father, on a circular piece of imitation buffalo hide.

A crafts entry by the Vincent group also won recognition at the national event.

It was a 35 foot high watchtower constructed from bamboo poles which had to be hauled to the site on a trailer and assembled.

It took half a day to erect it, Lenn said, reporting that the structure was given a 3rd place award.

During their stay in Tennessee, the entire assembly visited the World's Fair, making them the largest organization to have visited the fair.

Swing and miss

Shelby County's Randy Lewis took a full cut at the ball last Tuesday night, but still missed. The SCHS graduate played short stop for the losing county team in the Dizzy Dean World Series. (photo by Richard Crosby)

Hoover wins nat'l title of Dizzy Dean Baseball

Given up for dead after losing their opening game in the state tournament two weeks ago, the Hoover Dizzy Dean Senior baseball team staged a remarkable comeback. That rebound climaxed Saturday night in the championship game of the 1982 World Series at Kermit Johnson Field on the campus of the University of Montevallo.

Trailing 5-1 after 4 1/2 innings, Hoover rallied for 4 runs in the 5th and 8 in the 6th to pin a 13-5 loss on Middle Valley, TN, giving them a 10-game winning streak since that state tournament loss and the title of Dizzy Dean Baseball's best.

Tournament co-MVP Jeff Brantley picked up his second win of the series by pitching the route and striking out 12. Brantley allowed 13 hits in 16 innings in the series and struck out 21. He got batting support in the title game from Todd Dobnikar and Mike Bennett, each of whom had three RBI.

Outfielder Erick Ricketts of Tennessee shared MVP honors with Brantley.

Spectators at the World Series received an extra bonus on Tuesday and Wednesday with the addition of the Dizzy Dean Junior World Series finals. Excessive rains at the original site forced a switch, and Montevallo offered the use of Johnson Field.

On Tuesday, Billy Smith of Reistertown, Md., no-hit Hueytown, 8-0 giving each team one loss, but the next day, Alabama exploded for a 12-2 victory, thus making Alabama winners in both divisions.

University of Montevallo baseball coach Bob Riesener, who served as tournament director, was pleased with Montevallo's first venture into hosting tournaments of this nature.

"I think the tournament was a success," Riesener said. "The Falcon Club certainly benefitted in terms of funds for next year and the community benefitted with so many people coming in and increasing trade."

"The University is also going to benefit in that we brought in a lot of outside people who didn't know what a beautiful place this campus is. It will help us in recruiting, not only athletically, but in all areas. I can't help but feel that some of the younger people who came are going to wind up going to school here."

Coach Riesener is already studying the possibility of trying to host the 1983 Dizzy Dean Junior World Series at Montevallo.

Football teams put on the pads

by Richard Crosby

County athletes are busy making sure the shoulder pads and helmets are fastening correctly. On Monday morning and afternoon, football teams all around the county dressed in full battle gear.

After last week's running, conditioning, and skull sessions, the scrimmaging might seem like a break. But the sun, heat, and humidity will change those thoughts after 30 minutes.

Calera is in its annual football camp. Parents in the town call it vacation, though. The Eagle squad lives in the gym for the entire week, holding twice-a-day practices and continuous spirit checks.

The Lady Eagles handle all the cooking chores for the team. This group of supporters has changed the complexion of booster clubs in the county. The women raised over $2,000 for the team last year.

Pelham backed out of going to camp this year. Head Coach Billy Tohill and his assistants have too much work to do teaching a new offense to the team and upgrading the facilities to leave town.

"We're working before practice, during practice, and after practice on dressing rooms, weight rooms and cleaning the stadium," Tohill stated.

He added, "I'm real pleased with the kids' desire to work. Everything's going real well." Tohill commented that the squad has been doing a lot of learning, and two practices a day have been held since last Thursday.

In regard to size, it's hard to pick which school has the biggest or toughest. Shelby County looks big. The Wildcats have a pretty even amount of players from the top three grades in school.

Thompson is the team loaded with seniors. Nineteen members of the squad are in the class of 1983. The Warriors are also a big bunch of folks - and they better be with upcoming opponents like Vestavia.

Montevallo has grown up a little since last season. The Bulldogs have gotten a little taller and meatier since the '81 campaign.

Haven't had a chance to see Vincent, Briarwood, Coosa Valley, Chelsea, or Pelham. Should get a chance to head that way this week, though.

Shelby Academy has 22 players on the varsity squad. The Raiders have a tough road ahead, but they seem to be a determined group.

Next week we hope to have some first hand scouting reports from just about every school. You'll not want to miss it. Until then, get out there and support your school.

Sports Scribbles

This is Pro Rodeo?

by Richard Crosby

Pro Rodeo? If might have been to some of those goat ropers and beer-bottle cowboys in the Birmingham-Jefferson Civic Center last Thursday night, but it certainly wasn't for me and my family.

Now admittedly it was opening night, and a few of the top 'rawhiders' were saving their bottoms for Saturday night riding, but this show was a joke.

Calf roping, a mandatory event, produced only three lassoed mini-cows out of twelve attempts.

The PA announcer was another fellow of interest. He obviously couldn't live without hearing himself - so the sound system turned into a headache machine. After delivering a 'God and Country' type opening address and stirring the heartstrings of many, he returned to the announcers' booth and started telling 'blue' jokes.

Then we found the concessions hawkers who sell in the stands were working out a new system of pay raises. Regardless of what you purchased and the amount of change you expected to receive, you're told, "I don't have change. I'll bring it right back."

I got bit for only a nickel, but two neighbors in our section watched the guy trot off with five dollar bills. After 20 minutes the fate of their change was realized.

We headed out early.

While crossing the street and trying not to breathe (the scent of horses invaded our nostrils) I spied what looked like rabbits. "Look Jeremy!" I exclaimed to my son, "There's some rab..bit..s.?"

RATS. A family (clan, group, hive or whatever you call a mess of rats) was making its way across the parking lot. These were not the field mouse variety, but the dog killing size.

We made our way to the car after a detour and wondered why we came at all. Everyone should experience a night like this I thought. Poor Rodeo, rip-off soda salesman, and Little House of Rats Under The Freeway. That kind of entertainment isn't even available on cable tv.

The Lady Eagles are cooking up some great meals for the Calera football team this week. The women even fed me Monday afternoon. That might seem to be a major undertaking, but after filling the stomachs of some of those monster-sized football team members, I was probably like a midget.

I know the team appreciates the hard work of this group and so do the coaches.

Before I retire for this issue I have to add that some parents are really bullish when it comes to telling me about their kids. Now it's not that Helen Lewis is pushy, she's shooey.

At the ballgame last week I was taking pictures and she reminded me each time her son came to bat.

Well, just because her son's picture is in this week's paper doesn't mean she was successful - it was just the only one I liked. So moms and dads, don't start picking on me because it looks like Helen was successful.

(p.s. Helen please send the $10,000 in unmarked ten dollar bills.)

Golf tourney set

Saturday August 21st is a day to mark on your calendar. That's the date for the Third Annual Ross B. Mullins Invitational Golf Tournament.

will be divided into seven flights with prizes for five places in each. The prizes are on display at Buxahatchee Country Club.

Like the tournament held last May, any golfer making a hole-in-one on the course's number 3, par-3 hole will receive a new car.

THS volleyball team brings camp to gym

by Fred Guarino

Thompson High School's 3A girls' state champion volleyball team is preparing to defend its title this season.

The team, which went 47-7 on the season last year, began a week long summer camp, Monday, August 2.

However, instead of sending its squad to other places, Thompson High School brought volleyball experts to its team.

Addressing the girls during the week were Bev Warren, girls' volleyball coach at the University of Montevallo and Toots Cooley, a UM player; Brenda Williams, girls' volleyball coach at the University of Alabama in Birmingham;

Michelle Lewis, a UAB player; and Debbie Seals and Donna Oden, volleyball players for Jax State University.

Thompson coach Lynn Rushing said the reason the experts came to her school was, "because we are a poor school and we can't afford to go off to camp."

She said that she brought the camp to Thompson so the girls under her leadership could hear someone other than herself stress the basics of the sport.

Thompson's team this year will consist of five seniors, Becky Ward, Ashley Sergeant, Angie Harris, Robin Hutcheson and Cynthia Cunningham.

Juniors are Tootie Scoggins and Anna Threatt.

The SEPCO Blue Ladies, a woman's softball team from the county, will be heading to Florida this Friday. The team is one of two in the state representing Alabama in the regional playoffs in Pensacola.

The tournament runs from August 13th through the 15th. The Blue ladies won the berth by placing second in the Alabama Major Women's State tournament held in Cullman late last month.

The other Alabama team competing in the regional is the Classics from Montgomery.

Pelham Junior High football players can register August 16 at 9 a.m. in the Pelham High gym.

The team is for boys in the 7th, 8th, and 9th grades. Coaches from Pelham remind the boys and their parents that a birth certificate is required for registration.

The Alabaster Recreation Department is looking for softball teams to form a fall league. Billy Woodham is in charge of the project and requests that all interested team representatives call him at 663-6380.

Welterweight football registration is being held throughout the county. Leagues from Alabaster to Montevallo are holding signups.

If your son or daughter plans to participate, contact the league officials and get registered.

Correcting a mistake made last week: At the Dizzy Dean State Tournament the attendance figure quoted was for people and not dollars. There were approximately 4,000 fans to attend the event.

Coosa Valley Academy is sending out the word for all athletes interested in playing junior high football to meet Thursday (today).

Coaches Gary Frank and Gerald Groggin will be meeting with those people at 7 p.m. in the school gym.

The Alabama Invitational Arm Wrestling Championship will be held this Saturday, August 14, in Helena. Barry's Hide-a-way, in the Helena Shopping Center, is hosting the event which will have six classes.

Featherweight, lightweight, middle weight, heavyweight, women, and left-handed unlimited are the competing categories.

Weigh-in for the event will commence at 10 a.m. with competition beginning at 2 p.m.

Trophies, cash awards, and prizes will be won by the top three finishers in each division.

The event is to be held September 11 and 12 at the Southern Sportsman Hunting Lodge, just south of Livingston.

A hands-on practical, weekend-in-the-woods experience for Alabama deer hunters; the clinic is presented by The University of Alabama's Division of Continuing Education, in cooperation with the Alabama Department of Conservation and Natural Resources.

The day-and-a-half program includes a look at the life cycle of a deer and a field experience on deer habitat and habits, as well as practical instruction in choosing the right tree stand, management practices for trophy bucks, placement of shots, scouting new territory, techniques of field dressing and much more.

W.R. Eaton, president of Southern Sportsman, Inc., and other well known deer hunters and technical experts from across the state will provide instruction during the weekend. Joining Eaton will be Jerry Casey, a member of the Professional Bow Hunters Society and of the Alabama Wildlife Federation; Francis X. Lueth, a deer biologist, formerly with the Alabama Department of Conservation; John Phillips, a taxidermist and avid free-lance outdoors writer; Dr. Robert Sheppard, Chief of Staff at Pickens County Hospital and nationally recognized for his work in survival medicine; James W. Thornhill, Hunter Safety Coordinator with the state Department of Conservation; and John A. Woller, who designs and builds tree stands and who organized the Morgan County Chapter of the Bow Hunters of Alabama.

Enrollment is limited for the "Whitetail Deer Hunting Clinic" so early registration is encouraged.

For information, write to Coy Hollis, University of Alabama, P.O. Box 2967, University, AL 35486, or call toll free 1-800-452-5971 and ask for a brochure on the clinic.

Vincent Guard gets new equipment

by Fred Guarino

New and used equipment is arriving at Vincent's Army National Guard unit for its ammunition providing mission. The unit recently received one 6,000 pound rough terrain forklift and two five kilowatt generators.

Pelham plans reading party

Pelham Library will end its summer reading program with a party at Pelham City Hall, Thursday, August 19. The party will be held in the council room at 10 a.m. A movie will be shown, refreshments will be served and certificates and prizes will be awarded.

According to librarian Mary Carver, "Reading logs will be given out and all children are invited to attend whether they were enrolled in the program or not."

The forklift will be used to load and unload trucks and box cars containing ammunition.

The generators will be used to provide lighting systems and refrigeration units with power at ammunition storage locations.

The unit has been authorized to get nine more of the same size forklifts, and the second is due to arrive Friday.

The unit also has a 20-ton crane waiting for it in Clanton and a 50,000 pound fork lift which will be kept for it at the Anniston Army Depot.

Other equipment authorized for the Vincent unit:

A three quarter ton cargo truck, already in Vincent; two, two and a half kilowatt generators; and two air compressors.

Richard Witt and Ronney Honeycutt of the organizational maintenance shop in Birmingham were in Vincent Thursday to inspect newly received equipment.

They told the Reporter that the two five kw generators received by Vincent were brand new units.

Orientation scheduled

She said, "All students who will be in grades 9-12 who did not attend Pelham or Riverchase Middle School last year or those who have moved into the North Shelby area during the summer are urged to attend."

The Pelham zoning board rezoned 20 acres near I-65 from agricultural to commercial for the project last year.

Valley School

Students new to the school will need to bring their blue immunization form.

The City of Pelham would not release its municipal court results to the Reporter.
Harpersville, Wilsonville and Vincent all hold municipal court on the first Monday of each month.

Pelham's municipal court is held on the first and third Tuesday of each month at 4 p.m. The municipal judge for Pelham is Robert Esdale. He said he would welcome having a reporter on hand at the court sessions.

Planners wait for Alice to move first

by Fred Guarino

The Shelby County Planning Commission will wait until construction begins on Sweet Alice Industrial park before it takes action to stop it.

With a new Beat 12 zoning referendum scheduled for September 7, the planning commission acted cautiously at its Monday night meeting.

The proposed location of Sweet Alice is in a residential zone off Cahaba Valley Road and north of Old Virginia subdivision.

Planning Commission Chairman Joe Garity recommended that the body wait until the pouring of concrete begins before it considers the park in violation of zoning ordinances.

When construction begins, the planning commission can ask the county commission to take legal action.

The commission chairman stated that nothing has been done on the land other than clearing. A petition by SPRADCO for an extension of its time to submit a final plat was not granted.

The planning commission agreed that the time limit for the plat submission has passed.

Garity stated that if a provision ratifying all past actions of the planning commission is upheld, the time limit given SPRADCO will be upheld. He said that if the ratification is not upheld, the property's classification will revert to agricultural and no building could take place anyway.

He said that if the Beat 12 zoning referendum fails, then there will be no zoning in the county.

The commission did agree to include a zoning change in the referendum for September.

EBSCO has asked that 42 acres of property be rezoned from agricultural to office and institutional. The land in question is located three quarters of a mile south of the intersection of highway 119 and U.S. 280.

Developer Elton B. Stephens, Jr., stated that he plans to construct 220 apartment units and office buildings.

Two adjoining property owners, Donald Lawson and Al Britton were upset over the proposal because a drawing presented by EBSCO included a shopping center.

The two men said they were not against apartments but that they did not want a shopping center near them at all.

Garity quickly informed the men that shopping centers are not allowed in office and institutional zones. He further stated that the drawing presented was not intended as a commitment for specific construction.

A statement by Stephens that planning director Paul Owens told him shopping centers were allowed, sent a rumble through the crowd.

However, Garity read the regulations which provided for no shopping centers other than office supply stores inside an of-

Pelham streetlights tabled

by David F. Moore

From one angle there wasn't enough light on the topic, from another there was too much. So the Pelham City Council decided to table a request for streetlights in Chandalar, until its next meeting.

Streetlights have been a project of councilman John Tanner. However, since Tanner was with his hospitalized wife Monday night, councilman Ken Maynard made the recommendations for the street lights.

The recommendation called for seven lights along Chandalar Lane, the entrance to the subdivision, and 26 lights in Chandalar itself. The lights were requested by Chandalar Homeowners Association.

However, councilmen R.E. "Ray" Hamilton and Bob

Cleveland said seven lights along the short road sounded like too many.

Maynard indicated that if Tanner were present, he could probably shed more light on the subject.

Furthermore, residents Ed Gentry and Louis Leverette spoke up from the audience to say it was unfair for Chandalar alone to get lights, when other parts of the city needed them, too.

"What's good for Chandalar is good for Cahaba Valley," Gentry said.

Leverette indicated that once the city installed lights along one subdivision entrance, it would be hard to refuse similar requests elsewhere. "Sounds like a can of worms," he said.

In answer to a question from Leverette, Mayor Burk Duanawy said streetlight bills ran the city $2-$3/month/light.

Duanawy pointed out that originally, the city had made lights available to all the subdivisions, but not everyone wanted them at the time. But "If we're going to do the entrance to one subdivision, let's do them all," he suggested.

At councilman Willard Payne's motion, action on the lights was tabled until the next council meeting. (Because of Labor Day weekend, that meeting has been moved to Monday, September 13.)

Tanner, contacted Tuesday by phone, said the seven lights indicated for the Chandalar entrance, included three or four lights for a side road to the swimming pool. However, he said that since part of that road was private, the city would have to find out just how many lights were actually needed there.

"And if all the subdivisions entrances need lights—and I know some of them do—they'll get them," Tanner said.

At Hamilton's suggestion, the council approved the reappointment of planning and zoning board chairman Mike McKinnis and long-time board member Mason Cumberland.

Hamilton also set a public hearing for September 13 to update the city's zoning map.

Chief D.O. Watson introduced to the council the newest man on the police force, Thomas E. Walker, and his wife, Donna. Walker came to Pelham a month ago from Midfield, where he was a policeman three and half years, Watson said.

Alabaster gets grant

The Alabaster Council promised their help in trying to improve the appearance of unkempt lots in Kingwood subdivision.

Several residents of that area appeared at Monday night's meeting to apprise the panel of the situation that exists there.

However, improvements are definitely scheduled to get underway in the Simmsville Road-Biceville areas of the city.

Mayor H.A. "Doc" Rubin announced that the city's application for a $700,000 community block grant targeted for that area has been approved.

The council, city clerk Dot Henry and building inspector Milton Allen were commended by the mayor for "working so hard and diligently" on the project.

With housing rehabilitation being the number one priority of the grant money, Rubin reported that $365,000 of the amount would be used for that purpose.

He gave the figure of $62,000 to be used for street improvements, $200,000 for increasing water pressure and adding hydrants, $53,000 for improving sewer facilities.

The grant will be administered by Jim House with the firm Public Systems.

Expressing his pride in the acceptance of the application, the mayor reported that only two other cities, Selma and Auburn, had received grants in the amount of Alabaster's.

He also told the council that the city had competed with 338 applicants for the grant money.

When it was time for citizen participation, Jim Collins from Kingwood subdivision said that the city had mowed the vacant lots in that area when a request was made.

But Collins wondered if a solution to the problem couldn't be found once and for all.

Some of the overgrown lots, he said, were owned by a developer who had gone bankrupt and now belonged to a bank that would not assume responsibility for their maintenance.

Collins said he was under the impression the city had an ordinance governing the situation and asked that it be implemented.

Besides the unsightly appearance of the property, Collins said that residents were having a problem with field mice due to the high grass.

Councilman Jack Reagin said that once the Beautification Board began operating, he believed they would aid in strengthening the ordinance now on the books.

The mayor reported that more than 25 names had been submitted to serve on that committee. Reagin asked for a meeting to discuss the formation of the committee prior to the next council meeting.

Because of the Labor Day holiday, the first meeting in September was changed to Wednesday, Sept. 8.

Tinkerbell and Calypso land in Dry Valley

by Bert Seaman

Calera police Sgt. C.P. Martin and Montevallo policeman Steve Southerland spent approximately 20 minutes Sunday morning looking for two water towers located near a church.

The reason for their search was to locate two balloonists who had reported those landmarks as they came down for a landing.

After chase crews for the hot air balloons failed to locate the site, police joined in the search.

The balloons were found in the Dry Valley area in neighboring fields owned by the Reid and Lawler families.

"It looked like a good place to come down," related Linda Guy, the Alabaster pilot of the balloon named Calypso.

Her reason for landing, Guy said, was to refuel and change passengers.

It was the first time up for Holly Hance, who rode in the Calypso on the first leg of the flight.

Although he used the words "beautiful and enjoyable," to describe his feelings about the trip aloft, Hance said he preferred being a member of the chase crew.

Guy and her passenger in the Calypso, and another female pilot, Toby Spalding of Homewood in her balloon, the Tinkerbell, lifted off from a Jamison field at 7:30 a.m.

Carried by the wind toward Montevallo, they set down in the fields near the intersection of County Roads 18 and 19 1/2 hours later.

Guy has been ballooning for three years. Spalding said that she "caught the fever," six months ago.

Sailing along in her basket, with the multi colored balloon hovering above her, Spalding said "It feels great being up there with the world moving along below you."

She feels free when she's aloft, Guy explained. "When I go up it's like I'm going exploring," she said.

In order to get a license to pilot a balloon, Spalding reported that a minimum of ten hours flight time had to be logged.

Written tests are also required, she said, plus a check ride with an FFA licensed inspector.

If someone taking up the sport purchases a new outfit, it would cost between $8,000 and $10,000 Spalding reported.

Her basket and balloon, called an envelope, was less expensive, she noted, because it was used.

The traditional basket is made of wicker or bamboo while the fabric for the envelope is ripstop nylon, the same fabric used for the sails on a boat.

After the first landing Sunday, Spalding had no more propane tanks on hand, so she packed the envelope into its container and the basket was loaded into the back of her chase crew's pickup

North Shelby business fire dues at mercy of residential voters

Going up

Not only are midrise buildings going up in Inverness Office Park, but if residential voters in the north Shelby fire district approve, so are fire dues for all commercial buildings in the area. Yearly dues for a 100,000 square-foot, six-floor building such as the one above, will run over $5,000—a price some developers think will discourage growth along the U.S. 280 corridor. Fair makes 33rd appearance

When the Shelby County Fair opens September 13, the Columbiana Kiwanis Club will be celebrating its third-of-a-century sponsorship of this event.

The club, formed only two years before the first fair in 1949, values this long association. In addition to its entertainment and exhibit value, the fair for these 33 years has been the primary source of funds for the club's annual scholarship awards and other community service programs.

The recent grant of a scholarship to a graduate from each of the county's seven high schools raises the number of scholarships given in this third-of-a-century service to a total of just under 100 awards. The University of Montevallo supplements each grant and the two combined cover most of the cost of tuition for the freshman year.

The fair has grown over the years and is now rated among the best in the state. New exciting rides, talent and beauty contests, the dunking machine and special music programs have joined proven entertainment, livestock shows and home product exhibits to raise the quality. This year, commercial exhibits and a "battle of the bands" are being added to the parade of events.

The Kiwanis Club looks forward to the continuation of its scholarship and service program, and will welcome all comers to share our anniversary celebration at the fair. This way we can combine support for the program with fun for all.

.....William C. Holcombe, for Kiwanis

Residents in the North Shelby County Fire District will be voting on more than candidates this fall.

In the September 7 primaries, new rates for fire dues will also be put to a vote within the fire district. And in the November 2 general elections, NSCFD residents will vote on two fire district board positions that will be open.

The new rate schedule, if passed, will not affect residents. However, it will hit commercial facilities in the fire district with at least a 150% increase.

The new rates would increase commercial fees from $.02/ground level square foot, to $.05. Furthermore, ground level square footage costs for buildings over one floor high, will be multiplied by the number of floors.

NSCFD treasurer Jack van Pelt explained that mid-rise office buildings, such as those going up in Inverness, require the purchase of a ladder truck so the district can maintain its current class 7 insurance rating. Therefore, the cost is being passed on to businesses, rather than residences, he said.

Board member Larry Dillard said the new $.05 commercial rate was roughly derived by dividing the average 2,000 square-foot home, into the yearly $100 residential dues.

With the addition of a third fire truck, the board is expected to ask the state to lower the district's insurance rating to class 5. Such reclassification would drop commercial insurance rates, as well as save average area homeowners more than $100/year in fire coverage, van Pelt estimated.

According to van Pelt, the board was originally considering a used ladder truck, but is now leaning toward buying a new vehicle. With a 75-foot expansion ladder, such a truck would cost about $215,000, he said.

If the new measures pass, van Pelt said fire hydrant rentals will decrease from $25/year, to $5/year, following the settlement of a lawsuit against the Birmingham Water Works proposed water and plug hike. (Van Pelt was a key witness against the water board.)

The complete description of the measures up for vote, can be found in the legal section of the Reporter.

The board positions van Pelt and Dillard now hold, will be up for election on November 2.

Dillard said he intends to seek reelection. Van Pelt first said he would not seek reelection, but other board members have since been passing a petition for him.

"I ain't lifting a finger towards it," the highly active 75-year old said. "I've about had a gut full. But I will serve if I'm elected."

"But Mitchell Goes A Step Further."

A recent Birmingham Post-Herald study of municipal courts and judges in Greater Birmingham on drunken driving convictions showed Eason Mitchell to be the example for other judges to follow. The Post-Herald's study and story "Drunk at the wheel" stated . . .

Birmingham Post-Herald, Thursday, July 8, 1982

But Mitchell goes a step further.

"When I see a DUI case, I can do a preliminary screening on the case. Using the blood alcohol count (taken by the arresting officer using a Breathalyzer machine) and his previous record, I can tell if I have a problem drinker on my hands."

Eason Mitchell is the municipal judge for Calera, Montevallo, Wilton and Jamison. He uses his judicial discretion to devise creative treatments for drunken drivers.

Mitchell, according to his municipal court records, will often instruct a drunken driver to "obey the law, attend a DUI school, meet with a (psychiatric) counselor monthly and attend Alcoholics Anonymous twice a week."

The judge consults with trained psychologists to determine if treatment is necessary to ensure the drunken driver does not repeat the offense.

Mitchell will also sometimes send drunken drivers to the Alcohol Recovery Center in Birmingham, to the Chilton-Shelby Mental Health Center for emotional counseling or even, in cases of habitual offenders, to the county jail.

"But I think AA is the most effective means of treating alcoholism that we know of. Their cure rate is about 25 percent — which is the best success rate there is for alcoholism."

Mitchell figures his program has had an impact on repeat offenders. In Montevallo, a court clerk reported there were 79 drunken driving cases in 1980 before Mitchell began his alcoholism referral program. During the first six months of this year there have been 15 DUI cases — more than a 50 percent decline.

"Something can be done about DUI. But you gotta take an interest in it," Mitchell said.

Montevallo Mayor Ralph Sears is quick to credit the judge's methods with the drop in drunken driving cases in his town.

"We are very pleased with the program our municipal court has implemented here. It works. I think Eason Mitchell is deserving most of the principal credit."

This is another example why Judge Eason Mitchell's proven ability and hard work is what we need in our Circuit Court. He has a six year successful record as a competent judge. Judge Mitchell will work full-time; enforce the Victim Restitution Act; eliminate wasted time and expense in the court system; have a fair and prompt trial for all; and make more efficient use of witnesses' and jurors' time.

THE RESPONSIBILITIES AND DUTIES OF YOUR PROBATE JUDGE.

All too often, we think of the Probate Judge only as a name on our checks when buying a car tag. The fact is—when compared to the management of a large corporation, he would be its chief executive officer, president, budget officer, secretary, and senior administrative officer. Also, Shelby is one of the 36 counties in Alabama where our judge of probate is Chairman of the County Commission. With the other four commissioners serving part-time, our probate judge is expected to carry the major burden of county operations. With this in mind, Shelby county's level of successful operation depends in great measure on the person we elect as judge of probate.

With a successful business and management background, "Ray" Hamilton can best perform the varied and important administrative functions of the office of probate judge. His experience as two-term president of the Pelham Area Chamber of Commerce has helped provide his knowledge to seek new business and industry for all of Shelby county. "Ray" Hamilton's re-election to his second term as Pelham City Councilman—having served as Mayor Pro-tem for six years—has proven him to be a leader, strong on experience in the areas of administrative and judicial government, and an efficient administrator of probate matters. The judge of probate is responsible for maintenance of county fiscal records, preparation of the budget, and purchasing for the county.

"Ray" Hamilton is best qualified for this responsibility. He has served as Director of Finance for the City of Pelham since 1976. Despite its impressive growth, Pelham has been, and is financially "in-the-black." Our County Commissioners depend on the probate judge, as their presiding officer, to provide a constructive agenda, establish timely priorities, and be knowledgeable of pertinent facts involving all issues to be discussed. Appropriate suggestions and recommendations by the probate judge are also vital to effect sound management decisions by the commissioners. R.E. "Ray" Hamilton will be that kind of probate judge. The kind of candidate you can vote FOR.

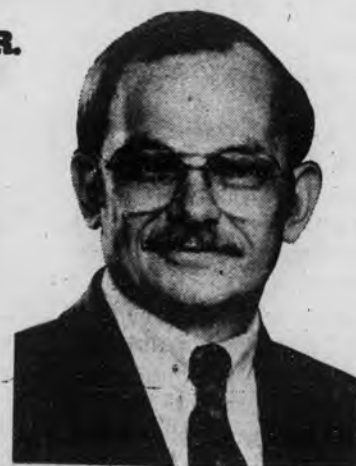

Every voter wants a good man to vote FOR.
We've got one in R.E. "Ray" Hamilton.

Sixty-one individuals interested in becoming deputies with the Shelby County sheriff's department took the first examination that was given in October, 1980.

An even larger number is expected to take the test that will be administered Sept. 14.

At a recent meeting, the board discussed the date for the examination and talked with Joe Curtin from Southeastern Management Group, who drew up and conducted the first exam.

Curtin's bill for services rendered on the first go-round had totaled $2,131. But he told the board that since the major part of the work was done, the cost would be considerably less this time.

It was agreed that Curtin be in charge of the testing again provided the cost not exceed $1,000.

According to personnel board secretary Betty Rayfield, there are presently 124 names on the list of applicants for positions as deputies.

She reported that 32 of those individuals were still interested in obtaining employment.

Last year, the board extended the list until Oct. 18 of this year. The new list will not be presented to the sheriff until after that date for positions that become available.

The difference in the salary schedule from two years ago reflects a higher starting salary in 1980 but an increase in the maximum salary this year.

The 1980 bi-weekly beginning salary was listed at $542. Because of a state schedule which includes more steps, it is now $521.60, but will increase by 11 percent October 1, when state employees get raises.

The maximum salary jumped from $637 two years ago to the present $736.

Applicants must be between the ages of 21-45. And anyone who intends to take the examination must have an application completed and turned in by Aug. 27.

The testing will take place at Chelsea High School beginning at 9 a.m.

As of August 13, 105 inmates were housed in the jail, including 42 state prisoners, 55 county, and eight from local municipalities.

The highest jail count for the week was 109, on August 11.

Interest in the September primary elections appears to be picking up.

Until this week candidates have found themselves speaking mostly to other candidates when they have gone to pre-scheduled meetings and rallies.

Many groups, individuals, and organizations have tried to provide platforms for candidates to outline their programs, but the general public has not shown much interest in attending the meetings.

One indication that the public is finally getting interested in the election is the number of new voters who are registering.

Candidates are going out and encouraging voters who may not have reidentified, to get their names back on the voters list.

After last week's printing of the list of qualified county voters, the registrars report an upsurge in business.

Voters are, as usual in Shelby County, keeping their opinions to themselves about which candidates they favor for the various offices.

The apparent discord among teachers is creating an unusual situation in the races for superintendent of education and two places on the board of education.

Some of the candidates for the September 7 primary have been sidetracked from campaigning recently because of factors outside their control.

Of those that have come to our attention at the Reporter are: The father of candidate Don Hughes died suddenly on August 7. Hughes is running for the office of Shelby County Probate Judge.

The house of William Charlie Brown, who is running for the office of State Representative, District 49 burned to the ground in July.

Candidate John Tanner who is seeking the same office was hit with an ailment that hospitalized him in July. He is now in good physical shape and back on the hustings.

Spencer Bachus, a Republican candidate for the Senate post in District 17 was hit by the same "bug" that has hit many people in the area recently. Although it never put him out of commission, it did slow him down for a week.

Crime bills toughen laws

by Fob James

Last week the Alabama Legislature convened in Special Session to address two areas of necessary reform: Crime bills to revise the criminal code and restructuring the Alabama Commission on Higher Education (ACHE).

The intent of a special session is to focus attention on issues which need addressing in the absence of hundreds of other unrelated bills. That is exactly what happened.

Our legislators knew the crime bills needed attention. Each bill introduced and passed was aimed at strengthening the criminal code, stiffening penalties, or seeing that the victim of crime received equal protection in criminal proceedings.

The bills passed by the Legislature insure and strengthen the victim's rights, yet insure stiff penalties for violators. All I can add is that it's about time!

The revision of the ACHE legislation would have insured that the commission had the capacity to control the growth and duplication in higher education.

The ACHE bill passed the House and the Senate Education Committees, but when it got to the floor, four Senators buckled.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly "Good Morning" column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

Even on a vacation, rose bushes aren't all blossoms. There are thorns too. And you can get a briar in your finger without half trying if you piddle around in a willy-nilly fashion. Folks are folks and none of them are machines no matter where you go.

Like the hotel floors and the ice machines, and the trouble a guy had making 'em jive. We hit a new hotel every night, and every night I began immediately to hunt a bucket of ice. And every night it was the same story, whether in Podunk or Pittsburgh.

They'd have an ice machine, one on every floor, but none had ice in 'em. And all of 'em had a big sign on the wall with these words in tall letters:

"Anybody who can get ice without first contacting the hired-help, will get a ten dollar bill and two tickets to see Who Shot John."

Or the bacon, that was the same everywhere we went. Like maybe somebody wrote out a way to cook it, and passed it on to every cook in the country. I didn't see the order, but I suppose it must have sounded something like this:

"Lay it in the sun for ten full minutes before serving. Then take it up and get it on the plate before it gets cold."

Steaks in the hotel restaurants. I tried four times and spent 40 bucks. I might as well have squandered the forty, flirting with the one-arm bandits in Vegas.

I don't know how long since they killed the last of the long horn bulls out there, or how old he was at the time of the funeral. But those four steaks had to be a part of the old fellow.

And I ought to know, since it cost me two Traveler's Checks, each one a twenty dollar job. And, too, we were two thousand miles from a doggie-bag, that would have made Fido hilarious.

And the music at Memphis. They wrapped up enough noise in half a dozen horns to furnish sound for a tornado. And if they ever had a tune, they must have left it in Little Rock years ago.

So they just made a racket, loud and tuneless, for as long as it took us to eat some real good barbecued ribs. And the time it took us to squirm our way out, with the joint as crowded as ants on a maple pole.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

Some folks spend Sunday morning working on a big family dinner. Others relax in a porch swing or in front of the TV.

A goodly number of people put on their Sunday best and travel to the church of their choice.

But this past Sunday morning, I engaged in an activity new to me. I went chasing a hot air balloon.

The pursuit was not anticipated. Indeed, it came as a bolt out of the blue while I was struggling to get my act together and head out for Sunday School. Being informed that a balloon had descended in the area, I was asked to locate it and see what was up - or I guess I should say asked to find out why it was down.

So, instead of dolling up in my Sunday best, I climbed into my grungy blue jeans and set off. After stopping at the local police department and getting an approximate location for the downed craft, I set out on my balloon hunt.

When I reached the intersection where it was supposed to be of course it wasn't.

So I chose one road and wended my way slowly down it, swiveling my head from side to side.

Then I saw the objects of my search.

It was already aloft, and of course it was hovering above the other road.

Whipping back down that way, I pulled off on the shoulder in front of two pick-up trucks and clicked off a shot or two of the colorful object as it traveled quickly out of sight.

It turned out that the folks behind me were part of the balloon's chase crew and they invited me to join their activity.

I had the idea I might be able to get some good shots of the balloon's descent if I tagged along, so I agreed.

Ivey makes stops

Kay Ivey, candidate for State Auditor, will be in Shelby County on Thursday, August 19.

Her first stops in the morning will be in Alabaster and Pelham. From 11:30 until 2 p.m. she will be in Montevallo. After 2 she will make stops in Calera and Columbiana.

The public is invited to meet with her to discuss her candidacy and to make suggestions about the conduct of the office of State Auditor.

Educators should 'get involved'

Letter to the Editor:

As president of the Shelby County Education Association, I wish to respond to a recent letter to the editor by a fellow social studies teacher, who implied that politically active teachers do not have the "best interest of their students at heart." I consider this a personal attack, as I am a politically active teacher. However, I am more concerned because this reasoning is both faulty and dangerous.

As a Shelby County native and public school teacher for almost 20 years, I know the problems and issues facing Shelby County students, parents, and educators. My concerns are not just "teacher" concerns, for I am a parent, voter, and concerned citizen. Administrators, teachers, and support personnel are vitally concerned about the local elections, for we know from experience that results from the "ballot box" directly affect the welfare of our students. Personally, I'm tired of my students sitting in a crowded, leaky, termite-infested building. I'm also concerned about the treatment of educational personnel, including principals, teachers, and support personnel. I am concerned about the curriculum and the kindergarten problem, for I know from experience what it's like to "arrange" for a child to attend a kindergarten. In order to get improvements, we have to get involved in the political process.

Political action committees are reputable tools for political action. Educators are involved across this nation and state. Why shouldn't teachers be politically active? After all, we are parents, citizens, and voters. Our recent political activities have not interfered with our classroom responsibilities; rather, they will probably enhance our effectiveness, because they have broadened the scope of our experiences. One of our goals in PAC has been to help educate our people on the issues and qualifications of the candidates. We have received a lot of praise for the professional manner in which we conducted our first political endorsement meeting.

There are those who are trying to diminish our impact and effectiveness, but, hopefully, citizens will try to understand their underlying motives.

Politically active teachers are among the best teachers in the county, for many of us have attended workshops and college classes in addition to political activities. We should not judge teachers by their political activities; rather, we should evaluate them on the job they are doing in the classroom and their dedication to learning. Personally, I give 110 percent to my students, as many teachers do, and I spend many additional hours beyond the school day with my students in meaningful learning activities. As a teacher of democracy, I try to instill in my senior students the importance of involvement in their government, and my daily message is: "Apathy kills democracy, so please get involved in your government." I have tried to be a good example for my students to follow, because I am a concerned and politically active citizen.

Lastly, I am thankful to God that I live in a country which allows freedom of choice and participation in government affairs. It is dangerous to even think about restricting people's rights because of their profession or job.

Teacher claims PAC is biased

Letter to the Editor:

(edited for space requirements)

I promised last week to identify forces whose interests were contrary to what is best for our students and whose actions serve to divide the teaching profession and actually is an embarrassment to many of us: the so-called political action committee of the Shelby County Teacher Association. The PAC was never needed before now or until a few dissatisfied teachers decided they wanted to defeat the incumbent in the superintendent's race and the chairman of the board. To refer to themselves as the PAC when they are more appropriately a campaign committee for one candidate is a deliberate attempt to deceive the public.

The number voting at the PAC endorsement meeting, 68, was so small compared to the number eligible to be members that it was a joke. Never once have I seen a published list of the questions they asked the candidates and their answers, or their reasons for making their endorsements. They simply ask the public to blindly accept their endorsement.

The leadership of this PAC is made up of a number of dissatisfied teachers with an ax to grind, and the Uniserv Director.

The Uniserv Director has completely overstepped the responsibilities of his position and this in itself is a violation of the ethics of the position he holds. Regardless of how many press releases bear the name of some other PAC member, everyone knows their source. He will certainly not dictate how I vote.

I can quote at least two of the leaders of the PAC directly. Upon observing the badges that read "School is a Family Affair" they immediately began a tirade against the program. When I asked them "Didn't they support the total program in Shelby County?" their immediate answer was "No" and another tirade began.

Personally I was proud of that program. In case you have forgotten, it was the idea of the superintendent and the chairperson was the candidate he had defeated in the last election. This is a perfect example of professional people putting aside politics and personal feelings and working harmoniously for the good of the students of Shelby County.

It was called to everyone's attention last week that false information was used. That is a polite way of saying that lies were told. These teachers have abandoned honesty and integrity in favor of politics. They have totally forgotten their professional responsibilities to their profession, to the public and most important to their students. What kind of treatment could students expect from these teachers in the classroom? What parents would want their child exposed to a teacher that misrepresents the truth?

The majority of our teachers are caring and professional individuals and if I may speak for many of us, "we will still be there whenever you need us." For me, school is still a family affair and I get about 150 new students each year to work with. I'm convinced that most of these people simply want more money, less work, and they don't like kids in the first place. I for one, would not trade my 150 kids for anything else in the world and that includes this political action committee. They have pushed their own self-destruct button. Let us just hope that the fall-out doesn't reach our kids.

Sincerely,
J.B. Denham

Mine inspector

Last Thursday, Alabama Surface Mining Commission inspector John Narramore investigated rumors of a planned strip mine in the woods behind Indian Valley subdivision. Narramore found scatterings of coal, old mines, and relatively new evidence of core sample drilling. "At this point we can't say there's mining of any kind going on here," he said, "but it's a place we want to keep an eye on." (Photo by David F. Moore)

UM graduates named

The seemingly simple act of going through a commencement ceremony will alter the life of each student forever, Dr. Joe Sutton told University of Montevallo graduates Friday night.

Sutton, executive director of the Alabama Commission on Higher Education, said obtaining a college degree will alter one's life in three ways:

-- "Your identity will be forever changed;

-- "Your degree has a current value which can be measured in different ways;

-- "And your degree has a future value which is its most important consideration."

Looking toward the future value of the college degree, Sutton pointed out that many of the graduates will spend their working lives in occupations that do not even exist today.

"I do not find that hard to believe because the last 15 years of my life have been in positions that did not exist when I was a graduate student...The future value of your college degree is therefore predicated on your ability to continue learning," he said.

Graduates from Shelby County are:

Alabaster: Barbara R. Daniel, Carlis Dewayne Kervin and Lanette Pittard Webb.

Birmingham: Patricia L. Corbett and Holly Ann Robertson.

Calera: Dana Marie Tucker.

Woman arrested for embezzlement

by David F. Moore

An Alabaster woman has been charged with embezzling at least $11,000 from Weyerhaeuser's Pelham office.

Carolyn J. Cupp, 45, of H&R Trailer Park, was arrested last Wednesday by Pelham and Alabaster police. She was charged with first degree theft of property, and is now free on $15,000 bond.

According to reports, Cupp had been working for the company for only nine months when she was arrested.

Apparently, around the first of July, someone opened an account in Weyerhaeuser's name at the Alabaster branch of Guaranty-Savings.

Capt. Allan Wade of Pelham said bank statements show the account was opened with $10,000 in customers' checks to Weyerhaeuser. In the five weeks the account was open, Wade said $20,000 was funneled into it.

After the first monthly billing cycle, company personnel in Atlanta notified the Pelham office of an apparently overdue account. Ken Kennedy, a company manager in Pelham, knew something was up when the customer produced a cancelled check for the alleged late payment, according to Wade.

He said Kennedy contacted the bank and found Cupp's name on the check signature card, as well as a forgery of his own name.

After a few days of investigation by Pelham police, Cupp was arrested at home early August 11 by Alabaster Sgt. Larry Rollan.

According to records, at least $11,000 of checks and withdrawals had made against the unauthorized account.

If Cupp is found guilty, Wade said she "certainly would not be classified as professional. There's no way it (the embezzlement) would have gone unnoticed for any length of time."

Wade said some of the missing $11,000 was apparently spent on building supplies.

Police anticipate no other arrest in connection with the case at this time.

Alabama law sets the maximum penalty for embezzlement (first degree theft) at 2-20 years, plus $10,000 fine.

According to Wade, Cupp has a husband and several children.

She was formerly employed by the now-defunct Eagle Chevrolet in Pelham, he said.

A Quality Beginning For Our New District

"There are some important decisions to be made. We must not be afraid to look squarely at the problems and decide what needs to be done."

"When our schools are strong, our community is strong. We must give our children the education they deserve. When we scrimp on education we cheat our community but even more important, we sacrifice our children's future."

"All our plans will be for nothing if we don't succeed in making our District a safe and pleasant place to live—a good place to raise a family."

"Our District needs strong, aggressive leadership based on a true spirit of cooperation. We cannot afford to fall back on mere rhetoric and negative politics of the past. We need a positive approach to government backed up with hard work."

Quality Leadership

John Tanner has a record that proves he can meet the challenges ahead because he has successfully met the challenges of the past. It was this type of leadership that reelected him to a second term on the Pelham City Council by the largest majority ever and made him his associates' choice for Mayor Pro Tem.

He is currently the city's liaison with the State Legislature and with Washington, D.C. A quick look at some of his accomplishments will tell you why we need to put him to work for all of us:

- started a computerized grant search system to help Pelham find much needed funds
- helped coordinate financial programs that have given his city first-rate Police, Fire, and Rescue Departments
- helped find funding for Pelham's new park and recreation facilities
- was successful in eliminating South Central Bell's mileage charges, saving each customer in North Shelby County from $5-$15 each month

Vincent still eyeing $500,000 grant

by Fred Guarino

Mayor Don Green of Vincent is optimistic concerning a $500,000 community development block grant his city has applied for.

The application was made in May for part of $15 million in federal dollars that the state community development block grant program has.

Mayor Green told the Reporter last week, "We haven't heard anything yet and that is good news because it means we haven't been rejected."

Green bases his optimism on three reasons, "We need it; a large part of our community is low and moderate income; and we will use the money to benefit the people."

Vincent proposes to use the money for street paving, a sports complex and to remove barriers from public buildings for the handicapped.

The proposed sports complex will house a football field and a 400 meter track, two ball fields for little league and softball, and four tennis courts.

Ramps for the handicapped will be installed at the post office, city hall and other city owned buildings.

Where will the park be located?

According to Green, "We have not determined the location yet but we have two or three spots in mind."

Vincent applied for the grant with the help of the Birmingham Regional Planning Commission (BRPC).

Don Mosley of the BRPC told this newspaper that his commission assisted 27 cities in making application for the money. However, he reported that statewide the money is being sought by at least 400 city governments.

The Reporter contacted state planner Shabbir Olia to find out just how the state plans to select who receives the funds.

Olia said that the process of selection is based on three factors, need, program value, and matching monies.

He stated that the need will be rated according to the absolute number of low and moderate income persons in the city and the percentage of low and moderate income residents in the jurisdiction.

Olia stated that program value will be based on the number of dollars to be spent per person, the nature of the benefit, if additional funds will be needed after the grant, and prior efforts by the community to meet the need which the project will serve.

The state planner said that matching monies will also help a town earn points whether it be other grants or local matching funds.

Just how much other money will be coupled with the grant will also help a city earn points.

But the final factor that will determine whether or not a community receives a block grant will be the record a city government has of providing equal opportunity employment.

DID YOU KNOW?

"Hot Tips" can help you keep cool in the heat.

Each summer, many elderly people are affected by heat stress and heat-related illness. In 1980 alone, there were 120 known heat-related deaths in Alabama. So, take precaution. Use your air-conditioner or a fan during the hottest part of the day. Take frequent cool baths or showers. Drink water often, but avoid alcohol and beverages with caffeine. And call Alabama Power for more detailed information including a brochure on how to keep cool in the heat.

Employers liable for taxes

Employers of domestic workers can be held liable for state unemployment taxes five years in arrears, warns Franklin H. James, director of the Alabama Department of Industrial Relations. Domestic workers have been covered by the State Unemployment Compensation Program since 1978.

Through routine checking of federal tax records and Social Security reports, the department has discovered that many Alabama employers are not complying with the law, James pointed out. Employers can be required to pay back taxes, plus interest and penalty. The law also provides for prosecution for flagrant violations.

State law requires the employer to withhold one-half of 1 percent of the employee's wages.

To request an account number and reporting forms, employers should write the Unemployment Compensation Division, Industrial Relations Building, Montgomery, Alabama 36130.

Youth program moves forward

A new program for the county took a step forward Tuesday when the Shelby County Board of Education officially approved three employees for a program aimed at helping troubled youth.

A temporary site where the program can operate has been located in Wilton at the United Methodist Church.

The employees, who are the board's contribution to the program, are to be employed on a 12 month basis.

They are: Deborah McKinney, who has a master's degree; Gloria Boyd, who has a bachelor's degree; and teacher aide Denise Smyth.

Entitled the DAY program (Development of Alabama Youth), the purpose of the undertaking is to get potential delinquents back on the right track.

After working throughout the summer and drawing up several drafts, a committee headed by Pelham principal Ed Belue presented the board a proposal to improve attendance.

Although details of the proposal were not spelled out for those in the audience, Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles asked the board to approve its implementation immediately.

He said that a vote for final approval would be called for at the September board meeting.

"Kids can't learn unless they're in school," the superintendent remarked, reporting that the average attendance for 1981-82 was 93.2%.

"It should be at least 97%," he declared.

Knowles observed however, that "the program won't work unless we do our jobs."

By a unanimous vote, the board approved a change in how contracts are handled in the athletic program in the county's school system.

Instead of giving coaches a set payment of $300 to head up a particular sport, an allocation not to exceed $1,000 will be given schools to use as they see fit.

Another financial expenditure the board went along with was to upgrade the Shelby County High School Annex at a cost not to exceed $2,000.

Vincent man tried for murder

The state rested its case Tuesday afternoon in the murder trial of Hulien Lee Wilson of Vincent.

Testimony began that morning as District Attorney Billy Hill and two assistant DA's presented the evidence against the defendant.

Wilson is accused of killing James B. Davis, with whom he shared a trailer. Davis was killed in the early morning hours on February 9 of this year.

Witnesses testified that Davis' nude body was lying in the hall near the entrance doorway of the trailer when they arrived.

The victim had been killed by a shotgun blast.

In a statement given by Wilson to investigator Richard Fox, Wilson told of waking up and finding Davis standing over him nude and making sexual advances.

The written statement went on to say that Davis threatened Wilson with death if he didn't comply.

After breaking away and getting the 12 gauge shotgun, Wilson told the investigator he fired on Davis as he advanced on him in the hallway.

Prior to the incident, he claimed he had not had any trouble with the victim.

Defense attorney Jim Pino put his first witness on the stand before the court session ended for the day.

He was the victim's brother, George Davis who underwent cross examination the following morning.

Presiding Judge Telfair Mashburn of Baldwin County is hearing the case in courtroom 2 while another case is being heard in courtroom 1 of the Shelby County courthouse.

The reason for the two trials going on at the same time is due to the large number of indictments returned by the grand jury in May.

truck.

Guy took off with a second passenger, Wayne Story from Birmingham, who is learning to pilot a balloon.

This time the Calypso made a shorter trip, coming down in the Dogwood area near Montevallo.

And the chase crews consisting of Hance and Tom Brown and Ellen Dunn, were able to locate the craft within minutes.

Both visual sighting and CB radios are used in following the balloons.

There have been occasions, Guy related, when she has had to walk miles when her crew couldn't find her.

She told about such a flight when she landed in the desert at night in the vicinity of Albuquerque, New Mexico.

After a three mile hike, "I came upon some Indians," Guy related, "and after feeding me, they drove me into town in their jalopy."

A competitor in balloon races, the Alabaster pilot finished third in an event held in Birmingham in June.

She earned another third in May when she took part in a cross country race in Georgia.

The base of any area is its industry. New business and industry create new jobs. Goods and services increase and the growth of new employment benefit the entire County.

Industries must be encouraged to locate in Shelby County to bring about a higher standard of living for it's residents.

Shelby County is abundant in natural resources that include timberland and timber, water and available workers. Interstate highways make Shelby County readily accessible to both motor and rail transportation.

Shelby County can take advantage of Industrial Revenue Bond financing.

Shelby County has available many industrial sites. Shelby County is the fastest growing area in the Southeast with Northern Shelby County the center of this growth.

As Chairman of the County Commission I will provide the Direction, and Positive Action to seek new industry. I will activate the Shelby Co. Industrial Development Board, with the support of the Shelby Co. Commission. We will actively seek New Industry. We will communicate with and work with the municipalities, the Board of Education and the Univ. of Montevallo, which also are vital forces in attracting new industry. New industry is a must if we are to properly finance our schools and highway systems.

We need to improve our water and sewage systems if we are going to continue to influence new industry.

All of this takes Proper Planning and Positive Action. Without this our tax dollars will be squandered and ineffective.

Democratic endorsements 'in the bag'

by David F. Moore
The possible outcome of one or more local elections is jumbled inside a stapled, brown paper bag. The location of that bag is being kept secret.

After lengthy meetings Friday night and Saturday, the Shelby County Democratic Conference decided to postpone a final decision on its candidate endorsement list. County chairman George Dailey said the Saturday meeting ran so late, the executive committee was unable to tally the recommendation votes of its members.

Dailey said he dumped all the votes from the individual committee members into a brown bag and stapled the top shut.

The contents of that bag are expected to be tallied tonight (Thursday) during a called meeting of the committee. Dailey said Tuesday afternoon that the meeting was set for 7 p.m., probably in Columbiana.

Dailey did not reveal where he hid the brown bag in the meantime.

He said the endorsement list will be made available for inclusion in next week's issue of the Shelby County Reporter.

To decide the endorsements, Dailey said the executive committee was divided into three subcommittees: one studied the probable judge and commissioner races; one studied the superintendent of education and board members; one studied the coronator and all other candidates without opposition in the September 7 Democratic primaries.

At stake over the endorsement is the possible swaying of 2,000-2,800 votes from the black community.

Dailey said representatives of all county conferences in Alabama were expected to meet Wednesday night in Clanton to decide endorsements for the state legislature.

Saturday, the Alabama Democratic Conference is expected to reach a decision on endorsements for state offices ranging from governor and associate justices on the supreme court, to the 18th Judicial District Circuit judgeship, which includes Shelby County.

Dailey said announcement of the state endorsements will be made by state chairman Joe Reed of Montgomery. That announcement is expected either Saturday night, or Monday.

Political meets planned

A political rally is set for Saturday in Columbiana, and a candidate forum is scheduled for that night at Coosa Valley Academy in Harpersville.

State candidates for both Montgomery and Washington, as well as local candidates will speak at both events.

The Coontown Reelers will sponsor an "old fashioned political rally" from 11-5 at the intersection of highways 25 and 70. According to the club's rally coordinator Leila Horton, 43 candidates have committed themselves to attend.

Each candidate will be given 3-5 minutes to speak, and will be on hand during the day for questions from citizens.

Hourly square dance exhibitions by the Reelers and the Shelby County Shufflers are scheduled, as well as bluegrass music breaks and clogging.

Horton said homemade ice cream, barbeque and watermelon will be sold to help the club support the upcoming national square dancing convention in Birmingham.

Many of the same politicians will be at CVA that night for a forum.

The school will serve dinner from 6-7 p.m., and the forum will follow.

According to rally chairman Vestula Thompson, the forum is being held to educate voters, and give them a chance to ask about issues candidates may have not yet addressed.

She said proceeds will be used to defray the cost of the meeting, and the remainder will go to school support. For more information, call 672-7362 or 672-2394.

Cases were continued for: James R. Holsomback, driving while revoked; David Paul Turquitt, Thomas William Perry, both charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Eason Mitchell is the presiding judge for Montevallo's court which meets the first and third Wednesdays of the month at 2 p.m.

Auburn Knights have heritage; will play

by John Doyle,
Columbiana

In 1930 a group of Auburn students who had acquired musical instruments and varying skills in playing them, in or out of the Auburn University Band, became the "Auburn Knights."

Their quest for fortune and fame was pursued in a car full of performers and a trailer filled with instruments in tow. Their destination... any dance, party, wedding, jamboree, political rally, bawdy house or fraternity offering cash for their musical entertainment.

During the school term their area of service was limited to overnight stands, but during the summer they ranged widely over the Southeast, and Auburn Knighthood flowered.

An original 1930 Knight Tenille, Toni Tenille's father, told me stories, some censorable, of early Knights and Dames during their reunion and concert on the first weekend in August, which is now a tradition at Auburn.

The earliest Knights had unreliable transportation, and most were short of funds, but they wore tuxedos, or reasonable facsimiles, and were versatile performers in the band or soloists or singers or dance partners and affectionate escorts in dark corners during intermission.

Their audiences were enthusiastic, naturally, since they had no tv, pot, coke, rock concerts, porno movies, or Disneyworld, but they had young attractive men who were talented musicians and prospective bridegrooms and the beautiful music and songs of the twenties.

As the Knights graduated, new students filled out the orchestra, and in 1932 they acquired a pianist and music arranger, George Poole, who has served in those capacities for the "Auburn Knights of the Thirties" until now and plans to continue. Men from every walk of life are Auburn Knights now, part of the tradition as 1930 - 1940 - 1950 - 1960 - 1970 - 1980 Knights who assemble for selection of their programs and rehearsals for their performances of the music of the decade they played with the Auburn Knights.

The early Knights have worn out their tuxedos long ago, and some are ill or no longer with us but are remembered, though others have filled their places.

The Knights' fraternity of interests in Auburn, music, old camaraderie and the exquisite nostalgia of reliving these experiences bring members from all over this country and several foreign countries to the annual reunions and concerts on the three days of the first weekend in August.

Now dress is informal and Knights, their ladies, guests, and other music lovers pay about $13 each for a badge which admits to the concerts and gets access to midnight buffets. There are crowds, but all are smiling even on the crowded dance floor.

Jim Vance is chairman of the Board of Directors of the Auburn Knights and librarian for arrangements and music for the thirties band, to which he makes a rich saxophonic contribution. He tells me his Auburn Knights welcome gentlemen and ladies of good will to share their traditional three-day reunion of devotees of good music and fellowship. I shall be there in August next year listening to their big-band sound unless they raise the present $13 price beyond my means.

Death is accident

The state toxicologist has ruled the death of Phyllis J. Edwards of Helena, as accidental. Edwards' body was found July 8 at the foot of a 110-foot quarry cliff near Liberty Heights.

The results of the autopsy requested by Helena Police Chief Gary Carter and Coroner Billy Thompson, showed that the 21-year old died of multiple, internal injuries. The autopsy report listed her blood alcohol level at .27.

"The circumstances indicate the manner of death is accident," state toxicologist Dr. Joseph Embury stated in the August 4 report.

Planners readopt resolutions

by Fred Guarino
The last remaining hurdle before legal authority is restored to the Shelby County Planning Commission is only 20 days away.

That hurdle will be a public referendum on Beat 12 zoning, Tuesday, September 7.

Upon the advice of the county attorney, Monday night the planning commission completed action to re-establish its authority short of the election.

Probate Judge Tommy Snowden, Jr. issued the official oath of office to planning commission members who have all been reappointed.

Al Knight and Blanton Moore were reappointed by the county board of education, George Starcher and Leon Archer were reappointed by the county commission, Eason Mitchell and Roy Martin were reappointed by the county bar association, and Joe Garity was reappointed by the circuit court.

Not relying upon a recent legislative act to ratify all past actions of the planning commission, the body readopted resolutions providing for its administration as follows:

Approved the map and Beat 12 zoning plan and ordinances; certificates of subdivisions are not required until April 12 -- Inverness and Meadowbrook are exempted; gave Paul Owens authority to enforce regulations; and re-elected Joe Garity as commission chairman and Roy Martin as vice chairman.

All of the resolutions were passed without objection.

Garity told the planning commission that substantial legal advice indicates that anyone building in Beat 12 while the referendum is pending will not be protected.

Sheriff's helicopter down again

The sheriff's helicopter is still grounded following its second accident in six months.

The accident occurred Thursday, August 5, when a rotor damper collapsed, causing the spinning blade to hit the bubble cab.

Sheriff Buddy Glasgow, who was at the controls at the time, said the accident happened while the whirlybird was on the ground. No one was injured, he said.

Ed candidates speak Monday

Candidates for the Superintendent of Education's office will speak and answer questions next Monday evening at the Shelby County Association for Retarded Citizens' meeting.

The public is invited to take part in the session which will begin at 7 p.m. in the SCARC meeting place on Railroad Avenue across from the Siluria post office.

Just prior to the accident, Glasgow said he had logged four and half hours in the helicopter while assisting Chilton County authorities in a search for several men who robbed a bank there earlier that day.

Glasgow said he returned that afternoon to Shelby County airport where the helicopter is based. He had the engine on when one of the three shock absorber like blade dampers collapsed.

The spinning blade apparently crashed into the helicopter cab, damaging the blade, glass bubble and other parts of the aircraft. "Everything it hurt, we have spare parts for," Glasgow said.

He said the helicopter was transported to Prattville where Autauga County Sheriff Robert Turner keeps a similar aircraft. According to Glasgow, he and Turner have a supply of parts there.

Glasgow did not know how long the helicopter would be out of commission.

Glasgow crashed the aircraft March 5 while showing deputy Phillip Walker hovering maneuvers at the airport. While five feet off the ground, Glasgow inadvertently swung the tail rotor into the ground.

The sheriff purchased the helicopter several years ago with $2,000 from the pistol permit fund. The county pays insurance on the aircraft and some $500 per month for its gas and oil.

Glasgow pays for maintenance from the pistol permit revenues. Use of the funds are left to the sheriff's discretion.

Ostomy group sets meeting

The Ostomy Association of Birmingham will meet on Sunday August 22, at 2:30 P.M. in the auditorium of the School of Nursing Building, Baptist Medical Center-Montclair.

Dr. Glen Wells will present the program entitled "Urinary Ostomies". All interested persons are invited to attend.

For further information call: 967-2275.

UM president commended

It's hard to believe it's been five years," University of Montevallo President Jim Vickrey said at the UM Board of Trustees meeting Friday.

Vickrey, who became UM's 11th president Aug. 1, 1977, was commended for his work at the University by the UM trustees after a formal evaluation of his five-year tenure.

Trustees chairman Jim Tingle of Birmingham said Vickrey had done what the trustees had brought him to UM to do.

"You were just the kind of person we were looking for," Tingle said. "I really think we have been the leader in public higher education in Alabama," he added emphasizing "the." "We may be the only institution in the state showing any leadership."

Tingle said that more than 100 people who had worked with the UM president -- faculty, staff and alumni as well as officials in Montgomery and Washington, were asked to write evaluations. The UM trustee chairman also said that Vickrey requested the formal evaluation.

The trustees also approved the $11.9 million budget for 1982-83 and the $2.95 million increase in state funds to request for the 1983-84 school year. The increase for next year includes a salary increase of 7 percent or $1,000, whichever is greater, for fulltime faculty and staff.

In a report to the trustees, College of Education Dean Bill Fancher said the college will open a microcomputer lab for all student teachers and graduate students. Student teachers will learn beginning programming as well as computer-assisted teaching and computer games.

Administrators will learn ways to use the desk-top computers for administrative uses such as scheduling classes and keeping student records and other records. "We're really ahead of everyone else," Fancher said. "We've already got two specialists on our faculty."

What Does Jesus Teach - About Homosexuality

Homosexuality is NOT an alternate life style, for satisfying sexual desires, as though there were many life styles. There is but one. Gen. 2:18, God said: "It is not good that man should be alone; I will make him a help mate for him." Vrs. 22 "And the rib, which the Lord God had taken from man, made he a woman, and brought her unto the man." Vrs. 24 "Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh." These are God's commandments for man. This is to be man's life style, man with woman. Any deviation from this is a perversion of natural affection. Lev. 18:22; "Thou shalt not lie with mankind, as with womankind: it is abomination." The Lord willing we shall look in to this further next week.

A warm welcome awaits you at the Church of Christ at South Columbiana.

Helena places conditions on lounge

by David F. Moore
The Helena Council tentatively agreed Monday night to a liquor license for a new lounge. The council also tentatively agreed to a plan for reimbursing firefighters who pass emergency medical training (EMT).
The first agreement is contingent on the completion of the license request form. The second depends on a guarantee that the city will get some emergency medical service in return for its money.

The liquor license was for a change in ownership for Barry's Hideaway.
Paul H. Cribbs, the new owner, has not yet changed the name of the lounge.
Two years ago Cribbs ran against Charles Penhale in a bitter race for mayor. Because of this, Penhale excused himself from the proceedings Monday, later explaining that he viewed his action as the only "fair thing to do."
Councilman James Kwater, noted that numerous problems had arisen under the former lounge owner, and said that he would have automatically given a "thumbs down" if he had requested a renewal.

"I don't want Paul to be blamed for the former owner," Kwater said. "So I'm inclined to support his application." He added he would be the first in line to take away the license if Cribbs doesn't continue to show improvements in managing the lounge.
Kwater pointed out that Cribbs had failed to complete questions on the application concerning the number of tables, kitchen capabilities and private club status. Kwater, Ron Erwin and C.W. Fulgham indicated the application would be approved once Cribbs completed it.
Cribbs did not attend the meeting, but Diane Hinds, a co-owner, said she would see to it that the application was completed.
Assistant fire chief Jimmy Jordan asked the city if it ever reached a decision on a request for reimbursements to volunteer firefighters who paid for EMT training.
Penhale said the city had no problem with the request, except that a clause was needed in it to guarantee that newly trained EMTs would stay with the city for at least a year.
Penhale said the city learned from past mistakes, when several policemen left the force for new jobs shortly after the city paid their way through police academy. Since then, the city has required a comment from officers that they stay with Helena at least a year after completing the academy.

Volunteer firefighter Walter O'Dazier attended the meeting to say he had just finished the 80-hour EMT I course. He said he's a laid off steel worker and the course cost him a total of about $180.
Once the agreement is finished, the city will reimburse firefighters according to their grades: for an "A," the payback would be 100%; 90% for a "B"; 80% for a "C," which is required to pass; and nothing for failures.
O'Dazier is Helena's second EMT.
Councilman Erwin said he had been in contact with the city attorney on the still simmering problem of chickens and zoning. The attorney suggested banning agricultural animals from any land smaller than one acre.
Erwin said he favored a two-acre limit.
Jim Dugger, the Sunnybrook resident who has pushed to have a neighbor's backyard chicken coop ruled illegal, said three acres would be a better limit. He noted that his residential lot is 2.5 acres, and all the lots in Sunnybrook are at least one acre in size.
The idea was shelved for further study.

Chelsea people press for new pressbox

Chelsea school patrons aren't willing to take no for an answer in reply to their request for financial assistance in rebuilding a pressbox.

However, that's the answer they keep getting.

At Tuesday's Board of Education meeting, Chelsea trustee Dewey Garrett asked if the board had made a decision on providing the requested $3,600.

Board Member Paul Sumners moved to give the school the money and Jack Upchurch seconded the motion.

Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles still opposed the move, pointing out that the situation was not the same as what had occurred at Montevallo High School.

After one turn-down, the board gave MHS monetary assistance when they asked a second time for help in replacing the structure that had burned.

"In this situation," the superintendent said, "you should consider whether it (Chelsea's pressbox) collapsed or whether it was torn down."

It had been reported at previous meetings that the structure was decaying and considered unsafe. For that reason, it had been taken down.

The only way the board could have approved the funding without taking bids would have been to declare the situation an emergency.

And they would have had to take that step since the pressbox is in the process of being rebuilt. It seemed to him, Chelsea booster Gene Matthews said, that both Montevallo's and Chelsea's situations were emergencies.

When a vote on the matter resulted in a tie, board chairman Barbara Whitman defeated the motion by opposing the request.

She pointed out that she had also voted against the funding for Montevallo when a tie vote resulted the first time they asked for help.

"I'll do anything I personally can to help you," Whitman promised. She said she was good at selling doughnuts and slinging a paint brush.

Want a free Redbud?

The National Arbor Day Foundation is giving three free American Redbud trees to all new Foundation members joining during August.

The free Redbuds are part of the foundation's effort to promote fall tree planting.

"Fall is an excellent time to plant trees because the roots establish themselves over the winter and support faster tree growth in the spring," John Rosenow, foundation executive director, said. "However the advantages of fall planting are often overlooked. That is why the National Arbor Day Foundation is making this special offer."

The American Redbud is an extremely hardy flowering tree with pink blossoms in the early spring. Three three-to-four feet trees will be shipped this fall, postage paid, with enclosed planting instructions. The trees are guaranteed to grow, or they will be replaced free by the foundation.

The National Arbor Day Foundation, a nonprofit organization, is working to improve the quality of life throughout the country by encouraging tree planting. The foundation will give three free Redbud trees to new members contribution $10 or more during August.

To become a member of the foundation, and to receive the free trees, a $10 membership contribution should be sent to Free Redbud Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, Arbor Lodge 100, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by August 31.

Football premiers next Thursday

by Richard Crosby

Football fans will get their fill next week as the season finally arrives. Three nights of football will usher in the 1982 season.

Calera and Montevallo open the year with a Thursday night contest at Oliver Park. Also playing that night is Coosa Valley Academy which is traveling to Edgewood.

Friday night a full schedule of games will be played. Vincent will host Shelby County High, Thompson will travel to Pell City, Chelsea travels to Billingsley, and Briarwood heads down south to play Mobile Christian.

Shelby Academy plays its first game of the year on Saturday night, entertaining South Choc-taw.

That sums up the first week of football. Pelham has the first week off but comes back early the following week with a Thursday night contest at Shelby County High. All the other county schools revert to a regular Friday night format.

Things should be interesting as the season premiers. Pelham, under new coach Billy Tohill, will be taking to the field with a new game plan.

Thompson will be hitting the undefeated trail with a herd of seniors. The Warriors liked last year's trip to the playoffs and have ordered a return engagement.

Calera has had some turnovers in the starting lineup but may yet be stronger than anticipated. Coach Danny Alverson's crew may be in the Single A category, but they're not so small in stature.

Elsewhere around the county: Chelsea has been growing and should look for improvement; Vincent lost some seniors but you can't count the Yellow Jackets of the battle; Montevallo's team has gained a few in numbers and look to be good sized this season; Shelby Academy is small but tough minded.

This last week of preparation should be an interesting one as scrimmages and intrasquad games produce the starting lineups for the season openers.

Now all we need is a northern chill and the smell of popcorn and peanuts to make the football night complete.

UM signs World Series MVP

University of Montevallo baseball coach Bob Riesener had a feeling some benefits would be reaped when UM played host to the Dizzy Dean World Series.

The tournament is already paying off for the Montevallo baseball team as Mike Bennett, a versatile all-around player from the World Series-winning Hoover, team, has signed with the Falcons for the 1983 season.

Bennett, a 5-10, 175-pounder, did it all for Coach Larry Giangrosso's Berry High School team and the Hoover champions, splitting time in left field, at shortstop, and on the mound.

"When we got into recruiting this year, I kept a little bit of scholarship money back, just in case we found someone we could use in the tournaments," Riesener admitted.

"We plan to use Mike's bat as well as his ability to pitch, and will use this first year to find out where he best fits our needs. He'll get every opportunity to contribute, probably at first as a relief pitcher and then as a second baseman.

Bennett is the son of Bob and Shirley Bennett of 3707 Alta Crest Dr. in Birmingham. He joins shortstop Todd Hill of Hueytown, shortstop Rebel Houston of Childersburg, first baseman Joe Allen of Childersburg, and pitcher Bobby Greenawalt of Columbiana as new Falcon freshmen for '83.

Here's your bat...

Baseball coach Bob Riesener, left, discovered Mike Bennett, right, of Hoover and Berry High at the recent Dizzy Dean Senior Baseball State Tournament and World Series at the UM campus, and Bennett has become the latest Falcon signee for 1983. Bennett, a versatile performer who has played left field, shortstop and pitcher, was instrumental in Hoover's World Series championship.

The Ross Mullins Invitational Tournament will be held with the proceeds going to Shelby County High.

Enrollment is still open for the tournament.

Contestants have their choice of playing in the morning or afternoon. Contact the school or any booster club member by Friday.

Alabaster 16 year-old aces in route to championship

Andy Bunn of Alabaster won the championship flight of the Buxahatchee Country Club Member's Club Championship Sunday afternoon. Bunn shot a short of 151 for the 36 hole event.

On the first day of the tournament, Bunn fired a hole-in-one on the 14th hole, a 178 yard par three, Bunn swatted a seven iron for the ace which was the first of his golfing life. Andy is 16 years old, a junior at Thompson High School and the son of Donald and Helen Bunn.

Second place in the championship flight went to Jim McQueen of Saginaw with a 153 total. Third place was won by Donald Bunn, Andy's father and fourth was garnered by Robert McCartney of Siluria.

In the Championship B Flight, Hugh Morrison took the title. Second place went to Dave Ellison with Dusty Ellison third and Terry Duncan fourth.

In the first flight, Bill Geeslin took first, Don Bulger second, William Rasco third and Wayne Rasco fourth.

Alabaster man wins title

Tommy Brooker of Alabaster won the heavyweight title at the Alabama Invitational Arm Wrestling championship held in Helena last Saturday. Brooker defeated Danny Allen of Arab for the division title.

Third place in the heavyweight class was won by Steve Woods of Wilsonville. The matches were held at Barry's Hide-a-way in the Helena Shopping Center.

Five other classes were held in addition to the heavyweight. In the Ladies Division, Barbara Long of Cartersville, Georgia left town with the top trophy. Sandra Pennington of Helena settled for second place with Paula DeShazo of Pelham third.

In the Featherweight Division, Jimmy Coates of Pelham took first, Phillip Lindley of Pinson second, and Terry Pennington of Helena third.

Glenn Brooks of Sylacauga won the Lightweight class. Second place was garnered by Kenny Whitworth of Riverchase and Barry Whitworth took third.

Football special next week

by Richard Crosby

Sports fans can take note that the annual Football Special Edition will be in next week's Reporter.

Things will be a little different and you'll just have to wait till next week and find out.

All this traveling around the county photographing the football teams has been exhausting. Not for me, but for the members of the teams that have had to stand around waiting to smile when their turn came in front of the camera.

Speaking of cameras, fellow journalist Fred Guarino tried to destroy his last weekend. While becoming indoctrinated into the world of spelunkers and exploring those underground caverns, his camera nearly self-destructed.

Caked with mud and sand, the lens coated in a layer of brown stuff, Guarino commented, "Do you think you can clean my camera?"

That wasn't a strange request, but when I informed him of the time required to get it back into presentable shape he replied, "I was just gonna get some wet paper towels and wipe it off."

Maybe I should have told him to just turn the garden hose on it. Then he wouldn't have to waste paper towels.

Old fishing proverb recently received, "When it comes to catching catfish, he who waits the longest has the best luck."

I don't know who wrote that but it describes my fishing experience. I've never been fishing when I caught any fish. These guys that can come by the office with a hundred crappie and the like just amaze me.

If I went fishing for three days, a catch of three fish would be deemed successful for me. So when the proverb writer wrote the message above, he must have been talking about some sure'nuff hard fishing. I always lose in the patient fishing department.

The Alabama Arm Wrestling Championship will be held this weekend at Flannigan's in Birmingham. The meet will be divided into professional and amateur divisions.

Of note for the county is the entry of two renowned performers in this sports. Tommy Rooker of Maylene is the current State Champion and ranked fourth in the world.

Cathy Bradley of Helena is ranked third in the world in the women's category. Oddly enough, she is not the state champion.

Both practitioners are entered in the Alabama Championship. For more information, contact Tommy Bullard at 988-3721.

Sports Scribbles

by Richard Crosby

What's there to talk about this week?

Several folks have stopped me on the street to tell me what a strange column this is. Naturally I take those comments as being very complimentary.

Of personal note last week was the moving of two close friends of mine. (This sounds like it belongs on the social page)

Tom Stoker will be long remembered as the short balding man who wore green pants with a blue blazer, pink shirt, and a blue and green tie. He is also known for his hyperactive work habits. His ministry through the First Baptist Church of Columbiana, Shelby County High School, and Shelby Baptist Association are already missed.

Frank Murphy was the other mover of the week. Both Murphy and Stoker left Columbiana to attend Theological Seminaries. Frank had been in town for four years while Stoker had remained for almost ten.

Murphy has been an ally and sounding board of mine for a couple of years. You know how hard those kind of friends are to find.

The point of all this is remembering a time when we sat down and wondered where we would be ten years from now. Easily we responded with, "Our children will be in high school, we'll all have gray hair, Frank will still be single, our houses will be one-third paid for."

Well, that might all be true but we won't be together for it. As soon as we're comfortable in a given situation, something comes along to change the mess.

As football season readies in the starting gate, I start remembering another close friend who moved on, but not out of town.

Rick Cairns was one friend I considered special. His passing left an indelible mark in my life - as have Frank and Tom.

These marks change our life. Mine has changed because of the friends I have encountered. I hope that those changes wrought in others because of me were as positive as the ones made by Frank, Tom and Rick.

Lady Falcon Volleyball Team jumps to NAIA competition

A new era dawns for the University of Montevallo Lady Falcons' volleyball team this fall as the women's athletic program joins the NAIA. After 11 fruitful years in the AIAW, which has gone under due to a lack of funds, UM changed national affiliations.

"The AIAW served its purpose in making college athletics aware of women's sports, but the organization simply didn't have the money to keep up with the NCAA, or the NAIA, for that matter," pointed out UM volleyball coach and women's athletic director Beverly Warren. "Our association with AIAW was great, but now it's time to move on, and we're excited about joining the NAIA."

In Coach Warren's five years the team has posted a 172-63-1 record, won two state championships, and participated in five regional tournaments. In short, Montevallo has made a name for itself as one of the finest volleyball programs in the country, and Coach Warren admits she would like nothing better than to advance to the NAIA National Tournament in November in her team's first year as an NAIA member.

Prime reason for this year's optimistic outlook is a roster of nine returning lettermen, five them starters, from last year's 42-12 and AIAW Division II state championship team. Add two talented freshmen, and Coach Warren believes her team might be the best team in the state this year -- on any level, large or small.

Headlining the lineup will be a pair of seniors, middle blocker Deborah Milliner of Huntsville and setter-hitter Sandra Sims of Birmingham. Both were All-State and All-Region selections last season, and are definite All-American candidates this year. Milliner had 77 blocks and a .307 attacking mark to lead the team, while Sims led the state in service aces (109), attack attempts (1107), and kills (414), the latter two new state records.

Another All-State choice, junior Elizabeth 'Toots' Cooley, is back at setter after a team-high 617 assists last season. Junior hitters Dianne Green of Huntsville and Janet Ingram of Killen, two steady all-around players, round out the returning starters.

Vying for starting berths this season are hitters Amy Dishroon of Huntsville, Paula Seibert of Decatur, and Kim Phelps of Niceville, Fla., and defensive ace Blanche Watkins of Brent, all of whom had their sparkling moments as freshmen last season.

"We're going to be changing things up a bit this year," Coach Warren forecast, "in that we'll be trying a middle back defense, and expect to go with more of a multiple offense. Once the players get those things down, I think we'll be a stronger team than last year. A year's experience for all our players has to help, and I couldn't ask for two better team leaders than Sandra and Deb -- as they go, so goes the team, and they've already told me they intend to make their senior years their best."

The Lady Falcons' schedule is the strongest it has ever been, with several major colleges and four outstanding tournaments dotting the agenda, but Coach Warren feels that sort of competition will best prepare her team for their ultimate goal -- a date with 15 other teams on Nov. 18-20 at Regis College in Denver, Colo., in the NAIA National Volleyball Tournament.

Local team wins state tournament

Wayne's Pest Control annihilated the competition at U.S.S.A. state softball qualifying tourney Saturday in Montevallo. The team now advances to the regional tournament set for Labor Day weekend in Tuscaloosa.

The Controllors started the tourney with a strong showing, flattening Bama Tire 17-9 and delivering a 11-1 bad news message to Good News Baptist of Selma.

They dropped a 7-5 squeaker to Church Street Methodist of Selma, but bounced back into the winner's bracket by leveling Lola's of Muscle Shoals 7-1.

The Controllors revenged their earlier loss by clobbering Church Street 17-2, then turned around and beat them again, 16-4, for a decisive championship victory.

The Controllors' Kim Lovelady of Helena was voted tournament MVP for his pitching and batting.

According to coach Bruce Humphries of Alabaster and assistant David Stuman of Montevallo, other top team hitters were Gary Wade, Lloyd Perkins and James Dunaway.

"The key to winning was tough defense by the infield, lead by Eddy Smith on third, Greg Nobles at shortstop and Tripp Woods at second," Humphries said.

Other team members are Joey Henderson, Donnie Hardin, Mike Gothard, Winston Nixon, Steve Childers, John Gardner and Doug Gardner.

Six pounder

Corley Ellis of Columbiana was all smiles after landing this six pound bass. The 11 year-old son of Butch and Diane Ellis caught the bigmouth on Flatbranch in Lay Lake. Corley says he was using an orange belly crank bait and fishing alone without a net with the bass attacked the lure.

Trot line hangs on to big cat

Trot lines can produce big results as evidenced by W.L. Cox and Buddy Gibson. The pair hauled about this 32 pound blue catfish on August 5. The fish hooked itself on a trot line in the Narrows on Lay Lake. Cox is from Shelby and Gibson from Leaksville, MS.

Amendment No. 1

STATE OF ALABAMA A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, Act No. 81-889 of the Legislature of Alabama passed during the First Special Session, 1981, provides that an election be held by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon certain proposed amendments to the Constitution of Alabama; and
WHEREAS, said Act further provides that the election be held at the first statewide primary or general election after the expiration of three (3) months from final adjournment of the Session and that date being September 7, 1982; and

WHEREAS, The Constitution of Alabama, 1901, requires that notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, be given by a Proclamation of the Governor; and
WHEREAS, such Proclamation is to be published in each county in the State of Alabama for at least four successive weeks next preceding the day appointed for such election;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Fob James, as Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice that on Tuesday, the 7th day of September, 1982, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama in the manner and form prescribed by law upon the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, 1901:

"The following words and phrases, whenever used in this Amendment, shall have the following respective meanings:
"Basic Appropriations" means, with respect to any regular session of the Legislature, such appropriations as the Legislature may deem appropriate for the expenditures by the State during the ensuing Budget Period for the ordinary expenses of the executive, legislative and judicial departments of the State, for payment of the public debt, and for education (excluding, however, any item within the scope of the foregoing that is at the time provided for by a continuing appropriation or otherwise).
"Budget Period" means a fiscal year of the State or such period other than fiscal year as may hereafter be fixed by law as the period with respect to which State budgets are prepared and State appropriations are made.

On or before the second legislative day of each regular session of the Legislature, beginning with the first regular session after January 1, 1983, the Governor shall transmit to the Legislature for its consideration a proposed budget for the then next ensuing budget Period.

The duty of the Legislature at any regular session to make the Basic Appropriations for any Budget Period that will commence before the first day of any succeeding regular session shall be paramount; and, accordingly, beginning with the first regular session held after

January 1, 1983, no bill (other than a bill making any of the Basic Appropriations) shall be signed by either the House or Senate and transmitted to the other house until bills making the Basic Appropriations for the then ensuing Budget Period shall have been signed by the presiding officer of each House of the Legislature in accordance with Section 66 of this Constitution and presented to the Governor in accordance with Section 125 of this Constitution; provided, that this paragraph (C) shall not affect the adoption of resolutions or the conduct of any other legislative functions that do not require a third reading; and provided further, that following adoption, by vote of either house of not less than three-fifths of a quorum present, of a resolution declaring that the provisions of this paragraph (C) shall not be applicable in that house to a particular bill, which shall be specified in said resolution by number and title, the bill so specified may proceed to final passage therein.

Upon the signing and presentation to the Governor in accordance with the said Sections 66 and 125 of bills making the Basic Appropriations, the provisions of the foregoing paragraph (C) prohibiting the final passage of bills in the House and Senate (other than bills making any part of the Basic Appropriations) shall cease to be effective and shall not be revived or become again effective as a result of (i) the subsequent legislative history of any bill so signed and presented, including any veto, return with executive amendment, or any other action, or failure to act, by either the Governor or the Legislature under the provisions of the said Section 125; or (ii) a determination, by either judicial decree or opinion of the Justices of the Alabama Supreme Court, that any bill so signed and presented is wholly or in part invalid.

The Legislature may, by statute or rule, make such further provisions for the timely passage of bills making the Basic Appropriations as are not inconsistent with the provisions of this Constitution.

Nothing contained herein shall be construed as requiring the Legislature to make any appropriation not otherwise required by this Constitution to be made."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of this election upon Tuesday, the 7th day of September, 1982, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901, be given by publishing the same once a week for four successive weeks next preceding Tuesday, the 7th of September, 1982, in each county of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said county.

STATE OF ALABAMA A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, Act No. 82-332 of the Legislature of Alabama passed during the Regular Session, 1982, provides that an election be held by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon certain proposed amendments to the Constitution of Alabama; and

WHEREAS, said Act further provides that the election be held at the first statewide primary or general election after the expiration of three (3) months from final adjournment of the Session and that date being September 7, 1982; and

WHEREAS, The Constitution of Alabama, 1901, requires that notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, be given by a Proclamation of the Governor; and

WHEREAS, such Proclamation is to be published in each county in the State of Alabama for at least four successive weeks next preceding the day appointed for such election;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Fob James, as Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice that on Tuesday, the 7th day of September, 1982, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama in the manner and form prescribed by law upon the following proposed amendment number two to the Constitution of Alabama, 1901:

"The following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama is proposed, and shall become valid as a part of the Constitution when approved by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon and proclaimed as prescribed by law.

The Legislature may, from time to time, by general or local law applicable to the various counties of this State, establish the salaries, fees, commissions or allowances to be charged or received by the tax assessors, tax collectors, license commissioners, revenue commissioners or other officials charged with the assessing and collecting of ad valorem taxes in the various counties of this State, including changing the method and basis of their compensation; and may place any or all of such officials on a salary and further provide for disposition of the fees, commissions, allowances or other compensation theretofore paid to such officials; and may provide that the salaries of officials may be paid from the ad valorem taxes assessed and collected by them on a pro rata basis from the various funds receiving such ad valorem taxes; provided, however, that following the effective date of any general law passed pursuant to this constitutional amendment, the legislature may not thereafter either increase or decrease the salaries of such officials during any term for which such officials have been elected or appointed, and in the case of such officials who were converted from a fee basis to a salary basis of compensation, the legislature may not decrease the salaries of such officials during any term for which such officials have been elected or appointed or may be thereafter re-elected or re-appointed. The legislature may by local act provide for the abolition, special or primary election after the expiration of three (3) months from final adjournment of the Session and that date being September 7, 1982; and

WHEREAS, the Constitution of Alabama, 1901, requires that notice be published in each county in the State of Alabama for at least four successive weeks next preceding the day appointed for such election;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Fob James, as Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice that on Tuesday, the 7th day of September, 1982, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama in the manner and form prescribed by law upon the following proposed amendment number four to the Constitution of Alabama, 1901:

"The following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama of 1901 is proposed, and shall become valid as a part of the Constitution when approved by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon and proclaimed by the Governor:

The operation of bingo games for prizes or money by certain nonprofit organizations for charitable, educational, or other lawful purposes shall be legal in Montgomery County, subject to the provisions of any resolution or ordinance by the county governing body or the governing bodies of the respective cities and towns, within their respective jurisdictions as provided by law regulating such operation. The said governing bodies shall have the authority to promulgate rules and regulations for the issuance of permits or licenses and for operation of bingo games, within their respective jurisdictions; provided, however, that said governing bodies must insure compliance pursuant to said law and the following provisions:

No person under the age of 19 shall be permitted to play any game or games of bingo, unless accompanied by a parent or guardian; nor shall any person under the age of 19 be permitted to conduct or assist in the conduct of any game of bingo; No bingo permit or license shall be issued to any nonprofit organization, unless such organization shall have been in existence for at least 12 months immediately prior to the issuance of the permit or license;

Bingo games shall be operated only on the premises owned or leased by the nonprofit organization operating the bingo game. If the premises is leased, the rate or rental shall not be based on a percentage of receipts or profits resulting from the operation of bingo games;

No nonprofit organization shall enter into any contract with any individual, firm, association or corporation to have said individual or entity operate bingo games or concessions on behalf of the nonprofit organization, nor shall said nonprofit organization pay consulting fees to any individual or entity for any services performed in relation to the operation or conduct of a bingo game;

A nonprofit organization shall not lend its name or allow its identity to be used by any other person or entity in the operating or advertising of a bingo game in which said nonprofit organization is not directly and solely operating said bingo game;

Prizes given by any qualified nonprofit organization for the playing of bingo games shall not exceed the cash amount or gifts of equivalent value, set by the legislature, during any bingo session. The legislature shall set a maximum amount for any calendar week.

No person or organization, by whatever name or composition thereof, shall take any expenses for the operation of a bingo game except as permitted by law.

The provisions of this amendment shall not become operative in Montgomery County unless approved by a majority of the qualified electors of the county who vote thereon at a referendum election held for such purpose upon call of the county commission. Such election may be called no more frequently than every two years; provided further, that if this amendment is approved by a majority of the qualified electors of Montgomery County who vote thereon upon its submission, such election shall constitute a referendum election held for such purpose and no further election need be called."

Camp proves successful for Cahaba Girl Scouts

The weather might have cooperated just a little too much during last week's day camp for Girl Scouts in the Cahaba district.

Using the theme, "The Gift of Water," campers fished, swam, boated and made water scopes to study life beneath the surface.

However, the Scouts who spent the night Thursday were given more of a gift by Mother Nature than they wanted.

Despite the deluge from the sky during a thunder storm, most of the girls managed to stay dry, reported staff worker Barbara Pasquels.

And she added, "the girls always feel real brave when they're camping out during a storm."

Over 100 girls took part in the event at Camp Kanawahala off Hwy. 280 between Chelsea and Westover.

The Scouts had to be Juniors, which means fourth grade and up, in order to camp out overnight.

Besides celebrating the 70th anniversary of Girl Scouting during their camping experience, the girls also observed National Smile Week.

One of their pottery making projects was a smile face name tag which each girl painted the color of her unit.

Using a primitive kiln, Camp Ranger Louis Hill instructed the group in their pottery projects which even included wind chimes.

"The Gift of Water," is both the national Girl Scout theme and the United Nations' theme for the decade.

SHUTTLE BACK AND FORTH.

Now you can change from forward to reverse without touching the gearshift.

A manual shuttle shift makes it simple. And makes Kubota's L235 mid-size diesel tractor ideal for grounds maintenance chores.

No competitive tractor in its class makes shifting direction such a simple chore.

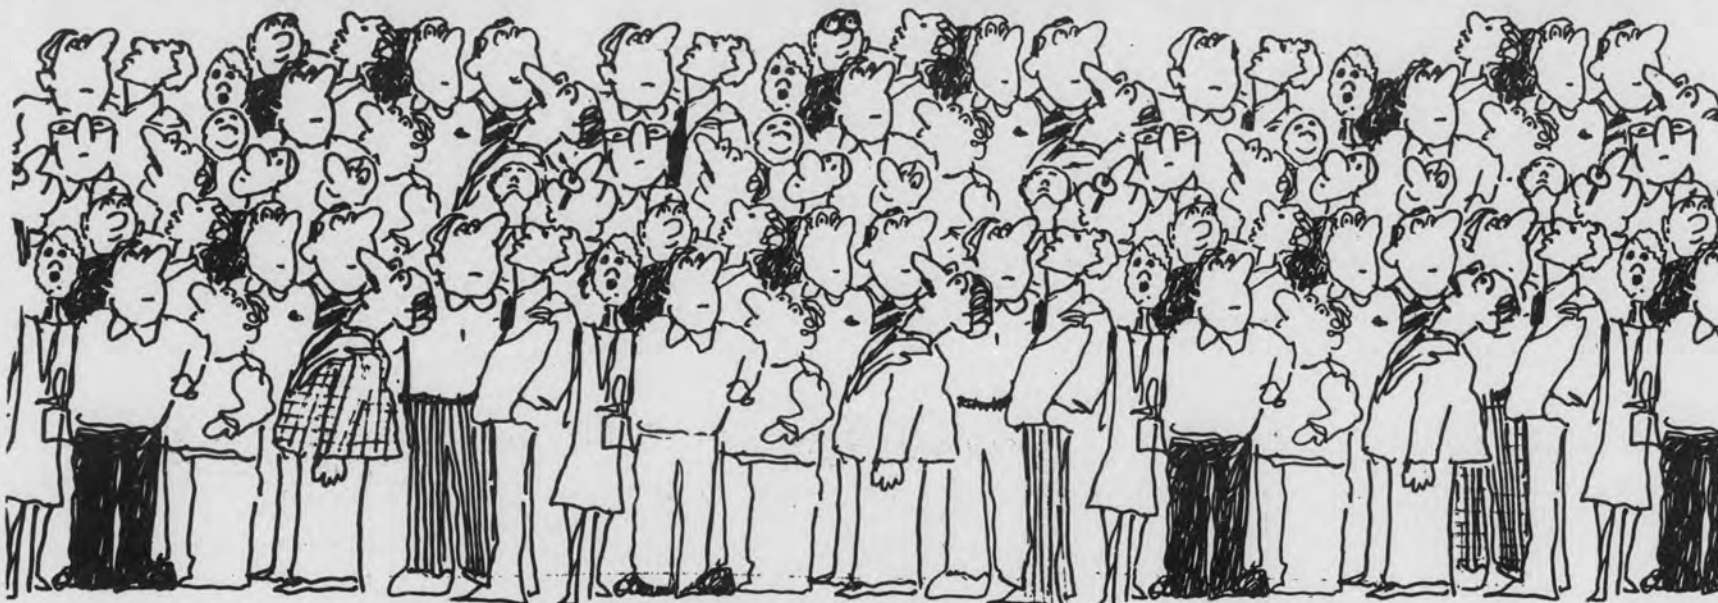

All you do to change from forward to an equivalent reverse speed is just disengage the clutch, stop the tractor and pull the shuttle lever down. Eight forward and seven reverse speeds let you match your speed to the job.

Standard features include a 23.5 horsepower diesel engine, 19 PTO hp, choice of 2- or 4-wheel drive, rear wet disc brakes, a 3-point Category 1 hitch, a 7.4 gallon fuel tank and implement position control.

County is a spelunker's paradise

PART I

by Fred Guarino

"To boldly go where no man has gone before..."

Shelby Countians who would like to take up the sport of speleology (cave exploration) could participate in an activity every bit as exciting and challenging as the mission posed by the television series "Star Trek".

According to the Alabama Cave Survey (ACS), there are nine named caves in Shelby County suitable for exploration by those with both the courage and the will to do so.

There are also two organizations which explore caves in this county, as well as others, which will gladly introduce those willing to join their ranks to the sport. They are the Birmingham Grotto and the Cahaba Valley Sierra Club.

It had been ten years since I donned a hardhat and carbide light to go into the bowels of the earth below Shelby County. However, after I read the account of a Pelham man trapped in Wilder Cave off highway 31, I was determined to prove to readers of this newspaper that cave exploring is a safe sport.

I also wanted to let people know that there are several caves for them to see and enjoy practically in their own backyard.

An old spelunker, who never really lost the thirst for cave exploration, I set out to look up people who could update me on caving activities in Shelby County.

WHO, WHAT, WHERE?

My first contact was Craig McGill, director of the ACS and president of the Birmingham Grotto. The cave survey is a group of spelunkers who locate and map caves in Alabama for the highway department and the environmental protection agency. The grotto is a group of spelunkers who simply go cave exploring and who provide rescue services in Shelby, Jefferson and Blount Counties for cavers who find themselves lost or trapped. They have been probing the earth under this county for 15 years.

McGill promptly told me that his organization boasts five members from Shelby County, Joyce and John Attaway, who live off highway 280 near old Lloyd's Restaurant, their son Steve and daughter Myrna, and Lee Stubbs who lives with them. Unfortunately, at the time of this writing, the Attaways and Stubbs were off on a caving trip in Montana.

Through McGill, members of the grotto have access to maps which pinpoint the location and provide a reliable guide of passage through many caves in this state. His wife, Debbie, prints a newsletter which informs members of planned caving trips.

The Birmingham Grotto meets the first Monday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in the Park Memorial Branch of the Birmingham library, Southside. The mailing address is P.O. Box 3302, Birmingham, AL 35255.

McGill said that while his organization has lost touch with Shelby County cave explorers, whenever he meets anyone interested, he always asks them to join.

The club president stated that cave exploration offers an individual a chance to see something that maybe only 20 people have ever seen before or ever will see again. He said, "Whenever you explore a cave, you can't see everything, no matter how many times you go."

McGill says another reason for cave exploration is, "for the thrill of discovery! It helps you appreciate both geology and ecology. I find it neat being inside the earth, and it helps a person build confidence just being able to go into a cave and come out."

For the more practical minded, McGill says that cave exploring is an inexpensive sport. "All a person needs is a hardhat, less than ten dollars; a carbide light, less than $20; a flashlight; a good pair of old boots; and old clothes."

He added that spelunking allows people to meet others from all walks of life. The Birmingham Grotto has members who are lawyers and engineers. McGill is a system designer for Blue Cross Blue Shield.

Even more, McGill says that on most trips cavers find that they can get in a little hiking just going to a cave.

For an opening in the earth to be considered a cave, it must be 50' long or 50' deep or must display cave life.

According to the grotto president, there are some 2,900 known caves in Alabama and about 100 newly discovered caves are added to the list each year.

Anderson Cave, located near Lake Purdy off highway 119 is one of the best known, most explored and most complex cave systems in Alabama.

MY TRIP IS SET

With a little urging on my part, McGill finally gave in and told me the general locations of caves in Shelby County. He offered that the cave in which Tommy Shelton of Pelham found himself stuck is known as Wilder Cave.

The cave is located off highway 31, a steep climb behind the AMOCO gas station in Pelham.

McGill insisted that the cave's notorious passageway is passable. That was a point I would later see proved.

Other caves in this county include:

231 northeast of Vincent.

McGill would not give the exact locations of the caves because he feared that inexperienced cavers might try to explore them alone and find themselves in trouble. Corkscrew Cave has two 30' pit entrances.

The club president stated that anyone who wants to know the exact locations should contact the Birmingham Grotto and make the trips with experienced explorers.

Sensing that I was itching to get a picture inside one of Shelby County's caves, McGill set up a trip for me Friday evening with a mother and sons cave exploring team.

Mother and sons?

To be continued...Anderson and Wilder Caves.

Revenue sharing brings $900,000 and surprises

Revenue sharing money from Washington is on the way to Shelby County again. But there were several surprises in the city halls of the county when the letters arrived last week telling how much each city would get.

Some of the more prosperous towns found that their high per capita income caused a decrease in funds.

Pelham, for instance, now the largest city in the county, can also boast the highest per capita income. The distinction, however, cost the city $67,000 in slashed federal funding.

Alabaster, the second largest Shelby County municipality, was cut $10,500 this year in revenue sharing funds.

Columbiana was granted the largest increase: $16,000 over last year's entitlement. Calera got an $11,000 increase in federal funds, and Helena received a $6,700 increase.

The federal revenue sharing funds are derived from community population figures, per capita income, and other statistics. The entitlements are spread over quarterly payments, which for the coming fiscal year will be mailed out January 6.

The Shelby County general fund will get a half million dollars for the year beginning October 1.

The county's entitlement is confused however, by a $165,311 mistake in its favor last year.

The error was caught too late to add to last year's entitled $444,039. Therefore, the $165,311 was added to this year's entitlement of $345,590, bringing the total to $510,901.

The following figures were provided to the Reporter by the commission clerk, city clerks, and mayors. The first number listed is the amount of revenue sharings funds to be received for 1982-83.

The second number is the change in that amount over last year.

The third figure is the population according to the 1980 U.S. Census.

The fourth and last number, is the per capita income.

Alabaster: $69,873, -$10,534, 7,079, $6,521.

Calera: $47,828, +$11,000, 2,035, $5,534.

Columbiana: $53,460, +$16,000, 2,655, $5,623.

Harpersville: $8,294, slight increase, 946, NA.

Helena: $24,421, +$6,694, 2,130, $6,694.

Montevallo: $63,257, +$357, 3,965, $4,936.

Pelham: $73,972, -$67,000, 7,200, $8,359.

Shelby County: $510,901, -$98,449 (net loss), 66,298, $6,891.

Wilton: $3,615, +$27, 642, $4,495.

Wilsonville: $7,312, +$39, 914, $7,312.

Vincent: $12,877, +$2,000, 1,652, $4,974.

The total coming into the county in the form of federal revenue sharing funds for 1982-83 is $902,910.

Last chance to register

Friday, August 27 is your last day to register or reidentify to vote in the upcoming elections.

The registrar's office is located on the third floor of the courthouse and 4 to 5 personnel are on duty from 8-4 to assist you.

According to board of registrars chairman Doris Turner, from 60-75 residents per day have been registering since the voter list appeared in the Reporter August 12.

So far, there's been a steady flow of people, but no long lines, so registration takes less than five minutes, Turner said.

As references, you are required to bring the names of two Shelby County residents who are not related to you. Your social security number is not required, but makes the computerized process easier.

If you're not sure that you're registered, or if you have any questions, call the registrar's office at 669-3197, or 669-3198.

Montevallo ponders annexation

Montevallo may expand its city limits again.

An annexation petition for a proposed 20 acre subdivision on Spring Creek Road was presented to council members Monday night. The petition was presented by Sherwood Stamps.

Additional maps and information will be presented during the council's next meeting and a decision is expected at that time.

Ad valorem revenue for the city in 1982 is expected to remain the same. Council members rejected a proposal to double the homestead exemption from $2,000 to $4,000.

According to a letter addressed to the council from Tax Assessor Bobbie Ryenolds, doubling the exemption would have cost the city more than $5,000.

In other action council members accepted a letter of resignation from Dana Barnes, chief of the city's Emergency Medical Service. Barnes has accepted a position with the University Hospital in Birmingham.

Ray Sosa and Lacey Lowery are acting chiefs of the unit until the Rescue Squad elects new officers.

Finance Committee Chairman J.A. Brown submitted the sixth preliminary draft of a proposed budget for the 1982-83 year. Two more meetings of the finance committee are scheduled before a final draft of the budget will be presented to the council for its consideration. The tentative budget contains no provision for pay increases for the next fiscal year.

Siluria murder suspect turns self in to police

Bloodhounds from Draper Prison were used in the search for Larry Eugene Ray Friday night.

But they were unsuccessful in helping police and Shelby County Sheriff's deputies find the Siluria man who reportedly shot and killed his brother Benny Joe.

On Saturday morning however, the suspect turned himself in.

According to Alabaster investigator Sgt. Larry Rollan, the 22 year old man shot his brother, Benny Joe Ray, 27, at the victim's home Friday night following a quarrel.

The two brothers had been fussing and arguing, Rollan said, when Larry left and came back with a shotgun.

When he arrived, Rollan continued, he found his brother on his car kicking out the windshield and he shot and killed him.

Lawmen searched throughout the night along Buck Creek and in the wooded area around the old Thompson Cemetery.

Ray called the police station from a relative's house the following morning and offered to turn himself in.

Charged with murder, Ray was transported to the Shelby County jail where he remained at presstime Tuesday. At that time no bond had been set.

Wrong ballot printed

Missing candidate stirs flap

The absence of a candidate's name from the official absentee ballot in Shelby County caused a minor flap in the courthouse Tuesday.

In the official absentee ballot received by a resident of the nursing home, the name of C. Pat Reynolds was missing from the list of candidates for State Senator, District 17.

The matter was called to the attention of Circuit Clerk Kyle Lansford, and Clara Smith, Chief Clerk in Probate Judge Tommy Snowden's office. Lansford's office is responsible for receiving applications, and sending out ballots to persons who ask to vote absentee.

Mrs. Smith handles the paper work for Snowden between the probate office and the Secretary of State relating to voting matters.

Upon investigation, Mrs. Smith and Lansford discovered that two sets of printed absentee ballots had been delivered to the probate office. The first set was the one that failed to include Reynolds' name. At the time that ballot was printed, Reynolds' candidacy was being challenged in court. Later, however, the Secretary of State notified Snowden that Reynolds' name should be on the ballot.

The second set of ballots had his name on them, but no one caught the difference.

When applications started coming in for absentee ballots, the ballots were taken from the first package and mailed.

According to Lansford, only six ballots that omitted Reynolds' name were sent to persons who are eligible to vote in the District 17 race for the Senate.

Reynolds told the Reporter that a final hearing was taking place in court this Wednesday which would finally resolve the matter. He asked Lansford not to mail any more absentee ballots until the court hands down its decision.

The court case involves a challenge that Reynolds should not be on the Democratic party ballot, because of previous Republican party activities.

Lansford noted that persons who want to vote absentee must take the following steps.

The voter must contact the Circuit Clerk's office by letter or telephone and request an application for a ballot. Then the clerk will mail them the proper materials.

The Circuit Clerk cannot by law mail out applications after September 2, which is five days prior to the election.

Voters can mail in their completed ballots any time, but they must be received in the Clerk's office in Columbiana by election day, September 7.

Caldwell Mill, Valleydale get traffic light

Residents of North Shelby County will receive a traffic light they have wanted for a long time.

The county commission accepted a bid from Temple Electronics, Monday, to install a three phase traffic light at the intersection of Valleydale and Caldwell Mill Road.

Repeated highway department traffic surveys have shown that the light is not a necessity, and the county commission has said it did not have the money to install a light there.

Last year highway engineers advised that cutting down the slope of Valleydale Road in front of the shopping center, would increase visibility at the intersection. That work was done this spring.

However, residents of the area have persisted in their demand for the light.

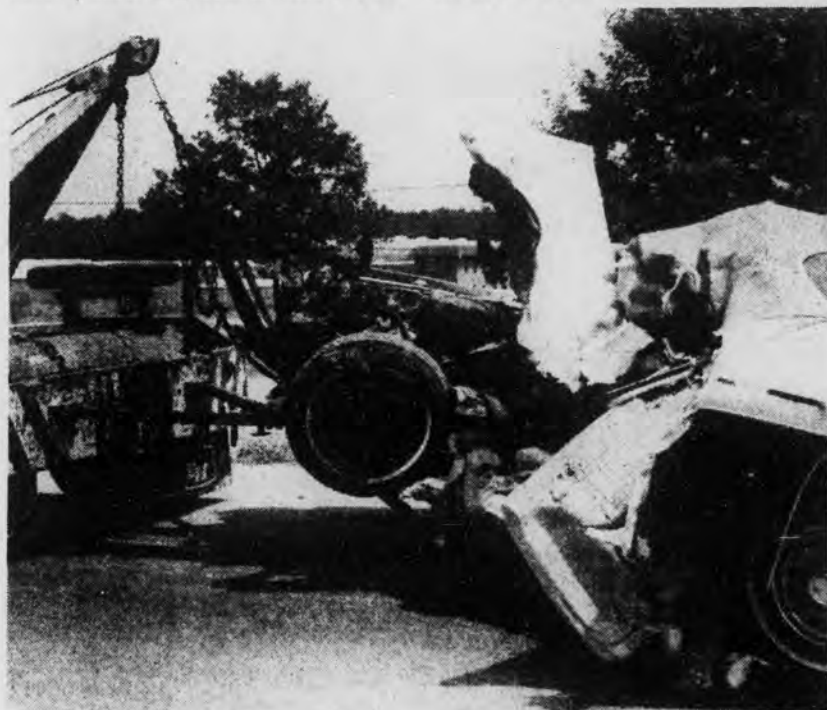

Just what caused the commission to change its mind was not clear, but Monday, when the bid of $17,500 was accepted, Com-

'A' is for apple

"A" is for apple. And with a little help from a step stool, Rainsley Richey found plenty of them in a neighbor's heavily laden tree. In two weeks apples across Shelby County should be ripe and ready for picking. Rainsley belongs to Ronald and Rachel Richey, and the tree belongs to John and Jane Jones, all of Columbiana. Fatality

Calera crash takes life

A 53 year old Calera man lost his life in a car truck collision on U.S. 31 north of Calera at 11:40 a.m. Monday.

The fatality was identified as William C. Allen. He was reportedly driving a 1974 Chevrolet.

Troopers identified the driver of the truck crane with which Allen collided as Kenneth Johnson of Siluria. Johnson was driving for Crusher and Screen Repair. He reportedly suffered only slight bruises.

Jury says 'guilty' to sex related slaying

by Bert Seaman

A Shelby County Circuit Court jury decided that Hulen Lee Wilson did not have to kill James B. Davis in order to protect himself from being sexually assaulted.

After a two day trial last week, they found the 48 year old man guilty of murder as charged.

The killing took place in the early morning hours of Feb. 9 of this year in the Vincent trailer where the two men lived.

It was the claim of Wilson's attorney, Jim Pino, that his client had acted in self defense when Davis had tried to commit fellatio with him.

In the account Wilson gave, he had gone to bed the previous evening while Davis and two companions continued drinking.

When he woke up, Wilson reported, Davis was trying to force his sex organ upon him and threatening to kill him if he didn't "take it!"

Managing to escape, Wilson said he then ran to Davis' room and grabbed the victim's loaded shotgun.

The safety was on and the gun didn't fire the first time Davis lunged at him in the narrow hallway, the defendant recounted.

But he was able to duck under his attacker's outstretched arms, Wilson continued, reporting that he fired when Davis didn't heed his warning to stop and came at him again.

However, a key contention of the prosecution, led by District Attorney Billy Hill, was that Davis was either crouching or kneeling on the floor when the shot was fired.

The shot hit the victim in the lower right neck and he died within minutes.

While he was on the stand, Wilson told the jury that he had tried to fire over Davis' shoulder as the victim lunged at him.

However, testimony from forensic pathologist Dr. Joseph Embry showed that the shot was fired at a downward angle of 75 degrees.

The prosecution contended that it would have been impossible for Davis to lunge from such a low position.

A member of the jury told the Reporter that the height of blood splattered on the wall made it evident to the panel that Davis had been either sitting or kneeling when he was shot, a fact that could not be reconciled with Wilson's story.

Another piece of evidence that made the jury doubt that Davis had been trying to force himself on Wilson was the cigarette found in his hand.

The prosecution team, which included Assistant DA's Bob McGregor and Jim Fuhrmeister, pointed out the incongruity of Davis having a cigarette but no weapon.

They told the jury that the knife the victim was said to always have on his person, was found in his bedroom in his pants pocket.

They showed that the deceased had made his brother the beneficiary of his insurance policy in December, only a few weeks before he was killed.

And the double indemnity clause in the policy, Hill pointed out, would have provided Larry Davis with an additional $10,000 in the event the jury found the shooting to be accidental.

The jury didn't consider that information in making their decision a member of the panel said. But they agreed with the prosecution that the defendant could have escaped from the trailer without having to shoot Davis.

When the victim's brother Larry was on the stand, he claimed that his brother had told him he was going to make Wilson take part in a sexual act.

It was compensation, he reported Jim Davis as saying, for letting Wilson live in his trailer without paying rent.

The prosecution however, brought out facts that made it seem possible that Wilson and the victim's brother were after insurance money.

Reelers, CVA stage rallies

Political candidates had their hands full last week attending activities throughout the county.

On Saturday, they made appearances at the benefit golf tournament in Calera, in between appearances at the day-long rally in Columbiana sponsored by the square dance club, Coontown Reelers.

That night they trooped over to Coosa Valley Academy for the rally that had been in the planning stages longer than any other campaign event.

Some 40 candidates or their representatives spoke for three minutes each at the CVA event, and at least as many spoke during the day at the Reelers' rally.

The Reelers featured more than a dozen different clogging and square dance groups from all over Central Alabama, who performed in between speeches and the auctioning of cakes.

Candidates were brief, and generally repeated comments they had made at earlier events.

Among the quotes:

Superintendent of education:

Charles Knowles: Look at the schools three years ago and compare them with today. The teacher-pupil ratio is 1-25 in the first three grades. Second best pay and benefits in Alabama; CAT scores show good things are going on; The programs have been put in place by my leadership.

Norma Rogers: We need emphasis on elementary schools and summer schools. We could have more kindergarten units if we had half-day kindergartens. You want a superintendent who will work with you and communicate.

Ellie Glasscox: Hard work, team work, common sense. House of Representatives, District 52:

Frances Phelps: It's time for a change. Driving on Highway 25 is an earth shaking experience.

Sonny Moore: There's going to be a lot of work on 25 in the future. Twin bridges at Wilsonville, etc. The state spent $70 million on highways in last 8 years in Shelby County, compared to $26 million in St. Clair.

Bob Hawkins: When anybody wants legislation affecting Shelby County, I promise to run it across the county commission's desk to see if they'll have a problem funding it.

Circuit Judge:

Robert Armstrong: I hope you appreciate the quality of service I've given. I have tried to serve the best way I could.

Eason Mitchell, by Bruce Green: This is the first time in 32 years you people of Shelby County have had a chance to vote on a circuit judge.

Wayne Causey: I live in the Kingdom Community...have been practicing law in this county for some time, and I would like to serve you as judge.

Since many rallies are similar, one of the hazards a candidate faces is a slip of the tongue, and probate judge Tommy Snowden committed one this week.

At Coosa Valley Academy, he started his talk with, "It surely is nice to be here at Shelby Academy," and went on into his speech. His wife prompted him, "Tommy, this is Coosa Valley," whereupon Snowden turned to the rally's organizer, Vestula Thompson and said, "That's all right, Vestula. I know where I am."

Ultralight plane crash kills Sterrett pilot

A Sterrett man was killed Sunday when his ultralight aircraft crashed at Alabama International Motor Speedway in Talladega.

Candidate speaks

Among the candidates appearing in the county next week will be Speaker of the House of Representatives, Joe McCorquodale, candidate for governor.

McCorquodale will be honored during a reception to be held in Reynolds Hall on the University of Montevallo campus. The reception begins at 4 p.m. Wednesday, September 1.

David Holland, Jr. age 34 was flying a motorized hang glider about 350 feet above the speedway before he crashed on the infield.

He was an employee of Sherman Holland Ford in Alabaster.

Talladega County Sheriff Jerry Studdard said witnesses reported that they heard a noise that sounded like the craft was going to stall just before it crashed.

Studdard said that he did not know the cause of death.

Although aviation licenses are not required for ultralight aircraft, the Federal Aviation Administration will investigate the crash.

ROAD REVIEWED

The County Commission will look into providing improvement on Mountainwood Drive and Mountainwood Lane near Genery's Gap.

Five homeowners appeared before the county commission Monday with a petition for pavement of the two roads.

Commissioners said that it would be October before unpaved roads will be scheduled for improvement. However, Commissioner Don Murphy and county engineer Gary Ray will look at problems on the roads and will report back to the full commission.

The residents complained about drainage problems which have caused the roads to wash into their bordering ditches.

Linda May told the commission to be sure and take note of "sharp rocks which put nice holes in $80 tires."

Representing homeowners along the roads were May, Peggy Holt, Susan LeFoy, Robert Johnson and Alma Roegner.

WORK IT OUT

If things can be worked out, an alternate route will be provided for the public to visit an old cemetery off county road 42 in Shelby.

George Burton told the commission that he will provide the alternate route. His offer came in the light of complaints over the gate he placed on a public road leading to the cemetery.

Burton, a member of the Shelby County Historical Society, also promised that the society will take over maintenance of the cemetery.

Prior to the discovery that the old cemetery existed, Burton was given unofficial approval to gate the road.

According to the county engineer the gate was unofficially allowed because the road dead ends past a valuable home which Burton owns and there have been problems with people parking along the road in early morning hours.

Ray said that the county had not maintained the road in years.

However, Ray said that unofficial permission was given to gate the road because it is public and because it was expected that residents of Shelby might complain. This did happen.

Burton told the commission that he put up the gate on the road with the blessings of Gulf States Paper Company and landowner A.P. Thomason.

He said that since complaints have been voiced, Thomason has agreed to give him a 12 foot right of way from railroad tracks near the road to the cemetery to provide residents alternate access.

He told the commission that his gate has been up for 18 months and that if anyone has tried to reach the old cemetery, he did not know about it. He said no one has been buried in the cemetery in this century. He asked for 60 to 90 days to provide the alternate route.

Commissioner Jake Morris told Burton that as the road is public, he will have to work things out. It was agreed by the commission without official vote that if things could be worked out, the alternate route would be acceptable.

REQUEST TABLES

The commission tabled a request from TAC CAN cablevision for additional territory in Shelby County until a meeting can be held with the company's Richard Murphy.

According to Commissioner Harold Davenport, a map provided by the company shows it serves areas that he says it is not serving.

BIDS

Bids were opened by the commission from two computer companies for six additional computer terminals in the county courthouse.

Bidding on the terminals were Burroughs and Omega Electronics. No official action was taken until the bids could be evaluated.

CHAIRS AND ROOF

The commission approved six new chairs for the tax collector's office and one new chair for the tax assessor's office.

A $800 salvage roof was approved for the county food stamp office.

ADVERTISE

Davenport received approval for a move to have the county advertise by radio and newspaper the changes of voting locations. Changes are Beat 7, Box 3 from the Siluria Fire Station to the depot behind Thompson High School and Beat 17, Box 2 from City Hall in Alabaster to the new annex.

MEET

From now on, any temporary employee hired by the commission must be hired in a regular or a specially called meeting. Commissioner Don Murphy made a motion to that effect, objecting to the present system of telephoning commissioners for a majority opinion. He said sometimes all the commissioners could not be reached, and some employees have been hired without checking their employment status.

He cited one instance where a former employee was hired as a temporary for four weeks, and then was able to stretch out her unemployment checks for six months.

Snowden claimed that the meeting requirement would "cramp the style of a smooth operation." He said that he did not think that anything was done badly and asked Murphy to withdraw his motion.

Morris said that he felt that the county is fully staffed and, "If we can't make out with what we have, we are in trouble."

Murphy would not withdraw the motion, and it passed.

COURTHOUSE PAINT

The Shelby County Commission authorized payment of $860 to repaint the railings around the domes on the roof of the courthouse.

The railings were repainted from the 'warm brown' color of the domes to an ivory color similar to the trim used on the courthouse windows and doors.

HELICOPTER

Clyde Wolfe, Republican candidate for sheriff, says he is glad no one was hurt when the sheriff's helicopter recently crashed. He said, "We can all be very grateful that no one was injured or killed. The crash could have occurred in a crowded residential area, day care center or public gathering."

Wolfe pointed out this is the second time in five months the sheriff had crashed in the helicopter.

He added that "If the county commission approved funds to purchase and maintain a helicopter, I'm sure they would approve the necessary funds to teach the sheriff how to fly the thing properly."

Editor's Note: The sheriff obtained the craft through government surplus sources. It is maintained with money from the sheriff's pistol permit fund; not from the sheriff's budget which goes through the county commission budgeting process.

PLEAS ENTERED

Court personnel in Shelby County's Circuit Court had their hands full last week when three trials were held and guilty pleas taken.

The trials are recorded in separate stories, but the following defendants entered guilty pleas: David R. Caldwell, burglary 3rd degree in a case involving the Valleydale Discount Pharmacy; Stephen Daniel Gust, burglary 2nd and 3rd degree.

John W. Florey, burglary 3rd degree and attempted burglary of an auto; Gary Allen, arson merged with a case of burglary 3rd degree; Randall Langston, burglary 3rd degree, attempted burglary of an auto; DeWayne Eddy McGhee, burglary 3rd degree.

Raymond Grayson, receiving stolen property 2nd degree; Thomas Wayne Taylor, theft 1st degree; Lonnie Joe Brasher, receiving stolen property 2nd degree; Hubert A. Hopkins, receiving stolen property 2nd degree; Robert Knapp, burglary 3rd degree.

Luther John Russell pled guilty to the felony possession of marijuana; Eula M. Banks, passing a forged prescription; Kenneth M. Jackson, possession of marijuana; Terry Arthur Smiley, escape 2nd degree, and two charges of attempted burglary 3rd degree; Mary Beatrice Watson, forgery 2nd degree.

Sentencing for these individuals is set for September 20. William Elgin Headley's sentencing was also set for that date. Charges of robbery 1st degree, sodomy 1st degree and attempted murder against Headley, were merged with his case on rape 2nd degree to which he pled guilty.

James Ray McKenzie pled guilty to three charges of theft 3rd degree and was given a 6 month suspended sentence and was ordered to make restitution and pay court costs in each case.

Pleading guilty to buying, receiving and concealing stolen property, Melvin James Hayes was given a two year sentence; Tyler Russell pled guilty to the unlawful use of an auto and received a 12 month suspended sentence with the understanding he make restitution and pay court costs.

Roger David Rasp pled guilty to the possession of marijuana, received a six month suspended sentence plus a $1,000 fine and payment of costs; Jimmy Wayne Hall paid a $250 fine after pleading guilty to the attempted possession of valium.

A 12 month suspended sentence with restitution and costs was the punishment for C.L. Smith who pled guilty to attempted theft; a six month sentence suspended for 12 months was the penalty for Paula C. Schu's guilty plea to attempted assault 2nd degree. She was also ordered to pay costs and avoid the victim.

Silas M. Denham's sentence for the misdemeanor possession of marijuana was six months suspended plus the payment of a $250 fine and court costs; Jeffrey Kenneth Fulmer's sentence for attempting to pass a forged prescription, was six months suspended and payment of a $500 fine plus costs; Robert E. Owens had to pay a $500 fine plus costs for the unlawful use of an auto.

Cases against Darrell Grayson were withdrawn and filed with the circuit clerk pending the outcome of an appeal on his conviction of capital murder in the death of a Montevallo woman, Annie Laurie Orr. The charges are for murder, rape 1st degree, burglary 1st degree and robbery 1st degree.

Two cases against Ed Gentry Harrell Jr. were also withdrawn and filed with the clerk pending the defendant's release from Bryce Hospital. The cases are for robbery 1st degree and attempted murder. Harrell is also charged with the slaying of a Bessemer policeman.

The Alabama Scene

by Bob Ingram

Talk to any candidate worthy of the name, talk to any political strategist...they will tell you the same thing. Nothing is quite so important in a campaign as timing. It is imperative that a candidate "peak" at the right time.

Bucks Pocket, where it is alleged defeated candidates go to lick their wounds, is filled with those who peaked too soon...those who surely would have won had the election been held a week or two weeks earlier, or perhaps a week or so later.

There is no doubt that Fob

James is a classic example of peaking at precisely the right moment...on election day in 1978. Every poll, even his own, showed James was no better than third only a week before the election. In those final days he had surged to the front. His timing was perfect.

Two years ago there was strong evidence that Jim Folsom Jr. was rapidly closing the gap on Jeremiah Denton in the Senate race. But he made his move too late. Had the election been delayed a week, Folsom very likely would have won.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

When we first got there, Amy and I knew this was gonna be something special. You could feel it. The laughter was there and the big talk and the gaiety. They had three chiefs Ruth Kite and Vena Stricklin and Tyler Lansford. And if you have good chiefs, it's not hard to get the Indians together.

It was a class reunion for the class of 1945 at Shelby County High School, with a sprinkle of others from different classes and a few friends. And a tribute to a lovely teacher, they must have loved a whole lot, Ellen Ruth Isbell Smith, still lovely and still gracious the same as always.

They came from everywhere and I asked them, one by one, what they remembered best about the school days:

Gladys Martin Sawyer: "School Nights."

Arthur Davis: "The closeness of the class."

Harvel Fore: "Ellen Ruth Isbell Smith."

Dot Taylor Armstrong: "Having good times."

Allie Claire Cooper Dorough: "Being a cheerleader."

James Crawford: "School Nights."

Martha Joiner Ferguson: "Helping Harvel Fore and Sammy McEwen and Jim Curtis pass."

Bill Nolen: "Friendliness all around."

Henry Bristow: "Everything."

Billy Martin: "The football games."

Harold Adams: "Everybody and everything."

Marjorie Bentley Nolen: "W.W. Elliott and all the teachers."

Joyce Seale: "One halloween night."

June Fore Shaw: "How much fun it was."

Alvis Armstrong: "Roy Brasher's hat."

Dot Robinson: "Ellen Ruth and W.W. Elliott."

Jessie Butler Jones: "All the teachers--so qualified and so dedicated."

Sammy McEwen: "Physical education."

Bill Minor: "Closeness, and the fun we had."

Ruth Kite: "Being a cheerleader."

Dot Sims Adcock: "School Nights."

Solon Edmondson: "How hard the times were."

Ella Dee Marshall Gordon: "Everything--just everything."

Milton White: "The whole kaboodle--all of it."

Jim Curtis: "The colored minstrels."

Tyler Lansford: "I had five children to graduate up there, and three grandchildren coming along."

Howard Mitchell: "Hyman Gleen."

Mary Nell Joiner: "Everything."

Vena Stricklin: "My first evening dress in the 9th grade."

Frank Jones, all the way from Marblehead, Mass.: "The influence the teachers had on all of us."

And so it was. A beautiful tribute to one teacher while they remembered the others: W.W. Elliott and Mary Peters and Loretta Head and Myrtle Johnson and Odelle Lewis and Marianna Davis and Mattie Sue Dawson and Sherrell McClure and Charles McDaniel and Braxton Baker and Irene Bishop and Myrtle Old.

What a delightful way to spend an evening. Amy and I thank you for letting us share it with you. We hope you have a hundred more, and we are able to share them too.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

I've really never paid too much attention to elephants.

Of course I know they're big, and lumbering and have big ears, short tails, a trunk and thick hides.

But when it comes to their eyes - I must admit I never really noticed where they fit into the scheme of things.

When that detail came up in a story I was writing recently, I wish I had paid more attention.

Actually, the story I was working on wasn't about elephants, it was about corn.

Do you see the connection?

Well, if your train of thought runs along the same track mine does, the lyrics from a song in "Oklahoma" would have occurred to you as you tried to describe the tallest stalk of corn you'd ever seen.

I'm sure everyone knows about the corn being "as high as an elephant's eye," in the song, "O, What a Beautiful Morning."

When I started to make the comparison, it occurred to me that I didn't have any idea how high an elephant's eye was.

Since I didn't have any reference books handy, I figured my best bet would be to call the zoo.

Thinking someone there would have an answer on the tip of their tongue, I was amazed when a person who saw these beasts every day said they didn't know.

However, the person was most helpful. They didn't go out to measure, but said they would look it up for me.

It took awhile, but when my zoo source picked up the receiver again, she said that if the elephant was an African bull, it could be up to ten feet.

But it was an African cow, she continued, the height would be between six and eight feet.

Of course, she pointed out, that measurement was at shoulder level.

So where did that leave me? Almost as confused as when I called.

Should I compare the corn to a bull or a cow, and where was the eye in relation to the shoulder?

Then too, I would have to assume, I guessed, that the elephant would be holding its head in normal position (whatever that might be), in trying to determine whether the eye was higher, lower or about level with the shoulder.

After I'd gone on for quite awhile with this person, who was really taking a lot of time trying to help me, I suddenly wondered what they must be thinking.

I mean, if I worked at a zoo, and someone called asking me such a ridiculous question, I'd sure want to know the reason.

If she asked and I said I was trying to make a comparison with a stalk of corn, I was afraid she'd slam the receiver down.

Now I don't know if people call with questions as strange as that all the time or if the lady just didn't have any curiosity, but she never asked why I wanted to know.

So don't hold me to it, but assuming I know where an elephant's shoulder is (there was some question about that among fellow workers), and if the head is in normal position, and it's an African bull - that stalk of corn I was writing about was a heck of a lot taller than an elephant's eye.

If you read the story, you remember it was over 16 feet and "looked like it was climbing clear up to the sky."

Sheriff's helicopter draws flak

Letter to the Editor:

The article about the crash of the sheriff's department helicopter raises a number of questions which the residents and taxpayers of Shelby County deserve to have answered. The same craft has crashed twice--three times according to some sources. Lukily, there have been no injuries, but this luck may change the next time it is taken up. And the next crash may claim someone's life--a law enforcement officer's or some innocent child who happens to get in the way. A thorough investigation of the causes is warranted.

Was pilot error the cause? The competence of any pilot having two crashes must be questioned, even if it is our sheriff. It would be no insult if he admits he cannot fly a helicopter--I freely admit that I can't--and considering the demands of the sheriff's duties, we would all be better served with the sheriff in his office and some deputy in the air. And perhaps much safer as well.

One must wonder why the wrecked helicopter was hauled to Autauga County for repairs. Considering the facilities at the Shelby County Airport, would it not have been more logical to bring spare parts there?

The bottom line is that the helicopter and the crashes are a financial drain on the county at a time when our jail has about the highest operating costs in the state, when there are not enough deputies or cars, and when what deputies there are have to buy their own uniforms and equipment. Therefore, the value of a helicopter to the Shelby County sheriff's department must be questioned. Shelby County is not a metropolitan area which needs such a craft for traffic control. It has not caught any murderers or burglars, and it has not stopped escapes from the county jail.

Bulldog to spur MHS spirit

'Nice doggy'

Jerri Harris signs her name to the mural she painted on the cafeteria wall at Montevallo High School. The MHS Bulldog symbol is intended to fire up school spirit.

If the sight of a ferocious looking orange bulldog can engender school spirit, then Montevallo High School students should have an ample supply this year.

The mural of the school mascot was painted on the rear wall of the MHS cafeteria this summer by Jerri Harris.

It was done, Harris reported, at the request of the lunchroom staff who figured it would rev up some extra "spirit."

Before the artist touched her brush to the wall though, a paint crew went over the walls to give the lunchroom a fresh, new look for the opening of school.

Some of the table tops were also refinished in school colors of orange and blue.

Sue Melson is the new lunchroom manager this year and Delila Holsomback is her assistant.

Other members of the staff are cashier, Sally Kornegay and Sis Fletcher.

Pelham police seek suspects

Pelham police are looking for two men possibly connected with a shooting last week outside a Pelham bar.

Doyle Hale, the victim of the early Thursday morning shooting, was hit in the head by a small calibre bullet. He was taken first to Shelby Medical Center, then flown by helicopter to University Hospital for surgery.

Pelham Lt. Tommy Thomas said Hale initially was in critical condition, paralyzed on his left side. But by Monday Thomas said Hale was listed in "fair" condition, and feelings were returning to his limbs.

The shooting took place about midnight shortly after Hale and his wife, Jessie, walked out of the Pour House Lounge in the Pelham Mall.

Thomas said witnesses claim the couple were arguing on the way out. Police believe one or both of the men wanted for questioning, either left the bar, or know who did, and joined the argument.

Newspaper carriers outside the shopping center told police they heard a shot from behind the building, and saw a car drive away.

Thomas said police have composite drawings of the two men.

Hale, a construction worker, and his wife, had been staying in Pelham about two weeks when the shooting occurred, Thomas said.

School hot over stolen AC units

Some Thompson Middle School students walked into un-cooled classrooms their first day back at school.

Three new air conditioning units that had been installed Friday were missing when school opened Monday.

But one air conditioner thief was arrested Monday evening when Alabaster police apprehended 35 year old Howard Christian.

Wayne Holcombe, Lt. Leroy Davis and Richard Harmon came upon Christian and his brother at the school shortly after 8 p.m.

According to Alabaster investigator, Sgt. Larry Rollan, one air conditioning unit was already in the suspect's truck when police arrived and he was removing another from the window.

The brother was questioned and released but Christian was charged with theft of property 2nd degree and violation of the Alabama uniform controlled substances act and booked in the Shelby County jail.

Rollan reported that six air conditioning units had been stolen from the school within a week and said that more arrests are expected.

Columbiana squad meets, files incorporation papers

Columbiana's new rescue squad got off the ground this month when the group incorporated as Southeast Shelby County Emergency Medical Rescue unit.

Randy Moore was elected president of the organization when 22 members met at the Shelby County Library August 16.

Other officers are George Hall Jr, vice-president, and Mary Ann Ingram, secretary.

Serving on the board of directors are: Mary Blackerby, Wayne Gould, Roy Holcombe, and John Duncan.

One of the unit's first projects will be a first responder course which may be attended by any interested person even if they do not want to join the rescue squad.

A discussion of when participants want the classes held took place at the unit's Monday night meeting at the Shelby County Library.

Anyone who would like more information may call Moore at 669-4953.

Fire quenched

The involvement of arson is suspected in an early Monday morning fire in Montevallo.

The former Moore's Supreme service station at the crest of Holloway Hill on Highway 25 was damaged by a blaze that was discovered around midnight Sunday evening.

Upon arrival, firemen reportedly discovered that the building was locked, and kerosene had been stored inside in leaky containers.

Despite this, Montevallo firefighters controlled the flames before the roof burned through, saving the structure.

The state fire marshal is investigating.

Speed lowered

The speed limit in Quail Run and Valley Station subdivisions has been changed to 25 miles per hour.

The commission authorized county engineer Gary Ray to change the limits in the subdivisions off Highway 119 after a child was run over by a car.

In addition, Ray was given authority to set speed limits in all subdivisions in the county at his discretion.

REQUEST TABLES

The commission tabled a request from TAC CAN cablevision for additional territory in Shelby County until a meeting can be held with the company's Richard Murphy.

According to Commissioner Harold Davenport, a map provided by the company shows it serves areas that he says it is not serving.

BIDS

Bids were opened by the commission from two computer companies for six additional computer terminals in the county courthouse.

Bidding on the terminals were Burroughs and Omega Electronics. No official action was taken until the bids could be evaluated.

CHAIRS AND ROOF

The commission approved six new chairs for the tax collector's office and one new chair for the tax assessor's office.

A $800 salvage roof was approved for the county food stamp office.

ADVERTISE

Davenport received approval for a move to have the county advertise by radio and newspaper the changes of voting locations. Changes are Beat 7, Box 3 from the Siluria Fire Station to the depot behind Thompson High School and Beat 17, Box 2 from City Hall in Alabaster to the new annex.

MEET

From now on, any temporary employee hired by the commission must be hired in a regular or a specially called meeting. Commissioner Don Murphy made a motion to that effect, objecting to the present system of telephoning commissioners for a majority opinion. He said sometimes all the commissioners could not be reached, and some employees have been hired without checking their employment status.

He cited one instance where a former employee was hired as a temporary for four weeks, and then was able to stretch out her unemployment checks for six months.

Snowden claimed that the meeting requirement would "cramp the style of a smooth operation." He said that he did not think that anything was done badly and asked Murphy to withdraw his motion.

Morris said that he felt that the county is fully staffed and, "If we can't make out with what we have, we are in trouble."

Murphy would not withdraw the motion, and it passed.

COURTHOUSE PAINT

The Shelby County Commission authorized payment of $860 to repaint the railings around the domes on the roof of the courthouse.

The railings were repainted from the 'warm brown' color of the domes to an ivory color similar to the trim used on the courthouse windows and doors.

HELICOPTER

Clyde Wolfe, Republican candidate for sheriff, says he is glad no one was hurt when the sheriff's helicopter recently crashed. He said, "We can all be very grateful that no one was injured or killed. The crash could have occurred in a crowded residential area, day care center or public gathering."

Wolfe pointed out this is the second time in five months the sheriff had crashed in the helicopter.

He added that "If the county commission approved funds to purchase and maintain a helicopter, I'm sure they would approve the necessary funds to teach the sheriff how to fly the thing properly."

Editor's Note: The sheriff obtained the craft through government surplus sources. It is maintained with money from the sheriff's pistol permit fund; not from the sheriff's budget which goes through the county commission budgeting process.

PLEAS ENTERED

Court personnel in Shelby County's Circuit Court had their hands full last week when three trials were held and guilty pleas taken.

The trials are recorded in separate stories, but the following defendants entered guilty pleas: David R. Caldwell, burglary 3rd degree in a case involving the Valleydale Discount Pharmacy; Stephen Daniel Gust, burglary 2nd and 3rd degree.

John W. Florey, burglary 3rd degree and attempted burglary of an auto; Gary Allen, arson merged with a case of burglary 3rd degree; Randall Langston, burglary 3rd degree, attempted burglary of an auto; DeWayne Eddy McGhee, burglary 3rd degree.

Raymond Grayson, receiving stolen property 2nd degree; Thomas Wayne Taylor, theft 1st degree; Lonnie Joe Brasher, receiving stolen property 2nd degree; Hubert A. Hopkins, receiving stolen property 2nd degree; Robert Knapp, burglary 3rd degree.

Luther John Russell pled guilty to the felony possession of marijuana; Eula M. Banks, passing a forged prescription; Kenneth M. Jackson, possession of marijuana; Terry Arthur Smalley, escape 2nd degree, and two charges of attempted burglary 3rd degree; Mary Beatrice Watson, forgery 2nd degree.

Sentencing for these individuals is set for September 20. William Elgin Headley's sentencing was also set for that date. Charges of robbery 1st degree, sodomy 1st degree and attempted murder against Headley, were merged with his case on rape 2nd degree to which he pled guilty.

James Ray McKenzie pled guilty to three charges of theft 3rd degree and was given a 6 month suspended sentence and was ordered to make restitution and pay court costs in each case.

Pleading guilty to buying, receiving and concealing stolen property, Melvin James Hayes was given a two year sentence; Tyler Russell pled guilty to the unlawful use of an auto and received a 12 month suspended sentence with the understanding he make restitution and pay court costs.

Roger David Rasp pled guilty to the possession of marijuana, received a six month suspended sentence plus a $1,000 fine and payment of costs; Jimmy Wayne Hall paid a $250 fine after pleading guilty to the attempted possession of valium.

A 12 month suspended sentence with restitution and costs was the punishment for C.L. Smith who pled guilty to attempted theft; a six month sentence suspended for 12 months was the penalty for Paula C. Schu's guilty plea to attempted assault 2nd degree. She was also ordered to pay costs and avoid the victim.

Silas M. Denham's sentence for the misdemeanor possession of marijuana was six months suspended plus the payment of a $250 fine and court costs; Jeffrey Kenneth Fulmer's sentence for attempting to pass a forged prescription, was six months suspended and payment of a $500 fine plus costs; Robert E. Owens had to pay a $500 fine plus costs for the unlawful use of an auto.

Cases against Darrell Grayson were withdrawn and filed with the circuit clerk pending the outcome of an appeal on his conviction of capital murder in the death of a Montevallo woman, Annie Laurie Orr. The charges are for murder, rape 1st degree, burglary 1st degree and robbery 1st degree.

Two cases against Ed Gentry Harrell Jr. were also withdrawn and filed with the clerk pending the defendant's release from Bryce Hospital. The cases are for robbery 1st degree and attempted murder. Harrell is also charged with the slaying of a Bessemer policeman.

The Alabama Scene

by Bob Ingram

Talk to any candidate worthy of the name, talk to any political strategist...they will tell you the same thing. Nothing is quite so important in a campaign as timing. It is imperative that a candidate "peak" at the right time.

Bucks Pocket, where it is alleged defeated candidates go to lick their wounds, is filled with those who peaked too soon...those who surely would have won had the election be held a week or two weeks earlier, or perhaps a week or so later.

There is no doubt that Fob

James is a classic example of peaking at precisely the right moment...on election day in 1978. Every poll, even his own, showed James was no better than third only a week before the election. In those final days he had surged to the front. His timing was perfect.

Two years ago there was strong evidence that Jim Folsom Jr. was rapidly closing the gap on Jeremiah Denton in the Senate race. But he made his move too late. Had the election been delayed a week, Folsom very likely would have won.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

When we first got there, Amy and I knew this was gonna be something special. You could feel it. The laughter was there and the big talk and the gaily. They had three chiefs Ruth Kite and Vena Stricklin and Tyler Lansford. And if you have good chiefs, it's not hard to get the Indians together.

It was a class reunion for the class of 1945 at Shelby County High School, with a sprinkle of others from different classes and a few friends. And a tribute to a lovely teacher, they must have loved a whole lot, Ellen Ruth Isbell Smith, still lovely and still gracious the same as always.

They came from everywhere and I asked them, one by one, what they remembered best about the school days:

Gladys Martin Sawyer: "School Nights."

Arthur Davis: "The closeness of the class."

Harvel Fore: "Ellen Ruth Isbell Smith."

Dot Taylor Armstrong: "Having good times."

Allie Claire Cooper Dorough: "Being a cheerleader."

James Crawford: "School Nights."

Martha Joiner Ferguson: "Helping Harvel Fore and Sammy McEwen and Jim Curtis pass."

Bill Nolen: "Friendliness all around."

Henry Bristow: "Everything."

Billy Martin: "The football games."

Harold Adams: "Everybody and everything."

Marjorie Bentley Nolen: "W.W. Elliott and all the teachers."

Joyce Seale: "One halloween night."

June Fore Shaw: "How much fun it was."

Alvis Armstrong: "Roy Brasher's hat."

Dot Robinson: "Ellen Ruth and W.W. Elliott."

Jessie Butler Jones: "All the teachers--so qualified and so dedicated."

Sammy McEwen: "Physical education."

Bill Minor: "Closeness, and the fun we had."

Ruth Kite: "Being a cheerleader."

Dot Sims Adcock: "School Nights."

Solon Edmondson: "How hard the times were."

Ella Dee Marshall Gordon: "Everything--just everything."

Milton White: "The whole kaboodle--all of it."

Jim Curtis: "The colored minstrels."

Tyler Lansford: "I had five children to graduate up there, and three grandchildren coming along."

Howard Mitchell: "Hyman Gleen."

Mary Nell Joiner: "Everything."

Vena Stricklin: "My first evening dress in the 9th grade."

Frank Jones, all the way from Marblehead, Mass.: "The influence the teachers had on all of us."

And so it was. A beautiful tribute to one teacher while they remembered the others: W.W. Elliott and Mary Peters and Loretta Head and Myrtle Johnson and Odelle Lewis and Marianna Davis and Mattie Sue Dawson and Sherrell McClure and Charles McDaniel and Braxton Baker and Irene Bishop and Myrtle Old.

What a delightful way to spend an evening. Amy and I thank you for letting us share it with you. We hope you have a hundred more, and we are able to share them too.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

I've really never paid too much attention to elephants.

Of course I know they're big, and lumbering and have big ears, short tails, a trunk and thick hides.

But when it comes to their eyes - I must admit I never really noticed where they fit into the scheme of things.

When that detail came up in a story I was writing recently, I wish I had paid more attention.

Actually, the story I was working on wasn't about elephants, it was about corn.

Do you see the connection?

Well, if your train of thought runs along the same track mine does, the lyrics from a song in "Oklahoma" would have occurred to you as you tried to describe the tallest stalk of corn you'd ever seen.

I'm sure everyone knows about the corn being "as high as an elephant's eye," in the song, "O, What a Beautiful Morning."

When I started to make the comparison, it occurred to me that I didn't have any idea how high an elephant's eye was.

Since I didn't have any reference books handy, I figured my best bet would be to call the zoo.

Thinking someone there would have an answer on the tip of their tongue, I was amazed when a person who saw these beasts every day said they didn't know.

However, the person was most helpful.

They didn't go out to measure, but said they would look it up for me.

It took awhile, but when my zoo source picked up the receiver again, she said that if the elephant was an African bull, it could be up to ten feet.

But it was an African cow, she

continued, the height would be between six and eight feet.

Of course, she pointed out, that measurement was at shoulder level.

So where did that leave me?

Almost as confused as when I called.

Should I compare the corn to a bull or a cow, and where was the eye in relation to the shoulder?

Then too, I would have to assume, I guessed, that the elephant would be holding its head in normal position (whatever that might be), in trying to determine whether the eye was higher, lower or about level with the shoulder.

After I'd gone on for quite awhile with this person, who was really taking a lot of time trying to help me, I suddenly wondered what they must be thinking.

I mean, if I worked at a zoo, and someone called asking me such a ridiculous question, I'd sure want to know the reason.

If she asked and I said I was trying to make a comparison with a stalk of corn, I was afraid she'd slam the receiver down.

Now I don't know if people call with questions as strange as that all the time or if the lady just didn't have any curiosity, but she never asked why I wanted to know.

So don't hold me to it, but assuming I know where an elephant's shoulder is (there was some question about that among fellow workers), and if the head is in normal position, and it's an African bull - that stalk of corn I was writing about was a heck of a lot taller than an elephant's eye.

If you read the story, you remember it was over 16 feet and "looked like it was climbing clear up to the sky."

Sheriff's helicopter draws flak

Letter to the Editor:

The article about the crash of the sheriff's department helicopter raises a number of questions which the residents and taxpayers of Shelby County deserve to have answered. The same craft has crashed twice--three times according to some sources. Luckily, there have been no injuries, but this luck may change the next time it is taken up. And the next crash may claim someone's life--a law enforcement officer's or some innocent child who happens to get in the way. A thorough investigation of the causes is warranted.

Was pilot error the cause? The competence of any pilot having two crashes must be questioned, even if it is our sheriff. It would be no insult if he admits he cannot fly a helicopter--I freely admit that I can't--and considering the demands of the sheriff's duties, we would all be better served with the sheriff in his office and some deputy in the air. And perhaps much safer as well.

One must wonder why the wrecked helicopter was hauled to Autauga County for repairs. Considering the facilities at the Shelby County Airport, would it not have been more logical to bring spare parts there?

The bottom line is that the helicopter and the crashes are a financial drain on the county at a time when our jail has about the highest operating costs in the state, when there are not enough deputies or cars, and when what deputies there are have to buy their own uniforms and equipment. Therefore, the value of a helicopter to the Shelby County sheriff's department must be questioned. Shelby County is not a metropolitan area which needs such a craft for traffic control. It has not caught any murderers or burglars, and it has not stopped escapes from the county jail.

Bulldog to spur MHS spirit

'Nice doggy'

Jerri Harris signs her name to the mural she painted on the cafeteria wall at Montevallo High School. The MHS Bulldog symbol is intended to fire up school spirit.

If the sight of a ferocious looking orange bulldog can engender school spirit, then Montevallo High School students should have an ample supply this year.

The mural of the school mascot was painted on the rear wall of the MHS cafeteria this summer by Jerri Harris.

It was done, Harris reported, at the request of the lunchroom staff who figured it would rev up some extra "spirit."

Before the artist touched her brush to the wall though, a paint crew went over the walls to give the lunchroom a fresh, new look for the opening of school.

Some of the table tops were also refinished in school colors of orange and blue.

Sue Melson is the new lunchroom manager this year and Delila Holsomback is her assistant.

Other members of the staff are cashier, Sally Kornegay and Sis Fletcher.

Pelham police seek suspects

Pelham police are looking for two men possibly connected with a shooting last week outside a Pelham bar.

Doyle Hale, the victim of the early Thursday morning shooting, was hit in the head by a small calibre bullet. He was taken first to Shelby Medical Center, then flown by helicopter to University Hospital for surgery.

Pelham Lt. Tommy Thomas said Hale initially was in critical condition, paralyzed on his left side. But by Monday Thomas said Hale was listed in "fair" condition, and feelings were returning to his limbs.

The shooting took place about midnight shortly after Hale and his wife, Jessie, walked out of the Pour House Lounge in the Pelham Mall.

Thomas said witnesses claim the couple were arguing on the way out. Police believe one or both of the men wanted for questioning, either left the bar, or know who did, and joined the argument.

Newspaper carriers outside the shopping center told police they heard a shot from behind the building, and saw a car drive away.

Thomas said police have composite drawings of the two men.

Hale, a construction worker, and his wife, had been staying in Pelham about two weeks when the shooting occurred, Thomas said.

School hot over stolen AC units

Some Thompson Middle School students walked into un-cooled classrooms their first day back at school.

Three new air conditioning units that had been installed Friday were missing when school opened Monday.

But one air conditioner thief was arrested Monday evening when Alabaster police apprehended 35 year old Howard Christian.

Wayne Holcombe, Lt. Leroy Davis and Richard Harmon came upon Christian and his brother at the school shortly after 8 p.m.

According to Alabaster investigator, Sgt. Larry Rollan, one air conditioning unit was already in the suspect's truck when police arrived and he was removing another from the window.

The brother was questioned and released but Christian was charged with theft of property 2nd degree and violation of the Alabama uniform controlled substances act and booked in the Shelby County jail.

Rollan reported that six air conditioning units had been stolen from the school within a week and said that more arrests are expected.

Columbiana squad meets, files incorporation papers

Columbiana's new rescue squad got off the ground this month when the group incorporated as Southeast Shelby County Emergency Medical Rescue unit.

Randy Moore was elected president of the organization when 22 members met at the Shelby County Library August 16.

Other officers are George Hall Jr, vice-president, and Mary Ann Ingram, secretary.

Serving on the board of directors are: Mary Blackerby, Wayne Gould, Roy Holcombe, and John Duncan.

One of the unit's first projects will be a first responder course which may be attended by any interested person even if they do not want to join the rescue squad.

A discussion of when participants want the classes held took place at the unit's Monday night meeting at the Shelby County Library.

Anyone who would like more information may call Moore at 669-4953.

Fire quenched

The involvement of arson is suspected in an early Monday morning fire in Montevallo.

The former Moore's Supreme service station at the crest of Holloway Hill on Highway 25 was damaged by a blaze that was discovered around midnight Sunday evening.

Upon arrival, firemen reportedly discovered that the building was locked, and kerosene had been stored inside in leaky containers.

Despite this, Montevallo firefighters controlled the flames before the roof burned through, saving the structure.

The state fire marshal is investigating.

Speed lowered

The speed limit in Quail Run and Valley Station subdivisions has been changed to 25 miles per hour.

The commission authorized county engineer Gary Ray to change the limits in the subdivisions off Highway 119 after a child was run over by a car.

In addition, Ray was given authority to set speed limits in all subdivisions in the county at his discretion.

Senate hopeful views legislative issues

Spencer Bachus wants home rule returned to the counties.

In his announcement as a candidate for the State Senate District 17 seat the Republican candidate emphasized many other things he would like to change if elected.

He says the number one need facing Alabama is to provide an excellent education for every child. He said, "You can gauge a state government by how it educates its children."

He would spend more money for elementary and secondary schools and would change some priorities in higher education.

The second need he sees is the need for safe communities. He says, "We don't have the money not to build prisons. A crook inside may cost $8,000 a year, but a crook outside can cost more."

He would like to see a statewide narcotics work force. He said it would cost less than $1 million, but would eliminate a problem that costs many millions.

He emphasizes the teen-age drinking problem in District 17 (which includes northwest Shelby County and much of Jefferson), and says the drinking age must be increased to 21.

He believes the I-459 beltway in his district could be completed sooner than scheduled. "We're losing money as a state, and probably every member of our district is losing money every day," because it is not completed.

On the subject of industrial development and jobs, he says, "The idea we can attract industry to Alabama before we have a good state government is ridiculous." He pledges to work toward a responsible and efficient government if elected.

The candidate is a native of Alabama, and is a practicing attorney. He is married, and he and his wife have two children.

ROBERT PARKER

SPENCER BACHUS

Parker to run for commission

Robert La-Vaughn Parker, a lifelong resident of Sterrett, is running against J. Alpha Lowe and Leon Archer for the County Commission, District 4.

In making his announcement Parker said he is concerned over the way taxes have increased and benefits have decreased.

He said he would like to see senior citizens, the sick and the widows get help from the county. He says he is a definite believer in old people. "Once they retire, we shouldn't forget them."

He believes if he were on the commission, he could see to it that manpower and equipment were used more efficiently than they are now. He would also like to look into the highway department policy, which he says discriminates against doing road work when several relatives live on the same road.

He promises especially to "treat everybody alike, equally and fair," and plans to visit each community every month and stay abreast of the problems of the people.

Parker is a life insurance underwriter. He is married, has three daughters and 6 grandchildren. He is a deacon of Pleasant Site Baptist Church and a Master Mason. During World War II he served in Guam and Korea.

Dr. Norma Rogers has established Valley School as one of the best in the county, and this type of leadership is needed throughout the county.

Dr. Rogers has provided a school where students score consistently above grade level on the CAT. She has provided teachers who are dedicated and interested in children.

To administer any school with over 1,600 students is extremely difficult, but her organization and leadership have provided a school that is one of, if not the best, in this county.

I feel the rest of Shelby County should benefit from what we, at Valley, have been provided under her leadership. I endorse Dr. Rogers for a better educational system in Shelby County.

Street project approved at Columbiana school

Despite their uncertainty about where the money will come from, the Columbiana Council voted unanimously to widen the street leading to the elementary school.

The action taken at Thursday night's council meeting also included the addition of sidewalks on both sides of Washington Street.

"If the whole city gets behind this project, I have no doubt we can do it," declared school trustee John Jones.

A recommendation to undertake the project was made by Councilwoman Jessie Jones, who noted that $10,000 in state funds were already available.

With sidewalks on either side of the street, engineer Gary Ray gave $50,000-$60,000 as a rough estimate of the cost.

There was some discussion on whether a single walk would suffice, but school principal Ann Head reported that 100 school children walked daily along the street.

She also called attention to the fact that school activities took place on both sides of Washington. The principal added that members of the community were "coming and going all day long," to use city recreational facilities.

Head reported that three families had told her their children had narrowly missed being hit by cars on the street.

John Jones pointed out that unless some action was taken "I'm afraid our luck may wear out."

After the council agreed to undertake the project, Mayor Buck Falkner said, "Mr. Ray - proceed!"

By a 4-2 vote, the panel also put their stamp of approval on the second phase of a beautification plan for the city.

Besides improving the appearance of the parking area at the south end of Main Street with plantings, the project will also provide extra parking spaces.

In the recommendation made by Jones to accept the plan, she asked the city to budget $10,000 over a two year period with the beautification board providing the remainder of the cost.

The mayor seconded the motion and cast his vote of approval along with Jones, Bill Seale and Harold McCord. Frank Owen and Lewis Walker were opposed.

At the previous council meeting, the cost of the project, depending on the size of the plantings, was estimated at $12,000 or $14,000.

Beautification board chairman Mildred Harrison was present at the meeting to once again urge the acceptance of the proposal.

She introduced the board's newest members, Memory Barrow and Ann Davis.

Another vacancy on the board was filled at the meeting when the council voted to accept Diane Ellis for membership.

THE MAN FOR ALL REASONS

Spencer Bachus believes in the greatness of Alabama's potential, the greatest being her people. Here are some of the reasons we need him in our legislature.

The Land:

"We have the finest inland waterways in the nation. Energy and mineral rich, we are third in natural resources. Both our soils and climate are rated as among the ten best in the nation."

The Stewards:

"Those who serve in our State Legislature are the managers or stewards of this Great State. Have they been found trustworthy?"

The Record:

"We spend less to educate our children than any other state. We are 48th in teacher pupil ratio. We are 2nd in unemployment. Our penal system, the worst in the U.S., is too small to hold all our violent criminals. Metro Birmingham will be the last major city in the South to complete its interstate system. Alabama, the best of states, is at the bottom."

"Alabama and its families deserve better."

Vincent grant is denied

The City of Vincent did not get a $500,000 grant it hoped for.

Vincent applied for the grant in May, which was part of $15 million in federal dollars the state had in its community development block grant program. The money would have been used to pave streets, build a sports complex and to remove handicap barriers from public buildings.

Mayor Don Green told the Reporter that he received a letter of grant rejection from the state Wednesday morning. Although he expressed disappointment, the mayor said, "Maybe we will get one of those grants some other year."

Vincent's City Council met Tuesday, August 17, and took the following actions:

The council adopted a resolution to exempt the money paid by city employees into the state retirement system from income tax until retirement age.

The council decided to take no action on homestead exemptions. Green said that according to information received, if Vincent raises its homestead exemption from $2,000 to $4,000, the city could stand to lose $2,300 per year.

The mayor said, "We wanted to give it a little more thought. If you lose $2,300 in revenue the next year you may have to pass some sort of unnecessary tax."

Green commented, "Taxes are the only way cities can raise revenue. We can't make a product and sell it." But he stated, "We would certainly like to give the exemption to the people."

An act passed by the state legislature allows counties and municipalities the option of raising homestead exemptions for homeowners or to leave the exemptions as they stand.

Homemaking service is more than a job for United Way's Mrs. Shelby County Paulette Holsomback of Montevallo makes her bed with her feet. It takes her a week to write a letter. She can't write between the narrow lines of a bank book, so she keeps her bank balance up to date in a tablet.

Paulette is proud that she can now put on lipstick without smearing it all over her face.

Paulette, whose mind is keen and whose smile is ever-present and warm, lives in one-half of a duplex. She also lives in a wheelchair.

Paulette has cerebral palsy.

She also has special needs. She needs help with homemaking—keeping her dishes washed, clothes cleaned, floors scrubbed.

She needs help taking a bath.

Several years ago, Grace Green of Columbiana was without a job and divorced. She needed work desperately. She was about to go "on welfare."

Then she heard about a program that interested her. It may not pay quite as much as waiting tables, as she'd done in the past, but it would be a job.

She investigated the job, applied for it, and got it.

Since then, Grace, whose abilities range from plumbing and carpentry to making tasty layer cakes and whose smile is ever-present and warm, has turned this "job" into a rewarding profession.

Paulette Holsomback and Grace Green now see each other for four hours twice a week. They've become, in a sense, employer and employee. But, more than that, they've become close friends.

And it was a United Way agency, Children's Aid Society, that brought them together. It was Children's Aid that matched a need, Paulette, with a provider, Grace.

Every Monday and Friday, Grace is scrubbing floors, cleaning clothes, and washing dishes for Paulette under the Homemaker Program of Children's Aid Society. Why is a United Way agency like the Children's Aid Society serving the needs of an adult with cerebral palsy?

Because, there's another person in Paulette's home. She's six-year-old Jane Holsomback, Paulette's daughter. Jane is a shy, beautiful youngster with big brown eyes. By helping Paulette with homemaking, Grace is making it possible for the two of them to stay together as a family unit.

Paulette Holsomback is a very responsible person. She just needs some special help, and grace comes at 7 a.m. every Monday and Friday and helps out until 11 a.m.

Grace does all the normal household chores, gives Paulette a bath, fixes leaky faucets, and cooks lunch for Paulette and Jane. She works into the morning schedule a few minutes to sit and drink a cup of coffee with Paulette. These are precious moments for both of them because they've developed a deep friendship over the past two and a half years.

After lunch is ready, Grace jumps in her faded red van and scoots to another location in Shelby County. Grace, in fact, is called "Mrs. Shelby County" by the staffers at Children's Aid because she is the only homemaker serving that county. She works with a total of seven families in places like Chelsea and Sterrett, Montevallo and Columbiana.

During 1981, Grace and other homemakers with Children's Aid put in nearly 11,000 hours working with 117 families with almost 300 children.

There are many other families in Shelby County and the other counties served by Children's Aid who could use Homemaker services, but the money just isn't there. In fact, Paulette recently had to begin paying part of Grace's wages, and the possibility of cutbacks in federal funds hangs over the program constantly. Local funds through United Way are essential; in 1981, these funds amounted to over one-fourth of the program's budget.

The Homemaker Program is relatively new for the Children's Aid Society. The agency's other programs include foster home care, adoption and post-adoption services, single parent services and other services to children in their homes.

All these programs match particular needs with expert help, whether it's finding a home for an orphan, helping a single parent get a day off once in a while...

... Or matching a Grace Green, who bubbles with enthusiasm for helping others, with a Paulette Holsomback and Jane Holsomback, who have a special need.

Helping hand

Grace Green, right, fixes lunch for Paulette Holsomback and her daughter, Jane. Grace works in the Homemaker Program of the Children's Aid Society, a United Way agency.

At youth center

Students get second chance

It isn't exactly the little red schoolhouse, but the cottage size house located in the shadow of Shelby County High School's stadium will be the place where 13 students will get their education this year.

Although it was cramped and hot the first day students attended the Shelby County Youth center, they now have a chance to make a turnaround in their lives.

While a guidance counselor, psychologist and other experts work with the young people and their families to iron out the problems that exist, they will have the opportunity to continue with their school work.

The purpose of the center is to help adolescents who have either had a brush with the law or who seem to be headed in that direction.

It was funded through December by CETA in the amount of $75,971 with the Shelby County School System contributing the salaries of two teachers and an aide which will amount to $35,152.

One of the driving forces behind the program was District Court Judge Patti Smith who was honored with a community service award from the office of Governor Fob James.

Superintendent of Education

Charles Knowles also received the award when the board of directors for the youth center held their first meeting at the board of education offices in Columbiana Friday.

Assistant District Attorney Bob McGregor was elected president and chairman of the board at the meeting.

The program, was first proposed in May, but it wasn't known until a week before the center opened where it would be located.

"We still have a lot of problems," admitted Ed Earnest, executive director of Innovative Resources, Inc., whose firm is responsible for operating the center.

Pleased to have the house, owned by the city of Columbiana, on a rent free basis, the staff nevertheless has a severe space problem.

Monday, when the center opened, the tables and chairs being provided by CETA were still not in the building and the staff had to provide their own cooling with electric fans.

Most of this week will be used for obtaining information on the students and doing testing, Earnest said.

Another problem Earnest and the staff are working on is transportation. A meeting with Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles was scheduled for Monday afternoon to see what could be worked out.

J.K. Terrell is director of the center, Janie Patty will do counseling and guidance, Grady Thornton is the psychologist, and Helen Worrell will perform the duties of secretary-bookkeeper.

Deborah McKinney and Gloria Bold will provide academic instruction assisted by aide Denise Smyth.

Other officers elected during last week's board meeting were: Ken Williams, vice-president; Bruce Green, treasurer; Carol White, secretary.

Those elected to the board are: Jake Morris, Steve Westendorf, Mary J. Manning, Sonny Moore, Lister Hill Proctor, John Van Valkenberg, Justin Malloy, Charles Knowles, Green, Williams, White and McGregor.

Montevallo Court

Cases heard in Montevallo municipal court August 18 included harassment, resisting arrest and criminal mischief.

Lester Cathey Jr. was found guilty of a harassment charge and ordered to pay $127.50. Charged with three offenses, Presley Gilmore was sentenced to seven days in jail after he was found guilty of disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. He was found not guilty of public intoxication.

Geoffrey Lynn Slate was fined $127.50 for possession of marijuana and $77.50 for possession of drug paraphernalia.

After being found guilty of criminal mischief, Ricky McLain was ordered to pay $127.50 and to repair damages.

Michael Edward Weddington was fined $77.50 for disorderly conduct but found not guilty to the charge of possessing marijuana.

Everett Taff Jr. and Curtis Lynn Anderson were found guilty of public intoxication and fined $67.50 each.

George Hudson was found guilty of criminal mischief and disorderly conduct and put on probation for six months with no fine.

Robert Rhine Jr. was ordered to pay $227 for driving while revoked; Jimmy Ray Green was ordered to pay the same fine for driving while suspended.

In another traffic case, Maxwell K. Matthews was found guilty of speeding and ordered to pay $47.50. Charges were dropped against Horace O. Edwards for leaving the scene of an accident and John Calvin Devould Jr. was found not guilty of having an improper tag.

Cases were continued on Marie Harris, charged with assault 3rd degree and resisting arrest; Sadie Ward and Willie Ward Jr., both charged with menacing.

Alias warrants were issued for James R. Holsomback, charged with driving while revoked and Marcus Wayne Bailey, charged with spilling a load.

THE RESPONSIBILITIES AND DUTIES OF YOUR PROBATE JUDGE.

All too often, we think of the Probate Judge only as a name on our checks when buying a car tag. The fact is—when compared to the management of a large corporation, he would be its chief executive officer, president, budget officer, secretary, and senior administrative officer. Also, Shelby is one of the 36 counties in Alabama where our judge of probate is Chairman of the County Commission. With the other four commissioners serving part-time, our probate judge is expected to carry the major burden of county operations. With this in mind, Shelby county's level of successful operation depends in great measure on the person we elect as judge of probate.

With a successful business and management background, "Ray" Hamilton can best perform the varied and important administrative functions of the office of probate judge. His experience as two-term president of the Pelham Area Chamber of Commerce has helped provide his knowledge to seek new business and industry for all of Shelby county. "Ray" Hamilton's re-election to his second term as Pelham City Councilman—

having served as Mayor Pro-tem for six years—has proven him to be a leader, strong on experience in the areas of administrative and judicial government, and an efficient administrator of probate matters. The judge of probate is responsible for maintenance of county fiscal records, preparation of the budget, and purchasing for the county.

"Ray" Hamilton is best qualified for this responsibility. He has served as Director of Finance for the City of Pelham since 1976. Despite its impressive growth, Pelham has been, and is financially "in-the-black." Our County Commissioners depend on the probate judge, as their presiding officer, to provide a constructive agenda, establish timely priorities, and be knowledgeable of pertinent facts involving all issues to be discussed. Appropriate suggestions and recommendations by the probate judge are also vital to effect sound management decisions by the commissioners. R.E. "Ray" Hamilton will be that kind of probate judge. The kind of candidate you can vote FOR.

Every voter wants a good man to vote FOR. We've got one in R.E. "Ray" Hamilton.

Cabbage

Abundant summer rainfall is making for an excellent harvest of garden crops across Shelby County this year. About all Albert Cohill of Wilsonville has left in his acre garden is cabbage.

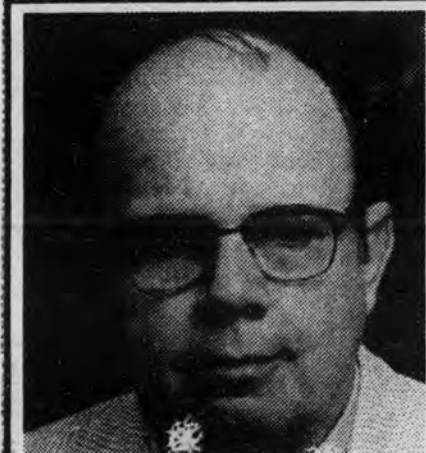

Garden benefits

Kate Cohill had to defrost her deep freeze last week to make enough room for the bountiful harvest from the family garden. The one acre patch has produced enough vegetables to make nearly $300 in sales, plus pack eleven kitchen shelves, one deep freeze, and two freezer tops full—not to mention everything they've given away to family and friends. (Photo by David F. Moore)

Super squash

Paul and Jimmy Fancher of Brantleyville show off two examples of unusually large winter squash. Grown from seed imported from Vermont in the garden of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Fancher, the vegetables weigh 8.4 and 13.4 ounces each. Mr. Fancher says that the giant vegetables are just as tasty as those of normal size. (Photo by Fred Guarino)

Gardens too

Rain waters green thumbs

by David F. Moore

There are a lot of green thumbs around Shelby County these days.

Abundant summer rains are helping bring in one of the best garden harvests in several years. However, the extra water is causing some problems.

"I haven't had but three years gardening," says Camp Branch gardener Stanley Blankenship, "but this is the best I've ever had. 'We've got a deep freeze full of vegetables and Daddy's (Floyd Blankenship) plum trees got so full, the branches broke off at the trunks.'"

Blankenship also cut back his pea plants the first of July, and now he's getting a second growth of peas on them.

Fletcher Payne, also of Camp Branch, says that particular area is one of the driest in Shelby County. Nonetheless, there's been enough rain to give him a good crop of corn, peas and fruit, not to mention "more hay than we can put in the barn."

Thanks to good rains, Albert Cohill rates his one-acre Wilsonville garden a "100%."

"I imagine this is the best year since '79 or '80 on the garden," Cohill says. "We got every bit of 30 bushels of corn and even more peas."

"The rain's helped the corn, peas, okra, green beans, and tomatoes," says Anthony Jones at the county extension service. "We got rain at the right time."

"Last year was terrible—one of the driest seasons I remember witnessing," he continues. "Compared to last year, this year's great."

So far, some 8.5 more inches of rain have fallen this year, than last year.

No official rainfall figures for Shelby County are available. However, taking averages from state figures for Thorsby and Birmingham, Shelby County has needs items to sell

The ladies' auxiliary to the Helena Volunteer Fire Department is looking for items to include in its Labor Day yard sale.

The sale will be held September 4, 5 and 6 at the entrance to Joe Tucker Park on highway 52.

Already the seven members of the auxiliary have collected clothes, furniture and baby items, but a spokesman for the group said not to worry about duplications. "We're not picky!" she said.

All donations are tax deductible. Items can be brought by the fire station during days, or the following numbers can be called: 664-2751, 663-1395, 663-5608.

Proceeds from the sale will towards purchasing beepers and walkie-talkies for the fire department.

Training complete

Pvt. Dwayne E. Brasher, son of Sarah and Claude Brasher of Route 1, Leeds, has completed one station unit training at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning.

In the same class was Pvt. Martin J. Crasman, son of Mary J. Burnett of Route 5, Leeds.

received about 29.4 inches of rain this year.

That figure is 3.5 inches above the average rainfall estimated for this area.

However, as for commercial farmers, the extra rainfall has both helped and hurt.

Extension agent Grant Gober says the added rain has helped the 6,000 acres of soybeans in the county, so far. But the critical time for rain is when the pods start forming from the blossoms, which is expected the first or second week of September.

The soybean harvest may be the best in five or six years. But indications are that the market for them is not very good, Gober said.

Rain also helped the cotton crop earlier in the season, but according to extension agent John Jones, enough is enough.

Excessive rain is causing cotton bolts to rot on the stems, and enticing a larger than normal insect population.

"If the weather gives us a break—dries up—and we can save what's on the stalk now, we could have an above average cotton crop." But, he cautions, "that's a big 'if.'"

Watermelons, notes Anthony Jones, are another case of too much rain. Many melons are having second growths, and for all their extra size, too much of it is just water weight, he says.

"Generally," Gober sums, "the rain has been good for everything."

The extension service, he says, has had fewer calls on garden problems than it's had for at least three years. According to Gober, most problem calls are from people wanting to know tips on canning and freezing all their extra vegetables.

My name is STACEY SEALES. I am 6 years old. I am asking you to support my Pap-pa, CHARLES SEALES, for County Commissioner District 2. If you will vote for him on September 7 it will make me Very Happy and he will appreciate it.

No competitive tractor in its class makes shifting direction such a simple chore.

All you do to change from forward to an equivalent reverse speed is just disengage the clutch, stop the tractor and pull the shuttle lever down. Eight forward and seven reverse speeds let you match your speed to the job.

Christian school celebrates 4th year

Kingwood Christian School in Alabaster started its fourth year with a record enrollment of 90 students.

Kingwood teaches the A-Beka curriculum to grades 1-7, and supervisor Judy Clark says the teachers are very happy with the results the children achieve.

The school also offers complete kindergarten to four and five-year olds this year. Clark said kindergarteners last year learned to read.

The school is operated as a ministry of the First Assembly of God in Alabaster. Assembly Rev. Ron Cox said, "Every year we become more and more excited about Kingwood Christian School and about the positive influence it has in the lives of its students."

The school is located on Royalty Drive in the Kingwood subdivision.

Miss Shaw says vows

Miss Teresa Gail Shaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Shaw, Sr., of Columbiana, was married Saturday, August 21 to Mr. Kurt Michael Greene, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Greene of Dothan. A reception followed the ceremony.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. Mattie C. Walton and the late Walter D. Walton, Mrs. Nena Shaw and the late Melvin Shaw, all of Columbiana.

The groom is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. T. Paul McCall of St. Paul, Kansas and Mr. Harold Greene, and the late Mrs. Greene of Wellsville, New York.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a white satin gown featuring a high neckline, a natural waist and a bodice of imported English net with Alencon lace and seed pearls over net. She carried a bouquet of silk flowers designed by her mother.

The attendants wore dark peach gowns of Italian silk. Miss Kimberly Jo Leeper, of Columbiana, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Margaret Shaw, of Huntsville, Vanessa Brown, of Columbiana, Tami Walton, of Midfield, and Melissa Cox, of Wilsonville. Monica Brown of Columbiana was flower girl.

Mr. Mark J. Greene, of Birmingham, served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Marvin Shaw of Huntsville, Mike Shaw of Los Angeles, Kyle Fincher of Fultondale, and Mark Burdette of Birmingham. Blaine Davis of Helena, was ringbearer. Dr. James Moebs, pastor Mountain Brook Baptist Church, officiated.

The bride's mother wore an ivory crepe de chine gown. The groom's mother chose a light blue brocade gown.

After a wedding trip to Florida, the newlyweds will reside in Birmingham.

What Does Jesus Teach - About Homosexuality

In Lev. 18:22 we learned that Homosexuality was Sin, an abomination.

Two chapters later in Leviticus, 20, God gave the penalties for those who committed these acts of perverseness.

In Lev. 20:13 "If a man also lie with mankind, as he lieth with a woman (homosexuality), both of them have committed an abomination: they shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them."

The purpose, of course, of quoting the Old Testament is to establish in our hearts the pleasures and displeasures of our God.

So that we may choose whether or not to seek Him, to do His will.

Next week we shall see this in N.T. Light. Please read all of Lev. 20.

Thank You,
M.S. Hunt

In order to help the completion of the final phase of a feasibility study to produce fuel alcohol at the Old Army Ordnance Plant in Childersburg, there is a need to determine the amount of alternate feed stock that can be supplied by Talladega and surrounding counties. It is assumed that a reasonable profit can be derived from the sales of these crops. We especially need the information on sweet sorghum, a feed stock that can be double cropped. Calera golfer wins tourney with blazing 67

by Fred Guarino

Dave Ellison of Calera shot a blistering 67 to win the annual Ross B. Mullins Invitational Golf Tournament Saturday.

But the real winner of the event played at Buxahatchee County Club was Shelby County High School.

The tournament, sponsored by a local bank and the SCHS Booster Club, raised $2,500 to be used to help pay off the football field lights which were installed last year.

The money was raised from entry fees paid by golf addicts and politicians who used the event to get their names before the public.

Herbert Sims, who finished third in the fourth flight got an extra surprise during the event. He received a message while out on the course that he had just become a grandpa.

Regardless of what Sims shot for the day, he had a lot to smile about on every hole.

Over 80 players participated in the tournament.

Oliver Head took the first flight with a score of 79.

B. B. White took honors for the second flight; Stan Ennis claimed first prize for the third flight; Joey Neal won the fourth flight; Clyde Joiner won the fifth flight; and Jeff Jones won the sixth.

Rhett Vick drove his little round ball closest to the pin on the third hole.

Dale Walker got closest to the eighth hole with his drive.

Dave Ellison hit the closest to the fifth hole and G. W. Knight hit the longest drive on the second hole.

Before they even read the name on the sign marking the longest drive, the golfers somehow knew who did it. They were all heard to say "Good Knight!"

Rounding out the championship flight were Jim McQueen who shot a 68; Dale Walker who shot a 69 and William Rasco and Don Bunn who both shot 70.

Completing the first flight were:

H. Payne, Ellie Glasscox and M. Woods who all three shot 80 and Rhett Vick who shot an 81.

Those rounding out the second flight were:

James Alston, W. Wright, J. Medaris and Kerry Nivens.

Completing the third flight were:

Charles McCombs, Ricky Seale, S. Davenport and Don Piazza.

Bringing up the fourth flight were:

Clyde Woolf, Herbert Smims, Frank Head and James Nivens.

Bringing up the fifth flight were: Jeff Hand, Jr; Terry Smith, Walley Watson and Carlton Franks.

And finishing up the sixth flight were:

Hugh Oliver, Edwin Brasher,

Lester Young and George Walker.

Participants in the tournament were all treated to a free lunch, free golf ball and free towel.

Winners were rewarded for their efforts with prizes ranging from golf gloves and umbrellas to trophies and coolers.

All prizes were donated.

The battle for the championship of the second annual Ross B. Mullins Invitational Golf Tournament was a real dog fight between these five men at Buxahatchee Country Club Saturday. Football forecaster back on the job

by Richard Crosby

In the Football Special I forecast the season records for the team. Now it's time for the 'nitty-gritty' as I pick this week's winners and losers.

Calera-Montevallo: Those Eagles will have a tough one this week. Montevallo brings a new pack of Bulldogs to Oliver Park tonight (Thursday) and they just

Writer requests teams to display sportsmanship

Letter to the Sports Editor:

Once again we begin a new school year and along with it a new season of high school athletic competition. As in the previous years I have used this medium to urge each parent and fan to enthusiastically support their favorite team.

Along with the American public school system, high school athletics is one of the chief cornerstones of our democratic way of life.

This year in particular points to a very interesting and exciting year of events in and around our county. Because of the caliber of others competing in our system the eyes of the state and the nation will once again be focused upon us. Therefore I call upon all schools to display the marks of good sportsmanship and citizenship.

Let me also take a moment to say thanks to all coaches in the Shelby County school system for your diligence to hard work and excellence. I tip my hat to all coaches past and present who have made the American way of life a living memorial.

I hate to think as to what and to where I would be today if it were not for the discipline and thirst for hard work which they instilled in me as a student at Prentice High in Montevallo.

So, as we begin a new school year let us do so ever mindful of the words of St. Paul of old; "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

Sincerely,

Bobby Lee Harris

might surprise the home folks. Look for a defensive struggle as Coaches Gilliam and Alverson work out the kinks in this year's squad. PREDICTION: Calera 17, Montevallo 12.

Vincent-Shelby County: The Wildcats might well receive a first game taming on the east end of the county Friday night. The Yellow Jackets have been whupping up on each other so long that they can't wait to try on someone new. That's how the game will go the first half, but Shelby County should come from behind. PREDICTION: Shelby County 18, Vincent 7.

Thompson-Pell City: This used to be the last game of the season for these two teams, and it was always a struggle. The schedule change might make a difference, but to which team's advantage is the question. PREDICTION: Thompson 33, Pell City 21.

Chelsea-Billingsley: One thing in the Hornets favor is the terrible season Billingsley had last season. Chelsea didn't have a better record, but did fight a better battle. This season is more of the same for Billingsley, but for the Hornets, things have changed. PREDICTION: Chelsea 28, Billingsley 6.

Coosa Valley-Edgewood: The Rebels have grown a little from last season and in the first outing a win shouldn't be too hard to come by. Look for a good effort and a happy crowd coming back to Harpersville. PREDICTION: CVA 23, Edgewood 11.

Briarwood-Mobile: The long bus ride will give the Lions more bruises than the competition. After taking a nap the first half, Briarwood will pull away for the win. PREDICTION: Briarwood 26, Mobile 13.

Shelby Academy-South Choc-taw: The Raiders wait until Friday night to play and that may be an advantage. The team will get to watch some other games and may see what first-night jitters do to a team. That just might pay off. PREDICTION: Shelby Academy 17, Choc-taw 0.

Pelham-Open: The Panthers get to sit around and watch this Friday. It should be a tough battle as Pelham fights indigestion - a sickness caused by watching next week's competition. PREDICTION: Pelham 2, Open 1.

That wraps up the first week's forecast. Compare your guesses and see who did better.

It's football time again

Get out the stadium seats

by Richard Crosby

It's time to get those stadium cushions and seats out of the broom closet, dust them off, and put them in the trunk. I wouldn't get the blankets out yet, but pom-poms are okay.

It's been quite a wait for some folks. Football season is a time for car pools, buses to the game, hot dogs, marching bands....the list goes on and on.

One ritual that we always did was to get Mom to cook up a vat of chili. Before leaving for the game we'd down two bowls, and then bring home a car-load of friends to help finish off the leftovers.

A football game seems to get folks together for a good time.

On the news front: Got a story here detailing the first year of life for a large mouth bass. The condensation of the story is thus: One of 35,000 eggs. Mother leaves. Daddy cares for eggs and keeps them safe.

Father's so busy that he quits eating. Eggs hatch. Father stays another week, but hunger pangs get so great he starts eating his children.

Briefly, the bass goes through three stages- abandonment, predation, and cannibalism... and he isn't three weeks old yet!

Here's the mortality table for large mouth bass:

For every thousand eggs the female bass lays, only 50 of them will live beyond the fry stage. And one out of every three of those will die before its first birthday.

One of the good things about the beginning of football is renewing friendships. Not the "I see you every other day kind" but the "I haven't seen you since last October type."

There's a lot of those kinds of folks I look forward to seeing in the coming weeks.

Also on tap around the county are the many welterweight football leagues that are getting ready to kick off the new season.

These pint-sized superstars give their parents Saturday afternoon thrills in 'Big Games' played around the county.

If you've got some news to note or just want to help with forecasting, drop us a line. You might be the next to get embarrassed.

Pelham football teams sweep six games in Moody tourney

Pelham's welterweight football teams all got wins last Saturday.

The teams traveled to the Moody Blue Devil Tournament which saw the teams play their first game of the season.

In the first game of the day the 65 pounders of Pelham won 8-0. Ricky Buffkin is the head coach of the Pelham squad.

Moody lost the second game to the 75 pounders of Pelham 12-0. Coaching the team is Mike McKinnis.

The 85 pound Pelham team was victorious over Moody with a score of 18-0. Bill Fant is coaching the team.

David Coggins coaches the 95 pounders of Pelham. His team came from behind in the last 13 seconds to win 6-0 over Moody.

In the fifth game, Pelham's 115 pounders won 12-6 with Dale Dunnaway as the squad's mentor.

The evenings final game was contested by the 105 pounders with Pelham completing the sweep with a score of 12-0. Tom Davidson calls the shots for the Pelham 105 pounders.

The Pelham teams take a week off before getting back into action September 4. Those games will be played at Central Park.

Pelham is a member of the Alabama Youth Football League.

Annual archery shoot honors Howard Hill

Archers from all over the Southeast will be converging on Harpersville this weekend. The 13th Annual Howard Hill Invitational Archery Tournament is slated for the Creek Bowhunters Club.

Howard Hill, who began and named the Vincent club, traveled the world over, hunting game. His most famous conquest was an elephant. He is remembered as the world's greatest archer.

The Howard Hill Tournament gets underway Saturday at 9 a.m. There will be four times for bowhunters to shoot - two each day.

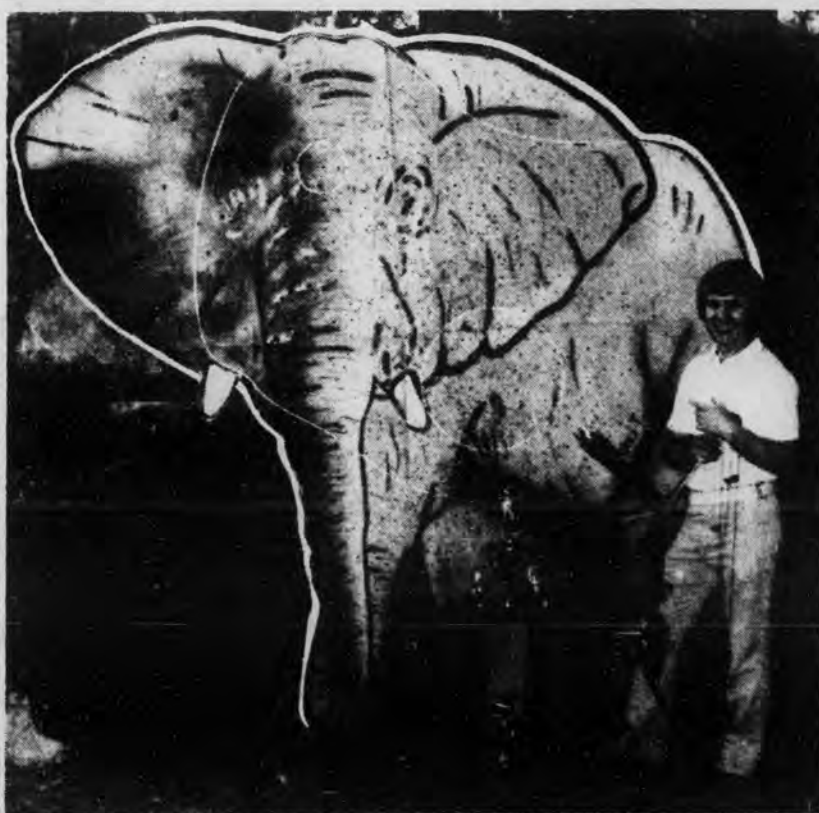

The tournament will consist of 28 targets. Two of those will be elephants, and the other 26 are three-dimensional safari targets. Novelty shoots will be held both days. The Blue Grass Only band from Childersburg will be playing both days, and door prizes will also be given away.

On Saturday night, movies will be shown at the range and they are open to the public.

A total of 76 trophies will be awarded at the conclusion of the tournament. There are numerous classes including adult, youth, and cub.

Trophies will also be awarded in barebow, freestyle, longbow, and recurve divisions.

In past years, the Howard Hill Shoot has drawn as many as 500 competitors from 10 states. The Creek Archery Club range is located between Harpersville and Vincent.

Big target

Kenny Abbott, winner of last year's Howard Hill Invitational, stands beside one of the two elephant targets that bowhunters will be shooting at this weekend. The second elephant target is larger than the one above.

RMS cheerleaders

Coaches smile

Coach Bev Warren of the University of Montevallo poses with Mary Jo Peppler, who conducted a volleyball class sponsored by the United States Sports Academy in Mobile. Peppler is a five time All American IVA Coach of the Year, coach of the 1978 national champion squad and winner of the 1975 Women's Super Stars competition. Coach Warren was one of many coaches from around the South who attended the week long class in Mobile, where the Academy is based. The U.S. Sports Academy is a private, non-profit graduate institute serving the country as its national school of sport with programs in areas of education, research and service.

Falcon cage team looks for fourteenth winning season

With a goal of a 14th straight winning season in mind, the 1982-83 University of Montevallo men's basketball team will embark on a rigorous journey. It could prove to be the toughest schedule yet in the team's 19 year history.

"I know it seems like I say this every year," admitted UM coach Dr. Bill Elder, "but this is, without a doubt, the most imposing schedule we've had since I've been here."

Elder begins his ninth year at the Montevallo helm with a 149-80 record, and a 267-149 record that includes seven years of junior college coaching.

As usual, the heart of the Falcons' schedule will consist of 10 games against Southern States Conference foes, including Alabama Christian, Alabama-

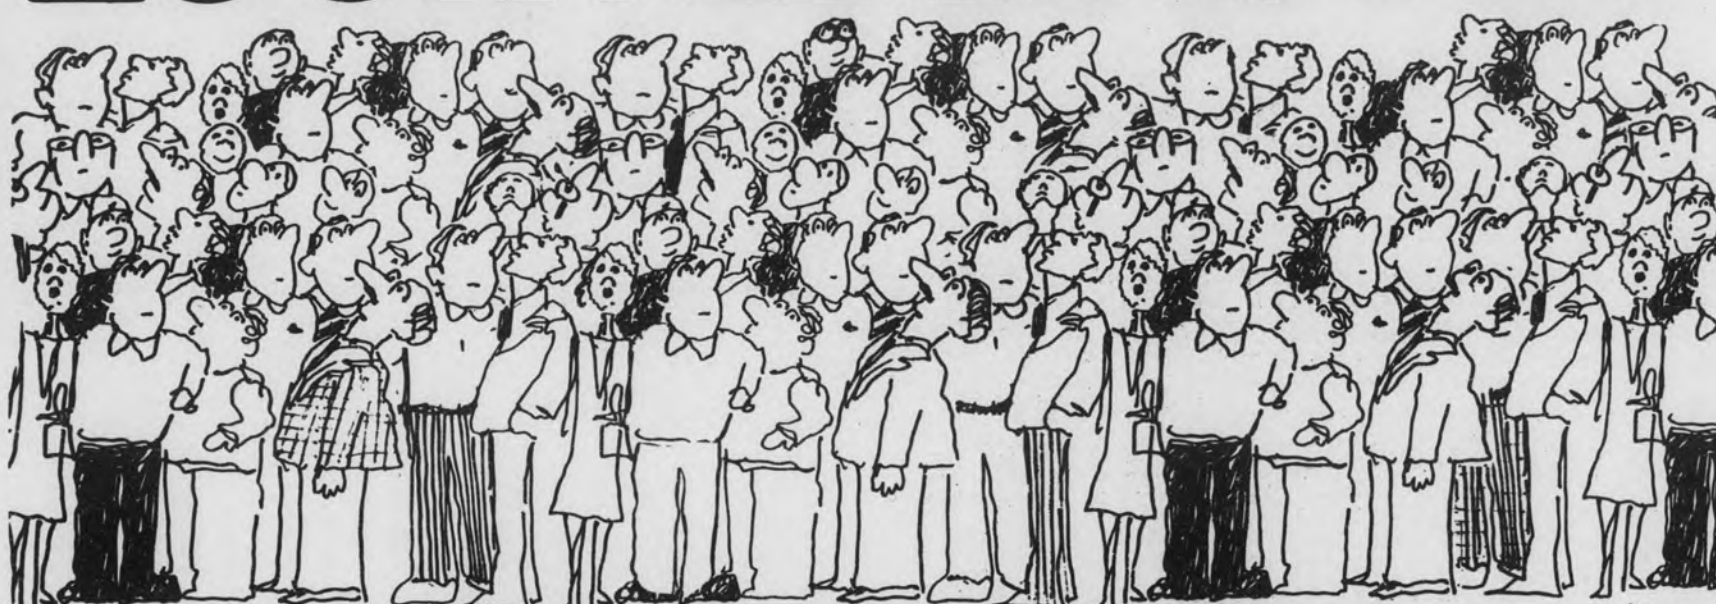

Huntsville, Athens State, Auburn-Montgomery and Birmingham-Southern. All but Athens State have at least four starters back, while Montevallo must replace three starters.

The SSC games also count in the NAIA District 27 standings, as do two games with Talladega. Also on the slate are home-and-home contests with improving Stillman, SIAC Tournament champion Miles and perennial Gulf South Conference powers Jacksonville State and Livingston, the latter a finalist in the NCAA Division II Southeast Regionals last year.

It is an ambitious schedule indeed, according to Elder, but one he is certain will challenge his players and provide plenty of excitement for Montevallo basketball fans.

Westover tries to play again

Westover's Volunteer Fire Department had a foul called. The scheduled game between the softball team and a Birmingham radio station was rained out and has been rescheduled for this Sunday at 3 p.m.

The game will be played at the Westover softball field which is located on old highway 280. "Play Ball" will resound at 3 p.m. - weather permitting this time.

The firemen are 'up' for the game and plan to bring ladders if need be. The earlier scheduled game created a mud field and the radio station personnel refused to muddy their feet.

Sports Scribbles

This isn't one of those gossip columns!

by Richard Crosby

It's getting where people are hesitant to talk to me. Seems their reply to questions posed is, "This isn't going to be put in your scribbles column is it?"

What a ridiculous accusation. Just because you might have the opportunity to chat with such a profound conversationalist such as I, is no reason to worry that your side of the talk will appear in these pages.

I guess people think I'm Bert Seaman. This isn't the same place those 'Scrambled Eggs' appear. This is a sports column. Perish the thought that gossip or 'chatter' would grace these pages which are entrenched in dirty sweat socks and smelly shirts.

Just because I'm a dime store philosopher and like to share my thoughts is no reason to think that the sports lover will have no interest in this space. AND, just because I happen to be talking to you about subjects not of sports you shouldn't have any concern about those conversations showing up here.

I hope this sets the record straight!

Now then, about those children of yours Mary, they just run wild in the gym.....And Joe, how come they put so much starch in my shirts....Bob, why do you think I need a new car?

Pelham B-leaders

Elect TOM STUBBS STATE REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT 49

Tom Stubbs is the only office holder in the history of the State of Alabama to not only vote against a pay raise while in Office, but after the bill was passed, refused to take the money and returned it to the public in the form of $300.00 scholarships for 150 graduating High School seniors to begin college. This resulted in returning $15,000 of public funds to be used in Shelby County.

School gets additional accreditation

The Alabama School for the Blind in Talladega has been reaccredited for three years.

ASB is a branch of the Alabama Institute for Deaf and Blind, and is one of 90 such schools in the U.S. that is accredited by the National Accreditation Council for Agencies Serving the Blind and Visually Handicapped.

Fourteen Shelby County students are currently enrolled at the institute.

ASB is also fully accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and the Alabama State Department of Education.

The institute has also recently merged its program for handicapped infants and their parents, with the State Department of Education.

The program involves weekly home visits to parents of audio and visually impaired children up to the age of five. By merging, the two groups expect to eliminate duplication of services and save taxpayers $75,000 per year.

More information on the program is available by calling 1-326-1500.

Bartering can be taxed

Bartering, or the exchange of goods or services for goods or services of equal value, is an American tradition that carries Federal income tax responsibilities, the Internal Revenue Service said.

Income from any source must be reported, according to the IRS, and in the case of bartering, the tax is computed on the fair market value of the goods or services exchanged.

For example, an auto mechanic repairs a carpenter's truck in exchange for repair work performed by the carpenter in the auto mechanic's office. Both individuals must report the services received as income at fair market value. However, both may claim the fair market value of the repair work received as a business expense on their income tax returns.

Another example: a plumber owes a physician for medical services and offers to make plumbing repairs in the doctor's office in payment of the bill. The doctor must report the fair market value of the plumbing services as income and the plumber must report the amount of the medical services as income. Then, the doctor may claim the plumbing job as a business expense and the plumber may claim the doctor's bill as a medical expense.

Taxpayers who have not reported income gained from bartering can correct their income tax returns by filing a 1040X, an amended return, for the year or years involved, the IRS said. Forms are available by calling the IRS Forms number, 1-800-241-3860.

Doug Cook Looking After His District

To: Citizens of Shelby County

From: Doug Cook

Act # 82-406 was passed in the Alabama Legislature this year to fund the opening and maintenance of a Branch office of the Shelby County Probate Office in North Shelby County.

Needless to say, this would be a time and cost savings to North Shelby citizens when paying licenses, fees, recording documents, and drivers licenses, etc.

It was a pleasure to offer this convenience to you by enabling the county commission to implement the provisions of Act # 82-406.

Sincerely,

Doug Cook

Sheriff's department reports week's activity

by David F. Moore

The owner of Oak Mountain Curb Market on U.S. 280 was arrested for selling beer without a license. Carrie B. Salser was one of 29 arrests made by the Sheriff's department during the week of August 13-20.

According to incident reports released August 21 by Sheriff Buddy Glasgow, seven burglaries and 12 thefts were reported during the week. Stolen pickup trucks were recovered in connection with two of the thefts, and a juvenile was arrested in connection with a beer burglary in the Dry Valley area.

The juvenile (name not released) was arrested early last Friday morning in Chilton County following a high speed chase by deputies. He was charged in connection with beer stolen from a store on highway 155.

A pickup truck stolen August 17 from the airport, was found abandoned on highway 84 by deputy Jim Walters. A pickup stolen August 18 from a Montevallo woman was found stripped and burned two days later in Chilton County.

Other burglaries, thefts: A car battery was reported stolen August 15 in Wilsonville. The victim obtained a warrant on Royce Felton Headley for breaking and entering a vehicle; the Thorsby man was arrested August 18.

Juveniles were involved in the August 15 theft of food stamps from a mailbox in Dogwood.

August 16, a Riverchase woman reported the theft of her car tag, 58D-1199. Household items were later reported stolen from a model home in Broken Bow, north Shelby. That night, a north Shelby mobile home was broken into, but nothing taken; and a Shelby woman reported four wire wheel covers stolen off her vehicle.

A Shady Cove residence was burglarized August 17, but nothing reported stolen.

Tools were reported stolen August 18 from a woodworking shop off highway 22, and household items were stolen from a Sterrett residence.

Also last Wednesday, another in a series of car stereo thefts was reported on Cambrian Way; another Inverness resident also reported a car breakin, but only the radio knobs were taken. The same day, a Heath Drive resident in north Shelby reported the theft of his car stereo.

A route 1 Columbiana resident reported the theft of his tractor on August 18.

A person is suspected in connection with the August 19 silverware burglary of a Lee Drive, Birmingham residence. A Colorado man reported things stolen from a mini-warehouse in Pelham.

The next day a customer drove off from a 280 gas station without paying a $25 tab.

Other reports: A patrol car driven by deputy Phillip Walker caught fire and burned August 14 in Alabaster. Sheriff Glasgow said the car had only about 5,000 miles on it, and was one of several new cars giving deputies problems.

Vandalism was reported at the Dogwood Community Center the same day. The night of August 13, a door was found open at a vacationing Chelsea resident's house, but apparently nothing was missing.

A fight at the Vegetable Patch in Dogwood August 16, led deputy Jim Walters on a chase after James Edward Lee. The Montevallo man was caught and charged with DUI, attempting to elude an officer and reckless driving.

An unknown black male attempted to pass three forged prescriptions August 16 at the clinic in Vincent. The next day a Westover woman reported that a neighbor shot her dog.

A Leeds woman is under investigation for an August 18 hit-and-run involving a nine-year old Pelham boy. An apparent hit-and-run the following day on highway 47 north, left a pony dead in the middle of road.

Two young boys caught swimming nude in Indian Valley Lake August 18, were taken home to their parents.

Teachers meet

Teachers turned out in force for the annual Shelby County Board of Education's teachers' institute and Shelby County Education Association meet Thursday. Entering Pelham High School prior to the meetings are Patricia Arledge, Vincent

Teachers must face evil giant, says Auburn's Charles Britt

by Fred Guarino

Teachers in Shelby County are beginning the 1982-'83 school year, charged with many challenges.

The educators received the tasks when they met at Pelham High School, Thursday for the board of education's annual Teacher's Institute.

School superintendent Charles Knowles challenged the teachers to get to know the parents of every child they teach.

He reminded them that the only purpose for a school system is to serve children and that the system is paid for by taxpayers.

Board of Education chairman Barbara Whitman challenged the teachers to do the best job possible and pledged the support of the board.

Dr. James Vickrey, president of the University of Montevallo, challenged the teachers to support the United Way in Shelby County.

Vickrey informed teachers that the goal for this county will be $274,588 out of $9 million being sought by the entire Jefferson, Shelby and Walker County United Way.

He told teachers that some 23,000 Shelby Countians have made use of the United Way through agencies such as the Boy Scouts and the YMCA.

The UM president said, "When we support other agencies, they will support us."

He encouraged teachers to draw a connection between what they have asked others to do for them and what the United Way is asking of the teachers.

Also challenging the teachers was Dr. Charles Britt, an Auburn University professor.

Upon discovery that many Shelby County teachers have attended Auburn University, Britt said, "I thought there was an air of refinement here."

Britt compared the teachers of this county to David who fought the giant in Biblical times.

Like the Israelites of old, Britt told the teachers, "You are people who stand on a hill of privilege. You are Americans, educators and you are employed. You can look into the valley of human needs."

He told the teachers school children are people "who need love not sympathy, who need discipline not harshness, who need not only reading, writing and arithmetic but a level of personal worth."

Britt also told the teachers about the giant they must face.

He described it as those people who reach out to children through a false vision of life on television, who keep parents too busy to spend time with their children and who would use the school system as a forum for their own visions.

He said, "The ancient story of David is your story because you are David on the frontier of progress or retrogression."

However, like David of the Bible, Britt told teachers they had a very important stone with which to fight the giant.... themselves.

He commented that teachers should give of themselves, employ themselves, expand and expend themselves. "And", he stated, "if you do this, the legislature will eventually do what has to be done for education."

County Demo Conference announces party endorsements

The Shelby County Democratic Conference has endorsed Ellie Glasscox for county superintendent of education.

Endorsements for local races were decided last Thursday night by SCDC officers, and announced this week by county chairman George Dailey.

C. P. "Red" Walker was endorsed for the probate judge's race.

Eason Mitchell won conference backing in the race for circuit judge. The Coosa County chapter of the conference, which is included in the circuit, is also backing Mitchell, Dailey said.

In the contests for state representatives, the SCDC is backing John Tanner for the newly created district 49, Bob Hawkins for district 52, and Curtis Smith for district 53.

Dailey said the local chapter would follow the endorsement of the Jefferson County conference in the state senate race for district 17. That endorsement, however, was not available at presstime.

In the races for county commission, the SCDC is endorsing Harold Davenport for place 2, and Leon Archer for place 4.

Rev. Leo F. King, running for place 2 on the board of education, was also endorsed. There is no Democratic opposition for place 4 on the board.

Billy Thompson received the endorsement for county coronor.

Dailey was given an endorsement for the county Democratic executive committee, beat 4, place 6; Leon Harris was endorsed for beat 4, place 6. The three other places up for election on the executive committee, are without opposition.

Dailey explained that should Democratic candidates without SCDC endorsement be forced into a runoff in the primaries, the conference would offer new endorsements.

He predicted an 80% turnout among the estimated 3,000 black voters in county. Commenting that candidates have not yet generated much voter interest in the campaigns, Dailey estimated only an overall county turnout of about 45% for both the September 7 primaries, and November 2 general elections.

Teachers hear political pitches at SCEA meeting

by Fred Guarino

Although politics was not the stated purpose of Thursday's Shelby County Education Association (SCEA) meeting, it played a major part.

Jack Drake, a Tuscaloosa attorney and campaign chairman for the Jack Kartus for Congress Committee, encouraged teachers to vote for his candidate.

County superintendent of education candidates, Dr. Norma Rogers, Charles Knowles and Ellie Glasscox were given five minutes each to speak.

Sharon Gaydon of the SCEA Political Action Committee reminded members that the purpose of PAC is to encourage members to vote, to screen and endorse candidates.

In other activities: The SCEA was reminded by David Little that an election on a new constitution would be held on September 9.

He encouraged school representatives to be sure that members see the proposed constitution which was completed last year.

Wayne Summers of the SCEA membership committee told the group that it boasted 83 percent of the county's educators last year and this year its goal is 90 percent.

He reminded teachers that even the superintendent of education gave credit to the organization for securing a teachers' pay raise.

He stated, "When we keep salaries adequate to keep qualified teachers in the classrooms, we are working for students."

A treasurer's report revealed that a balance of $60 is carried by the organization from last year.

Concerning the Kartus campaign for congress, Drake told SCEA members that his candidate has already received the endorsement of the National Education Association and the Alabama Education Association.

Drake said that his candidate is committed to education and is against any tuition tax credits.

He urged teachers, "Don't just play lip service to the AEA but go home and tell your husbands and wives to vote your way. Talk to people in schools and at work. Talk to your cousins, uncles and aunts."

The Tuscaloosa attorney concluded, "It will be a great day for the average ordinary citizen if Kartus is elected. Let's do it for the children."

Rogers took the opportunity Thursday to list her qualifications for the office of school superintendent, as she has before.

She pointed out her 22 years of service as an educator, her 12 years as principal of Valley Elementary School, her certificate which allows her to teach all grades of school from 1-12 and her doctorate.

Rogers told teachers, "We've not had a superintendent in years who actually taught the elementary child. Elementary teachers, here's your chance."

The school principal said that she has heard of complaints of lack of communication between teachers and the administration. She pointed out the open door policy she has had for teachers and parents.

Rogers also told teachers that Shelby County needs a continuity of policies countywide and reported that individual teachers are of necessity having to make decisions.

She asked teachers to check her record of dealing with people and to look at her qualifications. She commented on her ability to serve, "I can. I am ready and you have the chance to let me."

Knowles used the occasion to point to his record, as he has also done.

He told teachers that the financial condition of the school system has improved by leaps and bounds as far as processing orders and payment of bills were concerned.

He said that schools and equipment were being well maintained. He stated that county teachers have the seventh highest pay scale in the state and the best benefits.

Knowles commented, "You have resource teachers to assist you. More money is spent per capita (on teachers) than in any other system in the state."

"Shelby County school students have scored the second highest ever recorded on tests. We are addressing the needs of students."

Knowles said that he did not take credit for everything that was accomplished but pointed out that progress was made under his administration.

He said that the only criticism he has received concerned the way he got things done. He stated, "The only way to escape this is to never say anything and be a do-nothing. I will never do this."

Glasscox said that he was seeking office because he felt he had something to offer students, parents and teachers.

He stated, "The best laid projects can go down the drain if you can't work with people. Leadership is not in a book, one, two, three. Leadership is a fine line between confidence and humility."

Glasscox told the teachers they had the right to be treated as professionals but also had the responsibility of discharging their duties with the same attitude.

He said that he was not seeking office for ego, money or power, but for concern.

He stated that he was not a know-it-all and that good ideas come from all directions.

Glasscox said, "My becoming superintendent is not the most important thing but for something good to come out of it."

"I will support whoever wins, if not myself, and any candidate who can't say that is not who we need," Glasscox added.

He concluded by saying that the apple used in his campaign stands for emphasis being placed back into the classroom.

Columbiana goes ahead with sewerage plans

Even though they didn't get the $300,000 grant they had applied for, the city of Columbiana is going ahead with sewer improvement work.

Discouraged by the failure of the city to get funds from outside sources after several attempts, Councilman Frank Owen told fellow members, "We're going to have to do it ourselves."

Earlier in last Thursday's meeting, the council voted to purchase a new backhoe because it would be too expensive to repair the one they own.

"We can go a long way toward doing the work with that machine if everyone gets behind us," Owen declared.

He proposed laying lines from the lagoon to the by-pass.

Promising to get cost estimates for the work, Owen said he would make a report at the next meeting.

Councilwoman Jessie Jones also expressed determination "not to give up on sewerage!"

When she learned the community block grant for $300,000 to improve the system would not be forthcoming, Jones said she had investigated other possibilities.

What she discovered, Jones said, was the availability of $10 million in discretionary funds from the governor.

Senator Lister Hill Proctor has agreed to ask Governor Fob James for a portion of that money for Columbiana, Jones reported.

If that doesn't work, the councilwoman said, "We'll have to try for a grant next year."

The city has some money set aside for the project, however. With the sewer improvement work in mind, 40% of a one cent sales tax was earmarked for that purpose.

Another matter concerning sewerage that came up during the meeting related to the failure of individuals to pay bills.

City Clerk Mary Largin showed the council the list which filled several legal size sheets of paper.

A resolution to handle the matter had been passed in 1962, Largin reported.

She said that it provided for disconnecting water from homes where bills had not been paid ten days after notice was issued.

The council agreed that the resolution should be enforced.

Strongly committed to the right principles of justice.

From Germany

Alabaster welcomes exchange students

by David F. Moore

There's no better way to learn than through firsthand experience. With that in mind, Antje Gerhold and Birgit Prass left Germany for a nine month stay in Alabaster.

The two 16 year old girls had never met each other before late Friday night at the Birmingham airport.

They have been enthusiastically taken in by South Wind residents Dan and Brigitte Langham, and will attend Thompson High School.

In heavy, intriguing accents, both girls explained to the Reporter that stories abound in Germany about how bad Americans are. But rather than take those reports at face value, they signed up for the exchange program and requested America.

A half-day is not much time for impressions, but so far, they've both noticed the same thing:

"Everybody comes up and says 'Hi! How are you?'" Antje noted.

"It's better than what you hear (in Germany)," Birgit agrees.

"Everybody here, ummm--how do you say? (she makes a motion of embracing)--welcomes you!"

Besides their temporary parents, Thompson students Kelley Hughes, Babbey Hocutt and Debbie Chambers also greeted the girls at the airport.

Birgit came on a later flight, and while awaiting her arrival, one of the Thompson girls showed Antje pictures of her friends. Antje said she already decided that American boys are cuter than their German counterparts.

The Germans were welcomed by banners and signs in Alabaster, and Antje also got to meet THS principal Allen Fulton. Girls from the school came to the Langham's Saturday for a slumber party.

"They've bent over backwards here in Alabaster to welcome these girls," Mr. Langham said.

He said both girls have exceptionally strong backgrounds in physics and chemistry. Both girls would be seniors in Germany, but they're having to take tests to see what their status at THS will be.

Besides lessons in cultural differences, both girls said that learning better English was another reason they came to America.

Saturday, the Langhams occasionally reverted to German to express a point to the girls. But Mrs. Langham, who's German herself, said that after school began Monday, "the royal treatment" would stop, and only English would be spoken in her house.

Antje is from outside Frankfurt. Birgit is from the industrial town of Duesseldorf.

TMS plans first PTO meeting

The first meeting of the Thompson Middle School PTO will be 7 p.m. on August 30.

The program will be, "Getting to know your middle school child." There will be a panel discussion with a question and answer period and refreshments to follow.

Those appearing on the panel will be Dr. Ann Fisher, from the University of Montevallo, Dr. Bryan McClelland, a family practitioner in Alabaster and Judy Smitherman, an eighth grade teacher at Thompson.

All parents are urged to attend. This is just another example of the fact that school in Shelby County is a family affair.

Welcome to Shelby County

Dan and Brigitte Langham made sure their German houseguests felt welcome when they arrived in Alabaster. The couple are shown on the porch of their home with exchange students Antje Gerhold (l) and Birgit Prass, who will spend this school year attending Thompson High School.

Water board splits Columbiana Council

It's still uncertain whether the gas board and water board will be combined in Columbiana. Legal problems on the matter are still unsolved.

However, the city council is moving ahead by saying who will serve on the board should it materialize.

At Thursday's council meeting, a recommendation was passed giving a seat on the board to whomever is serving in the mayor's position.

The recommendation made by Councilwoman Jessie Jones said that the mayor would become a member as soon as the board was formed.

According to the articles of incorporation for the utility board, three members of the governing body may serve on the five member board.

The council had delayed filling an expired term on the water board, expecting that it would soon be combined with the gas board. However, action was taken on the matter Thursday.

Former Water Board Chairman Lewis Walker was elected to the position. He had been forced to resign from the board after his election to the council.

At that time, the articles of indenture of the board said that a member could not serve on the city's governing body.

When the council voted on a resolution from the board Thursday permitting membership on both bodies, it opened the door for Walker to become part of that board again.

However, two votes were taken before that was accomplished.

After Walker was nominated, Harold McCord nominated the mayor. The ensuing vote resulted in Owen and Bill Seale voting for Walker and Jones and McCord backing Falkner. The mayor cast the deciding vote on the second go round.

Before the final vote, Falkner expressed his disappointment to the council that they could not work in harmony.

"We've been living in a state of confusion which began with the water board situation," he said.

The mayor referred to the friction on the board and the squabbling that has gone on at council meetings over various issues that have arisen.

Water Board employees, Falkner noted, are also concerned and unhappy about the situation.

Bob Hume filled Walker's unexpired term when he resigned from the water board. That term expired July 17.

Thompson High School teacher Randy McDonald dedicates a memorial plaque to deceased county transportation supervisor as his family and a friend look on. Board honors memory of William Carter

by Fred Guarino

The Shelby County Board of Education has assured that late transportation supervisor William Carter will be long remembered.

A memorial plaque was officially dedicated in memory of Carter during the board's general session held at Pelham High School, Thursday.

Carter, who died on November 13, 1980, began his service in Shelby County as a teacher at Thompson High School in 1971. He was a resident of the Montevallo area.

During the 1976-'77 school year, he was transferred to the central office where he became transportation supervisor. He held the position until his death.

Presiding over the dedication ceremony were Thompson High School principal Allen Fulton and THS teacher Randy McDonald.

Attending were Carter's widow Betty, and his two daughters, Denise and Leeann. Also present was his minister, Brother John Pendleton.

McDonald stated, "It has been said that William was both a good supervisor and a good boss to work for. He was successful and effective."

"The start of the school year is an appropriate time to remember William."

He thanked everyone who supported the efforts to remember the late transportation supervisor.

Mrs. Carter tearfully expressed her appreciation for the honor bestowed on her late husband and thanked everyone who had helped her family during their time of sorrow.

She said, "Seeing that students were transported to and from school the safest way possible was very important to William. Even in his pain he never forgot the bus drivers."

The Rev. Pendleton stated that Carter was the type of man who knew the worst about people and still loved them.

The plaque dedicated Thursday will be permanently displayed at the transportation maintenance building in Columbiana.

Reporter goofs in omission

Last week the Shelby County Reporter omitted, by error, two advertisements that had been placed by County Commissioner Harold Davenport. Davenport is running for re-election, and wanted to give the public information about his candidacy and his record. The omission was the Reporter's fault, and we regret the inconvenience that was created for all concerned, and we apologize to Mr. Davenport. We simply slipped up in the rush of deadline pressures.

Two eye witnesses fail to sway jury

The owner of a Cahaba Valley pharmacy and his wife testified that Johnny Chambers was one of the men who held up their business. The hold-up occurred on July 13, 1981.

But the identification of the two eye witnesses did not prove to the satisfaction of a circuit court jury that Chambers was guilty of the crime.

"There wasn't enough solid evidence," one juror told the Reporter Friday, the day after the trial.

The jury weighed the testimony in the case from late Thursday afternoon until 11:30 p.m. before reaching a decision.

Their verdict was not guilty.

Both Neil and Cathy Dameron said they were sure Chambers was the man who emptied the drug counter at Neil's Pharmacy, which is located near Indian Springs School on Cahaba Valley Road.

They related that he accompanied another man who carried a gun, and after getting the drugs, they said Chambers removed the money from Mrs. Dameron's purse.

District Attorney Billy Hill and Deputy DA Bob Williams told the jury that the couple had identified police photographs of Chambers and that Mrs. Dameron had picked him out of a lineup.

The defendant was arrested ten days after the robbery.

Chambers admitted a previous arrest in 1979 for the possession of demerol, which is a controlled substance.

The word 'love' tattooed on the defendant's hand also made Mrs. Dameron sure he was the one who had committed the robbery.

However defense attorney Art Hanes Jr. told the jury that there were probably 15 or so inmates at the jail who had the same tattoo.

Hanes claimed it was a case of mistaken identity and put witnesses on the stand to show Chambers' whereabouts at the time of the crime which took place around 3 p.m.

They included his mother, stepfather, brother and two neighbors.

Chambers' employer, C.F. Causey of Leeds, said that he had been with the defendant from early afternoon until after midnight on the day of the crime.

Bids which Causey had submitted to a Nashville firm were presented by the prosecution to show that he was out of the state that day.

However, Causey claimed the bids had been mailed and not delivered in person.

Robert Gill, the man identified as carrying the gun when the pharmacy was robbed, is believed dead.

A decomposed body found in Tennessee was identified by dental records as being Gill.

know more about cancer," according to the Alabama Cancer Information Service.

That's what the Alabama CIS is all about—giving out the facts about cancer in order to ease the fears many people still have in discussing this disease, says Jane Guerin, CIS coordinator.

When a person calls the toll-free number, 1-800-292-6201, his questions will be answered by someone who knows how confusing the subject of cancer can be. Everyday, CIS staff answer questions like these: "Is there a link between cysts in the breast and breast cancer?" or "I have cancer and need home nursing care. Where can I get help?"

A Quality Beginning For Our New District

“When our schools are strong, our community is strong. We must give our children the education they deserve. When we scrimp on education we cheat our community but even more important, we sacrifice our children's future.”

“Our District needs strong, aggressive leadership based on a true spirit of cooperation. We cannot afford to fall back on mere rhetoric and negative politics of the past. We need a positive approach to government backed up with hard work.”

Quality Leadership

John Tanner has a record that proves he can meet the challenges ahead because he has successfully met the challenges of the past. It was this type of leadership that reelected him to a second term on the Pelham City Council by the largest majority ever and made him his associates' choice for Mayor Pro Tem.

He is currently the city's liaison with the State Legislature and with Washington, D.C. A quick look at some of his accomplishments will tell you why we need to put him to work for all of us:

- started a computerized grant search system to help Pelham find much needed funds
- helped coordinate financial programs that have given his city first-rate Police, Fire, and Rescue Departments
- helped find funding for Pelham's new park and recreation facilities
- was successful in eliminating South Central Bell's mileage charges, saving each customer in North Shelby County from $5-$15 each month

'Give me the money'

Youth feels knife in his ribs

Andre Griffin was standing near the outside cash register when he felt the point of a knife at his ribs. It was Thursday, about 1:15 p.m., and Griffin was temporarily alone at Alabaster Shell on U.S. 31.

He could see a black youth, about 5'8", standing behind him. He wore brown clothes and a woman's stocking pulled over his face for a mask.

Griffin said he couldn't see the knife, but he could feel it. "Okay, open the drawer. Give me the money, and hurry up!"

According to Griffin, the robber said nothing else, but pushed a brown paper bag towards him.

The 19-year old gas attendant said he didn't feel like arguing with a knife poised ready to jab. He emptied the cash drawer into the bag.

The robber turned and ran into the woods behind the station. Griffin called the police.

Alabaster Chief C.E. "Bull" Carter said the knife-wielding robber made off with about $350. Police spent the afternoon combing the woods, but came up with nothing.

Carter said police have several suspects in mind, but no arrest has been made yet.

Football Register Rings Up Teams' Chances In 1982

A Special Publication Of The Shelby County Reporter

Each team has a unique blend of attributes Right ingredients provide results

by Richard Crosby

That eight month wait is finally over. The 1982 football season kicks off this evening (Thursday) as Calera and Montevallo tangle.

This special issue is an annual task and one looked forward to by athletes and their parents and fans.

What will be the resulting records and what is the fate of the county football squads? That's what we hope to answer.

What's necessary for a team - what are the ingredients - that it takes to make a team good. That's the theme of this year's football special.

It takes more than a pile of helmets, shoulder pads, uniforms, a field and scoreboard to have a successful football team.

Like the cash register on the cover, ringing up what you have will give the results. It's the bottom line that financial experts want to know - that is true with coaches and all sports enthusiasts.

What goes into the team will result in what they produce. Here are some qualities needed.

Speed: Just pure downfield swiftness. Being able to outrun the defense for the long bomb, or run down the man with the ball. A necessary ingredient to break the game open.

Agility: Ability to maintain balance while struggling through the line, or coming off a block to make that important tackle.

Quickness: That skill of reacting swiftly to a given situation. The snap of the ball, changing directions, faking out the other guy. This helps break the game open and also helps a fast running back break through the line into the open field.

Strength: Able to pick up tall buildings with one hand! Actually, the physical strength and endurance capacity of the players.

Experience: Maybe nothing counts as much as actual game experience. Those players who have played a year are a valuable asset, because they know what it takes to win and give all they've got.

The following ingredients cannot be nailed down as to their exact meaning, but nearly everyone agrees that these next four might be the most important. They're the intangibles - the qualities you can't put a finger on, but you better have them.

Unity: Working as a team toward a common goal. Pulling together. This is a quality that coaches all work for. It usually shows itself more in the losses than wins.

Seniors: Strong senior leadership is essential. From this group should come the locker room and field leaders. The contribution seniors make to a team can be felt only when there are none.

Spirit: It's standing on the sidelines cheering on your teammates. Not complaining about that play or what the coaches are doing. Without spirit, you don't have a team.

TRADITION Is it the most important at your school? The strong traditions at high schools make the crowds large at home or away. A winning tradition tends to bring out winners on the team. This quality is one in which all sports have an effect. Winners in football tend to be winners in basketball, baseball, volleyball, etc.

What qualities do county schools possess? It's hard to tell whether some of them exist unless you're on the team. In the following pages we'll try to look at each team's register receipt to see what's been rung up.

Thanks

This special issue was a combined effort of the Reporter's staff. With advertising from Ralph Sears and Wayne Rasco, photographic help from Bert Seaman, Fred Guarino, David Moore, and Monique Vanlandingham, and ad makeup and copy setting by Milton Bridges, Iris Smitherman, and Candy King.

Stacy Puckett contributed her time and considerable talents to making the cover of this year's football special unique. Working from only the roughest of concepts from sports editor Richard Crosby, she arrived with what you see. We appreciate her help and congratulate her for the final product.

The section was designed and edited by Richard Crosby. It's a pleasure to present this year's teams, their coaches, and their qualities. We hope your team records the kind of season you desire.

Calera pride built on tradition

Calera is a proud school and a proud town.

That's a main ingredient for the success of the Calera Eagle football team. It cannot be denied that the support the team receives is not of profound importance.

As Coach Danny Alverson will quickly point out, the players on the team have a sense of community pride and involvement.

That may explain the successes of the team. Last year school records were broken in several categories.

To duplicate that success this season is only part of the goal for the team. Competing again in the Single A format, Calera has a chance of making the state playoffs with a few lucky breaks.

The size of the team is excellent for a 1A school. The unity is established in the rich tradition of Eagle Football.

Perhaps the team best benefits from the spirit. Calera invented the sideline cheering squad. It was in 1977 that the team members started chanting 'Defense' over and over.

No other school imitates spirit in that manner. The resulting pride on the team has won several games in four years.

What can Eagle fans look forward to this season. Success! The team has such a combination of attributes that winning seems almost inevitable.

Of course, nothing results without hard work, and the Eagles have been going at it like never before.

On opening night, tonight, expect finding a seat difficult as the Montevallo Bulldogs and Calera Eagles tangle for area bragging rights.

Calera coaching staff

Danny Alverson (center) is the head coach for the Calera Eagles. Assisting him are several college students and regular assistants Bobby Sherrer and Mark Lovett.

This special issue is an annual task and one looked forward to by athletes and their parents and fans.

What will be the resulting records and what is the fate of the county football squads? That's what we hope to answer.

What's necessary for a team - what are the ingredients - that it takes to make a team good. That's the theme of this year's football special.

It takes more than a pile of helmets, shoulder pads, uniforms, a field and scoreboard to have a successful football team.

Like the cash register on the cover, ringing up what you have will give the results. It's the bottom line that financial experts want to know - that is true with coaches and all sports enthusiasts.

What goes into the team will result in what they produce. Here are some qualities needed.

Speed: Just pure downfield swiftness. Being able to outrun the defense for the long bomb, or run down the man with the ball. A necessary ingredient to break the game open.

Agility: Ability to maintain balance while struggling through the line, or coming off a block to make that important tackle.

Quickness: That skill of reacting swiftly to a given situation. The snap of the ball, changing directions, faking out the other guy. This helps break the game open and also helps a fast running back break through the line into the open field.

Strength: Able to pick up tall buildings with one hand! Actually, the physical strength and endurance capacity of the players.

Experience: Maybe nothing counts as much as actual game experience. Those players who have played a year are a valuable asset, because they know what it takes to win and give all they've got.

The following ingredients cannot be nailed down as to their exact meaning, but nearly everyone agrees that these next four might be the most important. They're the intangibles - the qualities you can't put a finger on, but you better have them.

Unity: Working as a team toward a common goal. Pulling together. This is a quality that coaches all work for. It usually shows itself more in the losses than wins.

Seniors: Strong senior leadership is essential. From this group should come the locker room and field leaders. The contribution seniors make to a team can be felt only when there are none.

Spirit: It's standing on the sidelines cheering on your teammates. Not complaining about that play or what the coaches are doing. Without spirit, you don't have a team.

TRADITION Is it the most important at your school? The strong traditions at high schools make the crowds large at home or away. A winning tradition tends to bring out winners on the team. This quality is one in which all sports have an effect. Winners in football tend to be winners in basketball, baseball, volleyball, etc.

What qualities do county schools possess? It's hard to tell whether some of them exist unless you're on the team. In the following pages we'll try to look at each team's register receipt to see what's been rung up.

Thanks

This special issue was a combined effort of the Reporter's staff. With advertising from Ralph Sears and Wayne Rasco, photographic help from Bert Seaman, Fred Guarino, David Moore, and Monique Vanlandingham, and ad makeup and copy setting by Milton Bridges, Iris Smitherman, and Candy King.

Stacy Puckett contributed her time and considerable talents to making the cover of this year's football special unique. Working from only the roughest of concepts from sports editor Richard Crosby, she arrived with what you see. We appreciate her help and congratulate her for the final product.

The section was designed and edited by Richard Crosby. It's a pleasure to present this year's teams, their coaches, and their qualities. We hope your team records the kind of season you desire.

Calera pride built on tradition

Calera is a proud school and a proud town.

That's a main ingredient for the success of the Calera Eagle football team. It cannot be denied that the support the team receives is not of profound importance.

As Coach Danny Alverson will quickly point out, the players on the team have a sense of community pride and involvement.

That may explain the successes of the team. Last year school records were broken in several categories.

To duplicate that success this season is only part of the goal for the team. Competing again in the Single A format, Calera has a chance of making the state playoffs with a few lucky breaks.

The size of the team is excellent for a 1A school. The unity is established in the rich tradition of Eagle Football.

Perhaps the team best benefits from the spirit. Calera invented the sideline cheering squad. It was in 1977 that the team members started chanting 'Defense' over and over.

No other school imitates spirit in that manner. The resulting pride on the team has won several games in four years.

What can Eagle fans look forward to this season. Success! The team has such a combination of attributes that winning seems almost inevitable.

Of course, nothing results without hard work, and the Eagles have been going at it like never before.

On opening night, tonight, expect finding a seat difficult as the Montevallo Bulldogs and Calera Eagles tangle for area bragging rights.

Montevallo's problem is depth

Fruit basket turnover time

Montevallo jumps into the new football season tonight with a contest against Calera. The Bulldogs seek to improve a 6-4 record from last year, but face a tougher schedule than in past years.

Coach Richard Gilliam says his team has several positive points. "We have experience and strength in the backfield.

"We have 11 or 12 players on defense that I think can play," Gilliam added. He cautioned that should an injury occur on the line, 'fruit basket turnover' would result as the coaches tried to fill the void.

Gilliam also expressed concern about on-the-field leadership. The number of seniors plays a role in this quality, but Montevallo is pretty even over the top three grades.

Montevallo mentors

Montevallo has the services of student assistant coaches Steve Buchanan and Sammy Nix (front). Full time coaches for the team are: (standing l-r) Kurt Pnizek, trainer Tony Berry, head coach Richard Gilliam, and Bobby Pierson.

The Bulldogs do have a tradition of note on their side. Montevallo has prided itself on being a 100 percent ball team. Regardless of the score, the Bulldogs are tough to get the clock to run out on.

Those 'Dogs will fight until the end, and as has happened in the past, the team has beaten many opponents it wasn't supposed to.

The coaching staff at the school has grown since June, and those additions should help the team in specialization. It wasn't too many years ago that Gilliam and Kurt Pnizek comprised the entire staff.

What are the chances this season? You'll have to support your team by going to the games to find out. Needless to say that the Bulldogs will be tough to tangle with.

Vincent, Pelham will have new look as teams hit the gridiron for 1982

Vincent and Pelham may be at different ends of the county, but in football, the two teams seem to have a few similarities.

Both teams have trouble once injuries knock out some of the starters. Last season it was Vincent that was hardest hit with that plague.

Pelham had trouble getting on the scoreboard. The Panthers went five games before lighting up their half of the board.

Vincent had some of the same trouble. The Yellow Jackets had to bust loose with a big play in order to win several games. Most notable was the contest against Chelsea.

The Jackets set up their only touchdown of the night late in the fourth quarter with a 50 odd yard pass that put the ball inside the five yard line.

Victories like that are exciting, but they're not the kind that can be counted on.

Pelham finished last season winless. Things didn't improve on the scoreboard during the spring jamboree as Vincent scored late in that game to take the win out of the Panthers' hands.

A new head coach, Billy Tohill, is now at Pelham, and he has been installing a new offense. Those changes have yet to be seen in Shelby County.

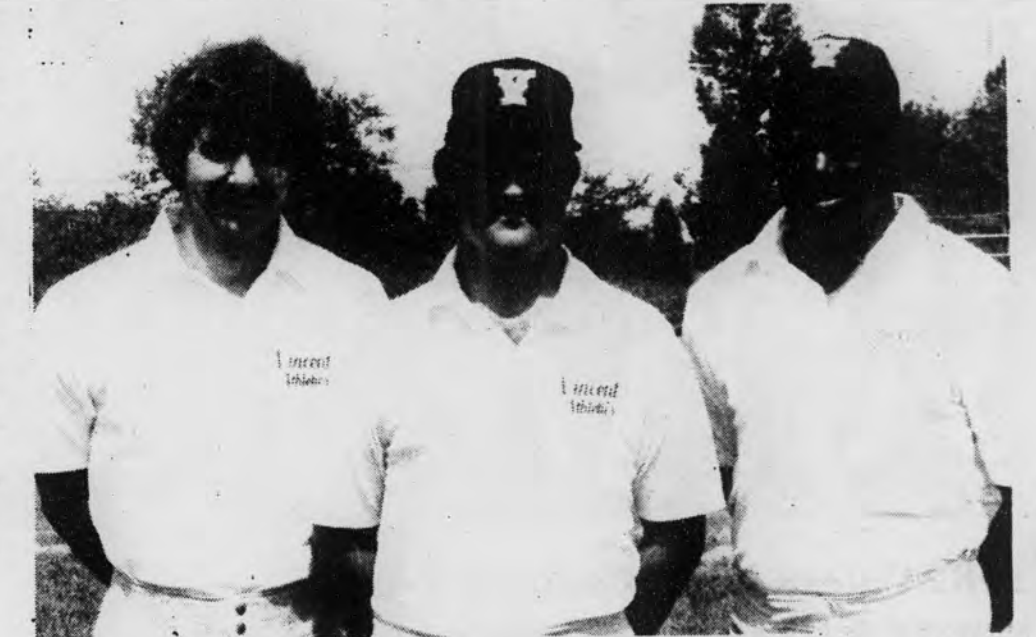

Vincent is looking to strengthen its offensive effort. Size in the line and experience should help that cause this season. The Yellow Jackets still have to overcome a tough schedule in order to finish with a presentable season.

Pelham just wants to win some games, and those successes might be as hard to come by this year as they were a year ago.

Both county schools will be fielding teams that are different from last year's. The question to be answered is whether difference in performance will materialize.

Chelsea Hornets

1982 season can only be better for Hornets

The Chelsea Hornets have nothing but improvement ahead. The team failed to win a game last season, but see things differently this year.

Chelsea has a little easier schedule - but not much - and a lot of valuable experience.

In his second year at the helm, coach Roger Hibbs should have his game ideas firmly entrenched into the minds of the players. That will go a long way in improving game results.

The Hornets have always been known as a tough bunch to tackle, and that tradition holds strong sentiment with the community and the players.

That quality by itself almost won several games for the team last season. Tough breaks were always hitting the team.

This year the team looks not for fortunate circumstances, but will rely more on the mental and physical attributes that the team possesses.

But, like everyone else, the team will take all the lucky breaks that come its way.

Fearless forecaster foretells football fate

by Richard Crosby

Seems like people just can't live without knowing others' opinions. The job of forecasting football fortunes is an enjoyable one.

Seems that no matter what I decide, people don't believe. They have even taken to harassing me.

Regardless of what reputation I accumulated over the years, this year I'm telling it straight. (If you believe that, I've got a perfect off-shore drilling site on Lay Lake to sell you....)

Briarwood- The Lions are playing all their games against other Christian Conference schools for the first time since the school suited up for varsity football. The team has quite a few miles to travel in order to do just that, so you can bet that hurts in the win column.

I see Briarwood making the playoffs, but not by bragging rights. Give them seven wins.

Calera- The Eagles set school records to envy last season. That can't keep happening, but because they were lowered a classification, and have a pretty good returning bunch, I'll give them the benefit of the doubt.

They may like cupcakes, but a six win season will be hard to swallow.

Chelsea- Those Hornets just want to win any game. It's been a year and then some since the scoreboard was in their favor, and second year coach Roger Hibbs thinks things are coming into his favor. That's a good sign. Chelsea is a tough football club, but just couldn't get the right breaks last season.

Look for an improved report card come November with five A's.

Coosa Valley- The Rebels lucked out in some regard with Talladega Academy dropping varsity football. Those players changed schools and suited up with Coach Gary Franks. It's still going to be a long season for the team, though.

A tough schedule doesn't help, but the Rebels are capable of winning five.

Montevallo- The Bulldogs picked up a few tough new opponents on the schedule. The team looks bigger and stronger, but just being outmanned may prove to be the team's downfall.

The leash is latched as Montevallo wins but four.

Pelham- Those Panthers have really been in school the past few years. Each season has brought a whole new game plan to play. Like Chelsea, Pelham was winless last season. The offense didn't seem to know that there were lights for the home team's score.

Despite controversy, the team has kept alive its spirit and Pelham is no small bunch. The athletes give their best and, coupled with last season's basketball success, the football team should exhibit that rekindled desire.

But, I have to forecast, and that's not easy. Give the Panthers two wins.

Shelby Academy- The Raiders are small in number and that makes the competition even tougher. This makes forecasting much harder. The team refuses to play true to form. They seem to rise to the occasion.

So, this year the team will win four - or - nine games.

Shelby County- Wildcat fever is high again, and with his second year beginning, Coach Ricky Seales may enjoy improved success. There's been a lot of reasons propounded for the team's results. Most of those have been laid to rest and thankfully so.

The Wildcats can look to better times and respectability with a record of seven wins.

Thompson- Those Warriors have an outside chance of going for the whole banana this season. Mostly relying upon the wheels of Arthur Johnson and the leadership of the 19 seniors, Thompson is headed down a record setting road.

Give them the best record in the county with nine regular season wins and another trip to the playoffs.

Vincent- The Yellow Jackets are fighting to recover from a couple of years of lackluster records. The team has been giving its all, but the intangibles....the breaks.... just haven't been going their way.

That will continue as Vincent wins three and ties one in the ten game season.

Well, I've done my job for another year. Folks can start getting mad again and write those blistering letters.

As my allies say, "It's a dirty job....and no one else is dumb enough to do it!"

Private schools ready

The annual CVA - SA grudge match has been moved back to where it belongs - at the end of the season.

For the past few years, Coosa Valley and Shelby have squared off the opening game of the season. This year that contest will be the last one of the year for the schools. Set for November 5 at Harpersville, the two schools have something to wait for.

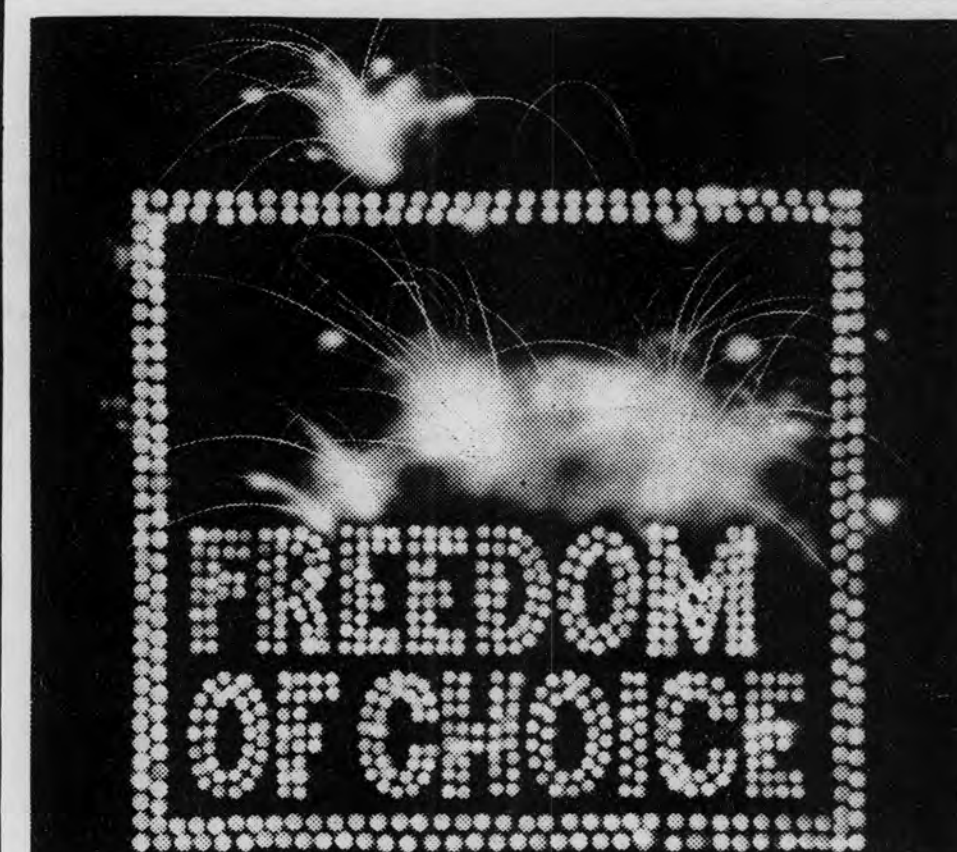

Coosa Valley picked up some players from Talladega after that school decided not to have a varsity football team this year. Those additions help to strengthen the Rebel squad which lost several starters to graduation.

Coach Gary Franks' team has a tough schedule with eleven regular season games on the agenda.

The team's chances of success are partially dependent on leadership roles to be filled and desire of the team.

Those qualities hindered the team last season and are hoped to be solved. It should be a united effort on the field and that will show up on the scoreboard.

Thompson's Warriors for 1982

Warriors look to fulfill promise

Thompson's Warriors will be trying to break all the records set last season. That's a mighty big task, but considering that the squad has 19 seniors and a crushing offensive attack, that dream might be more than wishful thinking.

This is the last year for Arthur Johnson, also. The talented running back has already compiled an impressive array of statistics. He has 5,984 total rushing yards in his high school career. Last season Johnson ran for 1,984 yards and 22 touchdowns.

It might easily be said that "As Johnson goes, so go the Warriors" and that statement has merit.

Of question is the health of Johnson, who injured his knee in the first round of the state playoffs last season. (The year before he was sidelined late in the year with a shoulder injury).

What effect those setbacks have had on him are yet to be known. He's one of the top prospects in the state and may be the most sought after Shelby County athlete in history. His response to those challenges both mentally and physically may have the biggest effect on the outcome of the year.

Thompson also has a tradition that may be second to none. Playing in the toughest Area of the state system, the Warriors consistently produce a winning season and several undefeated ones.

Coach Larry Simmons knows how to bring the winning spirit alive in the Warriors and he faces a tough task in rekindling the team each week. Getting up for the big games is easy. It's the other opponents that have caused Thompson trouble in years past.

One thing's for sure. Don't try and find a seat after 7 p.m. on game night. The stands fill quickly when the Warriors are around. The support for the team is great and an example for other schools.

Whether the Warriors can put in a performance to top last year is the question. They have most all the necessary ingredients in varying amounts. The total of all those will be tallied in November.

Warriors look to fulfill promise

Thompson's Warriors will be trying to break all the records set last season. That's a mighty big task, but considering that the squad has 19 seniors and a crushing offensive attack, that dream might be more than wishful thinking.

This is the last year for Arthur Johnson, also. The talented running back has already compiled an impressive array of statistics. He has 5,984 total rushing yards in his high school career. Last season Johnson ran for 1,984 yards and 22 touchdowns.

It might easily be said that "As Johnson goes, so go the Warriors" and that statement has merit.

Of question is the health of Johnson, who injured his knee in the first round of the state playoffs last season. (The year before he was sidelined late in the year with a shoulder injury).

What effect those setbacks have had on him are yet to be known. He's one of the top prospects in the state and may be the most sought after Shelby County athlete in history. His response to those challenges both mentally and physically may have the biggest effect on the outcome of the year.

Thompson also has a tradition that may be second to none. Playing in the toughest Area of the state system, the Warriors consistently produce a winning season and several undefeated ones.

Coach Larry Simmons knows how to bring the winning spirit alive in the Warriors and he faces a tough task in rekindling the team each week. Getting up for the big games is easy. It's the other opponents that have caused Thompson trouble in years past.

One thing's for sure. Don't try and find a seat after 7 p.m. on game night. The stands fill quickly when the Warriors are around. The support for the team is great and an example for other schools.

Whether the Warriors can put in a performance to top last year is the question. They have most all the necessary ingredients in varying amounts. The total of all those will be tallied in November.

Schools get off to good start with slight enrollment drop

By Fred Guarino
This week of school was a busy one in Shelby County. Fred Guarino, director of instruction for Shelby County, said that probably one of the best openings we've ever had.

Additional bus route had to be added in the Montevallo area. Fifty new school teachers answered the bell to start this year, Guarino said. But he commented that decisions have not been reached as to which schools will gain or lose instructors due to enrollment.

Majors said that for the first week, the county school system had approximately 87 more students than it had when students were let out for summer. However, he reported that the system was down from 11,830 students in September 19, 1981 to 11,797 as of this week.

Schools which saw an increase in students were:
Calera High, Chelsea, Colum-biana Middle, Helena Elementary, Montevallo High, Montevallo Middle, Riverchase Middle, Thompson High, Thompson Middle, Wilsonville Elementary and the Center for Exceptional Children.

All school principals interviewed by the Reporter had glowing accounts of their first week of operation as well.

Philip Haynie, principal of Calera Elementary said, "We had a fantastic first day and week. Teachers said it was the best school opening they had ever seen."

Haynie said, "We really didn't have any problems. Everyone knew where to go and when." He credited the successful first week to his teaching staff and his "good" students.

Brad Stephens, principal of Chelsea School said, "We had a good first week. The school was running like it was the 26th."

Quida Bently, principal of Columbiana Middle School said, "Our first week was real smooth." She added, "We've had new school signs painted, several of our classrooms were painted and the school looked clean and bright."

Billy Bramblett of Helena Elementary said, "We had an excellent opening of school. I had only one child play hooky and had to go to the woods and get him."

Frances Smitherman said of Montevallo Middle School, "Our children and teachers did beautifully. We had a smooth good beginning. Our building wasn't ready yet but most students and teachers were willing to walk around the workmen."

Henry Clark of Riverchase Middle School said, "We had a very good opening. We had assembly the first day and introduced the new student council and new teachers to students."

Ed Belue, principal of Pelham High School said, "We had the smoothest, most successful beginning we've ever had. I was very proud of the attitude of our students. It was a positive, happy beginning."

Reporter endorses Hughes for office of Probate Judge

The Shelby County Reporter has traditionally not endorsed candidates for local office.

We have felt it our responsibility to print the information we could gather on candidates, and let our readers draw their own conclusions.

This year, however, we want to make an exception in the case of one office, for those readers who might like to hear our editorial opinion.

We have covered courthouse news, and have attended county commission meetings for more than 15 years. We have observed the inner workings of Shelby County government and its officials during this time.

We have known the candidate and observed his abilities and accomplishments for more than 18 years.

It is with this background that we endorse Don Hughes for the office of Probate Judge of Shelby County. In our opinion he is the best choice of the four candidates who are seeking the office.

The dual role of Probate Judge and Chairman of the County Commission calls out for a person capable of leading Shelby County with dignity and reasonableness. Don Hughes has both attributes.

The county needs a Probate Judge whose educational background has trained him for public office and public service. An honor graduate of military school in Montgomery, a graduate of the University of Montevallo with majority in history, political science and economics, and an honor graduate of the U.S. Signal School in Fort Monmouth, N.J., Hughes has the formal and practical training to make wise decisions and the vision to plan the county's growth and development.

The county needs a Probate Judge who has no entanglements with other endeavors. Don Hughes is not part of any political machine, and neither he nor his family is involved in private ventures such as real estate or retailing.

The county needs a Commission Chairman who is well versed in the workings of the county. Hughes has served in positions where he obtained first hand knowledge of what makes the county and its 10 cities tick.

He has worked with the sheriff's department, has been county civil defense director; administrative assistant to the County Commission, and City Administrator of Montevallo.

The county needs a Commission Chairman who is frugal with taxpayers' money. As a city administrator, Hughes initiated numerous programs that have saved Montevallo citizens thousands of dollars. Montevallo still has just a one cent sales tax. The city's ad valorem tax at seven mills is among the lowest in the county. Hughes also instituted the city's first personnel program and personnel handbook. He is capable of introducing similar money saving programs for Shelby County.

The public has found him to be not only accessible, but helpful and compassionate. He has a keen understanding of the problems and aspirations of all.

As a former school teacher in Shelby County and the father of two school age children, he is also sensitive to the needs of today's schools and youth. He has pledged to work hand in glove with educators at all levels to provide the best education possible for Shelby County's children.

Seldom is any county blessed with a candidate so well qualified for a high office of public trust.

The current judge, Tommy Snowden, is widely considered to be a very nice person, but his ability to lead and to see projects through has not been up to the standard that Shelby County needs.

C. P. "Red" Walker has had a long career in Shelby County politics, but even he does not emphasize his record as a recommendation for another position of public trust.

Ray Hamilton has not yet had the opportunity to become well versed in the needs of the entire county, since most of his public service has been in one geographical area of the county.

For these reasons, this newspaper believes Don Hughes is the best of the four candidates to lead Shelby County for the next six years as Probate Judge.

Fay Quick opposes merger amendment

Shelby County Tax Collector Fay Quick is opposed to combining county tax offices.

Quick made her position clear Monday when asked about the proposed state constitutional amendment No. 2 which will be on the ballot September 7.

That amendment, if passed, will allow counties to hold independent elections on the joining of the offices of tax collector and tax assessor.

Quick, who plans to resign in October, told the Reporter that her reasoning is simple... "This is a big county. The tax assessor's hands are full and the tax collector is the same way. I can't see one person being able to handle the full responsibility of both offices."

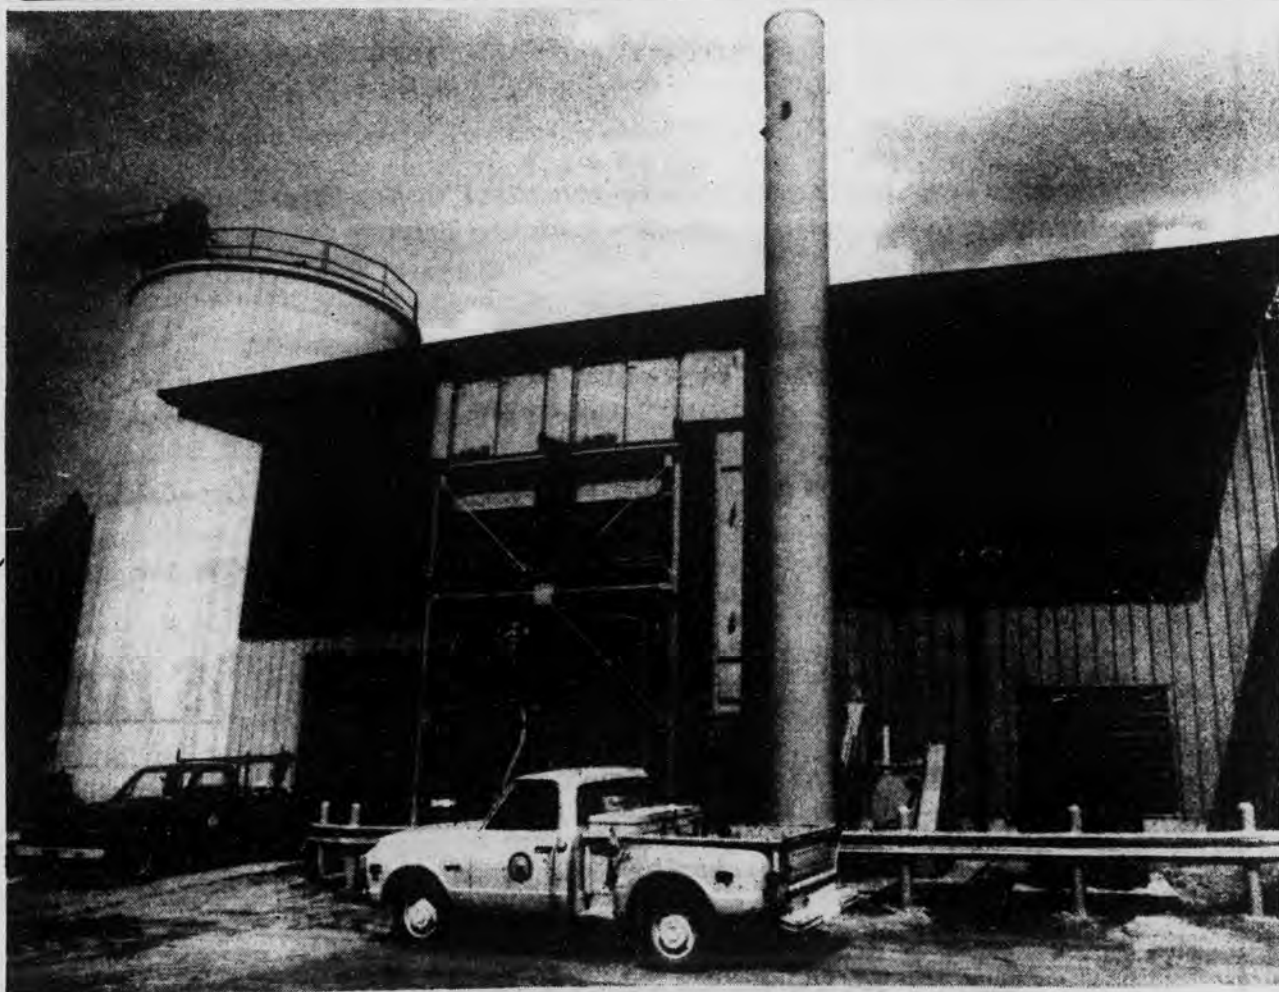

She stated however that her main objection is that county tax offices would lose their accountability.

Quick commented, "At present everything the tax assessor assesses is charged to the tax collector. The collector must collect every penny or show cause why... an error in the assessment or the tax was not paid."

One argument people have advanced for the amendment is that by combining the offices, one salary will be saved. However, Quick does not believe this will happen.

She said, "A new position... something like an assistant would be needed."

Chip burner

The storage bin on the left will hold 250 tons of wood chips for burning in UM's new money and energy efficient boiler facility. Noise from the induction fan to the right of the smoke stack base, however, is drawing complaints from nearby residents. The school is considering building a sound baffle to channel the noise in the other direction. (Photo by David F. Moore)

UM chip burner draws flak

by David F. Moore

It's not as loud as a rock concert. But it is somewhat louder than a basic sewing machine.

It's the new wood chip burning boiler system which went into operation this week on the campus of the University of Montevallo. School officials expect the new system will save more than $135,000 in heating and cooling expenses per year.

What school officials apparently did not expect, however, was that the new system would draw heated complaints because of the noise it makes.

Following a week-long test run on the facility, a number of Montevallo residents complained about the high-pitched hum to university and city officials. Some of the complainants are tenured teachers on the UM campus.

Following the complaints, last Friday city administrator Don Hughes wrote UM President James Vickrey, saying the plant violates Montevallo noise laws.

The letter said, in part: "The apparent origin of the noise is the blower fan on the new wood-waste boiler. Several citizens of the community are alarmed that the noise may become detrimental to their health and to the value of their property. Please respond at your earliest convenience."

Holland Floyd, who is in charge of UM's physical plant, said he heard the noise himself Sunday, August 22, from Cardinal Crest Road, where the complainants live. The road is about a block away from the $1.2 million chip burner, and separated by kudzu covered woods.

From Cardinal Crest, Floyd said the noise was a steady hum.

"We're not insensitive to the problem," Floyd said. "But this is a new animal to us. The system's not completely checked out."

"We'll do some things shortly to try and baffle the sound," he said.

According to Floyd, the noise culprit is an induction fan, located just outside the new boiler room.

He said the baffles, or walls, could be constructed around the unit so that the sound would be channeled away from the nearby residential area.

"We'll give them a reasonable time to remedy the problem," said Mayor Ralph Sears. "After that, it remains to be seen what action will be taken."

Although UM's conversion to burning wood chips will cost Montevallo $450,000 in gross gas sales, Sears said the city harbors no ill feelings towards the university.

"We don't blame the university," Sears said. "If there's a better way of doing something, we're all for it."

Floyd said the new facility is the first of its kind at a large institution in Alabama. In Georgia, similar units are used successfully at hospitals, and a smaller type chip burner is now being used at a Montevallo timber yard, he said.

Because of its energy-efficiency, the facility qualified for a low-interest loan from the US 280 four-lane officially opens Friday

U.S. Highway 280, east of County Road 41, will open to four lanes tomorrow, after five years of construction.

Widening the 5.2-mile section from two lanes to four cost approximately $20 million, according to District Engineer James Braden of the State Highway Department.

The modern highway design will improve safety immeasurably, he said, and added, "Traffic capacity of the highway will increase by about six times. With this design we have no problem accommodating any traffic we have now," he said and predicts the structure will prove adequate until at least the year 2000.

The official opening ceremony will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

Governor to name tax collector

Shelby County should know the name of its new tax collector next week.

Governor Fob James is expected to announce his choice by the end of the week. The governor by law can name a successor to retiring tax collector Fay Quick, who is leaving her office October 1st, two years before the end of her term.

Representatives from the governor's office held interviews last week in Alabaster with several people who are interested in the job. The appointee is expected to have a month to work with Mrs. Quick before she leaves office.

Chelsea holds 'hot' rally for 32 political speakers

Candidates couldn't be blamed for all the hot air in the Chelsea School cafeteria Saturday, but the heat kept an audience of 200 fanning themselves throughout the evening.

Most of the speakers at the PTO sponsored event found it difficult to present their platforms within the three minute time limit. Before the majority had finished their remarks, time keeper Teddy Brasher had to give them a reminder.

Thirty two candidates or their representatives were present to address the voters.

However, one member of the audience guessed that only 25 or 30 of those present had not come with one of the politicians.

The event was deemed a success by PTO President Judy Hatcher who reported that the school took in over $1,000 from the barbecue supper, cake raffle and a softball tournament.

Another bonus for the school was adding a number of books to the library which now fulfills the state requirements for accreditation.

The book sale raised $289 and Hatcher reported that money is still coming in.

Rep. Sonny Moore was the top bidder at the event when he bought a cake made by Lillian Brasher for $35.

In the softball tournament, the winning teams were: K-C, Childersburg, 1st; Train Gang, Vandiver, 2nd; Corner Grocery, Chelsea, 3rd.

Speakers at the event were: Rep. Sonny Moore, Bob Hawkins, Frances Phelps, House of Representatives District 52; Lucille White, State Senate District 17; Robert Armstrong, Wayne Causey, Judge 18th Judicial Circuit.

Tommy Snowden, Don Hughes, Ray Hamilton, Red Walker, Probate Judge; Harold Davenport, Charles Seales, Commission District 2; J. Alpha Lowe, Leon Archer, Robert Parker, Commission District 4; Mrs. Billy Thompson speaking for her husband, coroner; Charles Knowles, Norma Rogers, Ellie Glasscox, superintendent of education.

Barbara Whitman, Raymond Rowell, Lynn Argo, Board of Education place 2; Al Knight, Board of Education, place 4; Buddy Glasgow, Clyde Wolfe, sheriff; Kyle Lansford, circuit clerk.

Representatives spoke for Richard Shelby, Jack Kartus, U.S. representative; Joe McCorquodale, George Wallace, governor; Eason Mitchell, circuit judge.

Reynolds axed from Democratic primary

The Alabama Supreme Court defeated C. Pat Reynolds in his bid for State Senator, from District 17. Reynolds never made it to the polls.

After an on-again, off-again battle, Reynolds' name will not appear on the ballot in the Democratic primaries Tuesday.

Initially, the state Democratic Party tried to oust Reynolds from the race because of his previous activities with the Republican Party. However, a Birmingham circuit judge ruled that Reynolds' name should be on the ballot.

Then, last week, the Supreme Court reversed that decision, saying that a political party has the right to enforce its own rules.

Reynolds' dismissal leaves two Democrats; Lucile White and incumbent Doug Cook in contention for the Senate seat.

The Republicans also have two candidates running for the seat in the primary; Spencer Bachus and Gilbert Douglas III.

New bridge

Representative Jabo Waggoner, Alabaster Mayor H.A. "Doc" Rubin, Senator Doug Cook, and Joe Joseph gathered at the John Allen branch bridge on Hwy. 119 Tuesday, to observe the beginning of work on replacing the structure and widening the road.

Alabaster gets bridge relief

The bridge over the John Allen branch in Alabaster has needed to be replaced for a long time.

This week, the project is finally getting underway that will bring the bridge on Hwy. 119 up to standard by widening the roadway four feet and providing six foot shoulders on either side.

According to District 5 Highway Director Jim Braden, the undertaking will cost somewhere in the neighborhood of $50,000 with the state paying the entire cost.

On Tuesday morning, Alabaster Mayor H.A. "Doc" Rubin met Representative Jabo Waggoner and Senator Doug Cook at the bridge site to observe the beginning of the project.

Both legislators have worked to secure the funding and make it a top priority item of the division 3 office.

Other city officials and Joe and Earnest Joseph were also present to mark the beginning of the undertaking which is expected to take three or four weeks.

The Joseph brothers are letting the city use their property for the necessary right of way in the construction area.

According to Alabaster Police Chief Bull Carter, numerous accidents have occurred on the narrow bridge. But he described most as "fender benders" since motorists must drive slowly as they cross.

Carter pointed out the danger for school buses though, noting that "they nearly knock each other's mirrors off when two go across at the same time."

The bridge is unsafe both structurally and physically, Braden said. When construction is completed, he reported that the total width would be 36 feet.

While the work is in progress, traffic will be rerouted on 6th

Ave., 8th St. SW and County Road 44.

Braden said that the detour wouldn't go into effect until a commitment is secured from Alabama Power Company that poles on the construction site will be moved.

CHARLES SEALES will work full-time to provide the people of Shelby County the service they pay their tax dollars for.

DON HUGHES

is the man for the office of PROBATE JUDGE

Don Hughes is a man of:

★ ACTION - He has the practical background to analyze problems and proceed quickly with efficient action. He has enormous energy and is willing to work around the clock when needs arise. He does not "Put off 'till tomorrow what should be done today." He gets the job done.

★ In Montevallo as city administrator for the past 5 years Hughes has:

Established a personnel board

Placed city employees on state retirement system.

Purchased and organized computer billing system.

Reorganized accounting procedures

Built new park building

Built new municipal shop

Built temporary home of Montevallo library, and is working on new library.

Re-worked downtown and residential sidewalks

Worked with all civic clubs and Boy Scouts on projects

Moved water system from a deficit situation to break-even

Re-worked sewer system into state compliance.

Secured grants for Industrial Development Board

Sensitive to community needs, he has handled problems of residents with compassion and understanding.

★ VISION - He believes Shelby County has a potential no other county has. He will look ahead and make plans for the future growth that is coming. He knows that growth could lead to a crisis in water and sewerage problems if good preparations are not made early. He knows that industrial development works in other counties. Why not here? He will restore confidence in county government so progressive citizens will want to serve on committees and offer their advice to get the county moving - in a way that will be of benefit to everyone.

★ LEADERSHIP WITH SOUND JUDGMENT - His leadership inspires the people who work with him, and this leads to efficiency in accomplishing tasks. His ability to draw up budgets and then stay within them makes him an asset that Shelby County must have. He has an "Uncommon amount of common sense."

★ EXPERIENCE - City Administrator - Administrative assistant to the County Commission - County deputy (investigative photographer) - School teacher - University of Montevallo staff - UM graduate.

His experience in county and city government, with volunteer fire and rescue units, with water problems, and in working with people in all sections of the county make him the ideal choice for Probate Judge.

★ INDEPENDENCE - he is not a part of any political machine. He has no private business interests. He will devote full time to being Probate Judge.

The Probate Judge has access to many confidential private transactions involving land and personal property. Neither Don Hughes nor any member of his family is connected with the real estate business.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly "Good Morning" column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

Lingering thoughts about the class party Saturday night:

The delightful skit, with Jessie Butler Jones hunting a job in Jim Curtis' Dew Drop Inn, and the refreshing wit that passed between the two. There must have been a hundred chuckles wrapped up in those ten short minutes. Somebody said they hadn't rehearsed it. Sometimes it's better that way.

Two pretty songs by the Andrews Sisters. Billy Martin and Harvel Fore and Harold Adams, dressed like the ladies, and with a record player behind them playing Don't Sit Under The Apple Tree and Yes, Sir, That's My Baby, put on about the most delightful skit you'll ever see and hear.

Sometimes, just thinking about all the raw talent that has come out of the old school, a fellow feels sort of glad he passed that way too, over fifty years ago.

I think folks like Jessie Butler Jones and Harold Adams and Frank Jones and Marjorie Nolen hit the nail on the head when they remembered out loud the kind of teachers they had back then. The same as they had before that, and even now, with most all of the old ones gone.

You paused and took a good look at 'em. The ladies made your eyes hurt they were so lovely. And the boys made you kind o' proud they were so much like men ought to be. There were no dirty beards and no crazy hairdos, just clean wholesome folks who came to have a good time, and had it, as long as the party lasted.

They remembered a thousand things, all of 'em funny, but they always came back to remembering Ellen Ruth, who was surely the sweetheart of 'em all. And you didn't have to be around ten minutes to realize how much influence this lovely lady has had on their lives.

They were just youngsters, grown up, who would take one night out of their lives to be completely carefree and happy again. They called it a class reunion, a tribute to a favorite teacher, and I suppose it was. That, and 120 minutes none of 'em would ever forget. Not even an old gink from the class of 1925, and his wife who came with him to share their delight.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

This time it wasn't me who forgot.

Actually, what happened, according to one of the folks who didn't appear for a picture taking appointment, was a misunderstanding about the event.

"No one told me I was supposed to have my picture taken," he explained.

That could have been an alibi I guess, but the guy sounded sincere.

My excuse for not showing up, is usually, "I forgot."

That happened to me not once, but twice this weekend. In fact, three times if you count a social occasion that slipped my mind.

It's really distressing to wake up the morning after an event you were supposed to have covered and remember that you've forgotten.

I didn't even remember that I didn't get to one place until they called me the next day and inquired about my absence.

My answer was the old, and by now threadbare excuse, "I forgot!"

The memory of the social event I'd missed didn't come trickling into my mind until I was sitting in a room with the group involved.

But I really didn't feel so badly about missing the party since I couldn't have attended even if I had remembered.

What do I mean by that you ask. Well, I had an event to cover, at the same time the party was being held and I remembered to go.

At that event where some of the folks failed to appear, I myself wasn't called until it was nearly time for it to take place.

The caller explained that she had just found about the whole thing herself. But I wonder if she didn't think that calling me at the last minute was her best bet for getting me there.

Anyhow, it worked in my case. But whatever was said to the missing people apparently didn't do the trick.

People who have been burned once by my faulty memory, now usually ask me if I'd like them to call again and remind me.

I assure them that I'll remember. But just in case, I add, "Why don't you call me?"

Candidates hit county seat

Candidates for state offices and their representatives have been regular visitors to the courthouse in recent weeks.

Kay Ivey, candidate for State Auditor, was in Columbiana last week pointing out that the State Auditor must account for $7 billion in taxes.

Ann McMillan, wife of gubernatorial candidate George McMillan, made two forays into the county seat, the latest one this Tuesday campaigning for her husband.

Jack Kartus, who is seeking to unseat Richard Shelby as the district's representative in Congress, called on several people last week. Kartus has attacked Shelby's record in Congress on several points, and has questioned the source of Shelby's campaign funds.

Richard Shelby was also in the county last week, as guest of honor at a reception at the home of Mrs. John Bennett Walters in Montevallo to which 150 persons were invited. Shelby maintains he votes in Congress the way his constituents want him to vote.

Although the election campaign in general has drawn little public interest, the polls will be ready and open next Tuesday when voters return from their Labor Day holiday.

Columbiana water works?

Letter to the Editor:

The city of Columbiana governing body recently placed a councilman as chairman of the Columbiana Water Works Board in a highly controversial council meeting.

This poses many vital questions of practices of both (now merged) bodies.

1. Why do the bodies not meter pumped water, and actively resist efforts to operate on sound business principals. (Know how much water is pumped; how much is sold; how much is lost; and how to reduce the latter category. (Pump 65 million gallons--sell 30-35 million gallons.)

2. Why do these collective bodies not want chlorine weighed, measured or properly added per strict Health Department regulations of State.

3. Why do they not only have, but DO NOT WANT a qualified superintendent and his assistant. Total department operated by non-qualified persons. (City and 3 satellite systems with over 3000 accounts, servicing probably 10-12 thousand persons.)

4. Why do these bodies condone sparse to non-existent record keeping and reporting to higher authority in total deference to laws and governing regulations?

5. Why aren't state health department and audit discrepancies corrected?

6. Why are NO METERS checked, regardless of size, per laws requiring periodic checks of domestic and other meters measuring water sold.

7. Why do the members condone total lack of inventories of tools and allied equipment, and display no effort to correct violations of taxpayers interested in this area? No up-to-date correct maps of the system showing hydrants, pipelines, valves, etc.?

8. Why do these combined bodies condone violations of Competitive Bid Laws?

9. Why did these bodies pass a resolution for Fluoridation knowing that fluoridation was impossible with the Columbiana Water System.

The Alabama Scene

D-Day approaches

by Bob Ingram

With D-Day (Decision Day) less than a week away, the political pot boils....

The race for the Democratic nomination for governor has become just that... a race. A few weeks back a lot of folks had conceded the nomination to George Wallace without a run-off. You don't hear predictions like that any more. Every poll shows an erosion of Wallace's strength, every poll shows that Joe McCorquodale and George McMillan have both closed the gap dramatically on the former governor. A run-off seems a certainty. Who will be in the run-off? Even that is in doubt. It is that close, at least if you can believe the polls...

Following the same line, the surveys also confirm that State Sen. Sonny Callahan of Mobile has been gaining ground rapidly in his bid for lieutenant governor, but he still has a way to go to overtake Bill Baxley. Whether Callahan has enough time to overtake the former attorney general is questionable...

The predominantly black Alabama Democratic Conference (ADC) made its endorsements recently, with McMillan being endorsed for governor. This should have come as no big surprise, but some Wallace leaders had hoped that the ADC might issue a joint endorsement of both McMillan and Wallace. The ADC endorsements stirred up some controversy.

One candidate for state auditor, Kay Ivey of Montgomery, said that she was told she could have the ADC endorsement by Joe Reed if she would agree to appoint a certain percentage of blacks to county Boards of Registrars. She refused to make such a pledge and the endorsement went to another candidate. Reed denied the charge and countered that Ivey's comments were simply "sour grapes..."

How big a vote can be anticipated for Sept. 7? The lethargic campaign for governor might suggest a very low turnout, but some hot local races probably will bring upwards of 900,000 Alabamians to the polls. Some 939,000 voted in the primary four years ago, and it seems likely next Tuesday's turnout will equal or exceed that. Logic says that the lighter the vote, the better that will be for Wallace, because his supporters will surely vote. In reverse, a heavy vote would work to the advantage of the 2-Mc's.

German girls welcomed

Letter to the Editor:

My wife and I would like to express our heartfelt appreciation to the people of Alabaster and Shelby County for the outstanding reception they have extended to our two "Daughters", exchange students Antje Gerhold and Birgit Prass.

Merchants posted large signs of welcome, a banner was hung over the street near Thompson High School; the Shelby County Reporter printed an excellent article and wherever they have gone this past week people have embraced them and let them know that they are welcome.

They have been honored by a visit with the mayor and city department heads and the superintendent of education of Shelby County.

Their reception at Thompson High School was a source of great pride to us as Host Parents. Mr. Allen Fulton, the principal, Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Daniels, the counsellors, and faculty were all marvelous in getting them enroled. Since we have never had any children of our own this was a tremendous help to us.

Most gratifying to us is the acceptance of our girls by the students at Thompson High School and the teenagers in the entire area. They are a really great group of kids.

Our "Daughters" came to Alabaster from large cities in West Germany, to learn about the American people and study life in America, and we don't believe they could have found a better town or greater people to live among for this short year. The girls have fallen in love with both the city and the people. This time next year all of Germany will know where Alabaster Alabama is!

I know that Antje and Birgit's natural parents join us in saying we are extremely grateful to Alabaster and its splendid people for making these two young girls feel so welcome.

Sincerely,
Brigitte and Dan Langham

Cut, but do not spray

Letter to the Editor:

I wish to make the following comment as an open letter to the County Commission:

It makes me angry to hear that assistant county engineer Hilry King, Jr., is recommending the spraying of herbicides along county roads.

Already Alabama Power Company and the state highway department have spread this poison through our woods and fields and residential areas, turning our beautiful state into a patchwork of death.

We used to see wildflowers along our state highways; now we see nothing but horrible brown. Contrary to what the spokesmen say, streams are sprayed; gardens and fruit trees are killed; and when the final truth is learned, we will know that people, too, are harmed, if not killed, by this poison.

Why is it that we run to the manufacturers of poisons to solve our little problems? Roadways have been mowed adequately for over half a century. Is somebody getting a kick-back?

Put unemployed people to work cutting the grass by hand as long as money lasts. We don't have to ride through golf greens, anyway. And one other suggestion: give Mr. King a swing blade and let him earn his salary. But don't spray our right-of-ways with poison.

Members of the ECA band entertained Columbiana Elastic plant employees, their families and out of town guests at a Labor Day barbecue Saturday.

day. Band members are: Doug and Ronnie Horton, Wayne Pate and Slim Joiner.

Elastic plant gets jump on Labor Day

The Elastic plant in Columbiana worked four shifts Friday night.

However, the 26 men involved in the all night project weren't working at the industry. They were at the Shelby County Highway Department.

Using the barbecue pit there, the cooks prepared the meat for the plant's annual Labor Day barbecue on Saturday.

According to Don Blackerby, 560 pounds of meat were purchased for the feast which, he said, came out to about 360 pounds when the fat was cooked off.

About 440 people turned out for the affair, Blackerby reported. He noted that that number included family members and employees from Tape Craft in Anniston who took on the local team in an afternoon softball game.

A band consisting of plant employees provided music for the gathering and sack races and other competitive games were held for the younger generation. The outing also included a drawing for prizes.

Two dropped in ABC cuts

by Fred Guarino

A cut in the number of ABC store employees statewide will affect two stores in Shelby County.

Stores in Columbiana and Calera will each see one full time position eliminated and one position made part time.

Those two stores currently have three employees each.

Montevallo and Alabaster will see no changes in their number of employees. Alabaster has three employees and Montevallo has two.

According to Jennie Lazenby, deputy administrator of ABC stores, Alabaster and Montevallo are the two most money making stores in the county.

At the end of the last fiscal year, Alabaster did $1,002,626.60 in gross sales, including taxes.

Montevallo did $555,580.25 in gross sales.

Calera did the third largest number of sales with $492,725.20 and Columbiana came in fourth with $387,764.

Just who will lose their job as a result of employee cuts is uncertain, according to Lazenby.

She stated that many employees in the ABC system have rolling rights. That is, if their job is abolished, they can bump someone else in the system out of a job, and take that one for themselves.

Lazenby said that it would not be until all of the "rolling" is completed before it is known who is laid off.

When asked if cuts would be based on grade sheets and seniority, Lazenby stated that she could not comment. She pointed out this matter is involved in a court suit.

At least one ABC store employee in Shelby County is upset over the cut back system.

Jackie Harden, a cashier of the Calera ABC store said that those cut out are based on grade sheets and seniority.

However she said, "Some people got letters who had seniority over others."

About the grade sheets, she said, "Ever since this has been going on, if the manager liked you, you got a good grade sheet and if not, you didn't."

She reported that one man who worked for the ABC stores for 18 years got a letter. She asked, "If he was not good enough to stay now, why was he good enough to be in an ABC store for 18 years?"

SHELBY COUNTY VOTERS

To: Citizens of Shelby County

A Message From Concerned Members of the Shelby County Bar Association

ROBERT (BOB) ARMSTRONG

A Circuit Judge in Alabama stands for election every six years. This is a good system, but a candidate for the office of Circuit Judge cannot make campaign promises as candidates for other political office. Dignity and integrity must be maintained in any judicial office.

IS SHELBY COUNTY CIRCUIT COURT A GOOD CIRCUIT COURT? Yes. Definitely.

Our judges handle cases fairly and swiftly. They work with the same amount of courtroom space that was provided when the Courthouse was erected in 1905, yet our population has increased from 6,000 to 66,000 during the last 77 years. In fact, most cases are concluded in 9 months from the date of filing of the law suit. Our judges work hard to make this happen.

VICTIM RESTITUTION - IS IT USED IN THE SHELBY COUNTY CIRCUIT COURT? Yes, in all cases, when appropriate, although Judge Armstrong is not primarily the criminal judge. Some crimes do not have victims. These include drug possession cases where a criminal does not cause injury to the person or property of another. In cases dealing with victim crimes, our Circuit Court has held hearings to determine the ability of the convicted criminal to repay victims. Practically speaking, however, most criminals do not have any money to repay victims of crime. Most criminals have no jobs to earn money and no trade to use to earn money.

Our Court system extensively questions each defendant as to his or her assets to determine eligibility for Court appointed lawyers. This is another means used by the Court in Shelby County to discover the criminal's ability to pay.

Our Judges have sentenced criminals to prison for crimes committed against citizens of Shelby County. These Judges have never been timid in ordering prison terms for criminals found guilty of crimes.

Our court system is blessed with three fine Circuit Judges, Kenneth F. Ingram, Presiding Circuit Judge, Harold E. Walden and Robert R. Armstrong, Jr. These Judges and any other Judge will tell you that they can make only one campaign promise: To fairly decide all cases brought before them based on facts in evidence and the Law. To promise to favor prosecutors, police officers, or criminals or ordering victim restitution in all cases is unethical. It decides a case before it is ever presented to the Judge.

If you have questions concerning the candidates for this high office, please ask an attorney whose opinion you respect.

We urge you to cast your vote for Judge Robert Armstrong for our reasons stated above. Our Court system is excellent and our Judges have the integrity to keep that excellence.

Rescue unit runs on donations

Until the legal proceedings of forming a fire district are completed, the Cahaba Valley Fire and Rescue unit must exist on donations.

In order to gain public exposure, the unit provides medical assistance at horse shows and other events where injuries might occur.

On Saturday, Chief Grady Gullidge and several members of the unit were on hand at a hunter jumper show at Dunnivant Farms on County Road 43.

Gullidge's son Butch, an EMT 1, treated a minor leg injury on a rider who took a spill going over one of the jumps.

All 12 members of the unit have recently been recertified in CPR, Gullidge reported. He also said that the department is taking 90 hours of training in the latest fire fighting techniques.

Center Point Fire Chief James Wallace is the instructor for the course, Gullidge said. And he mentioned that members of the Dunnivant and Vandiver Fire Departments are also attending the training sessions.

Tony Perryman, the unit's assistant chief, Dennis Lacey and Randy Hodges were other members of the unit who stood by at the Saturday horse show.

Through Dr. Norma Rogers' effective and accepted recommendations, the PTO at Valley Elementary School funds many programs that benefit not only the students, but teachers and parents as well.

My appreciation was compounded this spring when a routine school day turned into a crisis situation. My son, a student at Valley, was suddenly in a life threatening situation. The school nurse administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation immediately and professionally.

I will not allow myself to consider the consequences if that nurse had not been readily available.

I am grateful to Dr. Rogers for seeing the need for a full-time nurse and to the PTO for funding the service.

The PTO also provides other services including salaries for auxiliary personnel and day care services. Valley School is, in my opinion, an exemplary educational facility.

VOTE FOR WM. CHARLIE BROWN STATE REPRESENTATIVE DIST. No. 49 SHELBY COUNTY HELP SAVE OUR FARMLAND

THE NEXT (4) YEARS ARE FOR THE WORKING CLASS OF PEOPLE. AS YOU KNOW BY NOW OUR LEGISLATIVE BODY IS RATED THE LOWEST IN THE NATION OF "DOING NOTHING" FOR THE PAST 20 YEARS.

I BELONG TO THE WORKING CLASS OF PEOPLE & I AM TIRED OF BUSINESS PEOPLE & THE BAR ASSOCIATION CONTROLLING THIS OFFICE ALL THESE YEARS, NOTHING FOR THE WORKING CLASS, LET'S MAKE A CHANGE IN SHELBY COUNTY & ALABAMA.

FARMLAND: Foreign countries own 557,247 Prime Agriculture acres in Alabama & over 12-million in the U.S.A. Also, over 12-million forest acres. The food grown & sold in some stores here are their profits. They Pay No Taxes on this food sale because everything is hidden in corporate management. Our past legislators forgot to tell us about this, that's why only (8) states to date have put a stop to our land sale. They were so busy with their business & clients back home they forgot what they were sent to Montgomery to do.

We don't want (4) more years of this & we haven't the time to wait & see.

EDUCATION:

This is something our past legislators haven't done for 20 years!!

You can't fight the liberals & radicals in Washington, D.C. because they are members of the Bar Association. Only the working class can do this! The others own their own business so they could care less. Ask our opponent, he spent (8) years as legislator & did nothing. If he did, why are we 48th in the nation in education.

UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION:

Lowest in the nation - people in business for themselves could care less about this. You can't exist on what this state pays, let alone feed our families. It will change if I am elected!!

WORKMAN COMPENSATION:

Lowest in the nation - it will change. This effects everyone. It's like a home owners policy in insurance. You never know it's bad until you have to use it & then it's too late. Our home burned in July & you would not believe how BAD our insurance is!!

TAXES ON FOOD & DRUGS:

There are states that have passed laws to eliminate taxes here, why can't we? I will surely do something here! Our legislative body needs to atone for their (Do Nothing) years.

HUMANE SOCIETY:

These people are doing a fine job in Shelby County and need help! Let's back these people & be the corner stone for this worthy cause!!

Thank You,
Charlie Brown

Questions need answering

Police seek suspects in Pelham shooting

Police are still seeking information on two men wanted for questioning in connection with a shooting in Pelham. The shooting occurred shortly past midnight, Thursday, August 19, behind the south end of the Pelham Mall.

The two men were seen in the Pour House Lounge shortly before Karey Doyle Hale and his wife, Jessie, left the bar. A few minutes later, Karey Doyle Hale was shot in the head by a small calibre gun.

Hale is now listed in fair condition at Spain Rehabilitation Center in Birmingham.

Composite drawings of the two unidentified men, were made by Pelham evidence technician Donnie Gyer, using information from a witness.

The suspect known as "Charlie" has a mustache, and is described as being six feet tall, 190 pounds, 25-35 years old, with light brown hair.

"Ken" wears glasses and is described as 5'10", 155 pounds, 45-50 years old, with black, straight hair and wrinkles on his face.

"They were the only people at the bar that we can't find," said investigator Tommy Thomas. "Everybody else has been interviewed."

Thomas urged anyone with any information on the suspects to call police at 663-6304.

Thomas said the name of anyone providing information would be kept in strict confidence, and would not have to be used in court.

44 owe big sewer bills

Even though no one has been cut off sewer service so far, the city of Columbiana anticipates disconnecting 44 individuals.

At a recent council meeting, the city's governing body agreed that the action should be taken against individuals who have delinquent bills.

Seventy-six people are also getting free garbage service but no plan to discontinue pickup has been announced as yet.

According to City Clerk Mary Largin, the city is due a total of $570 on overdue sewer bills. The unpaid bills for garbage service amount to $1,920.

Although one of the biggest unpaid sewer bills is only $81, the city has been hampered by a shortage of revenue, and Largin pointed out that every cent counts.

The maximum payment for sewer service is only $2.50 per month. The charge for bi-weekly garbage pickup is $3.

DO NOT BE MISLED LET'S LOOK AT THE RECORD

The office of Circuit Judge, one of the most important offices of our entire government, IS NOT FOR SALE TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER - That is to the person who spends the most for advertising or the one who makes the most show.

Judge Armstrong has been a Circuit Judge of a court of record for the past three years, during which time he has handled an average of 700 Civil and Criminal cases per year. He has been complimented by the State Office of Court Management in Montgomery for the job he has done in handling his court.

We should all remember that no Judge's office in government is more important to each of us, to our life, liberty and property, than that of the Circuit Judge. The Circuit Judge passes on all phases of a case and only an appellate court in Montgomery can reverse him.

Judge Armstrong is one of the finest Judges of the Circuit Court that Shelby County has ever had, and that is saying a lot! His record as Circuit Court Judge tells you the quality of work you can expect if you elect Judge Armstrong.

While one of Judge Armstrong's opponents is being designated as a Judge, his experience is limited to that of a city Judge only! Prior to the year 1975, these positions were usually filled by persons who were not lawyers, but because of a recent law, lawyers now fill this office. These courts are frequently called traffic courts and cases coming before them are based chiefly on ordinances passed by each city. These are not courts of record, and usually the defendants do not have lawyers to represent them. Any case tried in these courts are appealable to the Circuit Court of Shelby County; in other words, the ruling is not final. Experience as a City Judge under no circumstances could be compared with that of a Circuit Judge.

Drivers urged to watch speed, safety over Labor Day

"I would really like to be optimistic about the traffic death picture for the Labor Day holiday," said Colonel Jerry Shoemaker, Alabama Department of Public Safety Director. "However, with the numbers of persons killed and injured on Alabama's streets and highways this year, optimism seems to be out of place."

KELLI WYATT

Baton twirling wins prize for Miss Wyatt

Thompson Feature Twirler Kelli Alisa Wyatt won the 1982-83 World's Ideal Miss Talent Award held recently in Las Vegas. She is the daughter of Billie Wyatt of Alabaster and James Wyatt of Tallahassee, Florida.

In competition against 61 girls from across the United States, Kelli also won the World's Command Performance Talent Award and was first runner-up in the World's Livin' Doll competition.

Her twirling performance of Suwannee and the Robert E. Lee won her a trip to Hollywood, Disneyland and Universal Studios. She also competed in sportswear, evening gown and interview competition.

Prior to her competition in the World Finals, Kelli won the Alabama's Ideal Miss pageant in Huntsville.

In the past six years she has won over 600 trophies in various competitions. She is now in her fourth year as Feature Twirler for the Thompson High Marching Southern Sounds Band.

During the first six months of 1982, 428 people have been killed and 15,504 injured in 48,886 traffic accidents. This compares with 445 people killed and 14,992 injured in 50,398 traffic accidents during the first six months of 1981.

"It will take a great second-half effort for Alabama drivers to reverse the present trend toward serious traffic accidents. It doesn't matter how well city streets and rural highways are policed if drivers do not accept their responsibilities for safer driving. This is especially true during holiday weekends," Colonel Shoemaker said.

Last year 20 people lost their lives in traffic accidents during the 78-hour Labor Day holiday period. This year, this holiday is again 78 hours from 6 p.m. August 3 (Friday) until Midnight August 6 (Monday). Twenty-five traffic deaths are anticipated during this Labor Day holiday.

"You, the driver, can reduce your chances of killing or being killed by giving greater attention to your driving, to the safety of your vehicle and to the traffic laws. Be alert, use safety belts and exercise caution at all times. Be ready to take action to avoid an accident that could kill or maim someone you love," Colonel Shoemaker said.

"Help make Labor Day a pleasant holiday."

What Does Jesus Teach - About Homosexuality

From the two previous lessons we have seen God's condemnation of Homosexuality. (Lev. 18 and 20) Under the law of Moses the penalty was death; quick & certain.

In Rom. 1:26-27 "For this cause God gave them up unto evil passions: for their women changed the natural use into that which is against nature: and likewise also the men, leaving the natural use of the woman, burned in their lust one toward another, men with men working unseemliness, and receiving in themselves that recompense of their error which was due." Rom. 6:23 "For the wages of sin is death."

Romans clearly says "men with men" is against nature, not that it is another way of nature.

People let us not refuse to have God in our knowledge. Rom. 1:28.

For you, I have successfully sponsored legislation to expand the school textbook committee to include more parents, to eliminate child pornographic material, to hold down ad valorem tax increases, to allow prayer in public school, and to repeal free time given to hardened criminals in our penal institutes.

Additionally, I sponsored bills to keep state government from interfering with church related schools, to equalize suburban water rates with lower level rates in Birmingham, to support our educational system including our university systems.

Because I share with you these and other concerns, I want to represent you in the Alabama Senate. Please consider this letter as my commitment to be worthy of the confidence you place in me.

On an August day in 1922, Esther Aldridge and Marlin Moore said their wedding vows in the Columbiana home of Probate Judge L.B. Riddle.

And they meant what they said when they promised to love, honor and cherish until they were parted by death.

On August 27, the couple marked their 60th anniversary.

Mrs. Moore was 20 at the time of her marriage; her husband was 18.

"We couldn't afford a honeymoon," Mrs. Moore told the Reporter. "We just came on back to Pelham and started married life at his uncle's home."

On Friday, 23 family members gathered at the Moore home in Siluria to help the couple celebrate their anniversary.

All four of their children were present. They have 14 grandchildren and 16 great grandchildren.

John Tanner

State Representative District 49

A Quality Beginning For Our New District

“Membership in the Alabama Legislature has changed dramatically since the 60s and early 70s. For the past 6 years, I have worked closely with the members and leadership of the current legislature to bring improvements and progress to our area.”

“When our schools are strong, our community is strong. We must give our children the education they deserve. When we scrimp on education we cheat our community but even more important, we sacrifice our children's future.”

“Our District needs strong, aggressive leadership based on a true spirit of cooperation. We cannot afford to fall back on mere rhetoric and negative politics of the past. We need a positive approach to government backed up with hard work.”

Quality Leadership

John Tanner has a record that proves he can meet the challenges ahead because he has successfully met the challenges of the past. It was this type of leadership that reelected him to a second term on the Pelham City Council by the largest majority ever and made him his associates' choice for Mayor Pro Tem.

He is currently the city's liaison with the State Legislature and with Washington, D.C. A quick look at some of his accomplishments will tell you why we need to put him to work for all of us:

- started a computerized grant search system to help Pelham find much needed funds
- helped coordinate financial programs that have given his city first-rate Police, Fire, and Rescue Departments
- helped find funding for Pelham's new park and recreation facilities
- was successful in eliminating South Central Bell's mileage charges, saving each customer in North Shelby County from $5-$15 each month

What's going on out there?

Shelby County Coach Ricky Seale seems to be lost as to why his team wasn't moving the ball. Shelby County got all it wanted from the sharp looking

Montevallo struggles but falls to Calera

There doesn't have to be a lot of scoring in a football game to make it exciting. Just ask last Thursday night's fans that attended the annual Calera - Montevallo struggle.

Calera pulled off the win with a score of 3-0. It was a close game - understatement is easy.

Montevallo had the opportunity to win, as did Calera to score more. Eagle Head Coach Danny Alverson said his team was surprised by the Bulldogs.

"They are big and got after us. We're glad to have won." He jokingly added that he was sorry for running up the score, but quickly reflected, "Montevallo has a tough team, and Coach Gilliam (as always) had his team prepared."

Played Thursday night in Calera, the battle raged for four quarters. In the last possession of the first half, Montevallo mounted what appeared would be a scoring drive.

The Bulldogs took advantage of a short punt, starting on their own 41 yard line, and moved the ball to the Calera 10. A fumble by J.J. Moore was recovered by Calera's Steve Bearden and the threat was nullified.

The game's only points came in the third period. Calera returned to the field after the break, took the opening kickoff and started marching toward the goal line.

Five first downs and several plays later, it looked as though Calera would stall. Montevallo pushed the invaders back five yards to the 13, but on a third down and goal, after the Bulldogs had stopped Calera, a dead-ball foul was called.

One of the Montevallo defenders was called for spearing, and the ball was moved half the distance to the goal. With fourth down and goal from the seven yard line, Calera elected to go for the field goal.

With 6:09 left in the third period, James Blanchard booted a 23 yard field goal that barely stayed within the uprights. Those three points decided the contest.

Coach Richard Gilliam said of his players, "Compared to last year we're way ahead defensively. Our offense also showed itself well. Our players really put forth the effort against Calera.

"I'm proud of them." Gilliam named Barry Worthy, Taylor Blackwell, J.J. Moore, and Dwayne Jackson as defensive standouts. Offensively, Jeff Chism gained 75 yards on 16 carries, and Moore ran for 47 yards on 11 attempts.

Calera standouts included the entire defense. Although work is needed in both units, Alverson was proud of the effort his Eagles displayed. "We plan some tough practices this week," Alverson commented.

Calera meets Holtville this week while Montevallo travels to Frances Marion.

Vincent scores 16, blanks Wildcats

by Richard Crosby

From almost the opening kickoff the results could be foretold. Vincent was ready to play and Shelby County wasn't.

The final score of 16-0 is not indicative of the game. Vincent fundamentally executed on offense and defense and systematically put together scoring opportunities.

The first score of the night came for Vincent in the first quarter as Eddie Reynolds passed 40 yards to Tim Smith. A razzle-dazzle conversion play caught Shelby County still talking in the huddle.

In the second quarter, Vincent got the ball on Columbiana's 25 yard line. Kenneth Jones was punting for the Wildcats, but his deep blocker backed into the play and blocked his team's punt.

Vincent took advantage of the opportunity and burst the ball over the goal line. Cedric Riggins carried the final two yards. A bad snap on the PAT was converted for two points as Mark Kelow passed to Smith on the automatic play.

Vincent had three other chances in the game to score. Two missed field goals and a defensive stand by Shelby County help the Yellow Jackets to just 16 points.

Vincent Head Coach Harold Garrett said of the game, "We generally haven't played well the first game of the year, but Friday our guys surprised me. We ran the ball, threw the ball, and played defense. We were real pleased."

Garrett noted that downlinemen George Datcher, Kent Baker, and Tommy Dates did great jobs defensively. He also noted his defensive backfield, "A bunch of little rats that react to the ball. They move quick and swarmed on tackles."

Johnny Isbell and Eddie Reynolds were also mentioned by their coach for the good job defensively.

Offensively, Warren Kelley rushed for 92 yards, Tony Bradford for 49, Tim Smith caught four passes for 68 yards, and Phil Berryhill caught two for 16 yards.

For Columbiana, Ronald Benton was the leading rusher with 62 yards, and Bruce Martin was the leading pass receiver. Also giving good efforts were Jason Head and Pat Wallace.

Vincent faces tough Lincoln this Friday night. Garrett explained last year's encounter by saying, "We received a lot of kickoffs."

Shelby County meets Pelham this Thursday night in Columbiana. It will be the first game of the year for the Panthers.

Yellow Jacket touchdown

Vincent fans had plenty to cheer about as the home team did its job and delivered the victory. Above is the aftermath after the Jackets drove in for their second score of the night. (photo by Richard Crosby)

One of the Calera Eagles takes to flying while a Montevallo man runs down field. Why he was so high is unknown both to the photographer, David Moore, and everyone else who has seen the picture.

Forecaster fearless despite last week

by Richard Crosby

Not exactly the greatest results in last week's picking. Since this is my last chance to roll the dice, I'll call them straight for the first time in six years. (Honest!)

Montevallo at Frances Marion: The Bulldogs proved last week they are a tough team. Marion isn't a slouch though, and should prove tougher than Calera. Maybe the Bulldogs can live up to this guess. PREDICTION: Montevallo 13, Frances Marion 12.

Lincoln at Vincent: The Jackets executed in great style last week, but this week they face a tougher foe. Sorry to name a loser. PREDICTION: Vincent 8, Lincoln 27.

Bibb Co. at Thompson: The Warriors are on a roll without Arthur. Just goes to show how strong a team Larry Simmons has built. Bibb County lost some of its superstars. An easy breezy night. PREDICTION: Thompson 35, Bibb Co. 0.

Calera at Holtville: The Eagles have some improving to do. It's been a few years since Calera wasn't able to put points on the board. They better score more than I think to prove this prediction wrong. PREDICTION: Calera 13, Holtville 23.

Pelham at Shelby County: The Panthers open the year tonight (Thursday) and with a whole new attack. Shelby County needs to forget last week and pretend this will be the first game of the year. The Wildcats won't be able to do that though. Look for Pelham to surprise everyone. PREDICTION: Pelham 29, Shelby County 6.

Chelsea at West Blocton: The Hornets should have won last week. The ball will have super glue on it this week and Chelsea should bring home the win. PREDICTION: Chelsea 18, West Blocton 14.

Chambers at CVA: The Rebels will be looking for a win but not receiving one. Maybe next week the team will score. PREDICTION: Chambers 31, CVA 0.

Maxwell at Briarwood: The Lions won a close one last week. The team will be trying to win the game earlier this week. PREDICTION: Briarwood 12, Maxwell 3.

Montevallo plans festivities for Labor Day celebration

Labor Day activities in Montevallo will appeal to all ages according to Recreation Director Bill Vann. A full slate of events have been set for the holiday.

A softball tournament will begin the day of festivities at 9 a.m. Two five-team round robin divisions will comprise the competition, which will include many local teams.

The Montevallo High School

Quarterback Club will be selling barbeque plates and sandwiches. The traditional holiday food will go on sale starting at 10 a.m.

The Montevallo High School Band will have a 30 minute performance at 10:30 a.m.

Starting at 11 a.m. political candidates will be given the opportunity to give a five minute speech.

At 1 p.m. a variety of childrens' activities will begin. Those will include sack races, frisbee contests, basketball shooting and the annual greased watermelon grab.

During the day, a flea market will be held next to the park building from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Residents are invited to come out and spread a blanket on the ground and enjoy watching softball, eating barbeque and grabbing watermelons.

Sports Scribbles

On the road again

by Richard Crosby

Not all good things must come to an end...but this is one that will. After eight months back in the sports saddle around here, I'm having to hit the road.

It's not that tragic though. I'll still have a story with my name on top from time to time.

The reason for leaving is personal. First of all, I'm just a few short months away from a college degree. Yes, I know I'm a little old to be finally getting it, but it's a goal that was set many years ago and I'm just now realizing.

The University of Montevallo has just three months left to cram knowledge into my thick head. (That's a challenge to all the 'profs')

Because this is my last semester, I'm required to take courses that restrict me from continuing here as the sports guy. (now you know the untold story so you won't have to pick up The National Inquirer at the grocery store).

My second reason for hitting the trail is not so I can hike the Appalachian Trail (like some nut around here did). What I will do is spend a lot of time studying and preparing my graduation speech.

I hope that Dr. Vickrey at UM won't get upset when I grab the microphone after receiving my diploma and begin my short talk.

If you read the Sports Briefs column this week you might also become aware of the inventive mind I possess. I might retire after college and just sit back and count my money.

Well, just wanted to thank all the folks that have mentioned this column and the laughs they got. Even my wife commented last week, saying "I just look forward to reading who you're picking on this week."

I guess I missed my chance to poke fun at her. But others haven't been as fortunate.

So, Walt says it's time for me to hush, and without further to do, so long.

Golf winners

Calera golfer Lois Blair (center), was the winner of Buxahatchee Country Club's Ladies' Championship tournament Aug. 28-29. Freida York (r), Calera, copped the second place trophy; Myra Falkner of Columbiana came in third.

Lions end Mobile trip with first victory

The trip back from Mobile was faster than the trip there. That's how the Briarwood Lions felt last weekend as they won the first game of the season.

The team traveled South to play Mobile Christian. That game was a barnburner as the defenses struggled all night. Briarwood won the game with 44 seconds left, with a 17 yard field goal.

The Lions were backed in a hole the entire first half as Mobile kept pressing toward the goal line. In the second quarter, Briarwood held back the home team on a fourth down and one yard to go from the seven yard line.

"The momentum shifted there," Head Coach Gary Fleming remarked. "That really turned the ball game around for us."

In the fourth quarter, Wade Hughes blocked a Mobile punt which set up the scoring opportunity. Rob Holmes booted the three-point winning field goal.

Fleming named Rick Clemens, Art Hickman, and Ken Preston as defensive standouts. Offensively, Stephen Lindsey gained 47 yards. Jeff Nelson and Rick Baker also turned in good performances.

This week the Lions play their first home game, entertaining Maxwell Air Force Base. Fleming said of this week's game, "We're going to keep working and get our passing game going. We also plan to work a lot on our blocking and holding on to the football. We'll have to be ready when the Air Force arrives."

Beat Choctaw 23-15

Raiders come from behind

by Fred Guarino

Although the scoreboard lights flickered Shelby Academy 23, South Choctaw 15, Raiders fans knew that they had witnessed a grueling, defensive football battle, Saturday night.

The first game of the season for the private school belied the scoreboard in almost every respect.

The game was not an offensive show but instead a hard hitting struggle that saw injured players leaving the field on both sides. Most points did not come on sustained drives but individual big plays.

Scoreboard zeroes blinked at fans on both sides of the field at the end of the first period. And, it was not until the second quarter was half over before the first points of the night were recorded.

Shelby Academy's Mike Silvani fumbled a South Choctaw punt which gave the visitors a first and ten at their own 42 yard line.

On the next play, Gary Gibson ripped 58 yards to score. The PAT was good and the Rebels took a 7-0 lead with 5:45 remaining in the first half.

Whatever Coach Dewayne Kervin told his charges, it must have given them motivation because the second half saw an inspired Raiders team trot back onto the field.

Early in the third period, the Raiders pulled one of their favorite ploys, an onside kick. It worked just as it had six of the eight times it was tried last year and the home team began a 53 yard TD drive.

Behind the hard running of quarterback Silvani and Bryan Russell, the Raiders moved to the South Choctaw 14 yard line.

With first and ten, Keith Knowles ripped into the endzone for the score. A two point conversion attempt was good and with 8:23 remaining in the third period, the Raiders took the lead 8-7.

Not yet satisfied with their comeback, the Raiders played tremendous defense and forced a turnover deep in Rebel territory.

Taking over with a first down at the Rebel 28 yard line, Knowles and Russel took turns punching the visitors until Russell bulled the 19 yard distance to the endzone.

Silvani made the two point conversion and with 6:06 left in the third period, the Raiders led 16-7.

Defensive forces once again took control of the game and in the fourth period it appeared that the Raiders' nine point lead would stand the test of time.

However, fortune turned quickly in favor of the Rebels. A Shelby Academy punt put the visitors in business at the Raiders' 45 yard line.

Seven plays later, the Rebels connected for an 11 yard pass to score. An added two point conversion closed the gap to one point and with just 1:03 remaining in the contest, the Raiders led the Rebels only 16-15.

The Rebels were set to turn light into dark for the Raiders with an onside kick of their own. However, fate turned her smiles back to Shelby Academy.

Doug Barrett covered the Rebels' kick to put his team in business at the Shelby Academy 47 yard line.

And, with what appeared to be magic, Bryan Russell put out of reach any hope the visitors held for a win. He ripped 53 yards on the very next play for the score.

The PAT was good and the Raiders upped their lead to 23-15.

Coach Kervin said of the contest, "It was tough... what we expected."

Of the comeback by his team, he said, "We made some blocking changes in the second half. I thought Keith Knowles played well offensively and defensively and Bryan Russell got into the second half."

Assistant Coach Richard Pettijohn added, "Coach Kervin did a heck of a job coaching during the second half."

Warriors breeze by Pell City

The Warriors took easy scalps last Friday night. Pell City was the victim in a 42 to 20 rout. Thompson took the opening kickoff and ran it for an apparent touchdown, but a penalty nullified Luvell Bivins' dazzling run.

The Warriors started the attack with 3:17 left in the first quarter as Bivins finally crossed the goal line without being called back.

He scored on a 19 yard pass play from Richard Brasher. Jeff Willis booted the PAT.

Pell City came back in the early second quarter to tie the game at seven all. Thompson wasted no time in breaking the tie, scoring with just over seven minutes left in the half. Demetrious Threatt scored on a six yard run. Willis was true for the extra point making the score 14-7.

Five minutes later Thompson scored again. This time quarter-back Brasher passed 26 yards to Bivins for paydirt. The PAT was blocked, making the halftime count at 20-7.

Threatt scored his second touchdown of the evening in the third quarter with 2:29 left. His 29 yard run was followed by a Brasher to Willis pass for the two-point conversion.

With three seconds remaining in the third quarter, Threatt burst into the endzone from three yards out for another Thompson touchdown. Willis kicked the PAT.

The final score for Thompson came in the fourth period with six minutes remaining. Max Brown got the six points with a three yard run. Willis booted for the final point as the Warriors enjoyed a 42-7 score.

Before the game ended, Pell City scored twice against the Thompson substitutes.

For the game, Threatt ran 15 times for 121 yards. Bivins gained 76 yards on 11 carries. Defensively, Coach Larry Simmons named Greg Snell and Threatt as good performers.

Simmons remarked about the game, "We had some big plays, but still have a lot of work - hard work to do. We broke down in some areas but it was good to start with a win."

Thompson takes on Bibb County this Friday night in Alabaster. Last week the Choctaws defeated Sylacauga 10-0. Bibb is in its first year competing in this Area. The school replaced B.B. Comer which was lowered a classification.

Governor proclaims Sept. 25th as 'Hunting and Fishing Day'

by Jack Hagopian

September 25 is designated "Hunting and Fishing Day" in Alabama as proclaimed by Governor Fob James during a recent ceremony in his office.

The proclamation of Hunting and Fishing Day in Alabama coincides with National Hunting and Fishing Day to be observed throughout the nation on September 25.

Governor James, while signing the proclamation said, "The commemoration of this day is a fitting tribute to Alabama's approximately 1,800,000 hunters and fishermen, who with their counterparts throughout the United States have provided more than $5 billion for conservation and wildlife management over the past 50 years. This is especially significant when one considers the nation's approximately 55 million hunters and fishermen have done this predominately through the purchase of hunting and fishing licenses and self-imposed taxes on sporting arms, ammunition, archery and fishing equipment."

For those unacquainted with the sportsmen's role in conservation the following additional facts are presented: Revenues from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses on the average provide about three-quarters of the funding for the 50 state fish and wildlife agencies. This money makes possible the purchase of millions of acres of wildlife habitat and helps pay for research, conservation education, restocking and enforcement programs and other related activities which help all wildlife - songbirds and chipmunks as well as deer and elk.

Hunters and fishermen also spend an estimated $200 million to improve fish and wildlife habitat on private lands. They also provide a majority of the support for private conservation groups concerned with wildlife conservation.

Governor James encouraged all hunters and fishermen to exercise and encourage good outdoor ethics, safe boating and hunter safety practices and techniques and solicited the support of all Alabamians in recognizing the contributions of hunters and fishermen to conservation by supporting and participating in Hunting and Fishing Day on September 25.

Finally: a get-rich-quick scheme

by Richard Crosby

I've figured a way to get extremely wealthy! (RICH) All I need is a mechanical wizard to put my ideas into metal and it'll be a cake walk to easy street.

The brainstorm occurred at the Vincent-Shelby County contest last week. When I spied Dr. James Alston and family enjoying SRO (standing room only) I noticed that their stadium seats were not being used.

Now for years I've noticed the crowds that line the chainlink fences at the different stadiums in the county. A lot of those folks result from a full stadium and also because these folks like to watch the game from the fence.

With just a tad of brain work, I arrived at the simplest solution to the 'no seat game'.

Those stadium seats that give a cushy nesting place over hard concrete could also be used to create a seat where there is none. Herein lays my claim to future riches.

All we need is a clamp-on adapter that has a hook on one end to rest on the top bar of the chain link fence, and an adapter on the other to hook into the stadium seat. With a flick of the wrist, the seat hangs from the fence, the person strolls up and straddles the seat and presto -- you've got a seat at a sold out ball game. The additional benefit would be that as the team progresses on the field, you can slide along the top of the fence and keep up with the action. It would be simple to add a few ballbearings in the hook clamp and you wouldn't even have to get up. Just slide around.

During the off season, the kids could play on the fence with your adapted stadium seat, thereby getting them out of the house.

When the idea came, I could envision television commercials with scantily-clad bathing beauties showing how easy the adapter could be used. A fast-talking announcer would rattle through the sales pitch, promising delivery in eight to ten weeks. Even if my invention didn't work, most buyers wouldn't know it till next year because the football season would be over before they received it.

The excitement of this idea just boggles the brain. All I need is a toll free telephone number, some bathing beauties, a television station hungry for advertising, and eight feet of chainlink fence.

Well, I've given away enough of my ideas. If you wonder where I've gone, just watch the TV. You never know when I'll pop on during a ball game.

"Tired of standing instead of sitting at the ball game? We've got the solution! Just send $19.95 today and we'll include at no extra charge this handsome knife set, the referee's whistle, and a used football program. Yes folks, it's the greatest invention since the horseless carriage. Just dial 1-800-241-4444, that number again is 1-800-241-4444.....

Sure, it won't knock a hole in Your World if you don't vote TUESDAY

But the County Commission will be voting on lots of things that are important to you.

Shouldn't you have a voice in who represents you on the County Commission? Go to the polls and vote. Elect a man who cares about Shelby County.

Hornets fumble win to Bears

It's a cliché. "You can't turn the ball over and win." That's what happened to Chelsea last Friday night.

The Hornets lost 16-6 to Billingsley. Seven times Chelsea gave the ball to the other team. Twice fumbles came inside the 10 yard line as the Hornets prepared to score.

Chelsea did score first in the game. Greg Conkle caught a 42 yard pass from Jason Wiggins in the first quarter. The PAT was missed after a bad snap.

Billingsley got its first points in the second quarter after Chelsea fumbled. Three plays later the Bears kicked a 32 yard field goal. The score stood at 6-3 till the fourth quarter.

Chelsea took the opening kickoff of the second half and marched down the field to Billingsley's 10 yard line, but fumbled. The Hornets got the ball back four plays later and this time down to the Bear's four yard line. However, Chelsea fumbled away a second touchdown attempt.

Billingsley took the ball from there, and aided by 35 yards in penalties, drove 96 yards for a touchdown. That made the score 10-6 with seven minutes remaining.

The Hornets tried to come back, putting the ball in the air to pick up long distances, but that method backfired in the final two minutes as Billingsley intercepted a pass and ran it 44 yards for another score. The PAT was blocked, as the score remained 16-6.

This week Chelsea heads to West Blocton, a team that Coach Roger Hibbs says, "Gets after you. In order to win we'll have to stop the mental mistakes and turnovers. We're going to have to play FOOTBALL against West Blocton."

Both teams will be looking for the first victory of the year.

Mystery shrouds woman's disappearance

Countless leads have been followed in trying to find a Montevallo woman who disappeared last August 20.

However, 33 year old Ann Cadle seems to have vanished without a trace.

Employed at Bargaintown in Alabaster, Mrs. Cadle left work around 4 p.m. to meet her brother-in-law, Lamar Mills, in Montevallo.

He claimed she never showed up, but her car was found parked at Vallo Plaza, the appointed meeting place.

Montevallo Police Chief Allen Needham and others who have worked on the case believe Cadle is dead.

Needham said that he still gets suggestions about where to look for the missing woman. He reported investigating every bit of information that comes his way.

Chief Investigator Reed Smith with the Shelby County Sheriff's Department has also spent untold hours walking in the woods in North Chilton County where Cadle is believed to have gone the day she disappeared.

Cadle had told the aunt with whom she lived and fellow employees that she was going to that area to look at a trailer with her brother-in-law.

"If she's buried there, we could have walked right past the place and not known it," Needham said.

"I hope that one day we'll get the break that will lead us to her," the Montevallo police chief remarked.

Even though his efforts have been fruitless thus far, he declared that he didn't ever intend to give up on the search.

Dial new number for fire calls

It's been a quiet year so far for the Columbiana Fire Department. But no one ever knows when a serious blaze will occur, so residents should know that the department's telephone number has been changed, CFD member Jeff Hill told the Reporter.

The new number is 669-4997. It was changed by the telephone company along with other numbers in this area.

Another change the fire department anticipates is a lower fire insurance rating which will reduce premium payments for residents.

The city hadn't undergone an inspection in more than ten years, related CFD Chief Johnny Farr.

But a fire insurance inspector from the state was in town in late August to look over the city's water system, and the fire department's equipment and personnel.

Although Farr wouldn't commit himself to giving the rating he expects the department to get, Mayor Buck Falkner said he believes it will be a 6 or possibly a 5.

At the present time the department's rating is 8.

Farr said the new rating won't be known until December.

Keeping up with issues

Joan Simpson, seated, and Jean Webber look over a list of issues and candidates as part of their interest in governmental and civic affairs in Shelby County.

North Shelby women keep eye on county

by Frances Salla

They sit firmly erect in the hardback chairs. Neither speak, yet their eyes remain tensely alert as they watch and listen to the occupants of the small room.

Their pens are poised expectantly over note pads on their knees. Now and again their heads dip as they jot down some note. When the occupants of the room disperse, they rise also, speaking a word to this one or that, then leaving as quietly as they came, note pads tucked under their arms.

This scenario is played out every first and third Monday of the month when the Shelby County Commission meet to iron out the many problems of running Shelby County.

Having seen them there myself, and upon learning they attended almost every meeting, my curiosity was aroused.

Their names are Joan Simpson and Jean Webber, and it all began when the two found they had so much in common. Both are very civic-minded individuals, both have husbands who are involved in renovating airplanes as a hobby, and both their husbands are enrolled in the Preventive Medicine Program at U.A.B. By a happy coincidence, they both settled in Indian Valley, a subdivision in North Shelby County, on the same street.

Jean came here from Atlanta in 1977 where she had been active in programs to upgrade the schools.

Joan came from southern California in 1976. There, she had been involved in three presidential campaigns.

Shortly after moving here, they joined a garden club which in time evolved into a womens' club with no restrictions. The purpose of the club was to get the members active in community projects.

About two years, ago the two attended their first meeting with the Shelby County Commission on a matter of business. After that, they decided it would be beneficial to the club if they sat in on every meeting. Thus it began, and they soon became more or less permanent fixtures.

They found that the commission welcomed them warmly. After a time, they began to see how the county functioned, and were able to talk more knowledgeably about things that concerned them.

One of the first things they learned was the number of restrictions placed on the state and county which can only be lifted by the legislature.

They found the inner-workings of the county government intriguing, and that, as a citizen one can have considerable impact upon the decisions of the commission.

Both like their community but are puzzled by its reluctance to become politically or locally involved. This disturbs them. Both believe the county should clean up its litter more effectively, should bring in more industry and have a school system comparable to any city's and the tax base to support it.

They find the rolling green hills of the county very pleasant, the heat oppressive, and the distances to any point too far, but as a whole they find Shelby County a nice place to live and its people delightful.

One way you can trim meat costs is by shopping smart. Another way is through smart meal-planning - using protein extenders that increase the m.p.p. (meals per pound) value of the meat you buy.

Before learning how to stretch protein, though, it helps to know a little bit about this essential nutrient. You need protein for manufacturing new body cells as well as enzymes, antibodies and certain hormones. There are many different proteins, but they all have this in common: they're "spelled" by an "alphabet" of 22 amino acids. Of these amino acids, 14 (13 for infants) are produced by your body. The others must come directly from food.

Here's where meat comes into the picture. We call it the "best" source of protein only because it's the most complete, providing you with all the amino acids your body can't produce on its own. The same goes for several other foods of animal origin, such as milk, cheese and eggs.

There are, however, also many incomplete sources of protein - foods that contain some but not all of the amino acids found in meat and other animal proteins.

Kidney beans, lima beans, pinto beans, soy beans, black-eyed and split peas, peanuts and peanut butter are all "incompletes." So are whole grains -- barley, oats, rice, rye, wheat -- as well as corn and the many forms of pasta. Most nuts and seeds are also incomplete sources of protein.

By preparing meals that combine one or more of these foods with meat, you can "stretch" beef, ham, lamb, poultry, fish and other "completes." You'll get all the amino acids necessary for a balanced diet - and you'll save money.

Chances are you're already combining incompletes with completes. Do you pour milk on whole grain cereal for breakfast? Do you make tuna casseroles with noodles? With milk? With cheese? Do you serve beans or rice with beef? If so, you've been stretching protein.

Think of the possibilities. By serving chicken noodle soup and peanut butter on whole wheat bread sandwiches, you can extend the complete protein (chicken meat and broth) with several incomplete proteins (noodles, peanut butter and whole wheat bread). Even a single-dish meal can be packed with complete and incomplete proteins. Take lasagna, for instance. There's ground meat, noodles and several kinds of cheese, including cottage cheese.

Using protein extenders to raise the m.p.p. value of meat is sound nutritionally and economically.

Mob responds to exam for sheriff's deputy job

When the August 27 cutoff date came, Law Enforcement Personnel Board Secretary Betty Rayfield had 145 names on the list of individuals who applied to take the deputy's exam.

Because of the large number, the group will be divided. A morning testing session will begin at 9 a.m. with the afternoon group taking the exam at 1 p.m.

Joe Curtin will oversee the testing which will take place at Chelsea School. In 1980, Curtin drew up and administered the first exam given to individuals who wanted to become deputies with the Shelby County Sheriff's Department.

After talking to Curtin at a called meeting, the Personnel Board recently voted to continue using his services provided his bill did not exceed $1,000.

Because of the work involved in preparing the test, Curtin's first bill was over $2,000.

The new list will be certified by the board Oct. 18 and the individuals making the top three scores will be presented to Sheriff Budy Glasgow to choose from when a position comes open.

Wilsonville reactivates industry board

by Fred Guarino
The Wilsonville Industrial Development Board has been reactivated.

In a meeting held Monday, August 23, the town council voted to reinstate the board for the purpose of seeking future tax free bonds totalling $10 million.

The bonds will be sold in cooperation with Southern Electric Generating Company (SEGCO) for the purpose of upgrading the Wilsonville Steam Plant.

The work at the plant is scheduled to begin in 1983. SEGCO has also been given permission by the Alabama Public Service Commission to borrow up to $20,000 for the project.

Members of the Wilsonville Industrial Development Board are: Kyle Lansford, Gene Sasser, Austin Mitchell, Gregory Thomas, E. W. Scruggs, Albert Watkins, and Mrs. Gene Barnes.

In addition, the town council voted to approve a resolution allowing an increase in homestead exemptions in Wilsonville from $2,000 to $4,000 per year.

Although the move will reduce the revenue of the Town of Wilsonville, it will give homeowners a decrease in property taxes.

The resolution adopted by Wilsonville was made possible by an act of the state legislature which allows counties and municipalities the option of increasing the homestead exemptions or leaving them as they are. Both the action to reactivate the industrial development board and the resolution on homestead exemption were passed unanimously.

The only other business handled by the council was to reject all bids for its 1977 LTD Ford police car. Bids recently received did not approach the amount the town wanted for the car, City Clerk Margaret Cain said.

Shelby speaks for Alabama.

On the Federal Budget:

Balancing the budget is the single most important step that can be taken to restore our Nation's economy. To achieve this end, Richard Shelby has introduced legislation in the 97th Congress calling for a constitutional amendment which requires a balanced budget and places a cap on government spending.

Richard Shelby has consistently fought against big government and for a balanced budget, a smaller federal bureaucracy, for less government regulations and sound fiscal policy.

On Jobs:

Richard Shelby knows that jobs are essential to economic growth and development. Since serving in Congress, he has worked to provide economic incentives for investment, capital formation and increased productivity necessary to create jobs for our District and Nation. He has consistently attempted to strip away unnecessary government regulation that has strangled large and small businesses.

He is currently supporting stronger enforcement of our existing trade laws and new anti-dumping legislation that will help balance our trade deficit and keep our jobs in America.

He is also helping to lead the fight in Congress against those who would halt construction of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway, a project that will create thousands of jobs and bring economic prosperity to much of our District.

On Taxes:

Congressman Shelby has maintained his commitment to reduce the tax bite from hard-earned dollars. He strongly supported last year's multi-year tax-cut package and has held fast against proposals to restore those taxes through the back door. Richard Shelby believes that tax reduction is necessary to invigorate the economy as well as ease the current tax burden borne by the citizens of this country.

On Crime:

Richard Shelby is a powerful voice in Congress for a hard line approach toward criminals. It is time to stop the crime wave sweeping this Nation. Those who kill or victimize the innocent should expect to receive swift and certain punishment.

Congressman Shelby has co-sponsored legislation which requires a mandatory minimum sentence for criminals convicted of using or threatening to use a firearm in the act of a crime.

In a further effort to make our streets and neighborhoods safe from crime once again, Richard Shelby is also fighting for restoration of the federal death penalty and limits on lengthy delays in executing sentences after normal appeals are exhausted.

Congressman Shelby Speaks For You:

Because He Stays In Touch...

Four years ago, Richard Shelby promised to carry the views of the people of the Seventh Congressional District to Congress.

Congressman Richard Shelby continues to fulfill that promise every day. He has held over 215 town meetings and community visits throughout the Seventh District, listening to thousands of views and opinions. He also sends out an annual questionnaire to everyone in the district. These allow him to make the tough decisions necessary to best represent the Seventh District.

Congressman Richard Shelby believes in keeping you informed on what is happening in Congress too. Through weekly radio and television shows and newsletters, Congressman Shelby reports to the Seventh District on what is happening in Washington.

Many Congressmen go to Washington and forget about those back home who voted for him—Not RICHARD SHELBY. He is receptive to the needs of the District because he stays in touch.

Because He's a Native Son...

Congressman Richard Shelby was born and grew up in the Seventh District. He was a successful practicing attorney in the Seventh District for over 16 years and maintains his home here. He works and lives among the people of our District. He knows us and he knows our problems because he has experienced them first-hand.

Congressman Shelby has traveled thousands of miles visiting courthouses, city halls, service stations, post offices, and family businesses. He can relate to what we—farmers, businessmen, consumers, teachers, factory workers, and administrators—tell him because he understands us.

Flipped across room

Westover man takes 240 volts

T.O. Richey, maintenance technician at Chelsea School, had a shocking experience the day school opened.

As he flipped a breaker switch in the cafeteria, 240 volts of electricity coursed through his body. Responding to a call for help, English teacher John Ritchie found the maintenance technician jammed between a table and a restaurant size mix master.

Ritchie and school coaches revived the injured man who was transported by ambulance to Brookwood Hospital.

After being examined, Richey was released and returned to work Wednesday.

The doctor at Brookwood told him, Richey said, that the accident might have been fatal if he had been a smaller person or if he had not been wearing thick rubber soled shoes.

Acting on his doctor's orders, the maintenance technician stayed at work only a half day last week performing light tasks.

Renovation work had been done in the cafeteria during the summer, and according to Richey, construction workers had not turned the power on when they finished.

When he flipped the switch in the fuse box, Richey said, "It just bit me!"

Lunchroom worker Rose Jones was in an adjoining room when the accident happened. She was the first to find Richey against the wall on the opposite side of the room from the fuse box.

When Ritchie reached the injured man, he was unconscious and the English teacher reported that he was unable to find a pulse.

His first step, Ritchie explained, was to make sure the technician's airway was clear. Finding the tongue where it belonged, Ritchie said he rechecked the pulse and found it.

"You should never do more than you need to," he stressed, pointing out that CPR could have done more harm than good.

Death inspires others

A Siluria pastor conducted a funeral and a group baptism on the same day last week.

According to Ricky Smith, minister of the First Pentacostal Church of God on Smokey Road, 25 people have found new life following the death of a friend.

Smith baptized most of the converts in Buck Creek the same day he conducted the funeral service for 27 year old Benny Joe Ray.

The Siluria man had been shot and killed following an argument.

After his funeral service, Smith said that Ray's friends talked to him at his mother's home, which is in the neighborhood where most of the group live.

"They told me," Smith recounted, "that they didn't want to die like that."

Smith said that he and two ministers from his church who were with him, led the group to Christ.

And he told them, Smith said, that their friend's life had not been wasted since it had made them realize they needed a savior.

Members of the Christian Fellowship of Law Enforcement Officers provided Bibles for all the new believers who range in age from teens through the twenties.

According to the minister, the group attended the services his church holds on Wednesday and Thursday, and the Sunday worship service and Sunday School.

Endorsements expected from Suburban League

The Alabaster Suburban League is expected to make its political endorsements Labor Day night.

League chairman Robert L. Tolbert said the screening committee has interviewed all local candidates at least once, and some of them twice. But until the eve of the primary election, the organization will not make any public endorsements.

According to Tolbert, there has been some confusion between the League and political endorsements made recently by the Shelby County Democratic Conference. The League, Tolbert said, is non-partisan, and is not limited to endorsements for only one party.

"We want to clarify that these (SCDC endorsements) are not necessarily our recommendations," Tolbert said. "We haven't made any decisions yet, though we've discussed them."

The predominantly black Alabaster Suburban League has been in existence 14 years, and is composed of representatives from Nuclear Energy is important to the National Energy Scene.

In 1982, nuclear power will generate a record 13.4 percent of U.S. electricity, 15 percent more than last year.

Nuclear energy surpassed oil as a generating fuel in 1980, and is expected to overtake both natural gas and hydropower in 1982. In Alabama Power's service area, nuclear supplied 21 percent of the power generated by the company last year.

"But Mitchell Goes A Step Further."

A recent Birmingham Post-Herald study of municipal courts and judges in Greater Birmingham on drunken driving convictions showed Eason Mitchell to be the example for other judges to follow. The Post-Herald's study and story "Drunk at the wheel" stated...

Birmingham Post-Herald, Thursday, July 8, 1982

But Mitchell goes a step further. "When I see a DUI case, I can do a preliminary screening on the case. Using the blood alcohol count (taken by the arresting officer using a Breathalyzer machine) and his previous record, I can tell if I have a problem drinker on my hands."

Eason Mitchell is the municipal judge for Calera, Montevallo, Wilton and Jemison. He uses his judicial discretion to devise creative treatments for drunken drivers.

Mitchell, according to his municipal court records, will often instruct a drunken driver to "obey the law, attend a DUI school, meet with a (psychiatric) counselor monthly and attend Alcoholics Anonymous twice a week."

The judge consults with trained psychologists to determine if treatment is necessary to ensure the drunken driver does not repeat the offense.

Mitchell will also sometimes send drunken drivers to the Alcohol Recovery Center in Birmingham, to the Chilton-Shelby Mental Health Center for emotional counseling or even, in cases of habitual offenders, to the county jail.

"But I think AA is the most effective means of treating alcoholism that we know of. Their cure rate is about 25 percent — which is the best success rate there is for alcoholism."

Mitchell figures his program has had an impact on repeat offenders. In Montevallo, a court clerk reported there were 79 drunken driving cases in 1980 before Mitchell began his alcoholism referral program. During the first six months of this year there have been 15 DUI cases — more than a 50 percent decline.

"Something can be done about DUI. But you gotta take an interest in it," Mitchell said.

Montevallo Mayor Ralph Sears is quick to credit the judge's methods with the drop in drunken driving cases in his town.

"We are very pleased with the program our municipal court has implemented here. It works. I think Eason Mitchell is deserving most of the principal credit."

This is another example why Judge Eason Mitchell's proven ability and hard work is what we need in our Circuit Court. He has a six year successful record as a competent judge. Judge Mitchell will work full-time; enforce the Victim Restitution Act; eliminate wasted time and expense in the court system; have a fair and prompt trial for all; and make more efficient use of witnesses' and jurors' time.

K-C closes mill

The Kimberly-Clark Corporation is temporarily suspending operations at its papermill in Childersburg. The move is expected to affect about 850 employees.

Sanford B. Pinkerton, president of K-C's Coosa River Newsprint, Pulp and Forest Products Company at Childersburg, said last week that the mill will suspend operations for 12 days, beginning Wednesday, September 8.

According to Pinkerton, the action is being taken because of currently weak markets for newsprint and groundwood printing papers. Pinkerton said customer inventories on these products are at, or near, record levels.

Demand for production is expected to remain weak until customer inventories are reduced.

About half of the mill's 1,700 employees will be affected by the temporary shutdown, Pinkerton said. However, the plant's market pulp operations and some of the woodlands operations will not be affected, he said.

The plant will resume operations on Monday, September 20.

Suspension of operations at the Childersburg plant is expected to affect workers in Shelby, Talladega, St. Clair and Coosa Counties.

Most of the mill's newsprint and groundwood paper customers are publishers in the South and Southwest.

Running okra keeps growing

When Lucille Nichols gave a variety of seed called running okra to her "green thumb" neighbor Polly Pitts, neither woman imagined what the result would be.

When the pods continued growing until some reached 25½ inches in length, the neighbors were astonished.

Pitts said that quite a few people have stopped by her apartment in the Columbiana housing project to see the outside crop.

Although she enjoyed growing the vegetable in her small garden strip, Pitts says the taste of okra has never appealed to her.

So Nichols will be the one to cook the okra after it's picked to see how it tastes.

In addition to adding an extra splash of color to her garden, the yellow blossoms that open on the okra plant late in the afternoon have fascinated Pitts and her neighbor as they've observed them.

An old hand at gardening, Pitts recounted that she grew up on a farm near Wilsonville. After her marriage, she also lived on a farm in the Four Mile community, Pitts added.

It was a good many years ago, Pitts said, but she remembered her sister cutting the ends off some large okra that she had grown.

"And those ends would seal over and keep right on growing," she laughed.

But Pitts is satisfied to leave her okra alone and see how they fare.

She said that she plans to share the seed from the plant with anyone who would like to try their luck at growing gargantuan okra.

Giant okra

Polly Pitts shows off the biggest okra pod she can ever remember seeing. It's 25½ inches in length. The seed was planted in the spring outside her apartment in the Columbiana Housing Project.

Easier rules for child actors

Fewer work restrictions for child actors may mean more opportunities to work in films produced in Alabama.

Action taken by the state legislature during the 1982 regular session exempts young actors from some requirements of Alabama's Child Labor Law.

The time and hour restrictions have been removed for children under 16 years of age who perform in a motion picture.

The film must, however, be approved by the Alabama Film Commission and the Alabama Department of Industrial Relations.

INFORMATION AND RULES FOR EXHIBITS AND EXHIBITORS

1. The Shelby County Fair Association, Inc. (hereafter called Fair Association) reserves the right to construe its own rules and regulations and to determine all matters and differences pertaining thereto.

2. The Fair Association furnishes a night watchman to safeguard exhibits, but it is understood that the exhibits are entered in competition for prizes and premiums and that the owner or Exhibitor assumes all responsibility for any accident, loss, theft or damage that may occur. Neither the Fair Association nor its officers, members or agents will be responsible for any such accident, loss, theft or damage.

3. Those persons wishing to display exhibits and enter in competition for prizes and premiums (such persons are herein called Exhibitors) will bring their exhibits to the Recreation Building in Columbiana adjacent to the Shelby County High School football field at the site of the Shelby County Fair (such building is herein called the Exhibit Building) on either Saturday, September 11 from 10:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M. or on Sunday, September 12 from 2:00 P.M. to 4:00 P.M. The only exception is that Home Extension and other booths may be erected on Saturday, September 11 from approximately 9:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M. During these times there will be Fair Association representatives present to assist with the proper registration of all exhibits.

4. From September 7 through 10 Exhibitors may pick up from the County Extension Office at the Shelby County Courthouse, the Exhibitor Entry Form and Tags. This will allow the Exhibitors to complete the paperwork for their exhibits prior to arriving at the Exhibit Building for registration.

5. No Exhibitor can have more than 1 entry in any Class. Only a First, Second and Third place ribbon will be awarded by the judges in each Class, except there are separate rules for 4-H Department 14. Exhibits will not be judged if that same exhibit has been awarded any premium place in any previous Shelby County Fair. Exhibits must be made by the Exhibitor entering the item or otherwise directly created or contributed to by the Exhibitor. Professional Exhibitors are not allowed.

6. All exhibits will be judged during the afternoon on Monday, September 13, before the Fair opens at 5:30 P.M. During this time, the Exhibit Building will be cleared of all people, including Exhibitors, so that the judges can work efficiently. The judges will prepare a master list of winners and affix ribbons on the exhibits based upon this list; however, the judges' list and not the ribbons will govern as to premiums to be paid to Exhibitors.

7. The list of winning Exhibitors in each Class will be posted in the Exhibit Building on Wednesday, September 15, and the premium money will be paid based upon this list on Saturday, September 18, beginning at 8:00 P.M. at the Exhibit Building. First prize $5.00, Second prize $3.00, Third prize $2.00. Exhibitors are encouraged to review the list of winners, as no deviation will be made from this list at the time of premium payment.

8. All canned exhibits (Departments 2 thru 8) must be in regular canning jars. They may be canned in half-pint, pint or quart jars. No jars larger than quarts will be allowed. All jars must be sealed and properly labeled as to the contents prior to registration.

9. Premium money will be paid in Susan B. Anthony Dollars to the winners in Departments 1 through 3; however, any Exhibitor winning premiums totaling $30.00 or more will receive a check, with the understanding that such check may be cashed at the drawee bank or any branch thereof for Susan B. Anthony Dollars.

10. No exhibit is to be removed from the Exhibit Building until the payment of premium money begins on Saturday, September 18, around 8:00 P.M. At this time Exhibitors who are not entitled to collect premium money will remove their exhibits. Exhibitors who are entitled to collect premium money will remove their exhibits after they have been paid. All exhibits are to be removed from the Exhibit Building by 11:00 P.M. on Saturday, September 18, except the Exhibit Building will be open on Sunday, September 19 from 2:00 to 5:00 P.M. for individuals to pick-up any remaining exhibits and to dismantle any remaining booths.

11. Exhibitors will not be allowed to drive a motor vehicle through the entrance Gate to the Exhibit Building for the purpose of removing exhibits, without first receiving written permission from the Fair Association officials in charge of the Exhibit Building, which writing will be displayed to those attending the entrance Gate. To further avoid traffic problems, Exhibitors who are entitled to premium money will not be given such written permission until they have collected their premium money.

12. Please feel free to contact the Fair Association officers in charge of the 1982 Shelby County Fair, they are: Evan K. Major, Jr., Fair Manager (Res. 669-6302, Office 669-3149); Col. J. Agriculture is Big Business in Shelby County Agriculture is the largest single industry in Shelby County, bringing in excess of $20 million dollars a year. Beef production is the number 1 commodity followed by dairy, cotton, soybeans, and swine.

There are approximately 240 beef producers ranging from small registered herds to large commercial herds. Eighteen grade A dairies are located in the county, with herds sized from 20 up to 300 cows. Cotton producers number approximately 36 with 5,500 acres planted. Six thousand acres are planted in soybeans by 38 farmers. There are approximately 34 hog producers in the county.

County Herds Win Top Awards

Four Shelby Countians received Master Dairyman Awards at the annual dairymen's meeting in Montgomery last month. Ralph Bearden of Bearden Farms in Vincent was top contender in the high milk and fat, large Holstein herd. To be selected for the Master Dairyman Award the herd average must be at least 15,400 pounds of milk or 590 pounds of butterfat. Bearden's herd average was 18,150 pounds of milk and 610 pounds of butterfat. There are 162 cows in the herd.

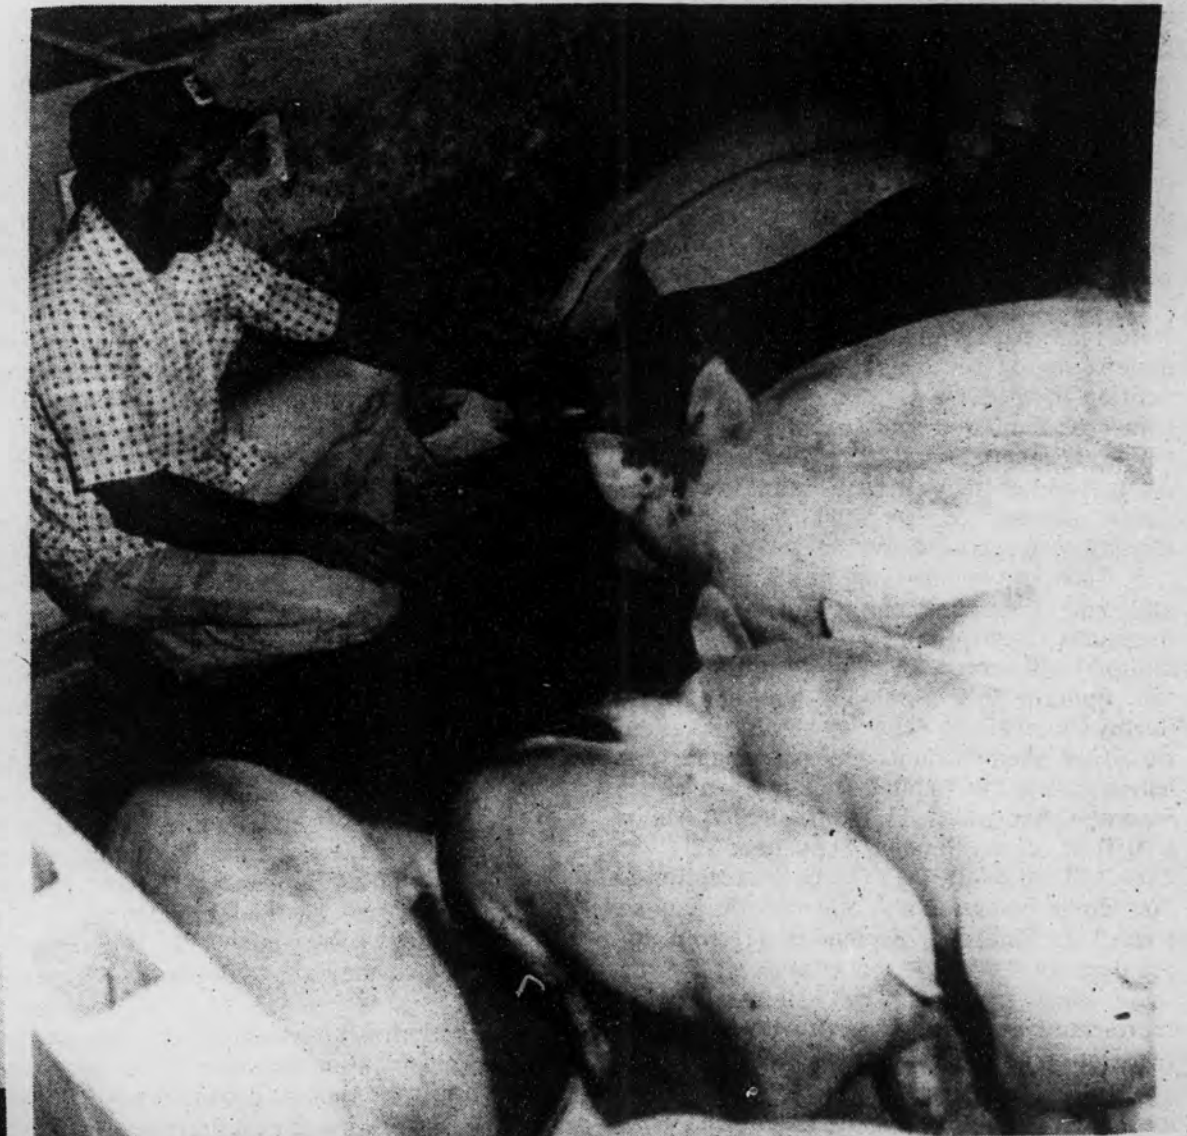

Other county dairymen receiving awards were Calvin McCarthy of Camarlea Dairy in Harpersville with 44 cows, 17,429 pounds of milk and 610 pounds of butterfat; Steve Peoples of J.E. Bearden Dairy in Helena with 294 cows, 16,851 pounds of milk and 608 pounds of butterfat; Mike Kent of Alabaster with 40 cows, 15,954 pounds of milk and 493 pounds of butterfat.

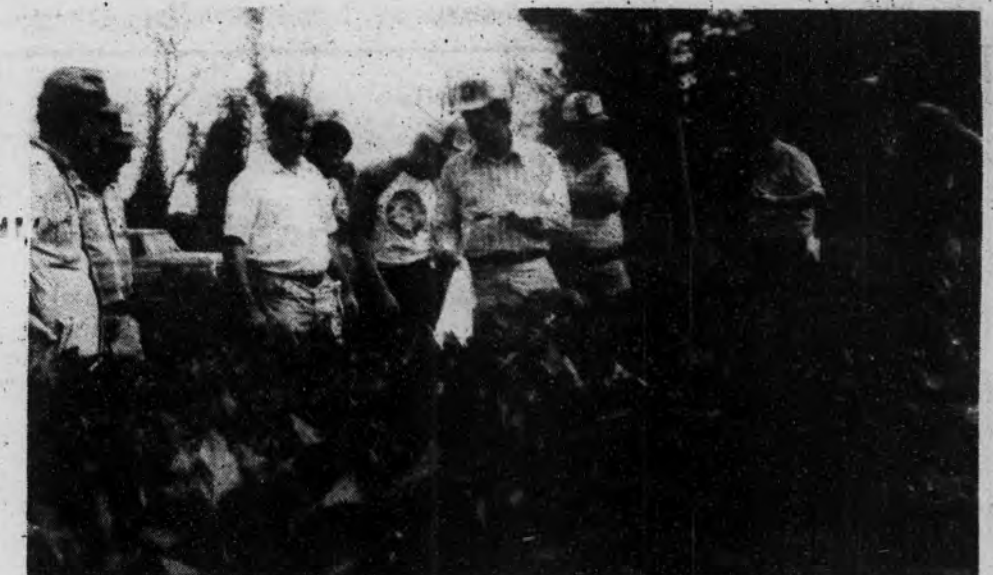

Grant Gober, County Agent Coordinator and Wayne Blankenship look over fall grazing for Wayne's beef herd.

Timber and timber products are a big commodity in Shelby County from both individual and commercial companies. H.M. Gordon and his son, Brian, were the recent winners of the State Treasure Forest award. The award is given annually to an outstanding tree farmer in the state.

Getting ready for market - Robert Byrd, Jr., Maylene, checks over his hogs in preparation for market day.

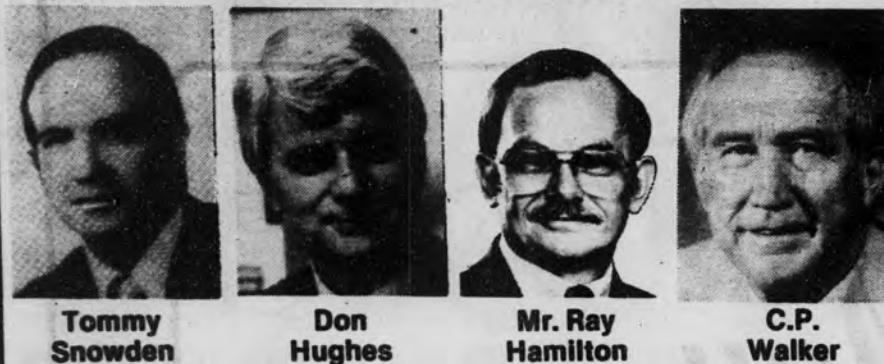

Shelby County soybean producers inspect a soybean field in the Vincent area. The soybean crop looks good for this time of year.

Local farmers recently toured Harpersville cotton fields. The prospect for a good cotton crop at this time is very favorable.

MEET THE CANDIDATES

INFORMATION ON THE CANDIDATES FOR THE ELECTIONS IN SHELBY COUNTY
SEPTEMBER 7, 1982.

RE-ELECT

Sheriff J.F. "Buddy" Glasgow

YOU BE THE JUDGE

One of the best ways in which to judge a Law Enforcement Officer is his relationship with other Law Enforcement Agencies. Sheriff Glasgow has an enviable reputation with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Alabama State Troopers, the Attorney General's Office, and all local Police Departments.

CAN YOU AFFORD NOT TO RE-ELECT SHERIFF GLASGOW?

Subject to the action of the Democratic Primaries and the General Election November 2, 1982.

Paid Political Advertisement by The Committee to Re-Elect Sheriff Glasgow, Mary McCardle, Chairman.

September 1, 1982
Dear Fellow Shelby Countians;

Thank you again for your support and vote that elected me your Sheriff four years ago, and for your continued support. Although my name will not appear on the ballot for the Democratic Primary, I will be facing other party opposition in the General Election, and again I am asking for your support and vote.

I am dedicated to serving you as your Sheriff, and I believe my record for the past four years assures you of this dedication. From 1970 to 1980 the population of our county increased 89%. Since 1977 we have been able to DECREASE CRIME 33%, with an increase of only 8% in my personnel. I ask you to compare this with the national level. I have worked to upgrade the qualifications of my personnel with additional schooling and training; added necessary equipment to the department as funds permitted; and established a good relationship with other county officials and Law Enforcement Agencies. I know we can be proud of the department and all of its people!

Staying within budget while still providing you with professional, progressive, and effective Law Enforcement still continues to be my goal for your Sheriff's Department.

Your support and your vote in the General Election on November 2, 1982 will be appreciated.

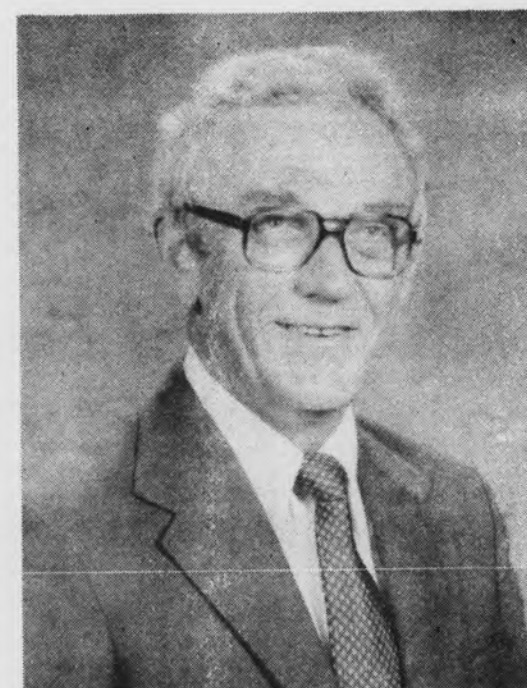

Sincerely,

Buddy

Sheriff J.F. "Buddy" Glasgow

"There's No Substitute For Experience"

Paid Political Adv. by Charles A. Knowles Campaign Committee Reid Long, Chairman, Alabaster, Ala.

Whitman wants to continue working for schools

For the past six years, Barbara Whitman has served on the Shelby County Board of Education.

"I have visited each school at least once every year, talking with principals, teachers, support personnel, parents and pupils," she said. "It was at my insistence that the board began meeting at night in the school communities during the year."

"I have encouraged citizens to attend and participate in board meetings," she added.

Whitman says she has worked to keep the promises made when she took office six years ago. PTAs no longer have to raise money to pay school secretaries, buy soap and janitorial supplies and pay their janitors. The Board of Education now provides for these necessities through tax dollars.

School visitation was one of her promises.

"I wanted people to know that I care about each one of our schools. Our buildings are in better repair than six years ago. We're making every effort to provide a permanent classroom for every student. We met with Governor James a few months ago to request funds from the oil lease money to meet out need for more permanent structures.

"Our test scores are now at or above state and national averages. We want them to be even better."

"We're using our local tax dollars to buy textbooks so that every student has what he or she needs in the classroom. We're using local tax money to buy books for the libraries. These last two items are possible because citizens passed a one-cent sales tax two years ago, with half the revenue going to the school system."

Board meetings are held at convenient times and rotated from school to school to encourage the public to attend.

A new salary schedule for teachers enables the school system to attract and keep more qualified personnel, with an evaluation system that's very effective.

A new attendance program is being planned to encourage better attendance. This enhances students' learning, helps teachers do a better job and increases state fund allocations.

Whitman said the board is concerned about the inadequacies in the kindergarten program and will work to improve the program. "We will continue to consider alternate plans for kindergarten students as well as working with our legislators to obtain additional funds," she said.

The mother of two teenagers, Whitman said she takes a special personal interest in the Shelby County school system.

"Our children are our future, our most valuable asset. We owe them the best primary and secondary education we can possibly provide. I have appreciated the opportunity to serve as a member of the Shelby County Board of Education and would like to continue for another six years."

Barbara Whitman

Ray Hamilton will provide strong leadership

Ray Hamilton, a life-long resident of Shelby County, has proved himself to be a business and community leader. He would like to use that experience and dedication to serve the citizens of Shelby County as their probate judge.

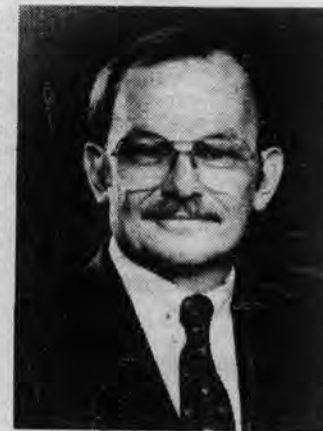

Hamilton has been president of the Pelham Area Chamber of Commerce two terms and he is serving his second term as a Pelham city councilman. This is the kind of leadership experience which has given him strength in the areas of administrative and judicial government and how to be efficient in the administration of probate matters. The judge of probate is responsible for maintenance of county fiscal records, preparation of the budget, and purchasing for the county.

Hamilton is qualified for this responsibility. He has served as director of finance for the city of Pelham since 1976. An area of impressive growth, Pelham is financially "in the black".

Hamilton will be the kind of probate judge who provides a constructive agenda for the County Commission, establishes timely priorities and will be knowledgeable of the facts in all issues to be discussed. He will be able to make suggestions and recommendations affecting sound management for the county governing body.

"Shelby County faces real growing pains and we're fortunate to have an abundance of fine, dedicated county employees capable of handling this growth," he said.

Ray Hamilton

"But, above all, they need competent leadership, effective representation in our county commission, and progressive management to meet the challenges of today and tomorrow."

Hamilton is a college graduate and has been in business management for over 15 years. He is the founder and president of Land Planning Inc., in Shelby County and serves as director of Industrial Services for Alabama Goodwill Industries Inc.

"I would like the opportunity to be Shelby County's leader, to project the real and correct image of this county's people — hard-working, productive and intelligent," he said.

He recognizes the need for leadership in Shelby County.

Ray is a member of Our Lady of the Valley Church. He is married to the former Billie Jenkins, also a native of Shelby County, and they have three children.

Glasscox stresses improved opportunities

Ellie Glasscox, a candidate for Shelby County Superintendent of Education in the Sept. 7 Democratic Primary, says improving educational opportunities for students will be his main goal if elected.

He offers the following five-point platform:

- Emphasis will be placed back in the classroom environment.
- Improved discipline in the classroom, for a better teaching-learning situation.

A recent Shelby County Education Association (SCEA) poll of faculty members and administrators in the 22 Shelby County schools indicated strong support for Glasscox. Fifty percent of those polled favored Glasscox, with his opponents receiving 18 and 16 percent, respectively, with nine percent undecided.

On August 5, Glasscox

Ellie Glasscox

received the unanimous endorsement of the newly formed SCEA Political Action Committee, an organization open to all Shelby County System educators and employees.

Glasscox, 35, has extensive experience in all fields of education and athletics. He attended Athens College on a basketball scholarship, graduating Cum Laude in 1968. Following graduation, he accepted a position as math teacher, head basketball coach and assistant football coach at Thompson High School.

While teaching higher level math for the next seven years, he attended the University of Montevallo at night to earn a Master of Science degree in School Administration with a perfect 3.0 Average. He also became certified as a physical education and Driver Education teacher.

But Glasscox's success wasn't limited to the classroom. As head basketball coach, he directed Thompson to two consecutive state championships in 1976 and 1977, and earned statewide Coach of the Year honors. He also coached the state high school all-star game at the University of Alabama.

In 1977, Glasscox became assistant principal at Thompson, while remaining assistant football coach. From the summer of 1980, to the summer of 1981, Glasscox served as Coordinator of Transportation in the central office, resuming his duties as assistant principal and assistant football coach at Thompson in 1981.

Glasscox is married to Bobbie Lee, a lifelong resident of Pelham. They have two daughters — Shawn, 11, a student at Riverchase Middle School, and Kip, 6, a first grader at Valley Elementary. They are members of the First Baptist Church of Pelham.

Armstrong asks second term as circuit judge

Robert Armstrong is one of three circuit judges serving the 18th Judicial Circuit comprised of Clay, Coosa and Shelby Counties. Each judge serves the entire circuit.

Circuit court is the highest state trial court and has unlimited jurisdiction. Anyone who is ever affected by a court case will realize the importance of the circuit court.

Judge Armstrong is the most experienced candidate in the running. His experience has been with non-jury, equity and domestic cases, plus he has shared the criminal and civil jury work load.

Before he was circuit judge, Armstrong was Shelby County's district court judge. He handled small claims, civil cases involving $500 to $5,000, county criminal court, felony preliminary hearings and juvenile court.

He previously was an assistant district attorney, municipal judge for Wilsonville and Columbiana and a private attorney. With such varied experience, he has knowledge of every aspect of court and has handled nearly every kind of case.

Armstrong represents fairness and absolute honesty on the bench. This means the law will be followed regardless of the persons involved, or public or private reaction.

Judge Armstrong is a hard worker. As district judge his case disposal record was one of the highest in the state, with a large backlog that had to be handled.

As circuit judge in the non-jury areas where he controls the docket, he sets cases nearly every day and proceeds with trials as soon as the attorneys are ready. According to a recent state survey, Shelby County has one of the least adequate physical facilities but in spite of that, the judges do a commendable job.

Armstrong will treat all persons courteously and he makes good use of the juror information phone to let jurors know if they are not needed as scheduled. This system saves jurors' time and it saves the taxpayer dollars in juror fees.

Armstrong said, "Many concerned and interested persons are asking for your vote. Think of what a judge's job is. Realize that promises cannot be made to the public to do anything but follow the law and apply it fairly."

Citizens who "care about honesty in government and a quality judicial system" are urged to vote for Armstrong on Sept. 7.

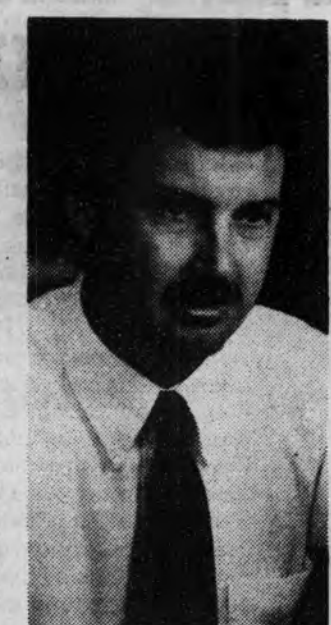

Tanner hopes to give new district a quality start

Pelham attorney John Tanner is a candidate for the Alabama House of Representative's newly formed 49th District seat, which includes parts of north and southwest Shelby County and a portion of south Jefferson County.

"We live in one of the fastest growing areas of the state," said Tanner, shortly after filing for election. "I intend to see that we have the right kind of growth — quality growth. And, for that, we must begin with quality representation in Montgomery. I've lived here since 1975. I know the people and their problems, and I'm not afraid to speak up in the Legislature."

Tanner listed his concern for the quality of education in the 49th District as one of the main motivations behind his candidacy. "I have a personal interest," Tanner said. "I have a daughter who will soon be entering our school system. I am but one of many who want our children to have the best. I know that when our schools are strong, our community is strong. I am determined to work hard and to preserve and strengthen the quality of life in the 49th District, and this begins with the best system of education possible."

Tanner, a two term

John Tanner

member of the Pelham City Council, was instrumental in coordinating state and federal programs to obtain financial aid for Pelham's police, fire and rescue departments. He initiated a computerized grant search and reporting procedure which provided the information which enabled Pelham to obtain a $100,000 Federal grant to purchase land for new park and recreation facilities.

In 1976, he was successful in eliminating South Central Bell's mileage charges, which reduced the telephone rates for the entire northern portion of Shelby County, saving each customer $5-15 per month.

"People want the most for their money. They want quality service and that's what they've gotten here. I intend to see that the people of the 49th District get the same service."

Tanner was elected to his second term on the City Council by a large majority and chosen Mayor Pro Tem by his fellow Council members. He worked to establish the Pelham area Chamber of Commerce. He was also instrumental in securing the law which prohibited massage parlors and pornography in the City of Pelham.

Tanner has served on committees for the Heart Fund, the Red Cross, Multiple Sclerosis, Toys for Tots and the Fraternal Order of Police. He was named as one of the Outstanding Young Men of America in 1979-80.

Tanner, a graduate of Jacksonville State University and the Cumberland School of Law is an active member of the First Baptist Church of Pelham. He and his wife Debbie have one daughter, Kristi, 17 months.

He believes it is time for new leadership in that office. If elected he will work for a reorganization to make the office more effective in meeting the needs of Shelby County people. No employee will be asked to work unreasonable hours, but the offices will have extended hours to be convenient for the people, he said.

"The potential for growth in this county is phenomenal. Population is predicted to increase 75 percent in the next 10 years. This will require new housing units and expanded county services.

"Motor vehicle registrations may increase another 114 percent compared to 43 percent for the rest of the state," says Hughes. He wants to provide the leadership this county needs in the probate judge's office during the next few years of progress and growth.

State Representative District 49

A Quality Beginning For Our New District

"There are some important decisions to be made. We must not be afraid to look squarely at the problems and decide what needs to be done."

"When our schools are strong, our community is strong. We must give our children the education they deserve. When we scrimp on education we cheat our community but even more important, we sacrifice our children's future."

"All our plans will be for nothing if we don't succeed in making our District a safe and pleasant place to live—a good place to raise a family."

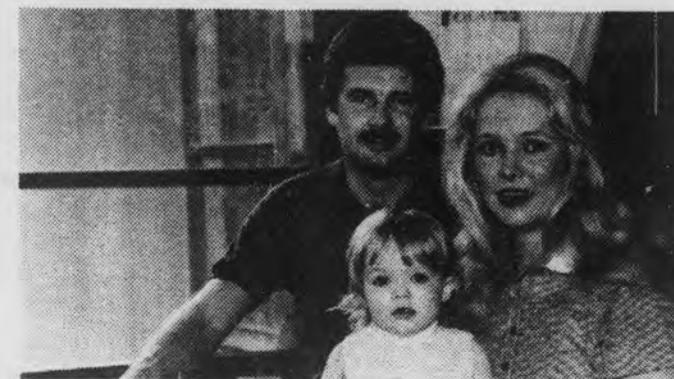

"Our District needs strong, aggressive leadership based on a true spirit of cooperation. We cannot afford to fall back on mere rhetoric and negative politics of the past. We need a positive approach to government backed up with hard work."

Quality Leadership

John Tanner has a record that proves he can meet the challenges ahead because he has successfully met the challenges of the past. It was this type of leadership that reelected him to a second term on the Pelham City Council by the largest majority ever and made him his associates' choice for Mayor Pro Tem.

He is currently the city's liaison with the State Legislature and with Washington, D.C. A quick look at some of his accomplishments will tell you why we need to put him to work for all of us:

- started a computerized grant search system to help Pelham find much needed funds
- helped coordinate financial programs that have given his city first-rate Police, Fire, and Rescue Departments
- helped find funding for Pelham's new park and recreation facilities
- was successful in eliminating South Central Bell's mileage charges, saving each customer in North Shelby County from $5-$15 each month

A proven leader, Glasgow asks second term

Sheriff James F. (Buddy) Glasgow was born and raised in Shelby County and except for two years in the U.S. Army has always lived and worked in the county.

He is asking the voters of Shelby County to re-elect him to this important office on the basis of his experience and training. With over 15 years in law enforcement, including six as chief deputy before he was elected sheriff in 1978, Glasgow is the only officer in Shelby County who is a graduate of the FBI Academy.

He has attended many schools to receive training, such as the Alabama Police Academy, Southern Police Institute where he studied "Current Problems and Concepts in Police Administration", and the University of Alabama to study Criminal Investigation and police administration.

He has taken training in crime investigation and how to collect physical evidence, in jail standards and federal guidelines for local institutions. Some of these schools were as far away as Louisville, Ky., New Jersey, Louisiana and even the U.S. Secret Service in Washington, D.C.

In addition, he never ceases in his search for knowledge pertaining to his profession so that he can continue to improve on his leadership and his services to the county.

Not only is he a leader in his profession, but a community leader as well. He serves on the board of directors of the Alabama Boys and Girls Ranch; a member of the Law Enforcement Academy advisory board at the University of Alabama; past chairman of the Commission for the Alabama Criminal Justice Information; a member of the Law Enforcement Planning Agency Region IV advisory board; a member of the advisory board, R.S.V.P.; past president of the Alabama Sheriffs Association; a member of the National Sheriffs Association; a member of the Democratic Executive Committee; a member of the Fraternal Order of Police, the Civitans, VFW, and the Lions Club. He is also a member of Masonic Lodge No. 462 and Eastern Star Chapter No. 476, the Scottish Rite and Zamora Temple. He is the past Grand Master for Alabama, the first sheriff to achieve this honor.

Married to the former Billie Henson, an employee of the Shelby Medical Center, they have three children.

For the past three years, Sheriff Glasgow has operated his department within the budget he proposed, yet he has been able to give Shelby County an efficiently run department respected throughout the state.

James F. (Buddy) Glasgow

The sheriff has increased his staff from 39 to 51 personnel and will continue to add more to the force as funds become available.

He considers qualifications and training of his personnel to be top priority. His deputies go to fingerprint schools and train in criminal investigation and evidence techniques.

Having qualified personnel and working closer with the people has enabled Sheriff Glasgow to reduce the county's crime rate.

"I will use every available resource to see that the downward trend continues," he said.

If re-elected he plans to open more sub-stations to serve the people in their communities. He will continue to work toward organizing Neighborhood Watch programs.

His concern for youth is taken seriously. He would like to spend more time finding ways to lead young people away from undesirable influences and toward accomplishments for their own good.

He asks for the vote and support of Shelby County citizens in the November general election. He is unopposed in the September Democratic primary.

Wayne Causey: 'We need a strong stand for justice'

Wayne Causey, a Democratic candidate for circuit judge, Place Number 2, 18th judicial circuit covering Clay, Coosa and Shelby Counties, is a firm believer in an independent and honorable judiciary.

A practicing attorney in Calera, Causey said, "An independent and honorable judiciary is indispensable to justice in our society. During the past year we have witnessed many events demonstrating the need to make a strong commitment to improve the law, the legal system and the administration of justice."

He said he will "faithfully and impartially perform the duties of the office."

Causey holds a Juris Doctorate Degree from Birmingham School of Law and the master of business administration degree from Samford University. He has a bachelor's degree from the University of Alabama.

A veteran and former captain in the U.S. Air Force, he is a member of the First United Methodist Church in Calera, a member of the American Bar Association, the Alabama Bar Association, Birmingham Bar Association and Shelby County Bar Association.

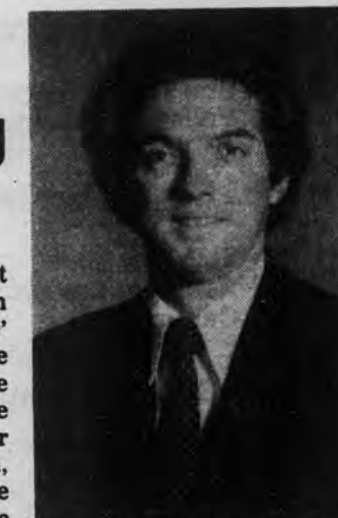

He has been active in several civic and fraternal organizations and currently serves as president of the Calera Civitan Club.

At 36, Causey is the oldest candidate in the race for Place Number 2 judgeship. A native of Birmingham, he is married to the former Donna Morgan and they have two children.

A hard worker, he was delivering newspapers at the age of 13 and held different part-time jobs through high school. After the military, and while working to support his family, he took night classes to earn his law degree.

Causey says, "Thomas

Jefferson once stated that the goal of our court system is 'equal and exact justice' for all men of whatever state or persuasion. We have strayed from this goal. We need a strong stand for justice, including the victim, in our judicial system." He promises to work to achieve this goal, as the voice for the people.

THE RESPONSIBILITIES AND DUTIES OF YOUR PROBATE JUDGE.

All too often, we think of the Probate Judge only as a name on our checks when buying a car tag. The fact is—when compared to the management of a large corporation, he would be its chief executive officer, president, budget officer, secretary, and senior administrative officer. Also, Shelby is one of the 36 counties in Alabama where our judge of probate is Chairman of the County Commission. With the other four commissioners serving part-time, our probate judge is expected to carry the major burden of county operations. With this in mind, Shelby county's level of successful operation depends in great measure on the person we elect as judge of probate.

With a successful business and management background, "Ray" Hamilton can best perform the varied and important administrative functions of the office of probate judge. His experience as two-term president of the Pelham Area Chamber of Commerce has helped provide his knowledge to seek new business and industry for all of Shelby county. "Ray" Hamilton's re-election to his second term as Pelham City Councilman—

having served as Mayor Pro-tem for six years—has proven him to be a leader, strong on experience in the areas of administrative and judicial government, and an efficient administrator of probate matters. The judge of probate is responsible for maintenance of county fiscal records, preparation of the budget, and purchasing for the county.

"Ray" Hamilton is best qualified for this responsibility. He has served as Director of Finance for the City of Pelham since 1976. Despite its impressive growth, Pelham has been, and is financially "in-the-black."

Our County Commissioners depend on the probate judge, as their presiding officer, to provide a constructive agenda, establish timely priorities, and be knowledgeable of pertinent facts involving all issues to be discussed. Appropriate suggestions and recommendations by the probate judge are also vital to effect sound management decisions by the commissioners. R. E. "Ray" Hamilton will be that kind of probate judge. The kind of candidate you can vote FOR.

Every voter wants a good man to vote FOR. We've got one in R. E. "Ray" Hamilton.

Charles Knowles:

He has worked for school improvements

Charles Knowles, with 33 years experience, knows about education and the problems in education. When he became superintendent of Shelby County schools in 1979, he found the opportunity to gain more insight into the needs of Shelby County schools and he began working to make the program better than ever.

Knowles is asking the citizens of this county for a second term in this important office so that he may continue to work for the betterment of education.

Look at his record of achievement:

In 1980 Knowles provided the leadership to seek additional funds for Shelby County schools. A one-cent sales tax was successful, with half the revenue going to the schools.

As a result, about $1 million has been received annually. Some of the improvements brought about by the sales tax revenue include: reduction of class size in first and second grades, from 32 pupils per teacher to 25; the purchase of 20 new school buses; financing repairs, renovations and additions to many of the existing school buildings; adding pre-vocational classes in the middle schools; increasing maintenance at all schools; providing local funds to supplement the instructional program.

Knowles, a native of Shelby County and married to the former Carolyn Barton Davidson, began his county director of all vocational education programs and operating the Area Vocational Center as principal.

Under his leadership, the center began offering night classes for adults and this program has been so successful, it is continuing to-day.

As superintendent, Knowles has emphasized teaching basic skills and improving achievement test scores. These efforts have paid off. In 1982 test scores indicate Shelby County students exceeded the national averages and were equal to or higher than state averages.

A support program for teachers made the difference. Knowles implemented a plan whereby resource teachers worked with the classroom teachers to increase their effectiveness. Workshops were held throughout the year.

The Board of Education supplemented the state allotment of $250 for instructional materials and supplies. With $400 instead of $250, the instructional program has been greatly enhanced.

Local dollars were also added for textbooks. Last year this amounted to $58,000 to make more books available. There is still a shortage but progress is being made to provide a textbook for every child in each class.

Guidance and counseling services have been expanded. This past school year was the first time every student in middle and high school levels received the attention of qualified counselors.

Knowles said he will continue to dedicate his efforts to providing the best possible opportunities for students. He believes many more improvements will be possible during his second term as superintendent.

Circuit Judge, 18th Judicial Circuit

Judge Armstrong urges you to compare the candidates for this high office before making your decision. Judge Armstrong is clearly, unquestionably the most experienced and highest qualified candidate for Circuit Judge. He has been and is doing the job!

He is the ONLY candidate who has ever been a full-TIME judge

(Pd. Pol. Adv. by Committee to Keep Judge Armstrong, Bud Jackson, Treas., 1509 Cape Cod Circle, Alabaster, AL. 35007)

- Current full-time Circuit Judge, 18th Judicial Circuit, Place Number 2, serving since January, 1980. Circuit Court is the highest state trial court.
- Judge Armstrong, as Circuit Court Judge, has averaged setting about 700 cases per year in addition to jury trials - a high number for any Circuit Judge. He has handled all non-jury and equity cases, as well as sharing domestic relation, criminal jury and civil jury work with the other two Circuit Judges.
- Former District Judge, Shelby Co. (also a full-time judgeship), with one of the best case disposal records in state, reducing a backlog by disposing of more cases than were filed.
- Former Municipal Judge, Columbiana & Wilsonville

Eason Mitchell can be a responsible judge

He believes in honesty, respect for justice and he cares about people in the 18th Judicial District of Shelby, Clay and Coosa Counties.

These are just some of the qualities of Eason Mitchell, a candidate for circuit judge. He has been a municipal court judge for Calera, Montevallo, Wilton and Jemison for the past few years and knows from experience what it's like to preside over court.

As senior partner in a law firm with extensive experience as a trial lawyer in the courts, Mitchell is certainly not a newcomer to the arena. He is serving his sixth year as a municipal judge and a fourth term on the Board of Governors of the Alabama Trial Lawyers Association. He has served as president of the Shelby County Bar Association.

As the son of a rural doctor in Calera, he has learned the value of hard work, and the meaning of responsibility and ethical principles. He is a family man, with a wife and two daughters.

He believes in the importance of effective communication, he will listen to people and try to understand their problems, whether it's divorce cases, Workman's Compensation claims or child custody. Cases like these are tried without a jury.

If elected, he will enforce the victim restitution act because he feels that law abiding citizens have rights, too. The law says persons convicted of serious crime must make restitution to their victim as a condition of probation, or parole if sentenced.

He promises a fair and prompt trial for all, and if found guilty to provide firm support of law enforcement. He will impose penalties prescribed by law in criminal cases and provide equitable relief in civil cases to assure more impartial and responsive justice.

He promises to eliminate unnecessary waste of time and expense in the court system, by improving procedures to reduce the backlog problem in order for defendants to get a prompt trial. He will also make more efficient use of witnesses and jurors time.

Mitchell has been praised by Mothers Against Drunk Drivers (MADD) for his way of handling DUI cases. He has seen a 50 percent reduction in such cases in his municipal court. At the National Judicial College, his specialty was alcohol and drugs, because he wanted to understand and have knowledge to deal with these problems effectively and fairly from a practical point of view.

Mitchell, a life-long resident of Shelby County, is a member of Calera United Methodist Church, a member of the Calera Civitans and Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Medical-Legal Christian Society and was chosen as one of the Jaycees' Outstanding Young Men of America. He has a law degree from Samford University.

Dr. Rogers has experience to be superintendent

Dr. Norma Rogers, a candidate for Superintendent of Education in Shelby County, is an experienced administrator in her own right.

As principal in the fastest growing part of Shelby County, she solved the problems of overcrowding and underfunding. She successfully organized parents and teachers to work together in dozens of volunteer projects that have meant thousands of dollars in money raised and services donated.

Through her guidance, parents and teachers work well together and students score highest on the California Achievement tests.

As a management consultant, Dr. Rogers has worked on financial analyses and education goals progress reports for the State Department of Education, studies on education and management information systems for the U.S. Office of Education, studies for direction of Alabama reading teachers for the University of Alabama.

As a county-wide coordinator she has worked with administrators, teachers, parents in every part of Shelby County.

With 22 years experience in Shelby County school, Dr. Rogers' teaching work has spanned elementary to college age and adult students. She has a Ph.D. from the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, majoring in educational administration and higher education.

If elected superintendent of education in Shelby County, Dr. Rogers promises to work to improve the school buildings, to invite citizen participation in the budget-making process, to furnish leadership to help every student in Shelby County get a better education, to recruit only the best teachers and encourage the Board of Education to set up better teacher and principal incentives for excellence.

Dr. Rogers knows and understands Shelby County people. She would like to put her talents, education experience and ideas to work for the whole county. She knows how to communicate with and to motivate parents, teachers and administrators to work together to make the public school system the best.

Snowden, Walker face runoff for probate judge

Tommy Snowden and Red Walker emerged from the four-way race for the office of Probate Judge as the leading contenders. They go into a runoff on September 28.

Snowden, the incumbent, took an early lead in the returns, and ran up an unofficial vote of 6,419. Walker's vote was 3,626.

Running a close third was Montevallo City Administrator Don Hughes with 3,087 votes. Ray Hamilton, Pelham city councilman came in fourth with 2,093 in the unofficial vote.

The vote represented more than half of all registered Shelby County voters. Under the new reidentification program, there are over 27,000 names on the list of registered voters in the county. Using the probate race as a measure, some 15,225 votes were cast Tuesday.

Snowden was a heavy favorite in Calera, in Beat 12 and in Alabaster. In Pelham, he won five more votes than councilman Hamilton. Walker registered solid strength throughout the county, but did not take the Inverness vote, where he lives. Hamilton also lost his home box to Snowden by a vote of 479 to 474.

Hughes led in both boxes in Montevallo, and was ahead of Walker in many boxes of the county.

TOMMY SNOWDEN

Incumbent loses superintendent's post

With 29 boxes in Tuesday evening, Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles conceded defeat since he was trailing by 1,000 votes.

The superintendent's race will have to be decided on September 28 when front runner Ellie Glasscox and Norma Rogers go into a runoff.

For most of the evening, it was a fairly close race between Glasscox, Thompson High School's assistant principal and Rogers, the principal at Valley School.

When the final votes were tallied however, Glasscox led by approximately 700 votes.

The unofficial tallies were: Glasscox, 5,800; Rogers, 5,100 and Knowles, 3,500.

In the board of education race, incumbent Barbara Whitman led throughout the evening, by a fairly large margin.

With seven boxes still to come in, Whitman's unofficial total was 4,665.

Her challengers were Rev. Leo King of Pelham and Raymond Rowell Jr. of Calera.

King's unofficial total with the seven boxes not counted was 1,962 with Rowell only 12 votes ahead of him.

ELLIE GLASSCOX

DR. NORMA ROGERS

Results in legislative races

Experience paid off in 1982. All three incumbents in races for the Alabama House of Representatives and Senate carried Shelby County's Democratic primaries, according to unofficial results with 27 of 37 boxes reporting late Tuesday night.

In the newly created house district 49 where there was no incumbent, former representative Tom Stubbs narrowly defeated Pelham Councilman John Tanner.

Robert Hawkins of Leeds gave incumbent Sonny Moore of Sterrett a good run, but fell short in the end. Unofficially, Moore captured 2,467 votes to Hawkins' 1,513. Moore will likely retain his membership on the Ways and Means and Energy Committees.

Curtis Smith had no trouble defending his house seat for the 53rd district against challenger Ralph Brannon. Smith outdistanced the evangelist 765 to 139 in the Shelby County section of the district. Both men are from Chilton County.

Stubbs, a Helena businessman, pulled 1,627 votes to lead the race in the newly created district 49. Tanner had 1,326 at 11 p.m. The third opponent in the race, political newcomer William Charlie Brown who lives in south Alabaster, drew 283 votes.

In a close race for Alabama State Senate District 17, incumbent Doug Cook of Vestavia was leading Lucile White in Shelby County returns, 1,414 to 1,364. A portion of Shelby County forms only about one-third of the district.

Armstrong, Mitchell continue campaign

The hard-fought campaign for 18th Circuit Judge, place number 2 will continue until September 28, with Robert Armstrong and Eason Mitchell facing each other in a runoff.

Shelby County's unofficial but complete results were: Armstrong, 5,810 -- 55%; Wayne Causey, 919 -- 9%; and Mitchell, 3,876 -- 36%.

Armstrong fared worse in Clay and Coosa counties, forcing a runoff.

Place #2 was created in 1970, and filled until 1980 by Judge James Sharbutt of Vincent.

Sharbutt resigned in January of that year, and Governor Fob James appointed then-district judge Armstrong to the position for the three years remaining in Sharbutt's term.

Armstrong was challenged by Calera attorneys Causey and Mitchell, creating the first election for Circuit Judge here since 1950.

Commission races

In the races for Shelby County Commission, it will be a runoff between J. Alpha Lowe and Leon Archer. The third man in the race, Robert La-Vaughn Parker drew about 1,000 votes. At press time the totals for Lowe and Archer were not complete.

Harold Davenport defeated his opponent, Charles Seales, for the other seat on the County Commission that was being contested Tuesday. There was no third person in that race.

County GOP votes tallied

Shelby County voters favored Spencer Bachus over Gilbert F. Douglas, III for the Republican nomination for State Senate district 17 by an unofficial 216-100 margin, with 31 of 38 boxes reporting.

If Bachus does as well in the remaining boxes and in the 3/4 of the district that lies in Jefferson County, he will face in November the Democratic nominee for the post now filled by Doug Cook.

No Shelby County resident seeks the position, which includes house district 49 in Shelby County and two Jefferson County districts.

D. Philip Lasater defeated Susan L. Coyne for Place 3 on the Alabama Republican Executive Committee, 191 votes to 150, with all but seven boxes reporting unofficially.

The countywide race did not attract as many voters as some others, but was one of few from which a clearcut winner emerged.

Zoning, fire district, amendments all pass

In all the excitement over the races with candidates in them, Tuesday night vote counting was slow for the rest.

No totals were tallied for the zoning ordinance in Beat 12, or for the revision of the North Shelby County fire district dues, but poll workers from Beat 12 confidently predicted both were approved.

With 15 of some 38 boxes counted, Amendment 1 (the budget isolation measure) was approved by 1,518 votes to 541.

Amendment 2 (permits the legislature to abolish or change the offices of tax assessor, tax collector, or license commissioner, with vote of people in county affected) had 1,418 unofficial yes votes to 632 no.

Amendment 3 (lets Calhoun County commission regulate court costs there) tallied 807 yes, 601 no.

Amendment 4 (permitting bingo in Montgomery) passed here 975 to 527, with but 13 boxes being unofficially counted.

Prisoners burglarize jailhouse

by David F. Moore

The sheriff's department is seeking indictments against several prisoners suspected in the $1,200 burglary of the jailhouse canteen.

But there's still no word on two inmates who recently turned "rabbit" and escaped through a jail window.

In what could be called an apparent "inside job," several inmates at the county jail managed to steal about $1,200 from the locked canteen room Friday, August 25. Candy and cigarettes were also lifted during the heist.

The culprits were already in jail. But if any of the inmates knew who was responsible, they weren't—at least at that time—talking. And an initial shakedown of the jail and its inmates failed to produce suspects, money or candy.

Until someone talked, Sheriff Buddy Glasgow banned all use of the telephone.

"It was a stupid mistake on the part of the inmates," Glasgow said. "Most of it was their own money."

Subsequent investigations by Reed Smith and other sheriff's personnel, finally turned up the money and what was left of the candy and cigarettes. Smith said the evidence will be turned over to the grand jury and indictments sought against "up to four inmates."

The canteen is located on the ground floor of the jail hallway, and is usually open several hours a day.

Glasgow said a wire was probably used to trip the latches to the canteen doors. The doors have since been padlocked, he said.

Alabaster library contract awarded

A Plantersville construction company has been awarded the contract to build the new library in Alabaster.

Lovely Construction Company's bid of $298,564 was the lowest of the nine bids that were opened Thursday.

The library will be built on the corner of 1st Ave and 9th St. on property donated by the family of the late Albert L. Scott.

Earlier this year, the city received a $300,000 grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission for library construction. The city is to contribute $75,000 towards the project.

Charles Moss, a Birmingham architect with a national reputation for library design, drew the plans for the building.

The structure contains 6,000 square feet of floor space and will blend with the wooded surroundings on the six lots.

Construction is to begin within 180 days of the contract award.

Water board issue heats up

The water board has become a hot issue in the city of Columbiana.

Angry feelings about the situation erupted at Thursday's council meeting when former water board chairman Bob Hume questioned council action on several issues concerning the board.

When Hume asked if politics was responsible for his not being reappointed to the board, Mayor

Buck Falkner denied that being the reason.

Falkner said the council's vote indicated that they felt a change was needed.

"All you did was fuss and fight and nothing was getting done," the Mayor declared.

But Hume disagreed, saying he had accomplished a great deal during the 16 months he had served.

County's total real estate tax may be known this weekend

By Friday the Shelby County Tax Assessor may know what the total real estate taxes for the county will be.

The Board of Equalization has finished its hearings, where it took testimony from property owners who were dissatisfied with the amount of tax on their property. Board members have been in the field this week, looking over some property that is still in question.

The board will convene today and make its final recommendations.

Tax Assessor Bobbie Reynolds says that the board has lowered assessed values 'quite a bit' on many pieces of property where owners protested, but she does not have final figures.

The board found that two area maps had to be completely reworked in the Valleydale Road area of north Shelby County. Values there were said to be too high. Other than those areas, however, no property was assigned a lower value without a personal protest from the property owner.

The assessor told the county commission last month that the total tax income to the county will be approximately $2 million higher this year than last year.

The tax year begins October 1, but because of reappraisal delays, the final tax notices may not go out until after that date.

Cahaba Valley Lions establish tradition

The recently formed Cahaba Valley Lion's Club made a good start on establishing a Labor Day tradition.

The Lions and Lionettes held their first annual Labor Day Barbeque Monday, featuring sandwiches and plates, cakes, soft drinks and chances on a micro-wave oven. The result was $4,401--of which part goes to Alabama Sight, and part goes to retiring a few bills the organization incurred while establishing itself in north Shelby.

Club members spent all Sunday night basting 888 pounds of meat with vinegar, butter, lemon juice and pepper, over slow fires.

The barbeque was held--quite intentionally--in back of Lloyd's Restaurant on U.S. 280. The restaurant was closed for the holiday, and president Grady Cooksey said they intended to pick up on unknowing restaurant customers.

The plan paid off handsomely. All 888 pounds of meat were sold (except for several pounds which were "tested" by various club members).

A number of local candidates also showed up, taking advantage of hungry people the final day before the elections.

Cooksey said the Lions will definitely make the Labor Day Barbeque an annual event.

The club was chartered six months ago and has 33 members.

New tradition

The new Cahaba Valley chapter of the Lion's Club got a good start on building a new county tradition with its first annual Labor Day barbeque. Nothing was spoiled, even though all these cooks (and more) were in kitchen Monday: Ted Sarris, ed on the board.

Now that a member of the city's governing body has a seat on the water board, Hume said he thought he should be able to get some answers from the council on their business.

"We don't have the answers," Falkner insisted. "You need to go to the water board."

But Hume contended it was time for the council to get involved in the affairs of that body, because he said there were flagrant violations taking place and things concerning health that needed to be changed.

Some of the answers he has gotten from the water board, Hume said, "were so far out in left field you didn't even know where you were."

Councilman Lewis Walker, who replaced Hume, jumped on the former chairman for harboring ill will toward a board employee.

It wasn't the man he disliked, Hume said, but the way he performed his duties.

Unable to contain his irritation over a letter Hume had written to the Reporter, the Mayor called it a "dark blot on me."

Falkner said citizens assumed the questions concerning the water board had been directed at him.

"Most of them don't know," he pointed out, "that the council doesn't have a vote on board decisions."

On the subject of billing customers for water, Hume said he was opposed to institutions such as schools and churches getting their water at no cost.

He pointed out that Shelby County High School used half a million gallons of water when school wasn't even in session.

"If they had to pay an $800 water bill, I'll bet they'd cut that out," Hume remarked.

He went on to say that nearly every taxpayer has to fork out $1 per month to meet the cost of water for these institutions.

Expressing his disappointment over what he believes is a hopeless effort to get a utility board, Hume said, "I think that would have been the way to go."

The former water board chairman reported that two members of that board are in "total opposition," to the proposal which would combine water, gas and sewerage into one unit.

Happy reunion

After a frantic search for his son last week, James B. Jones of Alabaster was the happiest dad in town when police showed up with 2½ year old Daniel.

Missing baby story has happy ending

"He's an explorer," laughed Alabaster resident James B. Jones as he chased after his 2½ year old son Thursday.

Twenty four hours earlier, Jones had awakened to find Daniel missing.

And for 45 frantic minutes, Jones searched the area around his home, not knowing what might have happened to his son.

Finally spotting some Alabaster police cars nearby, Jones said he hurried toward them to report the disappearance.

Before he could speak, however, they asked if he was looking for a little boy.

"I was so relieved I was shaking and crying when the car with Daniel in it drove up" Jones related.

Alabaster police investigator Larry Rollan explained that he was driving the child around in the area where he had been found, hoping Daniel would recognize his house.

After they picked Daniel up from the home of a neighbor who saw him walking in the street, police thought he'd been abandoned when the child said, "Mommy, Daddy gone."

The reason he hadn't been recognized, Rollan explained, was because the family had only lived in the neighborhood a short time.

According to Jones, his son has just learned to turn doorknobs. So after his wife left early for work, Daniel had apparently gotten out of bed, Jones said, and let himself out to go adventuring.

Both Jones and his wife work at Riverchase Country Club. And it occurred to Jones when he couldn't find his son, that his wife Gail might have dropped him off at the babysitters on her way to work.

After talking to her on the phone though, he learned that that was not the case.

Wanting to stay on the phone while her husband went out to look again, Gail Jones spent the anxious moments in prayer, according to her husband.

Although they also have a ten year old son, Daniel is "kind of special," Jones explained, because of a difficult birth.

"You can bet we're having the doors fixed so he can't open them anymore," Jones declared.

Murphy seeks house seat for GOP

Don Murphy, a Republican serving on the Shelby County Commission, will be a candidate in the general election for the Alabama House of Representatives.

He will take on the winner of the Democratic primary for the new House District 49, which stretches along the northwest part of Shelby County from Pea Ridge through the Cahaba Valley to Highway 280.

It includes Alabaster, Pelham and Helena.

As part of his platform, Murphy states he favors kindergarten for all children in the state and discipline in the public school system.

He supports planned, orderly growth throughout north Shelby and south Jefferson Counties, and states he is "very concerned" about highway 280, which he sees as the next high growth area of the county. "It's the last corridor of our county going into Birmingham. We need to preserve its beauty for the future. I will work with whomever I need to do it."

Another item on his platform is the development of a county-wide industrial park. He would like to see the county become a 'prepared county' in the state's industrial development plan.

He sees sewerage as a problem in the county's future and would encourage private investors to tackle it.

He also plans to work to establish a license office in the northern part of the county to serve the people of the district.

As a county commissioner, Murphy says, "I know what kind of position it puts the county in when someone passes a bill without consulting the county."

DON MURPHY

He emphasizes he would carefully screen all bills that are presented in the legislature. "A legislator should kill bad (proposed) bills, and enforce the good ones we already have on the books."

The candidate is principal owner and executive vice president of First Real Estate Corporation of Alabama, co-owner and vice president of Ray-Don construction company, and a director of Cahaba Title Inc. Co.

He has served as president of Cahaba Valley Jaycees, and the Pelham Civitan Club. He has been active with the United Way, the Heart Association, the Alabaster Rotary Club and the county YMCA.

He is currently president of the county cancer society and is a director of Shelby County Junior Miss.

On the County Commission, he helped implement the first county employee personnel policy. He is a strong advocate for operating the county on a sound financial basis. He has represented Alabama County Commissioners as legislative representative for District 7, which includes 13 counties.

Red Cross opens Alabaster home

The Shelby County Red Cross will hold a grand opening Friday for its permanent chapter house in Alabaster. The ribbon cutting is scheduled for noon and local dignitaries will be on hand.

The chapter house is the first permanent facility the county Red Cross has had since post-WWII days, according to publicity chairman Bill Keller. In past years the chapter has held meetings in members' homes.

The old South Central Bell exchange building on the east side of U.S. 31 at the intersection of highway 119, is being renovated for the chapter house. Friday's ceremony will culminate three years of effort to obtain a permanent facility for Shelby County.

Eventually, Keller said, the facility will provide space for offices, meetings and classes, as well as a regular location for taking blood donations.

The blood collection area is the first phase of the renovation to be completed, Keller said. Beginning this week, blood donations can be made every Friday from noon to six.

This Friday, Red Cross personnel will offer free blood typing and testing to anyone over 17.

Emily Rabren is the executive director for the Shelby County Branch of the Birmingham American Red Cross. Roy Jowers is chairman of the board.

A woman reported $2,900 cash stolen August 30 from her purse. At the time, she was at work at Giant Auto Parts in Calera.

Investigators have suspects in the case, but no one has been arrested.

However, a Birmingham man accused of snatching four wallets from Inverness office employees, apparently wasn't so lucky. According to the daily blotter in the sheriff's office, Robert G. Evans, Jr., was charged August 31 for the theft of two wallets from employees in Building 31, Inverness.

The arrests were made by deputy Louie Cosby. Following Evans' arrest, two other cases were closed involving wallets stolen the same day from another Inverness office.

Among other thefts reported during the week ending September 1, were: a shotgun from a car in Shelby; a pickup truck from Indian Springs Baptist Church; two horses from a boarding stable on highway 119; a Homelite chainsaw from Vandiver; a 35mm camera from a car in Columbiana; a bicycle and mag wheels from a house at Dargin.

On the night of August 26, thefts of wheel covers were reported by two residents on U.S. 31 in north Calera.

A north Shelby woman, Rt. 19, reported a prowler at her residence August 31. Another prowler was reported August 25 in Vandiver.

In Brantleyville on August 31, a woman reported that a man shot two of her dogs while they were on her property. No arrest was made.

Robert Wayne Whitten, Talladega, was arrested for assault after two Leeds men signed warrants against him September 1.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

To begin with, the bantams scratched the corn seed up three times, and made dusting holes in the soft ground after we planted it the fourth time. When the June bugs came during the first week in July they could hardly tell the corn from the onions. But they came, and tarried, buzzing around the heavy tassels.

And that was our corn crop, such as it was. When we were supposed to work it, the second and third week in July, we were looking at the mountains in Colorado and the big ditch in Nevada.

Maybe the best way to lose a corn crop is to go off galivanting during the plowing season, or live half a quarter from the line where the showers stopped. But the rains came, for once in many years. Still, the weeds outgrew the corn and we'd have been better off without the wet stuff.

So that gets us to another part of our tale. The middle part, wedged in between the opening and the end.

I got busy and pulled the stalks up and made a little pile in the edge of the garden. Then I pulled the tall weeds up and made another little pile. It was 98 when I started and 98 when I stopped.

When I went in the house and took off my hat, Amy said my head looked like rain on a window.

That afternoon I went across the creek and got Peter Jones to break my ground. I get Peter every year. Sometimes twice a year. And did he break it! It was so soft and fluffy birds came from two counties to dust. I ran them out just before dark and sprinkled 8-8-8 over the ground. Then I took a mixture of purple top turnips and crinkly mustard and rape and radishes and scattered it over the soft ground.

And so it was. Everything was fixed and we'd wait and eat greens in a few weeks. About the time jack frost painted everything white.

But it didn't work out that way. I guess Peter left the ground too soft and fluffy. Because every night this week those stinking deer have slept in there, wallowing in the soft dirt.

But Hubert Kirkland will have a turnip patch the same as always, and George Foster and Henry Joiner and Murphy Stinson and Mrs. Irving Stone and Lloyd Nivens. And just like always Skillet will have grazing rights. And he'll use 'em. And he'll bring the goodies home for Amy to cook.

Simmsville brothers arrested

by David F. Moore

An attendant at a service station on U.S. 280 was robbed and kidnapped at knife-point last week. The man was later freed—unharmd but naked—in a wooded Birmingham area.

Over the weekend, sheriff's investigator John Pratt arrested two Simmsville brothers in connection with the case.

Joe and Mike Skinner were both jailed on charges of second degree kidnapping and first degree robbery. Bond for each man was set at $100,000.

According to reports from deputies and investigators, the incident happened like this:

Scott Nolde, who works at the Crystal station near the Shelby/Jefferson line, was talking to his girlfriend on the telephone about 6:15 p.m. last Wednesday.

He paused to wait on two men who appeared to be buying beer. One of them, however, stepped around the counter with a knife and demanded money.

They unplugged the phone from the wall and made sure the 21-year old attendant was unarmed. One of the men belted Nolde in the head with his fist.

They carried him and the money, beer and a box of cigarettes to a waiting car.

The car headed towards Birmingham.

Nolde told investigators that the third man, who was driving and armed with a snub-nose pistol, wanted to kill him. The others talked him out of it. The car turned onto I-459, and at the I-65 interchange, the men made Nolde cover his eyes.

The Grand Prix apparently turned off I-65 at Green Springs Avenue in Birmingham.

The car turned off the road and stopped at an illegal dump. Nolde was forced out the door at knife-point and told to strip.

Naked, he was made to lie down. His assailants told him not to move for 30 minutes, then left.

In a few minutes Nolde ran to the road, hid behind a tree, and called for help to a nearby man and boy.

Nolde described all three men as being about 5'11" and wearing jeans. One man had a four-inch dragon tattoo on his arm and wore glasses; the driver had curly hair; the third man had long blonde hair and a mustache.

Two burglary suspects nabbed

by David F. Moore

Two Indiana men heading for Florida had their trip waylaid this week by burglary charges.

Richard Jay Stievenart, 20, and Stephen R. Geyer, 21, both of Brazil, Indiana, were charged by Pelham police with third degree burglary in connection with a Sunday morning breakin at The Radio Shack on U.S. 31. No charges have been filed, however, against a 15-year old girl who was apparently traveling with them.

According to Pelham police reports:

The store is protected by an alarm which sounds at the police station if any movement is detected inside the building.

The alarm went off at 4:50 Sunday morning, but when officers Chuck Taylor and John Ellison reached Pelham Plaza, everything appeared quiet.

However, after Taylor climbed out of his car, he spotted Stievenart, wearing dark jeans and sweatshirt, on top of an incinerator in back of the shopping center.

Taylor apprehended the man, and a short time later police discovered that a turbine vent on the roof of the building had been removed. The vent led into a ceiling crawl space above the store.

About this same time, Helena officer Billy Hinds answered a call for assistance and spotted a car partially hidden on a dirt road in a wooded section near the store.

While Hinds and Pelham officer Rodney Prince were inspecting the car, Geyer came running out of the woods and was captured.

According to Pelham Capt. Allen Wade, the men were "drifting through" on their way to Sarasota, Florida.

They were traveling with a 15-year old girl, and stopped for the night at the Travel Lodge in Birmingham. Wade said the girl, whose background remains mysterious, apparently was asleep at the motel and unaware of the alleged breakin.

Wade said Stievenart once worked for Radio Shack in Indiana.

Although the alarm did not sound in the store, Wade said the suspect apparently heard its mechanism activate, and was trying to flee the building when police arrived.

Governor reports on prisons

by Fob James

Since the spring of 1979, this administration has taken an aggressive stand on meeting federal court orders in our prison system and mental health system.

During the early and mid 1970's the federal courts stepped in and took over control of both the prison and mental health systems, citing problems with overcrowding and poor conditions in facilities, management and personnel.

One of my first major actions on these two departments was requesting that I be made court-appointed receiver of both systems in early 1979. To my knowledge, this was the first time any governor had been appointed by the court as federal receiver of a state agency.

To date, I believe we have made considerable progress in both departments. The mental health department has received large sums of appropriations from the legislature during the last several years, leading to major renovations of facilities in Tuscaloosa and Mount Vernon.

Staffing needs have been addressed and the professional staff has been improved considerably. The patient population has been reduced and an active program of local mental health facilities has been generated.

The prison system has been expanded by 1500 to 1800 temporary beds in addition to conversions of smaller units around the state. Of course, if we are to reduce the overcrowded conditions caused by state inmates, we must have adequate beds available in the state prison system. In order to achieve that, it has been necessary to build additional prisons.

Today, a 1000 inmate prison is under construction in St. Clair County, as well as one under construction in west Jefferson County. Our plans call for a third 1000 inmate prison in North Alabama. However, that prison site is pending based on current litigation in the federal and state courts.

I could not have done these things without the help of the Alabama Legislature. Oversight committees for mental health and prisons created by the Legislature have led to an increased awareness of the problems and improved funding for both systems for the last three and a half years. You will also remember that a significant portion of the oil and gas windfall money is going toward the construction of the three prisons, as well as renovations in mental health.

Now as my administration begins to come to a close, we are on the threshold of resolving the federal court orders still hovering over the prison and mental health departments.

Mental health facilities and prison facilities are not popular subjects. However, as long as there is a need for either, it is necessary for the governor and his cabinet to insure that both systems are run properly. so in the days ahead, my staff, cabinet and legal counsels will work toward the goal of returning the mental health and prison systems to their rightful home under the control of state government.

Shelby Iron Works

Ware contribution to county remembered

Horace Ware got started early in life. At the age of seven he began learning the craft of iron making from his father, Johnathan.

That was in Brierfield in the early 1820's. Within 20 years, Horace had built the Shelby Iron Works in the Shelby community, and by 1860 had added the state's first large rolling mill to it.

When the Shelby County Historical Society did their census of cemeteries in the county, a decorative iron fence was discovered in the Columbiana cemetery.

The fence is the only ironwork from Ware's foundry known to exist. And the Society began the effort to preserve it.

Last week, several members of the organization, along with descendants of the Ware family, Columbiana Mayor Buck Falkner and two Boy Scouts and their leader, observed the completion of the project.

Society President, Dr. Tom Caldwell called attention to the brass plaque placed on the fence by the city, Ware's descendants and the Society.

Under the supervision of Scoutmaster Bob Hume, Scouts Todd Nicholson and Brandon Blankenship did the restoration work as part of their Eagle project.

Moulds, castings and other materials needed for the work were donated locally by Allied Cast Products and Simco.

Descendants of Ware present for the occasion expressed appreciation to all responsible for the restoration.

They included Richard M. Coe, Ware's great grandson from Birmingham, and Society member Ed Roberts who descended from Ware's sister Hannah.

Society member Kate Reese was instrumental in locating descendants and also for coordinating donations for the decorative plaque.

Caldwell said the project was done to preserve the importance of the Ware Family and Shelby County, to Alabama's iron industry.

Ware, starting with a reported investment of $1,000, built in 15 short years a manufacturing center around the Shelby Iron Works. The community included homes for some 300 people, a saw mill, grist mill, school, church, and cupola and foundry.

His daughter, Roxanna, died in 1853 and was buried in the Ware plot. In 1862, his first wife, Martha Ann, died and was also buried there.

By that time, Ware had sold most of his interest in the Shelby Works. He moved from Shelby County and later developed iron production centers and mills in Anniston, Sheffield and Texas.

Until he died in 1890, Ware apparently always remembered his Shelby County roots. In 1881, when checking into the Relay House in a new town known as Birmingham, he listed his home as Columbiana. He died in Birmingham in 1890.

Dedicate historic fence

The city of Columbiana, descendants of Horace Ware, and the Shelby County Historical Society were represented at the dedication of a historic ironwork fence in the Columbiana Cemetery. Pictured are Mayor Buck Falkner, Dr. Tom Caldwell, Mrs. Richard Coe, Ed Roberts, Richard Coe.

Columbiana to help rescue squad set up

It now takes an ambulance from 30 minutes to an hour to reach Columbiana, according to the chief of a recently organized rescue unit for the area.

But when the group he heads begins operating, Randy Moore told the city council Thursday evening, calls will be answered within 2-3 minutes.

Moore and members of the Southeast Emergency Medical Rescue unit attended the meeting to inform the council of their plans and to ask for verbal and moral support.

The unit, Moore said, would like to make city hall their base, and he asked if a parking stall and storage space would be available.

The rescue chief also asked if the city would furnish gasoline for the unit.

An answer was requested from the council at the next meeting.

Giving their support to the unit at Thursday's meeting were Jerry Lamb, vice-president of the county's EMR council and Bob House from BREMSS.

Lamb will be teaching the unit's first responder course which will begin Sept. 13.

Policemen, firemen and anyone interested in learning about basic life support is invited to take the course, Moore said.

Unemployment rate stands at 12.3%

by David F. Moore

The job market in Shelby County grew at a faster rate from 1970-80, than the skyrocketing population—percentage-wise.

The percentages, however, are somewhat misleading.

In raw figures, the influx of new people outdistanced the creation of jobs here in a 3.5-to-1 cloud of dust.

Furthermore, in the wake of high interest rates, a stagnant housing market and local industry lay-offs, the latest figures show Shelby County's unemployment rate has climbed to 12.3%.

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, Shelby County's population of 66,298 reflects a 74% boom during the last decade. For the same period, the census show that new jobs here more than doubled, with 105.3% growth.

But according to Bob Brantley, labor market analyst for the Alabama Employment Service, the 74% increase in population actually means 28,261 new people.

The imbalance between local jobs and workers leads to the creation of "bedroom communities." People have to work somewhere.

In 1970, only about six out of every ten people in the county's workforce of 13,861 were employed in Shelby County, Brantley said. At the same time, 30.6%—or 3,709 commuters—drove to jobs in Jefferson County.

On the other hand, only 920 "reverse commuters" drove from Jefferson County to work here, according to 1970 figures.

By July 1982, Shelby County's civilian labor force had mushroomed to 29,570, Brantley said. But updated commuting patterns are not yet available.

"The 1970 figures tend to bear out the bedroom community label," Brantley said. And "I suspect you're going to see more than 30.6% of Shelby's labor market employed in Jefferson County."

Brantley estimated for 1980 a 4-5% increase in the number of Shelby-Jefferson commuters.

Of the 8,410 jobs new to Shelby County, Brantley said about 4,700—or 56% of them—are in non-manufacturing, or traditional white-collar positions.

With the development of the U.S. 280 corridor and the ongoing construction of I-459 in south Jefferson, Brantley said it appears the trend will continue towards creating more white than blue-collar jobs.

However, the influx of new "office jobs" is eventually expected to pump the sagging construction of new homes in the area. Brantley said a viable construction industry stimulates numerous related fields.

The renewal of job and construction growth would be a beneficial shot in the arm to the more than 3,600 Shelby Countians now out of work. But according to Brantley and other analysts, until interest rates drop lower, new housing will continue to sit in its slump.

The latest state figures, which reflect the July job market, show 3,640 people unemployed in Shelby County. Brantley said this 12.3% rate reflects some of U.S. Steel's layoffs, as well as part time summer job hunters and recent graduates entering the job market.

In Jefferson County unemployment has reached a record high of 13.6%.

Shelby County's unemployment is up from 10.7% in May of this year. In January, local unemployment jumped briefly to 13.1%.

DID YOU KNOW?

We can all grow 14 years older before a new generating plant is born.

It takes 10-14 years to plan and build a new generating plant. And it's expensive because of construction and labor costs, government regulations... and the high cost of borrowing money. So we don't want to build plants unless they are needed. To determine if and when new plants will be needed, Alabama Power prepares annual electricity use forecasts. Population growth, economic growth, conservation, and use of alternate energy sources are carefully evaluated. Our past forecasting record has been one of the most accurate in the industry. And that's important.

Oak Mountain horse patrol unit mounted

New at Oak Mountain

An Appaloosa named Jet attracted a lot of attention on his first patrol at Oak Mt. State Park Saturday. The horse ridden by Pete Norris is a temporary member of the park's new mounted patrol.

Bola Rola, Barak and Dandy made their debut at Oak Mountain State Park over the Labor Day weekend.

And even though he was just filling in, an Appaloosa named Jet also shared the limelight with the three horses that make up the park's new mounted patrol unit.

Jet belongs to Oak Mt. Stables, but the other three animals were donated to the park for the mounted unit which was organized by Park Director Phil Easterwood.

The major goal of the unit, Easterwood explains, is to provide quick response in emergency situations.

As an example, Easterwood said the horses could be used to search for lost hikers on trails where vehicles can't be driven.

The animals are also expected to be useful in inspecting the 30 miles of hiking trails to keep them cleared and in good repair.

Over the holiday weekend, the horses were used in areas of highest visitor concentration.

According to the park manager, the animals are also a good public relations tool for the park. "It's amazing how people respond to them," he noted.

During the summer, Easterwood reported, the six men who will make up the unit, took riding instruction at the Oak Mt. Stables.

They rode in the ring and on the trails to get both themselves and their mounts used to working in both areas.

Easterwood related that his Quarterhorse Dandy was donated to the unit by Sharon Gotlieb.

All of the horses donated to the unit so far, are registered, Easterwood reported, and described by him as "quiet."

Bola Rola is a Thoroughbred and Barak is a Saddlebred, the park manager said.

Besides himself, the mounted patrol will consist of: Talmadge Butler, chief of security; Phil Robeson, assistant superintendent; Scott Bocchen, security; Pete Norris, security and Brian Phillips, naturalist.

Easterwood asks that anyone who would like to donate a horse or any tack, to contact him at the park.

The Backdoor Rhythm Band returns by popular demand to the Shelby County Fair, according to Kiwanis Club spokesman Wm. C. Holcombe, "This outstanding group of homegrown musicians will present their favorite country and bluegrass selections to the Fair audience at 8 Saturday evening, September 18," he said.

The band, which last appeared at the Fair three years ago, has just completed an extensive tour playing throughout the Southeast. The band's achievements include: (1) win-ing the Southeast competition for country and bluegrass, (2) selected to be featured at the "Jamboree in the Hills" at Wheeling, West Virginia, the largest such gathering in the U.S., (3) chosen for filming by the Public Broadcasting Service, and (4) the recording of two country and bluegrass albums to satisfy their fans for records.

Band members are Charlie Sampson, Ronnie Jones, Charles Ebert, Bruce Holcombe and Johnny Brasher, all from Shelby County.

Strip mine scrapes forward

by David F. Moore

Rumors of proposed strip mining in north Shelby County now appear to be more than mere rumors.

The Reporter has learned that B&T Coal Mining Company is asking the state to run geological and environmental impact studies on 60 acres of land located between Indian Hills subdivision and the Cahaba River.

The company has also applied for a mining license from the Alabama Surface Mining Commission (ASMC).

According to ASMC spokesmen, both steps are necessary before the state will issue a permit for mining in a particular location.

The land in question is currently accessible only by the main road through the subdivision and Valleydale Road, or via Coshatt and Caldwell Mill Roads.

About 250 homes are located in Indian Valley.

According to homeowners association board chairman Charley Still, the proposed mining operation could cause road safety and repair problems. Furthermore, strip mining there could lower lower property values, dynamiting could cause problems, and run-off could possibly ruin the lake there.

The state applications list Edwin Earl Brasher of Rt. 1, Odenville, as the owner of B&T Coal Mining.

On August 9, the Reporter talked to Brasher, who was found working behind Indian Hills on the land in question.

He and two other men said they were logging and, when questioned, claimed they knew nothing about the rumored strip mine.

Brasher said the land was owned by a woman he knew only as "Mrs. Mills," and she was out of the county at the time. She had contracted him to remove pine timber from the land, he said, and that was all.

On August 12 Brasher told a state mining inspector who visited the logging site, that he knew nothing about strip mining there.

Tuesday, Mrs. Helen Crow Mills of Crow Real Estate and Insurance in Birmingham, said Brasher was "just cutting timber, that's all."

Some core samples had been drilled on the land, she admitted.

"It would be very low-keyed" if coal were mined, Mills said. "They're not going to do anything that will upset anyone in the neighborhood. We're very low-keyed and don't want any headlines."

She said she did not know Brasher's first name, nor the name of his company, and had not talked to him since July.

Brasher was unable to be reached for comment Tuesday afternoon by phone.

Gary Burgess, manager of ASMC's Small Operators Assistance Program (SOAP) in Jasper, told the Reporter Tuesday afternoon that a representative for B&T Mining Company applied August 25 for a state mining license.

The same day, B&T applied through SOAP for the geological and environmental studies.

Burgess said the study was requested for the entire 60 acres B&T leased near Indian Hills. However, he said the company's specifications note that it will initially mine only six of those acres.

Because of the economics involved in mining only six acres, Burgess said the request surprised him.

Miners would probably have to dig about 60 feet to reach the 30-inch coal seam at the north Shelby site, Burgess said. The proposed north Shelby mine would be limited to 10,000 tons per year, he added.

Currently, the market for coal is poor.

However, before coal or anything else is mined in north Shelby, the license has to be approved through a multi-step process. Burgess said several deficiencies have been noted in the applications and will have to be corrected.

If the deficiencies are adjusted, Burgess expected the license request to come up for a public hearing before the ASMC on October 19.

If the license is approved, Burgess said the six-month SOAP studies could begin on land.

Proximity of the mine to the Cahaba, and deserted shaft mines in the area would have to be closely studied, Burgess said.

Because of a backlog in work, Burgess figured that January would be the earliest B&T's north Shelby permit could be handled.

Once a requested SOAP study is approved for a given site, a company has one year in which to apply for the mining permit. If that deadline isn't met, the company is fined $30,000 in cost.

"As SOAP manager, I'd be interested to know if there's going to be a big problem with this mine," Burgess said. "I really wouldn't want to put out a contract on a study that's not going to be used."

He said the ASMC can deny licenses if zoning, environmental or other such legitimate arguments are proven.

North Shelby is the only part of the county with zoning. However, zoning laws there prohibit any zoning that would prevent mining.

"If the mining is going to do something to our lakes or roads, then we'll pursue whatever avenues are available to us," Still said.

Kari Leigh Strickland turned one-year old September 7. Friends and family helped her celebrate with a "Tweetie Bird" cake and homemade ice cream, and party over the Labor Day weekend.

She is the daughter of Larry and Gayle Strickland of Alabaster.

Among family guests were grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. McClements Stokes of Mobile; aunts and uncle Karen Stokes, Gwen and Donnie Fassbender, all of Mobile, and June Ricco, Birmingham.

Her waltz-length veil was bordered with lace and was attached to a cap of lace and seed pearls. She carried silk white orchids and yellow rose buds.

The vows were a duplication of those pledged by the bride's parents when they were married May 20, 1960.

Mr. Gordon Wayne Linderman, uncle of the bride, sang the nuptial music, accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Edith Nix.

Honor attendant, and cousin of the bride, was Rose Mary Holcombe of Columbiana. Bridesmaids were Lisa Holcombe, cousin of the bride, Lisa Berry, both of Columbiana, and Terry Jobe of Wilsonville. Their dresses of yellow chiffon were mid-calf length, featuring the handkerchief hem, and ac-

Flower girls for the occasion were Alichia Holcombe, Harpersville, cousin of the bride, and Catherine Moore of Columbiana. Steven Pearce, brother of the groom and Michael Adair, his cousin, were ringbearers.

The groom chose his father to be his best man. Groomsmen were his brother, David Pearce, a cousin, Scott Owen, Robert Berry, all of Columbiana, and Mike Brown of Pelham. Candle lighters, both cousins of the bride were Van Holcombe of Columbiana and John Mark Graham of Gadsden.

Mrs. Holcombe wore a long blue chiffon dress to her daughter's wedding. She and Mr. Holcombe were hosts at the reception which followed. Servers for the reception were Mrs. Bobby Holcombe, Columbiana; Mrs. Bill Cox, Birmingham; Mrs. Wayne Linderman, Albany, Georgia; Mrs. Don Graham, Gadsden, all aunts of the bride, and Mrs. Leon Baker of Columbiana.

Mrs. Pearce chose a floor-length dress of emerald green Qiana. She and Mr. Pearce gave a rehearsal dinner the previous evening for the bridal party.

The couple have made their home at Shelby Shores, after a wedding trip to Ft. Walton Beach, Florida.

Oktoberfest will move to state fairgrounds

Birmingham's celebrated Oktoberfest, forced to a new location by increasing popularity, will be held for the first time this year at the Alabama State fairgrounds on September 16-18.

The sixth annual Oktoberfest, staged on Morris Avenue in previous years, will be held this time in the new State Fair Arena.

Entertainment will feature the internationally known Waterloo German Band. With its traditional polkas and oom-pah music, the Waterloo band will set the pace for three days and nights of fun which will also include the Red Mountain Cloggers, strolling accordionists, sing-a-longs, free polka lessons, and yodeling and Alpine horn blowing contests.

The festival opens its doors at 5 p.m. on September 16, 4 p.m. on September 17, and 10 a.m. on September 18, and closes at midnight on each date. Overnight space for campers and motor homes may be reserved by calling 787-2641.

Parents can encourage children to good vision

There are many things parents can do to encourage their children to practice good vision and good eye safety habits.

Since poor posture and inadequate or improper lighting can put an extra strain on a child's vision, parents should provide their children with a homework center or area that is well-lighted and furnished to encourage good posture. Here are some points from the Alabama Optometric Association to keep in mind.

- Provide proper lighting for reading and studying, consisting of general all room lighting plus desk lighting. A 100 watt shaded bulb is usually sufficient for the latter. Desk lighting should be no more than three times brighter than the light in the rest of the room.

- Position the desk light a few feet from the book and where it will not cast a shadow in the pages.
- Reduce direct glare from windows with drapes, shades or outside awnings. Minimize reflected glare from shiny surfaces by using dull finishes on walls and furniture.
- Avoid sharp contrasts of colors by painting walls and furniture in soft, light colors. If a dark desk must be used, add a light-colored desk pad.
- Provide your child with a chair and desk suitable to his or her size.
- Discourage reading in bed or while lying on other furniture or on the floor.
- Encourage your child to hold the book at a 10-20 degree angle and 12 to 16 inches from the face and to take frequent breaks during long periods of concentration.

Chelsea revival held

Chelsea Church of God begins a revival this Sunday at 7 p.m. Services will be led by Rev. Charles Barrett each evening at 7 p.m. through Wednesday, September 15.

Everyone is welcome to attend.

SCCT opens two plays

Brother Billy had a calling. It was faith healing.

A young woman named Annette had a calling, too. It was to be a hairdresser.

The two characters appear in plays written by Alabama playwright Brad Bailey.

Both the prize winning, "Electric Angel," and the premiere performance of, "Crowning Glory," will be presented by the Shelby County Community Theatre Sept. 9, 10, 11.

Performances will begin at 8 p.m. at the community building in Montevallo's Orr Park.

Proceeds from the Saturday evening performance will go toward a drama scholarship being established in memory of SCCT board member Maryalice Ballentine.

As an added incentive to attend the Saturday performance, ticket holders that night are invited to an after performance party at the home of SCCT members Billy and Cindy Hill.

Marty Everse plays the part of the disillusioned faith healer in the "Electric Angel." Other members of the cast are: Nancy Wilstach, Mary Plott and George Ensor.

In addition to directing "Electric Angel," Pam Midgaugh will also perform the monologue in "Crowning Glory."

Director of cinematography Reed Smoot signals to the Lady Falcons to shift to a better position while shooting the volleyball scene for an upcoming UM recruitment scene. Standing behind Smoot are associate producer Beth Anthony of Montevallo, and producer Joel Douglas, son of actor Kirk Douglas.

...and lots of work

With the familiar ring of "take two," Douglas and crew hold a quick discussion on how to improve a bicycle sequence on Flower Hill. Working up to 15 hours a day with Hollywood professionals gave dozens of assisting students an unique learning opportunity. (Photos by David F. Moore)

Montevallo makes magic mini-movie moments

by David F. Moore

The opening of school wasn't the only excitement at the University of Montevallo last week. After all, it's not every day one asks a Hollywood producer to shoot a film for free, and he says yes.

But that's what happened last week as producer Joel Douglas and a crew of professional movie makers added a touch of Hollywood to the UM campus while shooting a short "recruitment" film for the school.

Douglas is quick to explain that the film is no mere travelogue, no documentary of campus highlights. Nor is it a hard push commercial for UM recruitment.

The film will depict the dream a girl has while her parents are driving her to college for the first time. The script was written by staff writers for Mel Blanc.

In the dream, girl meets boy. Girl meets new friends. Girl meets faculty.

It's basic in theme, but as Douglas told the Reporter, "All learning is built through relationships such as these. It's these feelings and impressions, in the form of a dream, that we're filming."

Douglas, the son of actor Kirk Douglas, has production credits which include "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," "The China Syndrome," "Drifter," and others. In fact, his films have won five Oscars.

So why is he offering his services for free? Is he suffering from the cuckoo syndrome?

Countians play part in UM recruitment film

Several local students and residents played an active part in the production of the film.

Open house set for Riverchase

Riverchase Middle School will hold open house at 7 p.m., Tuesday, September 14.

Parents are urged to use the opportunity to meet with teachers in order to better understand what will be expected of students.

Last year the school won a plaque for having the largest percentage of parents attend open house at a county middle school. Riverchase school officials hope to retain that honor again this year.

The reason, he explained, is four-fold: UM President Dr. James Vickrey, Montevallo native Beth Anthony, the idyllic campus itself, and guaranteed distribution.

Two years ago Douglas was scouting locations in Alabama for "The Jaws of Satan"—part of which was filmed at DeSoto Caverns near Childersburg. During that time he met Anthony and Vickrey.

Anthony, who left Alabama to work in films, returned last week as associate producer on the film.

As for the UM president, an admitted film addict, Douglas said:

"It's true. I like Jim Vickrey very much. I was very impressed with his knowledge of films. When I left, I told him to give me a call if there was ever anything I could do for him."

Last month Vickrey took him up on the offer to call.

He told Douglas the school had decided to make a short recruitment film, and already he had persuaded Cobb Theatres in Birmingham to show it during movie previews.

Douglas was interested in shooting a film on the UM campus.

After consulting director Patrick Bailey, director of cinematography Reed Smoot and Blanc's writers, he called Vickrey back and suggested the dream angle.

Using media students as set helpers, and getting Douglas' services for free, Vickrey figures the cost of the film will be about a fifth of what one might expect for such a professional project. In fact, it probably won't cost much more than a well done admissions catalogue, Vickrey estimated.

As a matter of policy, Vickrey said UM has no desire to grow in student population. But more applicants means the school can be more selective.

For Beth Anthony, the shooting was a welcome homecoming.

"Having left Montevallo, I now see it, and Alabama, through different eyes—California eyes," she said. "It seems so much more wonderful now. It's too bad it took leaving to learn this."

Talking to members of the film crew, it quickly becomes apparent that Anthony wasn't the only one delighted to be in Montevallo last week.

Tree shows new life when fruit plucked

"There were so many pears on the tree we had to prop up the limbs," reported a Siluria homeowner.

But what really amazed Betty and Hermie Glass was what transpired after they shook off all the pears.

We got the fruit off early because the tree seemed to be dying, Mrs. Glass explained. But a few days after the pears were harvested, the tree leafed out and began to bloom.

Glass noted that there hadn't been a single green leaf left on the branches when he and his wife had gathered the four or five bushel yield from the ground.

"I believe we'll have some more pears this year," Glass declared.

Mrs. Glass said that her 79 year old mother had been amazed at the new growth, saying that she had never seen anything like it before.

It Does Make A Difference

We often hear it said that it makes no difference what doctrine a man believes if he is honest and sincere. We wonder if people think carefully before they say this. This suggests that God has no concern at all over what man believes. It suggests that error is as good as truth. In fact, some people seem to think that in religion there is no such thing as error. This is not the way the Bible views the matter. "Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God; because many false prophets are gone out into the world." (1 John 4:1). Certainly it makes a difference.

Suppose that you go to hear a preacher through a series of meetings. Suppose that each night for ten consecutive nights he preaches a different plan of salvation. One night he tells you that "faith only" saves. The next night he says that you must repent and believe in order to be saved. The third night he tells you to get down on your knees and pray for pardon. On and on the meeting goes and each night he gives a different answer to the question of what to do to be saved. At the close of the meeting he has preached ten different ways to become a child of God. What would you think of such a preacher? Of course you would think him to be terribly inconsistent.

Well, how do you suppose GOD would feel about such a man? Would GOD APPROVE OF ONE man preaching TEN different ways to be saved? Surely not. And yet the idea that some have of GOD is JUST AS UNTHINKABLE. They think that God approves of TEN men preaching TEN WAYS to be saved. If He does, WHY would He not approve of ONE man preaching TEN ways? He who reads the Bible CAREFULLY CANNOT GET THIS PICTURE OF GOD. IT MAKES A DIFFERENCE TO GOD WHAT WE BELIEVE AND DO. "The TRUTH shall make you free." (John 8:32).

Panthers tame Wildcats

by Richard Crosby

Opportunity knocked, but only Pelham answered the door. The Panthers started the new football season in style, knocking off the Shelby County Wildcats last Thursday night in Columbiana 14-0.

The opportunity existed for either team to win the contest, but it was the Panthers that had the extra 'ummph' needed for scoring.

Shelby County had the first chance to put the handle on the game. The Wildcats received the opening kickoff and marched straight for the goal line. A first down on the Panther four yard line gave the Wildcats their best scoring opportunity in two games.

The Panther defense rose to the test however, holding back the eager crowd of Wildcat players - stopping them twice on the one-foot line - and taking over on downs.

That chance might have spelled defeat for Shelby County. The Wildcats never repeated such offensive weaponry in use. Pelham, however, did not earn a cakewalk just for stopping Shelby County.

The Pelham fans had to do a lot of cheering as their team struggled to get its own offensive show on the road.

At the end of the first half, the score was the same as before the game.

"It seems we started improving as the ball game went on," Pelham Coach Billy Tohill remarked a day later. The Panthers had the momentum in their favor.

The second half saw the Panther defense tighten up and Wildcat miscues furthered the cause. Early in the third period, a bad snap on Shelby County's punt put Pelham in business on the Wildcat 32 yard line.

Just four plays and first down later, Charles Lee rambled 14 yards for the Pelham touchdown. Gary Howard booted the PAT to make the score 7-0.

Pelham scored again in the middle of the fourth period on a drive of about 40 yards. The Panthers connected for the score as quarterback Ricky Hayes completed a bootleg pass to tightend Danny Whitman. Howard was true on the PAT to make the score 14-0.

Tohill lauded his top running backs Ray Higdon and Charles Lee. The pair carried the ball 95 percent of the time. The Pelham head coach also singled out defensive noseguard Charlie Haley as having a good game.

"We pretty much played together as a unit," Tohill commented. "We didn't try to do anything fancy, just block, not leave the ball on the ground, and not throw interceptions."

"We were real pleased to win. We didn't have any idea what to expect from out kids (in a game situation), they really surprised us."

This week the Panthers await the Childersburg Tigers in the first home game of the year at Pelham. Of that game, Tohill commented, "After a two-week layoff by Childersburg we don't know what to expect. They could have changed their entire offense and defense. They have a lot of big people. We don't even come close in size."

Tohill added that he expects a big crowd for the game this week. "They've (our fans) got the spirit! We're excited about our team and feel that our fans are also."

Although Shelby County came up short Thursday night, SCHS Coach Ricky Seales found one thing to smile about.

He commented, "I thought we played better teamwise than we did the week before."

However, the coach stated that his squad is still making mistakes that it should not make. But, he attributed much of that to youth.

Shelby County graduated 16 seniors last year and began this season with only five players with any game experience.

The coach stated that some of Shelby County's problems may have been his fault. He said, "You take some things for granted with young people. But we are going back to basics now, just blocking and tackling."

'Dogs score first win

by Fred Guarino

Montevallo's Bulldogs evened their season record Friday by defeating Frances Marion 7-2 in an away contest.

The 'Dogs now have one win and one loss.

Montevallo's points came on their first possession drive with 3:07 left in the first quarter. The drive covered 75 yards in ten plays and was capped with a 26 yard romp by J. J. Moore.

Howard Gaddis kicked the PAT and the Bulldogs led 7-0.

Frances Marion only managed to get on the scoreboard late in the second quarter when Montevallo's Gaddis fumbled a punt snap in his own endzone and tried to run it out.

Gaddis was caught for a safety much to Coach Richard Gilliam's relief and the score stood Montevallo 7, Frances Marion 2.

Gilliam told the Reporter that had Gaddis escaped the endzone and been caught on the one or two yard line, Frances Marion might have gotten six points instead of two.

Montevallo earned ten first downs in the contest, rushed 138 yards and passed 21 yards for a total offense of 159 yards.

The Bulldogs had two passes intercepted and lost two of five fumbles.

Montevallo played an almost flawless game as far as penalties were concerned. The yellow flag was thrown on the Bulldogs only one time for five yards and that was when Frances Marion intentionally drew them offside.

Frances Marion rushed for 95 yards and passed for 57 yards for a total offense of 152 yards. The opponents earned eight first downs.

According to Gilliam, Montevallo standouts were Lonnie Layton and Ricky Dobson for their blocking; Clyde Sailes for his work in the line; and J. J. Moore and Dwayne Jackson for their defensive play.

The Bulldogs will play Shelby County at home tomorrow night.

SA saved by big man

by Fred Guarino

Bryan Russell may weigh only 172 pounds but he was a big man for Shelby Academy, Friday night.

The senior running back accounted for all 12 of the Raiders' points in an away contest that saw Shelby Academy beat Minor Christian 12-6.

Minor Christian scored first when they took advantage of a Shelby Academy fumble in the second quarter. That fumble put the opposition in business on the Raiders' one yard line and it took only one play to light up the scoreboard.

The Raiders came roaring back, however, in the third period when Russell scampered 35 yards for a touchdown. The PAT failed and the contest was tied at six all.

Russell, who tied the game, also gave his team the winning edge. He scrambled for 20 yards in the fourth period to reach pay dirt and put his team on top to stay 12-6.

A two point conversion attempt failed.

The contest marked not only the second win in a row for the Shelby Academy Raiders but the second time this season in which Bryan Russell gained over 100 yards.

Russell was good for 112 yards on 18 carries. Ninety-two of those yards came in the second half.

According to assistant coach Richard Pettijohn, Shelby Academy earned seven first downs, rushed for 153 yards, passed for 17 yards, had one pass intercepted, lost three fumbles and was penalized 50 yards.

Minor Christian made five first downs, gained 145 yards on the ground, made zero yards in the air, had two of their passes intercepted, lost two fumbles and were penalized for 50 yards.

Shelby Academy will play Cahawba Christian away tomorrow night.

Thompson crushes Bibb Co

by Fred Guarino

The Thompson Warriors chalked up their second win of the season Friday night by crushing Bibb County 27-6.

The Warriors pounded their hapless visitors for 356 yards on the ground and 57 yards by air. Larry Simmons' men also grabbed 19 first downs on their way to victory.

Bibb County only managed to get 65 yards on the ground and did a little better getting 117 in the air for a total of 182 yards. The visitors could grind out only ten first downs for their efforts.

Thompson lighted the scoreboard early in the first quarter when Richard Brasher hit Scotty Hawkins with a nine yard pass into the endzone. The PAT was good by Jeff Willis and the Warriors led 7-0.

The Warriors lighted the scoreboard again with just 1:21 left in the first half when Brasher scored on a four yard quarterback keep. The PAT was good again and Thompson led 14-0.

Bibb County managed to make the scoreboard blink one time just as the first half came to a close. Duane McGee scored on a one yard run. The PAT was blocked and the score stood Thompson 14, Bibb County 6.

Thompson marched right back in the third quarter when Max Brown scored on a three yard run. The PAT was good and the Warriors were up 21-6.

Not quite satisfied with their efforts, the Warriors added one more touchdown before the contest ended. With 11:36 left in the game, Demetrius Threatt scored on a three yard run.

The PAT was blocked this time but Thompson led 27-6.

The Warriors' Willis was good on three out of four PAT attempts. Statistics show that Demetrius Threatt gained 133 yards for the tribe and Luvell Bivins was the top ground getter with 150 yards for the home team.

Thompson will host Chilton County at home tomorrow night.

Vincent spirit wasn't enough

by David F. Moore

It wasn't lack of spirit that lost it for Vincent last Friday. Between a blood-toned sunset, the full moon, a little pep talking, and their general disposition, the Yellow Jackets were, indeed, fired up for Talladega County last week.

No one was shy when it came to hitting.

But the Golden Bears—which come in two sizes, big and bigger, and also travel in large numbers—eventually put a 19-0 swat to the now 1-1 Jackets.

Counting on their size, the Bears ran right at Vincent from the start, driving the home team's back to the wall on the four.

But on fourth down, tackles George Datcher and Kent Baker, linebacker Cedric Riggins, and "brothers" Eddie Reynolds and Heath Reynolds at cornerback and safety, got tough. Vincent stopped them cold at the one.

From there, quarterback Eddie Reynolds took the Jackets to friendly skies, reeling off four quick first downs in six plays.

Inside the 20, however, Vincent's drive deadended at a yellow flag someone threw on the field. The fine edge it appeared to be honing went suddenly dull.

Although the Bears caught more penalties than Vincent, Vincent's timing was worse. Blocking below the waist, holding, clipping and interference calls waylaid the Jackets at several inopportune times. (The football team ought to leave the flags with the band and the color guard.)

In the second quarter, the visitors scored, but foiled their own point after attempt.

On their first possession of the third quarter, Talladega punched out a drive with the help of a 25 yard run to 20. And on fourth and one from the one, the quarterback scored on an option. The attempt for two failed.

After that, it was fly or die for Vincent. Knowing the same thing, the Bears tightened their coverage and rush, and kept control of the game.

Following a 25 yard run with four minutes to go, Talladega punched out another TD, kicked the PAT, and chalked up its first win.

Head coach Harold Garrett marked the loss off to three major factors: 1) penalties; 2) coaching; and 3) Talladega's ability to wear down Vincent with size and numbers.

"We're going to practice coaching this week," Garrett said. "Against Columbiana we did a good job of substituting our people. This time we didn't."

"I was pleased with the defense and overall pleased with the game—except the penalties—until the second touchdown. We'll get better...I hope."

Friday night will tell as Vincent takes on its first area opponent, Jemison, there.

Penalties hurt Chelsea

by Fred Guarino

"I don't think our kids were done right."

"In eight years of high school coaching, I've never seen a group of men take a ball game away from 15, 16 and 17 year-old kids."

Those were the words of Chelsea High School football coach Roger Hibbs after his team was penalized a staggering 105 yards, Friday night.

The penalty flags flew as Chelsea gave way to West Blocton 3-7 on West Blocton's home field.

Hibbs added that the penalty yardage against his Hornets could have been higher but West Blocton declined to accept a few of the calls.

Chelsea's lone points came on a 28 yard field goal by Larry Court with 8:00 remaining in the third period.

The field goal was set up after the Hornets had actually driven to the West Blocton one foot line. However, Chelsea was penalized five yards for an illegal chin strap.

Hibbs stated that the strap was broken and that neither he nor his coaches knew about it. He indicated that the officials could have called for an equipment repair rather than the penalty.

Stop thief

CVA falls to Chambers

by David F. Moore

Gary Franks spent Labor Day laboring with a question: What to do about his Coosa Valley Rebels?

First it was Edgewood and a 25-0 skunk on the road.

Last week Chambers Academy came to Harpersville bringing a 14-0 skunk.

That sort of thing gets old. Fast.

"We've got to get something going on offense—that's all there is to it," the head coach said.

The defense, which was improved over the first game, held Chambers several times inside the 10 yard line without giving up points.

During the night, Joel Ritchey picked off two interceptions, Brett Stricklin grabbed another, and Tolva Harmon and an unidentified Rebel both recovered fumbles. Rodney Spates played tough all night.

But each time the defense came up with the big play, the big turnover, the offense failed to redeem the coupons for valuable gifts.

In second quarter, after the CVA defense sacked the punter at the 20, the offense bogged down on the 12 and missed the field goal.

Chambers' scores came on a 45 yard run in the second quarter, and a drive in the third.

According to some British agents, you're only supposed to live twice. But three times in the fourth quarter the defense gave the team extended life.

Franks said the main problem seems to be the line. Leaking linebackers are constantly pressuring Rebel quarterback Kevin Garrett and grounding the aerial attack.

"We want to be able to mix up our offensive game, but we just haven't been able to pass," Franks said. "So we can't open our rush and it's hurting us."

"We had a couple good goal line stands, and our defense has played pretty good all night. We just can't get the offense going."

Maybe during the week the Rebs found the answer to the leaky line and sputter-running. They need to, because it's going to take a lot more than a home advantage Friday night to beat the large, physical team that'll be visiting from Tallapoosa.

Calera stops Holtville

by Fred Guarino

Whenever Calera High School football fans talk of come from behind wins, Friday's contest will be remembered.

The Eagles, who trailed 14-0 with just eight minutes left to play, came roaring back to defeat Holtville 15-14 in Holtville.

According to assistant coach Mark Lovett, Calera gained only 31 yards total offense in the first three quarters of play and made only one first down.

However, things took a dramatic turn around in the fourth quarter when Barry Pickett intercepted a Holtville pass and returned it to the Holtville 35 yard line.

With eight minutes remaining in the contest, Edward Wilson fought his way to pay dirt from four yards out and Ricky Posey kicked the good PAT.

The score closed the gap 7-14. Calera held Holtville after the kickoff and then put together a drive of its own to the opponents' nine yard line.

A pass interception by Holtville killed Calera's hopes for the moment and only three minutes remained in the contest.

The Eagles played tough defense, however, and Holtville was forced to give up a safety with only 1:10 left in the contest. The safety closed the gap even more, 9-14.

On the safety kick, Edward Wilson fielded the ball on the Calera 30 yard line and returned it to the Holtville 35.

On the second play of the series, with just seven seconds left on the scoreboard clock, James Blanchard hit John Campbell in the endzone as the final horn sounded.

Calera had won 15-14 and had upped its season record to two wins and no losses.

The Eagles only put together 142 yards total offense and 111 of those yards came with only eight minutes left in the game.

For Holtville the statistics tell a different story....from riches to rags.

Holtville earned ten first downs and had 140 yards total offense. However, the opponents made only 40 of those yards in the second half.

Calera will entertain Bibb County at home tomorrow night.

UM faces tough schedule

The UM Falcons basketball team is aiming at the NAIA playoffs and the NAIA National Tournament this year.

This is something the Falcons have not done in two years and head coach Bill Elder admits it won't be easy.

For openers, most of the other teams looking for the district crown have four or five starters returning.

The Falcons return only two starters.

A third reason is the unsettled question of just how strong the Falcons will be in the post positions.

Finally, there is the schedule. Coach Elder calls it the toughest in his nine years at Montevallo.

The key to this year's team will be the inside game.

"We had a very good small team last year," Elder notes. The Falcons had their 13th straight winning season at 19-11.

"But we never got enough output from the inside players, either scoring or rebounding," he added.

"Our season is going to hinge on how our returning post men improve and on the ability of the big recruits," he said.

Montevallo must get higher numbers out of brothers Emory

Wells, a 6'8" senior from Chipley, FL and Gordon Wells, a 6'9" junior; Danny Jagels, a 6'7" senior from Greenville, TN; and Wayne Tanner, a 6' 7" junior from Cottondale, FL.

Emory averaged 2.8 ppg and 2.0 rpg, Gordon 1.0 and 1.1, Jagels 0.6 and 0.9, and Tanner 1.5 and 1.3.

Returning starter Clint Stewart, a 6' 5" senior from Columbus GA averaged 7.6 ppg and 4.8 rpg at small forward.

Vying for playing time up front will be newcomers Richard Dorsey, a 6'7" junior from Enterprise JC; Reginald Truss, a 6'6" junior from Northwest State JC;

James Smith, a 6'4" junior from Patrick Henry JC, and Kennedy King, a 6'4" freshman from Bessemer.

The Falcons are well fortified at the wings and point guard.

All-Southern States Conference and All-District 27 selection Joe Hall, a 6'1" senior from Montgomery, returns with averages of 14.4 ppg and 4.6 rpg to one wing.

Lettermen Glenn Harden, a 6'3 senior from Macon, Ga. and Jeff Adams, a 6'2" sophomore from Pelham, bring back marks of 2.3 ppg and 1.3 ppg respectively.

Recruits at shooting guard include Anthony Claude, a 6'3" junior and Patrick Henry JC and Sammy Jackson, a 6'3" freshman from Headland.

Claude is rated a better-than-even chance to earn a starting spot. Smith and King can also fill in at wing if needed.

Alonzo Williams, a 6'2" junior from Enterprise, who averaged 5.1 ppg and 2.6 assists last year, is heir apparent at the point.

He is being pushed by letterman Jeff Andiels, a 6' senior from Birmingham who averaged 1.9 ppg and Steve Swain, a 6'1 freshman from Childersburg.

"We start out the season with some rough tournaments, which will help us if we can qualify for the playoffs, but we must put it together as a team much earlier than ever before," Elder stresses.

Montevallo will begin the 1982-'83 season Friday and Saturday November 19-20 with the UM Lions' Club Tip-Off Tournament in Montevallo.

Lady Falcons eye NAA National Tournament

BEVERLY WARREN

JANET INGRAM

ELIZABETH COOLEY

SANDRA SIMS

At UM, women's volleyball is big time stuff.

The team is a proven winner and attendance is on the rise.

The Lady Falcons also have a very real possibility of a berth in the NAA National Tournament in their initial season at that level of play.

But... "We've been more erratic than I thought we should be at this point," admitted Montevallo volleyball coach Beverly Warren.

She begins her sixth season with a 175-65-1 record.

"At times, we've hit the ball harder than any team I've had but at others we don't seem to think as well as I feel we should. "We are running some new offenses right now and that's probably part of it; once we get those down, we should be all right," Warren said.

She added, "Our defense, for the most part, has been some of the best it's ever been. And, I think the players are chomping at the bit for some competition, instead of practicing all the time."

The season opens for the ladies on Wednesday, September 15 when they travel to Jacksonville State for a 7 p.m. match, then play Georgia and Clemson in Athens, Ga. at 6:30 p.m. Friday, September 17 and West Georgia in Carrollton at 10 a.m. Saturday, September 18.

The home schedule begins on Tuesday, September 21 at 7 p.m. with a tri-match against Mississippi University for Women and Alabama A & M.

The Lady Falcons' line up is fairly well established with five returning starters.

Leading the returnees are All-American Candidates Deborah Milliner, a 5'9" middle blocker from Huntsville and Sandra Sims, a 5'9.5" setter-hitter from Birmingham.

Juniors Dianne Green of Huntsville and Janet Ingram from Killen, provide steady play as the outside hitters.

Junior Elizabeth "Toots" Cooley from Pelham led the team with 617 assists and was an All-State setter.

The other middle blocker position is up for grabs with returning letterman Amy Dishroon a 5'9" sophomore from Huntsville and Kim Phelps, a 5'10" sophomore from Niceville, Fla vying for the spot along with Dana DeLoach, a 5'11" freshman from Titusville, FL.

Lefthander Paula Seibert, a 5'5" sophomore from Decatur and rookie Chris Duierr, a 5'7" freshman from Huntsville are progressing as outside hitters.

Blanche Watkins, a 5'3.5" sophomore from Brent is the team's defensive specialist.

Lions pour it on

by Fred Guarino

The Briarwood Lions showed no mercy for Maxwell Air Force Base, Friday, as they defeated that team 49-6.

The Lions earned 11 first downs, rushed for 272 yards, passed for 40 yards and suffered 65 yards in penalties in the contest played at home.

Maxwell Air Force Base managed only 11 yards on the ground, passed for 67 yards and were penalized three times for 25 yards.

Scoring for Briarwood was as follows:

Stephen Lindsay scored two touchdowns, one from 10 yards out and one from 15 yards out.

Bric Baker scored one time from 56 yards out.

Bobby Welch scored one time from ten yards out and threw a touchdown pass to Ken Preston.

Peter Clemens covered a punt in the endzone for a touchdown and Mike Quinn covered a fumble in the endzone for six points.

Maxwell Air Force Base only managed to light the scoreboard with a 50 yard pass when the Lions' second string defense was in the game.

Briarwood, now 2-0 on the season, will play Westminster away tomorrow night.

Balloons spread word

Balloons were the message carriers at the quarterly meeting for the children's fellowship of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Meeting at Camp Spain on August 28, for a day-long retreat, the 60 youngsters wrote messages from the Bible, attached them to helium-filled balloons and sent them off, soaring over the mountains.

Churches represented at the meeting were Spring Creek, near Montevallo; New Hope near Indian Springs; Homewood, Rocky Ridge and Union churches.

Adults who helped coordinate the day were Nancy McClung, Beverly Leach, Jeri Cardwell, Linda Bearden and Danny and Reba Williams.

At Camp Spain

Ready to send their messages across the mountains from Camp Spain are Rebecca Richmond, Margaret Hume, Richard Harkins, Chad Cooper, Suzy Leach, Jeana Cooper, Susan Harkins and Lacey Thomas. The youngsters are from New Hope and Spring Creek churches in Shelby county.

Wilton postmaster attends convention in Florida

Postmaster Billie A. Splawn of Wilton, is one of the delegates representing the Alabama Branch of the National League of Postmasters at the 79th Annual National Convention in Hollywood, Fla.

Founded in 1904, the League is the oldest organization representing postmasters in the nation.

The theme of this year's national convention is the rededication to serving America and continuing efforts toward improving postal service deserved, paid for and guaranteed for all our nation's citizens.

Postmaster R. Fain Hambricht, National President of the League reminded delegates to the convention that "Service is still the best product we have to sell...we owe good reliable postal service to all our citizens, no matter where they live."

Bowhunters compete in two-day event

Bowhunters and archery fans from all over the Southeast converged on Vincent the last weekend in August. The reason was to participate in the 13th Annual Howard Hill Invitational.

Sponsored by the Creek Bowhunters Club, the annual shoot honors the club's founder. More than 400 shooters registered for the event which took two days to complete.

Of special note were six Cub Boys who all shot a perfect 560 on the course. Club president Ronnie Abbott with consent of all present, decreed that all six boys would receive trophies for their achievement. Those perfect shooters are Chris Landers, Jeff Spates, Ricky Haynes, Jay Greene, Mike Snead, Jr., and Frank Rawls.

First Christian Church doubles attendance

by David F. Moore

One year in Shelby County has been good to the First Christian Church.

Two years ago, while located in a temporary facility, the church had 316 members on roll. About 100 of them were showing up for Sunday worship, according to church pastor Dr. Allen Garner.

On August 16, the congregation met for the first time in its new building on Valleydale Road. Now, just over a year later, Garner says the church roll includes 411 names, and about 200 worshippers attend Sunday morning services.

"I believe much of our growth is a result of moving to this community," says Garner, who lives in north Shelby with his family.

The church was started in 1874 at the Birmingham home of J.J. Jolly. From 1924-80, it was located downtown at 21st Street and 7th Avenue North.

Garner says the new 17-acre location near the Inverness entrance offers accessibility, security, and a pleasant residential atmosphere.

Since moving, most of the congregational growth has been in the form of young couples and their children. Garner says most of them live in north Shelby, others in Hoover and Vestavia.

Nationwide, Christ Church (Disciples of Christ) claims about 1 million members in 4,000 congregations. Most of the churches are in mid-America, with only 70 congregations in Alabama and the Florida Panhandle.

Of the seven congregations in the greater Birmingham area, First Christian is the largest, Garner says.

First Christian's roots in Shelby County go back further than one year.

In 1964-65 the church built and began operating Hargis Christian Retreat, located in Chelsea on Old U.S. 280. The 200-acre facility, with its 27-acre lake, is used extensively by numerous denominations for weekend retreats and week-long conferences.

Under the three-year administration of First Christian associate pastor George Edwards, the use of Hargis has mushroomed from 9,000 to 15,000 campers per year.

Since moving First Christian to Shelby County, Garner says the church has become active in local life, such as working with YMCA youth basketball programs. The church is also working with the North Shelby Fire District to provide an emergency relief and disaster center.

Before the church moved, Garner says it ran population and growth surveys on areas around Birmingham. North Shelby was picked, he says, because it showed the greatest potential.

The first phase of church construction included classrooms and a large, multi-use building.

"What I now call the 'cathedral,' the kids call their basketball court," Garner says. "One of our church members calls it our 'sanctuary-gymnasium.'"

Garner says the church hopes to build a permanent sanctuary in about three years.

"We're not through growing," Garner says. "I have no idea how big this church will be—or wants to be. The potential is unlimited."

"Right now," he says, "we're very busy working, growing, and becoming."

First Christian Church will celebrate its first year in Shelby County during the September 12 morning worship service.

Sunday school is held at 9:30, followed by a 10:50 morning service. Youth groups meet Sunday evenings at 5 p.m.

Stress leads to mental depression but Shelby Countians can help selves

Note: The following article concerns mental disorders experienced by Shelby County residents, how to recognize those disorders and what to do.

The information was provided by Dr. Harry Brown, president of the Shelby County Mental Health Association. All quotes are attributed to him.

by Fred Guarino

Over 100 cases of depression related mental disorders have been confirmed in Shelby County, this year.

The figure is actually a conservative one.

The statistics reflect only those cases handled by the Shelby-Chilton Mental Health Center.

In this county, those cases are often seen by schools, clergymen and physicians.

But what is important about the incidence of depression in Shelby County is that statistics show an equal number of cases involving children and adults.

Statistics of record show 56 cases handled for adults and 56 cases involving adults.

What causes depression?

Stress is a major cause.

"In times like these, stress is caused by economic conditions; people seeing friends lose jobs; people losing their own jobs; prices go up while income remains the same; and interest rates are too high to sell a home.

Also personal loss, illness or even good things can cause stress."

Good things? A promotion which brings increased responsibility can cause stress. Even the birth of a child can bring it on.

What are the signs of depression?

Anxiety, nervousness, trembling, pounding heart, rapid breathing, abnormal eating habits (eating too much or not at all), inability to sleep, and sleeping too much, are all signs of depression.

Other signs may be aches and pains.

"Depression for only a day or two is no big deal. But if depression is frequent for short periods of time or if it lasts a long time, a person should seek help."

How do you define depression?

"That bad, sad, blue feeling."

A serious result of depression is the feeling that there is no more pleasure left in life.

What about children?

"At any one time 20 percent of all children are experiencing feelings of depression."

What makes their depression harder to catch is that their symptoms are different from adults.

Signs of childhood depression are sudden changes in school performance, eating habits, difficulty in sleeping, irritability and moodiness.

Another form of depression in children even harder to catch is what is called "mask depression."

This depression exhibits itself in children who are overly active or delinquent or who show other behavioral disorders.

What causes depression in children?

It is sometimes not what a parent does but how the child sees the action.

In the eyes of children, their parents are significant people and if they think their parents don't like them, they think they are no good.

Another factors which can cause depression in children is disharmony among parents.

"The number of divorce cases and single parent families is a good example of the number of children who face this.

"In my practice, 70 percent of the depression I see in children and adults has to do with divorce."

The pressure to succeed can also cause depression in children.

"A parent becomes angry when a child's team loses a game. The kid feels bad about striking out or fumbling. A parent tells him that was a stupid thing to do. And, the child feels blamed."

What do you do when you see signs that someone is depressed?

With children, parents should be encouraging by letting them know that they are happy with their efforts.

"They must encourage a child to perform and evaluate that performance with the attitude of 'That's pretty good but let's see if you can do it the best you can.'"

"If things don't get better a parent should have the child evaluated at the community mental health center, by a psychologist or psychiatric social worker."

What about adults?

"There are six things a depressed person can do for himself:

"First, see a doctor to be sure that the problem is not physical. You may be physically ill.

"Second, talk your problems over with a friend, someone who is willing to listen, or the person who is causing the depression.

"Third, change your pace. Take the afternoon off to relax.

"Fourth, if you don't know how, learn to relax. Identify areas where muscles are tense and let them drop. Sit still and try to think of something calming.

"Fifth, exercise. Exercise is one of the greatest ways to get rid of depression."

"Sixth, plan your work. Be realistic about what you agree to do. Avoid too many changes at once.

"If these things do not work it is time for help."

SHUTTLE BACK AND FORTH.

Now you can change from forward to reverse without touching the gearshift.

A manual shuttle shift makes it simple. And makes Kubota's L235 mid-size diesel tractor ideal for grounds maintenance chores.

No competitive tractor in its class makes shifting direction such a simple chore.

All you do to change from forward to an equivalent reverse speed is just disengage the clutch, stop the tractor and pull the shuttle lever down. Eight forward and seven reverse speeds let you match your speed to the job.

Standard features include a 23.5 horsepower diesel engine, 19 PTO hp, choice of 2- or 4-wheel drive, rear wet disc brakes, a 3-point Category 1 hitch, a 7.4 gallon fuel tank and implement position control.

Walker quits race

by Marcia M. Sears

Red Walker dropped out of the runoff for Probate Judge of Shelby County in an announcement late Tuesday.

The former sheriff, who pulled 3,753 votes in the September 7 primary, apparently decided that he could not overcome the gap that Tommy Snowden's vote of 6,420 had opened.

Walker had won the runoff position over third place contestant Don Hughes of Montevallo whose vote count was 3,096.

Ray Hamilton of Pelham had drawn 2,039 votes for fourth place.

During the week since the primary, Walker had sought voter support and campaign funds to make the runoff race, but the results were reportedly not encouraging.

This will mean that Tommy Snowden will become probate judge for his second six-year term without a runoff. There is no Republican entered for the position in the general election.

Tanner calls challenge in House race

by David F. Moore

The Democratic race for a nominee to District 49 of the Alabama House of Representatives may not be over yet. Contender John Tanner is contesting the outcome.

According to final vote tabulations, Tom Stubbs of Helena won the primary race with 3,730 votes. Tanner pulled 3,061 votes, and the third contender, William Charlie Brown, got 611.

Tanner, however, is claiming that those figures are wrong.

Tuesday morning he filed papers contesting the election with the State Democratic Party Headquarters at the Jefferson Federal Building in Birmingham.

The newly formed district stretches from south Jefferson County, through north Shelby and south to parts of Calera. The request for the contest lists several allegations of voting irregularities, specifically concerning Beat 3, Box 2 in Calera.

That particular beat includes voters from both the newly created 49th representative district, and the 52nd district. Because the beat was split, separate voting machines were set up there for the September 7 primaries, one for voters in each district.

According to Tanner, however, the two machines were accidentally switched, leading to 92 incorrectly cast votes. When the error was discovered about 3 p.m. that afternoon, Tanner said the machines were cleared, discarding the incorrect votes, and tabulations began again.

Because of the switched machines, Tanner claims 70 people in district 49 had to vote for a candidate in district 52. In addition, 22 voters in district 52 erroneously voted in district 49.

Tanner said another 58 votes for either him or Brown would have edged out Stubbs' majority, and thrown the election into a runoff.

Beside the 92 votes from Calera, Tanner told the Reporter that a number of people who were supposed to vote in his district race, were unable to because of other confusion at the polls.

"I have an obligation to the 3,000 people who voted for me, and to those several hundred who weren't able to vote at all," Tanner said. "All I'm asking is a fair chance for me and those people."

"I want to know who won. There's enough discrepancy to put me in the runoff. It has to be contested, this close, so I've asked the state party to investigate," he said.

Steeple going up

Thursday was a momentous day in downtown Montevallo as a crane lifted the new steeple in place at the First Baptist Church. Traffic and business came almost to a standstill as crowds gathered to watch the steeple's slow but perfect ascent. The historic church is undergoing extensive renovation and the steeple raising was a significant step in the forward toward completion of the work. (Reporter photo)

ANNETTE SKINNER

Fob appoints tax collector

Annette Davis Skinner was named by Governor Fob James to be the new Tax Collector of Shelby County.

She will take over her duties on October 1, when the resignation of Fay Quick becomes effective.

Mrs. Skinner was chosen from a field of several candidates who were interviewed in Alabaster last month.

Mrs. Skinner will fill the two years of the unexpired term of Mrs. Quick.

She brings to the position considerable experience in government and private business.

She was with Kimberly Clark Corporation for 10 years, then served as chief clerk in the Shelby County Probate office, and later in the Circuit Clerk's office.

For the past 10 years she has been working with title insurance companies in Jefferson and Shelby Counties.

In 1978 she ran for the office of Shelby County Tax Assessor and lost by fewer than 300 votes.

She is a native of Shelby County and lives in Shelby. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Davis of Shelby.

Mrs. Skinner told the Reporter that she will be in the tax collector's office for the next two weeks, working with the staff.

WMU to move here in major relocation

The national headquarters of Southern Baptists' Woman's Missionary Union is moving to Shelby County. WMU will dedicate its new site and break ground for future buildings on September 23.

The Southern Baptist office will stand on New Hope Mountain overlooking US Highway 280, south of Valleydale Road.

The 25-acre site faces Meadowbrook office park and residential center.

WMU officials say that site development began on September 13 with construction of a road to be known as Missionary Ridge.

The property was acquired from Dantrac, Inc., and Pirata Enterprises.

The first phase of building construction will consist of at least 100,000 square feet. A two- or three-story circular limestone office and meeting center will overlook the highway. Two wings of a massive operations center will adjoin to the rear. The buildings will be expandable to accommodate future growth.

WMU hopes to occupy the new facility early in 1984 with 130 employees. Buildings will house programming, publishing, consulting, conferences, and distribution. An earth station for satellite receiving and transmitting will be part of the project.

Carlyn Weatherford, executive director of the 1.1 million-member organization, said that the new WMU site was selected because of its convenience, its beauty, and its relationship to Birmingham.

"Our executive board ruled that we should stay in the Birmingham area. We searched for a site that would allow plenty of room, a naturally beautiful environment, compatible neighbors, and easy access to all areas of town," she said. "We are pleased at the prospect of being part of exceptionally good development along Highway 280."

Although in Shelby County, the new site will have a Birmingham zip code. Weatherford said that postal considerations were of prime importance to WMU which mails periodicals with circulation beyond 900,000. WMU insisted on a site with a Birmingham address and access to the main post office.

The new site stands approximately 12 miles southeast of downtown Birmingham, where WMU has owned a building for 31 years. WMU also occupies a warehouse on 39th Street, N. All operations will be consolidated on the new property.

WMU has been talking with prospective buyers for its 41,000-square foot downtown landmark building, but no sales plans have been completed.

Architect for WMU is Albion W. Knight, president of Warren, Knight and Davis, Inc. The firm has been WMU's architect for 35 years. WMU has named Brasfield and Gorrie, Inc., as general contractor.

WMU expects to have its property served by the Cahaba Water Renovation Systems, Inc., a privately owned sewage treatment facility.

Site dedication ceremonies will take place in connection with a called meeting of the WMU Executive Board. The Board consists of 29 women representing state and area WMU organizations. The women are flying to Birmingham to decide the details of the new buildings.

The ceremonies will take place on New Hope Mountain at 1:30. Neighbors of the property are invited to attend.

UM finds cheaters

by David F. Moore

Eight University of Montevallo students have been found guilty in connection with a tests-for-sale racket.

The Administrative Council charged eight of nine students with breaking student conduct codes. School charges range from cheating and dishonesty, to theft, unauthorized entry, and misuse of university facilities.

UM is not releasing the students' names, nor is it seeking criminal prosecution.

According to UM Dean of Student Affairs Dr. Linda Mahan, this is "the first time anything of this scope has come forward" in connection with cheating at UM.

Campus police began preliminary investigations in March of this year after a set of keys was reported missing from a school service truck, Mahan said.

Hopes, fears, humanity line up for jobs

by David F. Moore

They begin shuffling into line about 7 a.m.

The Alabaster Job Service won't open for another hour. But the line grows long, and standing at the end of it can be costly.

The people come from Chelsea, from Chilton County, from places in town. They bring with them desperate situations and dreams, college diplomas, and futile slips of paper. Some are black, some white. Some wear overalls, others skirts or ties.

But they have one common bond: they all need jobs.

In Shelby County, the latest unemployment figures (July) stand at 12.3%-3,640 people. The rate is 13.5% in Chilton County.

When the doors finally open, the line of people is stretched into the parking lot, towards highway 119 where cars pass, carrying fortunate ones to work.

A worker comes out of the office with a job opening to fill. A woodcutter is needed. Four bucks an hour—better than nothing.

A lucky man returns to the office with the worker.

"He looked like an $11-an-hour man," says one person waiting by the door.

"That guy didn't want to take it, but he told me he'd do it if he had to," says another.

"I thought I'd refuse to work for $4 an hour," says Rufus Champion, a burly, bearded man with an 18-inch scar on his left arm from a drilling accident. "But I'd go against the doctors' orders and work if I could. Hell, I'm starving!"

"I didn't even consider coming by yesterday. The line was too long," he says. To drive from Marvel as he did Tuesday morning takes a bite out of his $148 workman's compensation check.

"Do you think the government would put me up and feed me for five years like they did all the Vietnamese they brought over here?" he demands.

"I'd take anything $4 or over," says Jerrell Edwards, now on his second trip to the job office. The Montevallo family man says he was laid off last week along with 20 other workers from Central Alabama Paving.

"(They (Alabaster Job Service) called me back to fill out another form today," he says sceptically. "I think I'm just wasting gas..."

For Kathy Wallace of Alabaster, this is her first trip to job office. A wife and mother of four, she graduated two weeks ago from Bessemer Tech with an associate degree in computer programming.

Catch-22: no experience, no job.

"I'd take anything in computers, just for the experience," Wallace says. "The state has three programming jobs, but they all want experience."

"Do you have any openings at the newspaper?"

Since his lay-off a year ago, Steve Henry has become a "regular customer" at the job office. But so far, no luck.

"I've only had one job to go see about. That was with Plantation Pipeline in Helena," the Chelsea man muses. "And then I couldn't even get in the gate."

Henry's unemployment compensation ran out eight months ago. Like many of the people in line this week, he has come to file for an extension through the recently granted Federal Supplemental Compensation (FSC) program.

Once a person's 26-week eligibility for unemployment compensation runs out, he or she can apply for the 10 week FSC extension. The program started Monday, and according to acting manager Mattie Lee, unemployed people can file for FSC up to March 31, 1983.

On Monday alone, the Alabaster office took 110 claims for unemployment, according to Lee. Another 54 people were rescheduled for another day.

An unemployment check runs

$90 per week, maximum. To qualify, a person must register with the employment service for job openings.

Within a 50-mile radius of Birmingham, about 180 job openings were listed with the agency

Tuesday, according to employer relations specialist Jo-Elynn Norton. Twenty-five are listed directly with the Alabaster office, she says, and an average of 80% (high among agency offices) of County fair opens

The Shelby County Fair is in full swing this week in Columbiana. After exhibits were judged Monday, Lizzie Willis and her daughter Dorothy Epperson of Columbiana compared their winning entries which were peanuts and pears.

Mt. Vernon treasure will stay in county

A direct descendant of Martha Washington made her home in Shelby County for many years.

When she decided to leave this year, she also decided to sell many possessions that had come down to her through eight generations from Martha Washington. All of them are believed to have been at the Washington home at Mt. Vernon. An exception is a copy of a painting of Martha Washington herself, which was completed at a later date.

A group of Shelby County residents, headed by Karl Harrison of Columbiana, formed a corporation to acquire the items, and they will ultimately go on display in the Shelby County Historical Museum, when the museum is completed.

Harrison called it "literally a miracle" that these items are in Shelby County. He was determined that they not be allowed to leave. He says it is the largest collection of Mt. Vernon memorabilia outside Mt. Vernon, and this is corroborated by George Burton, an antiques specialist from Shelby.

Next Tuesday the collection will go on display at the Cahaba Valley-Inverness Branch of the First National Bank of Columbiana, and the following week it will be shown at the Riverchase Branch. The public is cordially invited to attend the openings. See page 5 for further information.

Jury convicts

Marijuana seller tried

A jury composed of 11 women and one man brought in a guilty verdict Tuesday, following a two day drug trial.

The defendant standing trial in Shelby County Circuit Court was Richard Hamerick of Pelham.

In closing arguments, District Attorney Billy Hill told the jury the case boiled down to what Hamerick told an undercover agent.

Hope murder plot charges dropped

Two cases that were pending against Hubert Hope of Shelby were not pressed on Monday.

Circuit Judge Joe Baker in court in Wetumpka dismissed cases where Hope had been charged with plotting to kill Shelby County Circuit Judge Harold Walden and Shelby County District Attorney Billy Hill.

Hope is currently serving a sentence after being found guilty of the same charge against the state attorney general, Charles Graddick.

Strip mine not in Indian Hills

According to state officials, the B&T Coal Mining Company has applied for a license and geological and environmental test for a proposed strip mine in north Shelby.

The land in question lies off Valleydale Road, between the Cahaba River and Indian Valley subdivision.

The Reporter has been investigating the mine story, but in last week's issue mistakenly said its location was Indian Hills.

While he was on the stand, Birmingham police officer Hollis Crutchfield said that when he left Hamerick's trailer after making a drug buy, the defendant had said, "Come back, I want to do some more business for you."

Crutchfield testified that he had made three trips to Lusco Trailer Park where Hamerick and his wife lived when the marijuana sale was made September 24, 1981.

Defense attorney Dick Bell said there was reasonable doubt about his client being the man who made the sale and suggested it was a case of mistaken identity.

Assistant DA Jim Fuhrmeister also keyed in on the issue of identity. In his closing talk to the jury he said, "It comes down to this. Was it Richard Hamerick or wasn't it?"

Testimony revealed that the man who had sold the $17.50 worth of marijuana had worn his hair long. Hamerick's hair during the trial was cut short in the conventional style.

Both Hamerick and his wife testified they had never seen the undercover agent. He also claimed that he had been working at his job as security guard for Alabama Power Company when the buy was made.

Jurors who heard the case were: Grace D. Lindsey, Patsy Latham Bamberg, Doris C. Lawley, Lela G. Strong, Jo A. Vaughn, Mabel H. Herron, Elizabeth A. Harris, Sandra R. Bentley, Jeanette M. Shaw, Etta E. Bailey, Sandra L. Draper and Kermit Mathison.

Retired Judge Leigh Clark from Birmingham presided at the trial.

Registrars raise ruckus

by Marcia M. Sears

Doris Turner took on the County Commission Monday, and lost at every turn.

Mrs. Turner, who has been chairman of the county board of registrars for several years, started her talk to the commission by passing around copies of a recently passed law which outlines her powers.

She demanded to know, "Why is my office the only one to start an experienced clerk at minimum wage, and why are other offices calling and trying to tell me and my staff how to do my job?"

The commissioners were somewhat taken aback at her aggressive stance and Don Murphy asked, "What calls are we talking about?"

After several exchanges, Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden said, "About the phone calls...The registrars were passing out campaign cards for Red Walker and Sonny Moore to the new voters they were registering. I called the governor, the state auditor and the secretary of state. It is a felony to politick at registration. I also caused Mr. Hill (District Attorney Billy Hill) to go to their office."

Mrs. Turner said that she didn't know politicking at registration was against the law, but when Hill told her it was, she and registrar, D.T. Spates, stopped the practice.

But she accused Snowden, "When the registration materials came up to my office, Tommy Snowden campaign cards were inserted."

Snowden retorted, "My people didn't do it."

Mrs. Turner also complained about a phone call she received from Snowden's wife, saying Snowden himself should have been the one to call her.

On the matter of temporary help, it developed that Mrs. Turner had employed her daughter, Wanda Coleman to help out during the election crush.

Mrs. Coleman had previously worked in Tax Assessor Bobbie

Reynolds' office and had achieved top pay. Mrs. Turner had assumed she would be paid at the same rate as a temporary in the registrar's office. She read from the law which says she can employ people as necessary to run the office.

The commissioners asked the opinion of county attorney Frank Ellis about the pay question, and he stated, "First, this law is very poorly written." Then he gave the opinion that the pay could be established by the county commission for any person hired in the registrar's office.

The commission voted unanimously to pay only minimum wage for any temporary workers.

Harold Davenport then asked Turner and Spates why the reidentification was in such a "mess." He said he had personally delivered a stack of cards to Spates, but when election day came the voters who had signed the cards could not find their names on the voters list.

He went on, "I am disappointed in the work you've done. You have people living in Maylene voting at Elliottville, and people who live in Alabaster having to go to Helena to vote. I have been real patient, until this last election, but..."

Don Murphy asked, "Why does it take three registrars plus inside help for Shelby County?" The two registrars answered, "We have a problem in the office which is very hard to deal with."

The lively discussion lasted an hour. After the registrars left, some of the commissioners wondered out loud what the purpose of the confrontation had been.

Aldrich FD billed

by David F. Moore

The Calera Water Board is billing the Aldrich Volunteer Fire Department $75.

According to one Calera official, the fire department is being billed for allegedly using city water to fill the swimming pool of a South Calera resident.

However, a fire department spokesman said the Calera water was being used to test a repaired hose nozzle.

Either way, Calera city clerk Lamoyne Payton said the water board had consulted its attorney on the matter and had been advised to send the bill to the fire department.

She said water customers occasionally ask to have the Calera fire department fill their swimming pools because the trucks can do it quicker. Even if they offer to pay, Payton said such requests have to be denied.

Payton said that last summer a Calera resident reported that an Aldrich fire truck was filling a swimming pool belonging to Howard Jaudon. Payton described the pool as being above ground.

Fire department treasurer Henry Emfinger said Aldrich will pay the bill as a matter of principal, but he doubted the story of filling the pool.

According to Emfinger, Aldrich Fire Chief Mark Bice drove the truck to Calera to have a broken hose nozzle welded. After it was fixed, he said Bice hooked onto a Calera fire Paulette Smitherman probably thought she'd never see her purse again.

But September 1, an unidentified Shelby man found the Jemison woman's lost handbag and turned it over to deputies at the county jail. The purse was returned to its surprised owner.

On September 2, Chief Deputy James Jones recovered a horse which had been stolen from Illinois.

That was the "giving" side of the sheriff department's weekly blotter through September 6. (Because of personnel vacations at the sheriff's office, the blotter was not complete to the end of the week.)

On the "taking" side, five thefts, five burglaries and two robberies were reported. (One robbery was recapped last week in the Reporter.)

A Rt. 2 Columbiana man reported that two individuals robbed him of his money in the Chelsea area September 6. No charges were filed at the time.

A vacationing Almont woman was notified the same day that her house had been broken into. It was unknown if anything was stolen.

A Calera man reported September 5 that his stereo system and camera had been stolen from his home. A Maylene man reported his chainsaw stolen from his pickup.

A Montevallo man reported the same day that his 1982 Yamaha was taken from his home.

A thief in the parking lot of the Montevallo Shopping Center reportedly took $238 cash from a man and his wife on September 4. Also a Sterrett man reported the theft of a tape system and overhead light from his van.

A north Shelby woman said her house was broken into September 2, and a tv set was stolen. The same day a Columbian man reported the theft of three batteries from heavy equipment parked on highway 43 north.

In Pelham, a walkie-talkie was stolen from a burned patrol car parked at an auto dealership September 1. On August 31, a burglary was reported at Sunrise Trailer Court.

Deputies have solicited help from the telephone company in halting a series of harassing phone calls to a woman in Helena. She has been getting the calls for over a month. A similar incident was reported by a Westover woman.

A Pelham woman also notified deputies that an unknown man was following her every day.

Under The Courthouse Dome

Shelby County was offered a free gift last Monday, and the county commission accepted it.

The gift was in the form of a building and seven acres of land in Shelby. It came from the Atlantic Wood Industries of Savannah, Georgia.

The company specified that the property be 'exclusively for public use.'

The large Butler-style building was originally constructed by the Carpenter Company about 13 years ago, and was used for manufacturing pallets and other items of wood. It was sold to other companies in the intervening years, including Chelsea Timber Co. but has been empty for some time. Its valuation on county tax records was $40,200 last year when the company paid taxes of $1,286.40 on the property.

The commission turned the property over to the county's Industrial Development Board to use in the 'best way they see fit.'

The Commission granted cash advances to Jim Summers and to tax assessor Bobbie Reynolds so they can attend a meeting at Joe Wheeler State Park later this month. Summers asked for $530 and Reynolds for $380.

County attorney Frank Ellis told the commission that the Planning Commission has asked the county to file suit against the Sweet Alice Company, to enjoin them from expanding their industrial space. Sweet Alice is located in Beat 12 which is covered by the only zoning laws in the county that exist outside municipalities.

The county attorney also asked the commissioners if they saw a conflict of interest if he were to represent private clients who might sue the county over property reappraisal values. He said the state attorney general could see no conflict.

Toward the end of the county commission meeting Monday, county attorney Frank Ellis asked the commission to officially close a road that runs into the middle of 60 acres his wife owns near Shelby Shores. On a map, he showed where the road came to a dead end. Commissioners agreed to the closing subject to Ellis' consulting with a nearby landowner for agreement.

Food for the Aging program in Shelby county will cost $8,124.75. This was the bid accepted by the county commission Monday for the 6 month period beginning October 1.

Although several companies were asked to bid on the food, only one company submitted a bid. According to Susan Tedford, director of the program, the bid was in line with food costs for the last 6 months.

County commissioners granted a 10 year tax exemption to the Abex Corporation of Calera for its new wheel mounting plant. The exemption will be for 5 mills from the general fund, and will begin on October 1, 1982.

Commissioners expressed dissatisfaction that the company did not indicate the value of the new plant, and did not ask for the exemption until the absolute deadline.

They voted not to grant industrial tax exemptions in the future unless they were requested 30 days in advance.

Guilty pleas entered in court

During Shelby County's September term of Circuit Court, the following defendants pled guilty. Unless otherwise stated, sentencing will be Oct. 18: Randy Livingston, attempted theft of property 2nd degree, sentenced to serve 12 months; Christopher Carden, receiving stolen property 1st degree; Randall Lawley, selling marijuana to an undercover agent.

Finley, theft of property 3rd degree, 12 months suspended sentence, restitution and costs; Dallas Mitchell, theft of lost property 2nd degree, two year sentence; Laura Blackwood, theft of property 1st degree; James Arthur Jeffcoat, burglary 3rd degree, sentenced to one year and a day; Danny Alexander, selling one pound of marijuana and 20 methqualone tablets; Robert Weir, two counts of selling marijuana; Hollis O'Neal Crumpton, attempted theft 1st degree.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

Doing good is not all sunlight and daisies. There's rain out there and thorns. Six weeks ago, on my visiting route for the church, there was Henry Nichols at the far end of Silk Stocking Street, and Melville Harlin in the big house in McMillan's pasture, and A.A. Lauderdale halfway up Silk Stocking, and Yeager Horn on Jail Street. And today, just a few days later, they are all gone. Yes, there's rain out there and thorns.

J.B. and Nocal Henry live in Crestwood, a section of Woodlawn, somewhere the other side of the big town of B'ham. There must be a thousand houses there and folks in all of them, folks like J.B. and Nocal. But there's one other thing I ought to mention. They have enough pretty flowers in their back yard to perfume a whole county. It's so flowery up there the hummingbirds come by all through the day, filling up on the sweet stuff. And today, as something sort o' special, they cut a watermelon for Amy and me.

For you folks who don't know Tommy Harrison, he's the son of my boss, Karl Harrison. When I ran across the name Tommy Harrison last Friday on the hospital roster, I put Tommy's name at the top of my list. When I got to the room I didn't find the Tommy Harrison I knew. I found a Tommie Harrison, a pretty school teacher at Thompson High School. So I made a new friend, one who reads my stuff every week. And, like I've always said: new friends are like little candles in the dark.

I don't know what you've got in your back yard -- maybe an old well and a windlass and a ragged rope, or some rose bushes with the roses gone and the leaves turning red and gold, or a clothes line with the wash on it, rippling in the breeze -- and maybe that's what you'd rather have than anything else. But for Amy and me, we'll take the dogwood trees, a whole dozen of 'em, with the late afternoon sun slipping through the leaves.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

You talk about being dizzy. That condition describes exactly how I felt last week as I took my first plunge into the world of election returns.

As I went to the polls that morning to cast my vote, I had no inkling as to what lay ahead when the polls would close.

In past elections, I have been left in my safe office cocoon. My job was to hold down the fort, while others sallied forth to the building next door to find out how the political winds were blowing.

But a decision was made this year which threw me, headlong and unsuspecting, into the fray.

Making my way through the throngs that had already congregated early in the evening, I reached the courtroom where returns were being recorded on the "big board."

My first task was just to get within eyeshot to see the figures.

And with a little pushing and shoving, I finally reached the rail behind which the board was sitting.

Finding it difficult to run my eye down and across and wind up in the right columns from the inch of space I'd squeezed into on the front bench, I proceeded to get a little closer.

However, I didn't get far. An arm with a star on the sleeve blocked my path.

"No further," proclaimed a charming deputy. "Those are my orders."

My plea for one little exception

Suspects nabbed

In the early morning hours of September 10, two Alabaster men reportedly tried to steal gas from a parked school bus at Thompson High School.

That evening, as the Thompson Warriors battled Chilton County High School on the football field, two other accused thieves tried to remove a car battery.

Twenty one year old Sylvester Ryan and Frank Norris, 18, were apprehended at 12:38 a.m. as they allegedly attempted to steal gasoline from a bus in the parking lot.

They were discovered by Lt. Leroy Davis and office Brian Clark on routine patrol rounds.

Clark was also one of the officers responsible for apprehending 18 year old Kirby Norris and Ronnie Hale, 30, as they allegedly attempted to remove the car battery.

Now hear this: bill needs amending

Letter to the Editor:

In the last month, a bill (S2355) of vital importance to most hearing aid users has been passed by the U.S. Senate Committee on commerce, science, and transportation. This bill supposedly would "ensure reasonable access to telephone service by persons with impaired hearing." In fact, the bill gives the FCC the power to determine whether or not phones (except for pay phones) will be compatible with hearing aids, and then it says that the FCC may not require that phones be compatible with hearing aids if this conflicts with the technology the telephone companies want to use in the future!

There are several million people in this country that wear hearing aids with telephone switches on the aid. This switch enables the hearing aid to pick up magnetic impulses from a phone, rather than the sound normal people hear. Most phones in use today produce both sound and magnetic impulses. But new phones will not produce the magnetic impulse. Without that impulse, most hearing aid users just get a loud squeal when they use one of these new phones.

It is important that hearing aid users, relatives of hearing aid users, and all concerned with the needs of the hearing impaired write their senators and representatives in Washington to ask them to vote against S2355 unless it is amended to demand that the telephone manufacturers make phones the hearing impaired can use in the office, at home, and in a hospital!

SCHS reunion called big success

Letter to the Editor:

I would like to thank so many people who participated in the Shelby County High School reunion.

I was contacted in early February by Bill Miner to get out a letter to have this reunion. Then, I was called by Frank Jones who also asked me to have another reunion. I must have spent anywhere from two to four hours per night on the telephone from February until the event on August 21.

All skits were prepared and worked up over the phone. They were all un-rehearsed.

We owe much gratitude to Mrs. C.H. Fore (Wilma), who addressed most all of the correspondence which was mailed out, with the exception of the letter Bill Miner mailed. She was super!

I would like to thank classmates who contributed funds to buy favors, and other necessities, to make this special event a success.

Thanks to each of you who took part in the program and entertainment.

Thanks to all of you on behalf of the planning committee who were: Jimmy Curtis, Harvel Fore, Tyla Fancher Lansford, Vena Pearson Stricklin, Buena Howard Rape, Frank and Sue Wheeler, Ruth Kite, and Birdie Shaw Coleman. We hope to plan another one in 1985. Hope to see you then.

Previews don't meet 'G' rating

Letter to the Editor:

Warning!! To all parents, allowing their children to go to theatre movies, alone, to see G and PG rated movies. Beware!! Although the movie being played is noted G and PG, the previews to come, are not!

My husband and I, took three of our children, ages 5, 8 and 13, to what we thought was going to be a good, clean, fun outing, to see the movie 'Annie'. But when the previews of an R rated movie came on, showing vulgarity and naked people running around, I was thoroughly embarrassed and my husband was outraged. We walked out.

What worried me even more than what my children saw, was the fact that my teenage daughter and son went to the same movie theatre, a month earlier, alone, with other teenage boys to see a PG rated movie. Heaven knows, what they saw in the previews.

Most of the children in the theatre, this night, were under the age of 12 and without their parents. Their parents, I'm sure, were unaware of what their children were seeing.

I feel that my freedom of choice was taken from me. We chose to see a PG rated movie and was forced to see previews of a R rated movie, which showed nudity and immorality.

I hear these liberal minded people constantly screaming about their rights and their freedom to choose what they want to see. What about mine!!

I for one will not stand quietly by and I hope more people will do the same.

If interested in stopping this write to: Cobb Theatres, 924-Montclair Rd, Birmingham, AL 35213.

Sincerely yours,
Beverly Stamps

Education is crucial

Letter to the Editor:

On national TV morning news last week three college presidents from different parts of the country were interviewed. They expressed concern about the quality of education high school graduates coming to their colleges had in public school.

These men made the point that our national security and the survival of our freedoms are in jeopardy because students are not getting the kind of education they need in our nation's public schools.

Although we no longer have children in the Shelby County schools, we continue to be concerned and trust that with new leadership Shelby County can inaugurate a strong program that will offer every student the opportunity for an excellent education.

We would urge every voter to consider the importance of the September 28th run-off for Superintendent of Education.

Very truly yours,
Roland and Shirley Lee

Alabaster court tracks down its no-shows

Anyone who thinks they can get away with not showing up for court in Alabaster has another think coming.

During Wednesday's court session, Municipal Judge Joel Watson issued a warning to individuals who fail to appear and think they won't be found.

The judge reported that one individual who had been on the alias list for several months had been located in Huntsville.

Charles Avery Turner, whose alias fines amounted to $1,179 was found working with a carnival. He was picked up by Sgt. Larry Rollan and officer Richard Harmon and returned to Alabaster.

There were 13 individuals on Wednesday's docket who failed to keep their court date.

They were: Tommy Joe Beasley, McCoy Buckhannon, Johnny Ray Cunningham, Raymond Elston Harris, Keith Allen Humphrey, Mark Franklin Jones, Johnny Wayne Lewis, Elizabeth Ann McDowell, Maxwell Matthews, Jeffrey Wayne Peeples, Kenneth L. Powers, Bobby Gene Smith, Richard Thomas.

In two cases where defendants pled not guilty, the judge withheld his decision to give further consideration to the evidence.

One of the continued cases involved the charge of harassing communications against Betty Yearber. In the other case, Wilbert James Hamilton claimed he was not guilty of failing to heed a stop sign.

A trial in which a mother and son were defendants, resulted in a guilty verdict against Steve Dupree. The judge found his mother, Betty Dupree, not guilty.

Assault (3rd degree) charges were brought against Mrs. Dupree and her son by Steve Dupree's ex-wife, Judy.

Dupree was fined $500 and ordered to make restitution of medical expenses incurred by his ex-wife.

Tewana Burnett and Rosa Portis were found guilty of theft of property from Bargaintown, fined $72 each and put on six months probation.

Willie James Johnson was found guilty of disorderly conduct and sentenced to five days in the city jail.

On DUI charges, Albert Howard Beard and Cynthia Goke pled guilty and were fined $319. Goke also pled guilty to theft of property 3rd degree and was fined $72.

Clinton S. Hester pled guilty to criminal mischief and was fined $97. He said he was not guilty of DUI, but after hearing testimony, the judge found him guilty and imposed a fine of $222.

Rickey Dean Perryman was given a 33 day jail sentence for DUI and driving on the wrong side of the road.

Jeffrey Wade Moats pled guilty to driving while suspended and was fined $169.

On guilty pleas to disorderly conduct, Donnie Hale was fined $97, Brenda Woodson was fined $47.

Averill Earl Quackenbush III, was fined $122 and given six months probation after pleading guilty to assault 3rd degree.

Thomas M. Black was fined $97 for violation of the state firearms act.

Timothy William Strozier and James Milton Church were fined $172 for possession of marijuana. Church was also fined $169 for DWS.

Charges of marijuana possession and possessing paraphernalia were dropped against Sandra Lea Sillery, but she was ordered to pay $44 in court costs.

On charges of public intoxication, Sylvester McDade was ordered to work 10 days for the city, Robert Dubose was fined $82.

Openings range from a UM professor, to cashiers and labors. More than 100 people per day vie for these openings, Norton says. Last month, 204 of them were placed in jobs.

Officers elected understanding because it could be us on the other side..."

Compared with crowds at the Birmingham office, Lee says people from Shelby and Chilton Counties waiting at the Alabaster office are very patient and understanding—all things considered.

But patience, like jobs, may be growing more scarce.

"I've been coming here since December 8 and I still haven't got anything done," says William Stallings, who has a wife and three of their seven children still living at home in Alabaster. "It's down right impossible to make ends meet. Getting a job here's like trying to get a loan from the bank."

"On a scale of 1-10, I tell you what: you'd better rate (the overall job situation) a minus," Stallings continues. "Have you ever played rummy and come up with a minus? We're going to have to come up with a pretty good hand to beat this."

PORTRAIT OF MARTHA WASHINGTON

*An Invitation to see...
AMERICAN HISTORY
COME TO LIFE!*

Please be our guest

It is with justifiable pride and great pleasure that we invite you to be our guest for the purpose of viewing preliminary showings of many of the items of Edmund Law Rogers Smith-Harrison Museum of Mt. Vernon Memorabilia.

THE FIRST SHOWING will be at our Cahaba Valley-Inverness Branch, at the intersection of Inverness Parkway and Highway #280 in Shelby County, for three days from Tuesday, 9:00 A.M. to Thursday, 2:00 P.M. beginning September 21st through September 23rd, 1982.

THE SECOND SHOWING will be at our Riverchase Branch, at the intersection of Riverchase Parkway East and Valleydale road in Shelby County, for three days from Tuesday, 9:00 A.M. to Thursday, 2:00 P.M. beginning September 28th through September 30th, 1982.

Other showings will be held following the above presentations.

Some time later the items mentioned below and others from the same collection will be permanently placed on display for the public to view in a museum in the Shelby County Library building in Columbiana, Alabama. This is the largest collection of Mt. Vernon memorabilia outside of Mt. Vernon.

It is literally a miracle that these priceless items remained in the family of direct descendants of Martha Washington for almost 200 years until now. They are located in Shelby County, Alabama, and will be made available for the public to enjoy.

Some of the items to be shown at the preliminary showings are:

- (1) A large copy of a portrait of Martha Washington painted in 1874. The original was painted by Mr. Wollaston, a prominent East Coast artist, and was owned by General Robert E. Lee's son, General George Washington Custis Lee, who loaned it to Mr. Edmund Law Rogers to have it copied by Mr. Volkmar, a famous Baltimore artist. This is one of three paintings of that famous family copied by Mr. Volkmar at that time and the other two paintings are now hung in Mt. Vernon.
- (1a) Letter from General George Washington Custis Lee, dated August, 1874 bearing proof of the painting of the above mentioned portrait.
- (2) Original will of Colonel Daniel Parke, the grandfather of Martha Washington's first husband, dated 1710. Colonel Daniel Parke was an officer in the Military service of England when he carried a message to Queen Anne of a military victory of the Duke of Marlborough at Blenheim in 1704. She made him Governor of the Leeward Islands and gave him a land grant in Virginia approximately the size of two counties. Daniel Parke willed that his descendants would not take under his will unless they bore his name.
- (3) A picture of Queen Anne.
- (4) A leather letter-box presented to Eliza Parke Custis, the granddaughter of Martha Washington, by General Lafayette.
- (5) A copy of the original plans for the grounds at Mt. Vernon.
- (6) A letter from Eliza Parke Custis to her grandson, Colonel Nicholas Rogers.
- (7) A letter dated February 7, 1744 from Charles, 5th Lord Baltimore, to his son, Benedict Calvert, appointing him to an official position. Benedict Calvert was the father of Eleanor Calvert, who married Martha Washington's son, John Parke Custis.
- (8) A letter from Thomas Law, who married Eliza Parke Custis, the granddaughter of Martha Washington, dated May 16, 1794, to Lord Cornwallis. Lord Cornwallis was the English General who surrendered to General Washington at Yorktown.

We think these showings will be rare treats and hope you will come and enjoy them with us.

vices Betty Wingo, director of blood recruitment and development John Burleson, Shelby County executive director Emily Rabren, medical director of the Alabama region Dr. Eoline McGowan, Shelby County board vice-chairman Dan Acker, and Alabaster Mayor Doc Rubin.

Payne settles into MHS office

PTA members who hadn't met the new principal at Montevallo High School had that opportunity Thursday evening.

Norman Payne, who didn't move into the principal's office until mid-August, welcomed parents who attended open house at the high school.

The reason for Payne's late start in assuming his duties at MHS, was because the board of trustees was not satisfied with the first candidates presented to them by the Shelby County Board of Education.

Payne was selected from a second group of names and approved by the board at their Aug. 17 meeting.

An educator for 14 years, Payne's last position was at McAdory High School where he was assistant principal.

He also coached football at McAdory and at Greenwood Junior High School, and has taught science and physical education.

Other areas in which he has teaching experience include a class of gifted students and another class composed of students with learning disabilities.

A resident of the county for four years, Payne and his wife

Lesley live on County Road 22.

They have two children, Norman, 15 and Melissa, 12.

New faculty members introduced at the open house were: coaches Bobby Pierson and Brad Bensinger; Dot Brasher, math-science teacher; Heidi Ross, librarian.

Former band director Jim Weese has returned to that position; Danny Akers is the new maintenance technician; Sue Melsoni has taken charge of the lunchroom and Sally Kornegay and Delilah Holsomback are members of her staff.

After a short assembly in the auditorium, parents went through an abbreviated schedule followed by their children.

The program concluded with refreshments served in the auditorium.

MES class goes

'Step Beyond'

In our modern age of fast foods and instant everything, young people often miss the satisfaction of making something from scratch.

For that reason, Montevallo Elementary School teacher Betty Smitherman conceived an idea to take her fifth grade students "One Step Beyond."

And the crafts that students have completed thus far will be on display at the school's open house Thursday evening.

Smitherman observed that students often don't even know the correct way to use a hammer and saw.

In the new class, students learn to use these tools in creating objects from wood. They also learn the art of quilting, rugmaking, needlecraft and macrame.

Some class members choose to make puppets, others try their hand at art. And after they finish one project, the teacher explained, each student must select a different craft for each future project.

Thank you for giving me such a fine vote of confidence in the Primary just held and race for re-election to the Shelby County Commission, District 4 which gave me a 921 vote lead over my nearest opponent.

The September 7 primary election gave me a lead in 29 out of 38 (76%) of all county boxes, and 6 out of 7 (85%) of all District 4 boxes.

Now that I have a run-off, I want every person to know regardless of how you voted in the first primary, that I welcome your help and support. And as I have said before, I consider this position a place of honor and trust.

If I am elected, I promise you that I will carefully and conscientiously consider the matters coming before me, in an effort to represent the people of our fast growing county to the very best of my ability.

CAT dedicated

Shelby County Medical Center will officially dedicate its new CAT Scanner this morning at 9 a.m. The public is invited.

What's a CAT Scanner?

It is an X Ray technique which allows something like the viewing of a whole loaf of bread, then taking out a slice and examining it alone, said Mike Borgini, CAT Scan technologist.

"The views are sent to the computer for the whole picture of the body part. The results can be read while the patient is on the table. Total exam time is about 30 minutes."

Persons using the scanner can be treated as out-patients.

'Other' election results posted

There were 127 people voting in the primaries Tuesday who only had 40 seconds in which to make their selections.

However, the ballots didn't count since the voters were under age.

They were students from Columbiana Middle School who were getting initiated into the voting process by participating in a mock election.

The event was sponsored by the Enrichment Resource class at CMS with the nine class members acting as election officials.

According to ERC teacher Deborah Reeves, eighth graders at the school traveled to the Shelby County courthouse to use the voting machine there.

In determining party preference, Reeves reported that only one student registered as a Republican.

Due to the limited time allowed in the voting booth, most students weren't able to complete the ballot.

But nearly everyone selected a candidate in the governor's race. The voting for the state's chief executive went as follows: George Wallace, 53; Joe McCorquodale, 22; James E. Folsom, 21; George McMillan, 14 and Reuben McKinley, 6.

The Lt. Governor's race was close with Bill Baxley receiving 44 votes and Sonny Callahan 40.

Richard Shelby was a runaway favorite for U.S. Representative. He got 54 votes with his opponent Jack Kartus receiving only 28.

In local races, students cast most of their votes in the probate judge race for incumbent Tommy Snowden. He received 25, Ray Hamilton, 17; C.E. "Red" Walker, 15; Don Hughes, 9.

With 19 votes, district 4 county commissioner J. Alpha Lowe beat his opponent Leon Archer by two votes while three votes kept Charles Seales from winning the district 2 commission seat from incumbent Harold Davenport who received 17 votes.

In the circuit judge race, students gave 28 votes to Judge Robert Armstrong, 16 to Eason Mitchell and 11 to Wayne Causey.

Their choice for superintendent of education was Ellie Glasscox, who received 25 votes. Incumbent Charles Knowles got 19 votes; Norma Rogers, 16.

In the coroner's race, incumbent Billy Thompson pulled 16 votes to lead his opponent Doug McGaughy by only two votes.

In some of the races, ballot position and catchy names seemed to make a difference to the youngsters.

The first name listed often drew a higher percentage of votes than he or she drew in the 'real' primary.

And the youngsters gave Wm. 'Charlie' Brown their overwhelming approval, although he was third in the primary that counted.

To the Voters of Shelby County:

Thank you for your overwhelming support in electing me as your Democratic candidate for Place 2 on the Shelby County Board of Education. Your vote of confidence is very much appreciated.

As a member of the Board, I have enjoyed working with you, and for you, during the past six years. I pledge to you continued hard work and progress if re-elected.

Your support and your votes will again be needed on November 2.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Barbara H. Whitman

UM test racket comes to light

The keyholder and partners were apparently able to enter offices in Jeter and Harman Halls. The halls house classes and teaching offices for the sciences and social sciences.

In some cases, Mahan said upcoming test copies were stolen, then sold. Other times, questions on the tests were copied by hand.

Mahan did not know how many tests had been sold, nor what price such information brought. "They probably sold them for whatever they could get," she said.

The racket apparently went on for about four months, through the spring period of final exams and into the summer school semesters.

Mahan said school officials are limited in determining the extent of the racket, by how much the involved students confessed.

The scheme came to light July 25 when a guilt-ridden student confessed her part, Mahan said.

A half-dozen students pled guilty to the three-member Administrative Council August 5-6, on charges of violating the student conduct code. Three more students, one of whom was found not guilty, were brought before the council August 23.

Depending on the extent of involvement in the racket, sentences ranged from social probation, to suspension from the summer semester until January. Mahan said several of the suspensions delayed students' graduations, and some class credit may be lost.

"Ringleaders" were also required to pay an undisclosed restitution to help offset the cost of re-keying locks, Mahan said.

Sentences were upheld when appealed to UM president James Vickrey.

The Administrative Council handles summer discipline problems. Its members were assistant dean Thomas Martin, associate dean Jim Wilkinson and alternating faculty members Drs. Larry Kurtz and Joe Walker.

THANK YOU

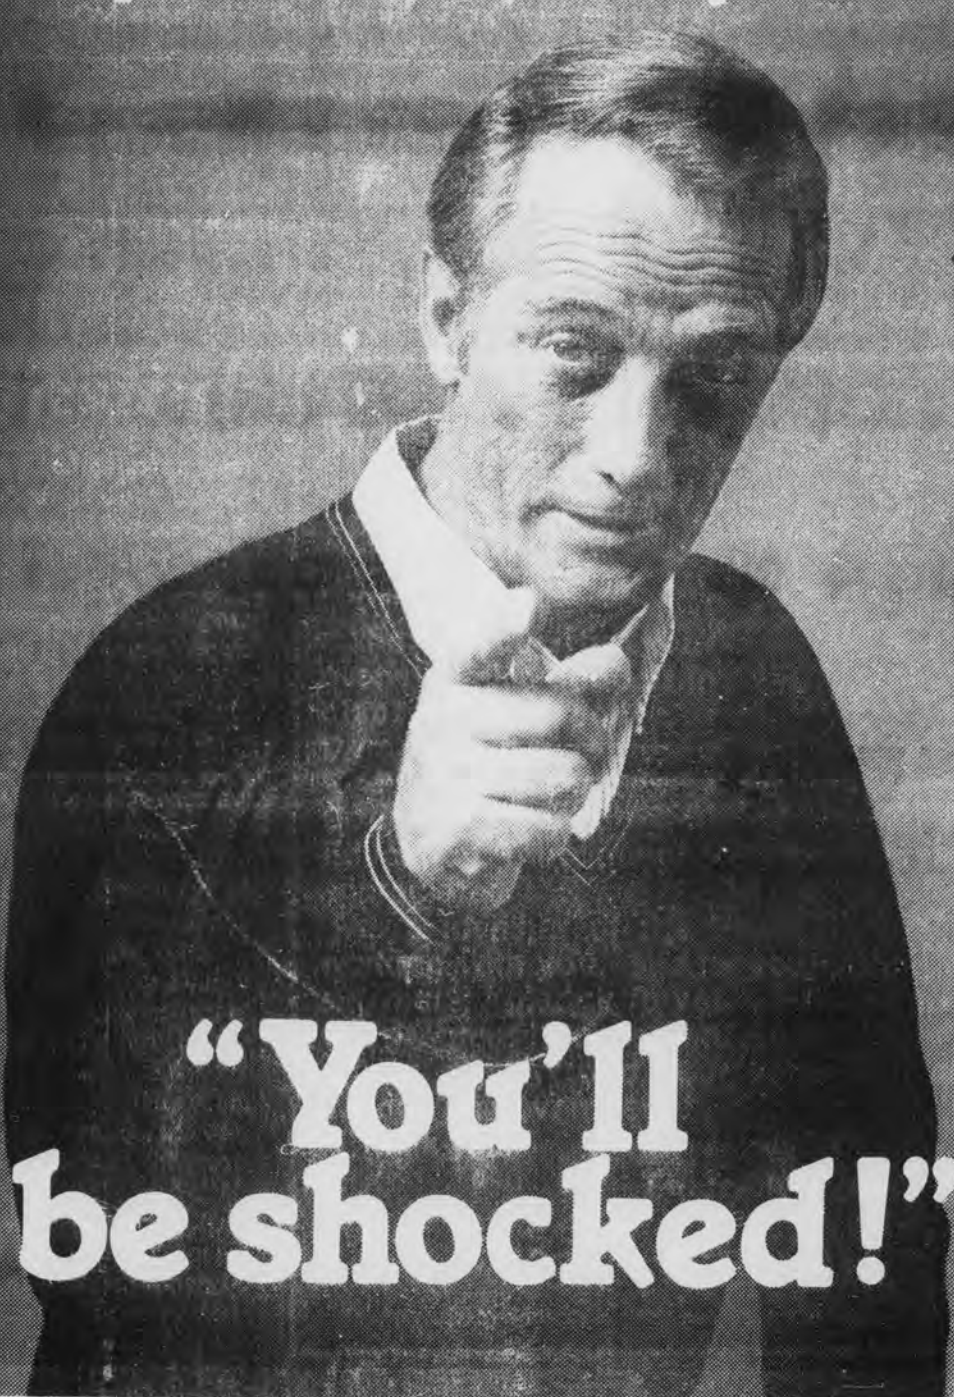

The people of the 18th Judicial District have voted for a change, as shown by your overwhelming support for me in the primary election. I will sincerely appreciate your continued support, and your vote this September 28th.

Cable tv is on the way to south Alabaster

Cable television is on its way to subdivisions along highway 119, south of Alabaster.

Richard Murphy, of the cable franchise Tac-Can told the county commission Monday that his crew will start putting in underground cables to service the Eddings Lane and Oakdale sections as soon as they finish tying in Calera with highway 31.

He said they had been waiting until Alabama Power Company finished reconstructing power lines and substations south of Alabaster, thinking the cables could be strung on the new poles. But after the new poles were installed, Murphy said the cable company discovered there was no room on them for the cables.

So they will have to be installed underground, and this will take longer than stringing lines overhead. Later the company will install cable along county highway 26, then go to Brantleyville and head toward Helena.

He reported for other sections of the county that "Columbiana is under construction and in 2-3 months, we should have paying customers there. Then we go to Wilsonville."

Forty lovers renew vows at UB Church

As the last notes of the Bridal Chorus were sung, twenty couples rose from their seats in University Baptist Church and came forward to say their vows. However, all of the couples who gathered around the altar in the candlelit auditorium, were already married.

The purpose of Sunday night's service, explains Montevallo minister, Bob Davis, was to give couples an opportunity to renew their marriage vows. Articles he had come across telling of individual couples who had repeated their vows a second time, gave him the idea, Davis said, of creating a service with a group concept.

The service wasn't designed to duplicate a wedding service, Davis noted, but its intent was to provide participants with nostalgic reminders of their own marriage ceremonies. "We hope that this service will be a meaningful, positive reinforcement for the husband-wife relationship in particular," he remarked, "and for the whole family in general."

The worship committee headed by Dr. Sanford Colley spent several weeks making plans for the service. After it has been evaluated, Davis said it could become an annual event at the church.

Dr. Colley assisted the minister in conducting the service and music was provided by a choral ensemble of UM students under the direction of Mark Baker.

Randolph S. James, choir-master and organist at St. Andrews Episcopal Church in Birmingham was at the keyboard.

Life classes commence at New Hope

Interdenominational "Abundant Life" classes are offered Sunday afternoons at New Hope Cumberland Presbyterian Church on Cahaba Valley Road. The class meets at 3 p.m., and is taught by Rev. William B. Todd.

"We're seeking people who go to no church, or have lost interest in the church," says Todd. "We major on Bible and mission studies in a relaxed atmosphere. Our goal is to build people up so they can build others up."

Todd said the class has a nucleus of 10-12 people and a varying number of visitors. Todd, who has spent a lifetime in youth and pastoral work, added that the classes are open both to young and older people.

The class was started about five months ago at the home of J.O. Lester, and moved to the church Sunday school building last month.

For more information on the "Abundant Life" classes, call 991-7317.

What Does Jesus Teach About - Governments

1 Pet. 2:13-14 "Submit yourselves for the Lord's sake to every human institution: whether to a king as the one in authority; or to governors as sent by him for the punishment of evildoers and the praise of those who do right."

By examining this passage we see several things; first that God expects his people to "Submit themselves" for "His sake." However, be advised, that when the governments commands contradict God's Acts 5:29 "We must obey God rather than men." also Daniel 6.

Not only does God expect us to be subject, but God also expects governments to punish evildoers. If we aren't subject God is not pleased. If governments do not punish God is not pleased.

People take note, God is very ching.

stiffened in the fourth quarter as Montevallo came from behind to tie the game.

The offensive attack of Shelby County showed that considerable repair had been done. The Wildcats mounted impressive drives in the first half.

Montevallo had a tough time even getting the ball in the first half of the contest. The Bulldogs only had the pigskin for 11 plays in the first half.

Shelby County marched to the first score using almost seven minutes. The touchdown drive covered 69 yards and took 14 plays. Ronald Benton accounted for the score with a 13 yard run. Kenneth Jones passed to Curtis Sherman for the PAT, making the score 8-0 with 6:26 left in the first half.

After the kickoff, Montevallo fumbled on the first play, but the Wildcats failed to move the ball.

The Wildcats held back the Bulldogs and received a short punt in setting up the second scoring drive of the night.

This time the Columbian team drove 49 yards in 15 plays and used six minutes. Kenneth Jones sneaked the ball over the goal line for the score. The pass for the two-point conversion was deflected by Montevallo's Taylor Blackwell, and the score remained at the half at 14-0.

A different Montevallo team took the field in the second half. The Bulldogs took the kickoff and moved to pay dirt 69 yards and five plays later.

Quarterback Howard Gaddis sailed a 55 yard pass to Robby Allen for the score. Gaddis passed to Dwayne Jackson for the conversion.

The Bulldogs tied the game in the first part of the fourth period. It took seven plays for Montevallo to traverse the 59 yards for the score. Jeff Chism raced 22 yards around right end for the touchdown. With the score tied 14-14, Montevallo elected to kick the PAT, but it just missed the uprights and sailed past its intended goal.

The Wildcats returned the ensuing kickoff to Montevallo's 34 yard line, but stalled. Montevallo also failed to move the ball, but got away a booming punt of almost 50 yards which gave the ball to Shelby County on the 11 yard line.

As it turned out, that was fortunate for the Wildcats. Kenneth Jones connected with brother Kevin Jones just two plays later. That pass play was almost intercepted by Montevallo's Mark Jones (no relation) and covered 64 yards.

Benton carried for the touchdown four plays later with a one yard run. The two-point play failed, leaving the score 20-14, but Shelby County had again taken most of the time from the clock.

The last two minutes ticked away with Montevallo unable to complete a pass.

For Montevallo, Coach Richard Gilliam named Clyde Sailes, Rick Perry, James Lucas, and Lonnie Layton as putting in good second half performances on the offensive line. Jeff Chism was the leading rusher with 66 yards. J.J. Moore had 63.

Defensively, Barry Worthy, Van Hawks, and Ricky Dobson tied in the film grading.

For Shelby County, the whole team was responsible. Kenneth Jones went the distance at quarterback, with Ronald Benton helping in the passing department. Benton was also the top rusher for the Wildcats.

Defensively, the entire Wildcat team stiffened when it had to. Notable performances were made by Jason Head, Pat Wallace, and Leroy Martin.

This week the Wildcats head to Chilton County to play Clanton while the Bulldogs face Thompson in Montevallo.

Calera slips in overtime

by Fred Guarino

The Calera Eagles suffered their first loss of the season Friday, but not without a fight. The Eagles played Bibb County to a 0-0 tie for four quarters only to fall 6-0 at home in overtime.

The lights went out for Calera when Bibb County put the ball into the endzone on its first overtime possession.

Duane McGhee hit Ricky Huckleberry for a ten yard pass for the game winning points.

Each team was given a chance from the ten yard line to light up the scoreboard in the extra playing period. Calera managed to get two yards on its first play in overtime and then passed away it chances on three incomplete tosses.

Coach Danny Alverson said of Calera's failure to score, "Our offense has given us trouble all year. We drove it to the Bibb County two yard line in the fourth quarter only to get two 15 yard penalties for holding."

However he had good words for his team's defense, calling it "super."

In Friday night's action, Calera made eight first downs; rushed for 64 yards, passed for 33 yards and received penalties totaling 45 yards.

Bibb County made 11 first downs; rushed for 168 yards, passed for 37 yards and were set back 70 yards in penalties.

Calera will not play tomorrow night but will face Jemison, Friday, September 24.

Endzone eludes Raiders

by Fred Guarino

Although Shelby Academy moved the ball the best it has all season Friday night, it wasn't enough.

The Raiders suffered a disappointing defeat at the hands of Cahawba Christian 7-0 in an away contest. That game stopped Shelby Academy's undefeated string at two, giving them an early season mark of 2-1.

Coach DeWayne Kervin credited his team's first loss of the year to inconsistency on offense, turnovers and bad breaks.

The Raiders gave the ball up five times on three fumbles and two pass interceptions.

While Shelby Academy only suffered 25 yards in penalties, one of those yellow flags flew at a very bad time.

The Raiders faced fourth down and a foot to go late in the contest on the Cahawba Christian 40. They were going for it. Unfortunately, at that point they received a 15 yard walk off for personal foul.

Coach Kervin said of the call, "That hurt us...we needed to keep the ball."

Cahawba's only touchdown came in the second quarter on a five yard run set up by two big pass plays.

The passes were completed in spite of tremendous pressure placed on their quarterback by the Raiders to the 30 and five yard lines. Cahawba punched the ball in from there.

Attesting to the tough defensive play of Shelby Academy, the contest saw no points scored in the first, third and fourth quarters.

Amazingly enough, Shelby Academy made nine first downs in the game, rushed for 142 yards and passed for 104 yards. That gave them a total offense of 246 yards with no points scored.

Cahawba Christian also made nine first downs but only managed 184 yards total offense.

Explaining the lopsided offense showed by Shelby County in light of its failure to put points on the board, Coach Kervin said, "The entire year our offense has had problems not moving like we're supposed to."

He added, "We just failed to put the ball into the endzone."

Kervin did have good comments for Jim Moore, Doug Barrett, David Thomas and Brent Ryder on the offensive line.

He also credited Barrett for excellent defensive play. He made 12 tackles for the Raiders.

Shelby Academy will not play tomorrow night but will host Tuscaloosa at home, Friday, September 24.

Like clockwork Red

Thompson Warriors win

by David F. Moore

When they're good, the Thompson Warriors are very, very good.

* But when they're bad, they're--well, they're still pretty good. Good enough to be undefeated and ranked second among state 3-A ball clubs.

So far. (More on that later...)

Last Friday, the gradually improving Warrior defense earned its first shutout of the season against the Chilton County Tigers. And the offense--behind the hard rushing of Demetrius Threath and Luvell Bivins, and the cross-hair arm of quarterback Richard Brasher--chalked up 27 points.

Like clockwork red: •Thompson battered out its first touchdown in an eight play series that culminated when Threath pounded over from the three late in the first period.

•The next TD took seven plays. Following an interception by Chris Green, Brasher sneaked over from the one with 5:28 left in the half.

•TD No. 3 also took only an eight play series, and came at 8:40 in the third quarter. Threath picked up a crucial first down on fourth and three from the 22, then scored on the next play with a body-hurl from the 18.

•Win or lose, no one from Alabaster has ever publicly accused Thompson of playing dull football. The Chilton game wasn't dull either. But for a change of pace, on the last score, the Warriors skipped their predictable clockwork rush and 7-8 play series.

With just under three minutes left in the third quarter, Brasher cocked his arm, took a quick peek through the cross-hairs, and hit Tim Smith dead on the run for a 30-yard touchdown pass.

Rounding off the scoring, Jeff Willis hit 3-4 on extra point kicks to up his year's count to 11 for 14.

Threath recorded his third straight 100 plus rushing game, and Bivins racked up 126 yards for the night. Scotty Hawkins, Smith and Willis all pulled in passes, and Tyrone Jones became down right excitable several times at middle guard.

Yes, when they're good, the Warriors are very good.

Makes one wonder (briefly) how good THS would be if premier running back Arthur Johnson was off the sidelines, the swelling out of his right knee, and running a full speed...

Even without Johnson, THS is obviously a power with which to be reckoned. (Twenty-to-one odds, Montevallo coach Richard Gilliam has been saying the same thing all week to his Bulldogs, who play host to Thompson this Friday.)

HOWEVER--and it's a big 'however'--even with a 2-0 area record and play-off talk already in the air, the Warriors aren't home free by (most) anyone's stretch of the imagination. Ask Larry Simmons.

Maybe the Warriors are good--when they're good. But they aren't good all the time. And there's at least seven teams itching to take advantage of that.

Warrior inconsistency has head coach Simmons concerned.

"Inconsistency hits the nail on the head," Simmons mused. "We're not consistent on offense or defense--yet. We play good for a while, then turn around and give up something cheap."

Cheap, albeit wet, inconsistencies cost Thompson at least three touchdowns against Chilton:

- A good second quarter drive, hog-tied by a holding call;
- A long, slippery run six minutes later, bumbled by a fumble inside the 30;
- The blocked PAT;
- A third quarter fumble inside the 30;
- A fourth quarter fumble on the four negating a good interception a minute before by Jim Leech.

According to Simmons, THS played better in its 27-6 win over Bibb County. Against Chilton's Tigers he thought his team didn't play "all that good." But Simmons always says that.

But when the Warriors play badly--well, 3-0 does say something. It says Thompson has seven more opponents.

Jackie Johnson takes in a pass for Pelham to the dismay of Childersburg's Don Glenn. Johnson was a favorite target for the Panther passing attack. (Photo by Fred Guarino)

Tigers trip Panthers

by Fred Guarino

"We didn't play very well." That was the only comment Pelham High School football coach Bill Tohill had concerning his team after it self destructed in a contest with Childersburg Friday night.

Playing on a wet home field under cloudy skies, the Panthers dropped their season record to 1-1 coming up on the short end of a 6-18 contest.

The Panthers played touch on defense through most of the night but fumbles proved to be the undoing of its offense. Pelham gave up four loose balls.

Pelham stopped Childersburg convincingly on its first series in the first quarter but fumbled right back to the opponents.

After holding the Tigers a second time, it appeared as if Pelham would march straight down the field to score. However, with second down and eight yards to go, Pelham let the football get away again.

The Panthers seemed as if they might weather the storm as Childersburg faced a third down and 17 yards to go at the Pelham 29.

However, Childersburg's Scott Brewer completed a pass to Mike Shoemaker for the score with 9:31 remaining in the first half. The PAT was no good and Pelham trailed 0-6.

The rest of the first half proved to be a defensive struggle with no additional points scored by either side.

Pelham was unable to make anything out of its first possession in the second half and was forced to punt.

Childersburg took over in excellent field position with the football nudging the 50 yard line. Then they marched straight to pay dirt.

It took only eight plays for the Tigers to score, with Carlos Crayton going the final two yards. A two point conversion attempt failed and Pelham trailed 0-12.

Pelham appeared to be on the move for the second time of the night but for the second time, a fumble killed their drive.

Ray Higdon and Tony Johnson took turns trotting the ball for the Panthers, giving them a first down at their own 36. Three plays later Pelham's Jackie Johnson displayed excellent ability, taking in a first down pass at the Childersburg 45.

The fumble came on the very next play.

Pelham's defense rose to the occasion and stopped the Tigers. Russell Brown intercepted a pass at the Panther 16 yard line.

The Panther offense was unable to move again. Another loose ball by Pelham in the fourth period, though recovered, stopped their momentum.

Childersburg took control of the ball on the punt at its own 44 yard line and marched 56 yards to score with 5:55 remaining in the game. Another two point conversion attempt failed and Pelham was down 0-16.

Pelham gave up another fumble but its defense refused to give up any more points.

Finally getting things together, Pelham put together its only consistent offensive drive of the night and marched 68 yards to pay dirt.

Pelham's lone TD came on an 18 yard pass taken in by Gary Howard. A two point conversion attempt failed and with only 46 seconds left on the clock, the score stood Childersburg 18, Pelham 6.

The Panthers will face a very tough team from Mt. Brook at home tonight.

Jemison swats Vincent team

It was size and a hammering Jemison offense that wore the Vincent Yellow Jackets down to defeat, Friday night.

The Jackets, who fought valiantly on an enemy field, only trailed by eight points in the first half. But when the final horn sounded, Jemison had pounded Vincent for a 30-6 victory.

"They just kept running at us and we are not large," said Vincent football coach Harold Garrett. He reflected on the contest which dropped his Yellow Jackets record to 1-2.

Garrett also attributed turnovers and bad breaks with the defeat. He said, "It just didn't seem the ball would bounce our way."

Vincent's lone score came with just six minutes remaining in the battle. The Jackets pounced on a Jemison fumble 15 yards away from pay dirt. Warren Kelley carried it in from there.

Jemison scored 24 second half points.

The Yellow Jackets could only manage four first downs for the night. They punched Jemison for 71 yards on the ground and 51 yards in the air for a total offense of 122 yards.

Vincent got no help from game officials and were penalized 90 yards.

For all of its points, Jemison only gouged the Yellow Jackets for 175 rushing and no yardage in the air.

Jemison was not hampered by yellow flags and only suffered 23 yards in penalties.

Two Shelby County teams take deserved rest, sit out rain

Two Shelby County football teams saw no action Friday night.

The Briarwood Lions, who are now 2-0 on the season, were scheduled to play Westminster but that game has been moved back to the team's original open date on October 8.

However, Lions fans will get the opportunity to cheer their team on to its third straight victory tomorrow night in an away game with Greystone.

The Chelsea Hornets, who are trying to shake off a loss to West Blocton, took a rest Friday. They will face a tough Jemison team at home tomorrow.

Cookie drive nets frisbees at Thompson

Some of the newest frisbee owners in Alabaster have their school name inscribed on their disk.

The frisbees were the first prizes awarded in the fund raising drive presently underway at Thompson Elementary School.

Students who had $40 or more in sales were presented that prize Tuesday. But cookie sellers will keep up their efforts in the weeks ahead in order to win one of the top prizes in the contest.

These include a portable color TV, a pac man game, adopt-a-dolls and a $50 cash award.

However, most students are aiming for the biggest prize in the contest - a go-kart.

The TES administration and faculty hope the school will be able to repeat last year's effort in which they racked up the biggest sales in the nation.

In 1981, TES raised $30,000.

The entire student body, which totals 1,190 students, will participate in the campaign.

As an added incentive to the sales force, the room with the most sales at the conclusion of the contest, will be treated to an ice cream party.

Shoot doves for SA band

The Shelby Academy Band Boosters will host a dove shoot Saturday.

The event will be held at the school from 1 p.m. until sunset in order to raise funds for the band.

The cost of the shoot will be $5 per person. You must bring your own gun and shells.

Local employees plan 4th fair at Oak Mt. Park

The Shelby County Chapter of the Alabama State Employees Association will hold its fourth annual arts and crafts fair.

The event will be held at Oak Mountain State Park the weekend of October 9-10.

A wide range of arts and crafts will be on display including hand-crafted jewelry, macrame, pottery, ceramics, woodwork, paintings, sketches, clothing and flea market.

Live entertainment will be presented. There will be country and bluegrass music and games to play in addition to hiking, boating and fishing.

The Shelby County Chapter donates more than half of its profits to a local charity. Last year the chapter gave more than $800 to the Shelby County School for Exceptional Children in Columbiana.

This year's proceeds will go to the same school.

For more information or to reserve a booth for arts and crafts contact Oak Mountain State Park by calling 663-6783 or write Arts and Crafts Fair, Oak Mountain State Park, P.O. Box 278, Pelham, AL 35124.

Slovensky is still kicking to play pro ball

by Fred Guarino

Ron Slovensky is a 30 year-old Helena resident who works as a cost accountant for Catalytic in Wilsonville.

So...what makes him special? For the past seven years, the 5'8" 160 lb. Slovensky has been pursuing a dream that he hopes will come true now that Birmingham has a franchise in the new United States Football League (USFL).

The father of two children, who has settled his family in the town of Helena, wants to be a pro football kicking specialist.

Slovensky played college ball at Livingston University for three years. Two of his most memorable performances there were a field goal which beat Jax State 21-20 and a field goal which defeated Henderson 12-10.

A product of Minor High School, he booted footballs for the Birmingham Vulcans of the old World Football League, tried out for the New Orleans Saints and the Buffalo Bills, played for the Alabama Vulcans, Kentucky and the Alabama Magic of the American Football Association (AFA).

Over the course of his career, Slovensky made 101 of 105 extra points he attempted and 61 of 84 field goals.

With such a record, why is he not already in big time football?

Slovensky says that there are a lot of good athletes who don't make it.

He said, "I was in New Orleans and the kicker for the team came in at 20 pounds overweight. I was kicking well and I thought the job was mine. Hank Stram called me and told me he was bringing in another kicker...one he coached in Kansas City."

The would-be pro resigned himself saying, "There are so many kickers. There are so many who are qualified for the job that you just have to have an edge."

Does Slovensky think he can make it with the Birmingham Stallions?

Just ask him and his face brightens.

Slovensky says, "I'm trying to get into good shape. They (the Stallion owners) said that they want ball players who are home-grown and who are hungry. I am home-grown and I am hungry."

Having a career in football dating from 1970 in college, why does Slovensky still want to kick?

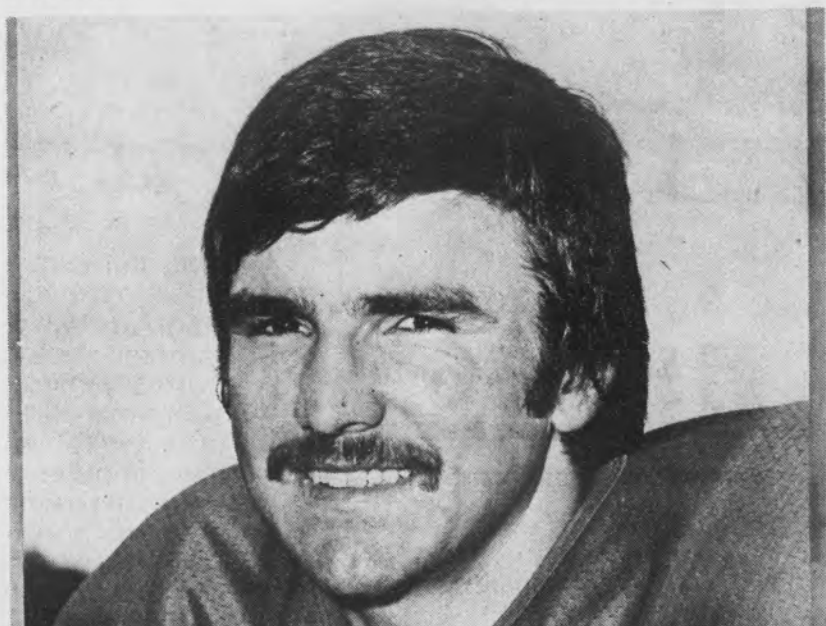

He says simply, "You get the fever. I thought I had it behind me after Kentucky but they came in with this new team, the Birmingham Magic. I hadn't kicked in two years but went 19 for 19 on extra points and hit five of eight field goals."

Slovensky has his heart set on playing for the Stallions. He says,

"I feel like I should be the leading candidate for the kicking job. I like to think I am the best kicker not playing in the NFL."

The cost accountant says that he would not want to pack up and move to play for the NFL any more but a team in Birmingham would be a different story.

He concluded, "I just want to play in Birmingham."

RON SLOVENSKY

Togetherness pays off

One of the advantages of having a big family is being able to field your own softball team.

Jewel Winslett of Montevallo recruited members of his family and some in-laws to form the team that won the softball tournament in the city's Labor Day event.

At 65, Winslett is the oldest member of the team. The youngest player is his 16 year old grandson David.

"We have an athletic family and they like to play ball," was the explanation Winslett gave for organizing the team.

Wives and youngsters make up a good size cheering section whenever the team plays.

This year, most of the action the Winslett team has seen has been in tournament play.

At the Montevallo event Monday, the Winsletts downed Southern Truck and Trailer Parts and the Dixie Foods team, but lost to Dogwood.

Knee injury...must it be accepted in football?

by Fred Guarino

The quarterback takes the snap from center, turns and sticks the football into the gut of a running back, who heads for pay dirt. He is stopped, but only after a good gain into the opponent's territory.

The crowd erupts into wild cheers, only to come quickly to a deafening silence. The young man who just carried the ball to glory is down on the field. It is a knee injury.

Winning team beats par by 16

Matt Sproul, Don Hancock and Al Baumgartner took top honors in the recent Labor Day Golf Scramble at the University of Montevallo golf course.

The winning team which shot a 16 under par 54, defeated the team of David Minshew, John Maybry, Sonny Dailey and Bennie Williams on the first hole of a sudden death play-off for the championship.

Two teams tied at 55 with the team of Don Bunn, Mark McMeen, Pat Kelly and Joe Williams beating the team of Robert McCartney, Brian Jorgenson, Manuel McCartney and Lane Conville in sudden death for third place.

Maybry, a freshman on the UM gold team, posted the tournament only hole in one when he ached the par 4, 300 yard fifth hole.

There were 47 entrants, the top turnout in the scramble's two year history. The tournament, sponsored by the Montevallo Rotary Club and the UM Falcon Club, benefits the Rotary Club and the Falcon golf team.

"...such an injury could knock a young person out of sports..."

With moans of disappointment, the fans can almost feel the pain of the downed player as he lies on the field groping for his knee in agony.

They also know that their hero is out of the game and may not play again for several weeks, if ever.

Knee injuries are among the worst in football.

Can they be prevented? Can more be done toward preventing them than is presently being done?

While changes in football rules have been made, high school football coaches in this county say that knee injuries are a part of the sport that will just have to be accepted.

There is apparently little that can be done that would not make the game of football less exciting and less competitive.

Vincent High School football coach Harold Garrett reported that he has two youths who suffer from knee injury. One is hampered and can practice only one or two days per week and another can still play, but not without pain.

When asked if he knew how knee injuries could be prevented, Coach Garrett said, "If I knew that I could make a million dollars."

He attributed the injuries to under developed muscles and the weak design of the knee itself.

Other than a rule which prevents blocking below the waist outside of the blocking zone, the head coach said he knew of nothing else which could be done.

Try weight work

Coach Garrett said that the primary preventive to knee injury might be more weight work with knees. He said, "Everyone is trying to do more leg work now."

He stated that knee injury is just something that can happen, even to kids who are flexible and strong.

Injured players for Vincent are Stoney Johnson and Kent Baker.

Thompson High School coach Larry Simmons told the Reporter that last year Arthur Johnson tore ligaments and had to have an operation. Five years ago a Thompson player by the name of Jerry Savage suffered such an injury.

But Coach Simmons said of knee injuries, "I think it is something that happens." He said all of the cases he knew of were "just unusual."

Simmons said that the knee just won't hold up when hit at certain angles.

No low blocks

When asked if he knew of anything that could be done to prevent the injury, Simmons commented that Alabama is a special state experimenting with no blocking below the waist.

Last year no blocking below the waist was allowed except inside a special zone and this year the zone is wider to see if there will be more knee injury.

While Simmons indicated favor with the no blocking below the waist rule, he felt that last year's narrow zone handicapped players' ability to play football.

Pelham's coach Billy Tohill said that he has been lucky not to have players with the injury.

He felt that the main cause of the injury is, "mainly when a kid has his knee planted or hyper extended and gets hit head-on, bending it back."

When asked if he felt the no blocking below the waist rule helps, Tohill responded, "I would hesitate to say that. I have no kind of statistics."

But it's contact

When asked if he had any ideas on how to prevent knee injury himself, Tohill remarked, "I really don't know. The first thing they could do is eliminate contact. Any time you have a contact sport, you will get people hurt. Just make sure people have proper equipment."

He commented that working with weights might help muscles but that knee injuries involve cartilage, ligaments and joints and you can really do very little to protect them.

Calera's Coach Danny Alverson said that he has not had any players suffer knee injuries and that other than the no blocking below the waist rule he had no comments to make.

Shelby County coach Richard Seales said that he had two youngsters suffer the injury this year, Mark Cardwell and David Culpepper.

Culpepper had to have an operation and Cardwell will be having his knees examined with the possibility of some pieces of cartilage removed.

Seales said that the no blocking below the waist rule has probably helped some but has hurt the game of football.

He commented that being sure knee pads are kept under the pants and not flapping about could help prevent knee injury but he said he really knew of nothing else which could be done.

Dr. William Mitchell, team doctor for the Calera team for many years, says that the seriousness of a knee injury depends on just how much damage is done.

But, he said most knee injuries result in the removal of cartilage which can cause some instability in the knee and inflammation of the knee joint.

Another inconvenience is fluid has to be drawn off repeatedly, according to the medical expert.

He commented that such an injury could knock a young person out of sports and if they have dreams of playing pro ball, they might never reach that goal.

The doctor said that he believed spikes are largely responsible for knee injury. He said that a spike stops an athlete's foot cold and won't allow him to move it.

He said, "It could be that playing football in tennis shoes would lessen the number of injuries. A boy wearing tennis shoes might get knocked three or four feet but his body would go with him."

The physician said that most times a player is looking north and south and gets hit from the east. He felt that extra padding would not help prevent knee injury.

He concluded that what is being done in football is really all that can be done.

The local doctor advised that parents should not allow their children to participate in football at too early of an age.

"The legislature may, by general or local laws, fix, alter, and regulate the costs and charges of court and the fees, commissions, percentages, allowances, and salary, including the method or basis of his compensation, to be charged or received by the judge of probate of Franklin County, and may place the judge of probate on a salary and provide that the fees, commissions, percentages, and allowances collected by the judge of probate shall be paid into the county treasury from which his salary shall be paid. The provisions of this constitutional amendment shall not be implemented in Franklin County until implementation is approved by a vote of a majority of the qualified electors of Franklin County voting in an election called by the county governing body to determine said issue; provided, however, that if a majority of the qualified electors of Franklin County who participate in the election held on the adoption of this amendment vote in favor thereof, no further election need be held."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of this election upon Tuesday, the 28th day of September, 1982, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901, be given by publishing the same once a week for four successive weeks next preceding Tuesday, the 28th day of September, 1982, in each county of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said county.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of Alabama to be affixed by the Secretary of State at the Capitol in the City of Montgomery, this 19th day of August, 1982.

Candidates wage campaigns Tuesday runoffs loom near

by Marcia M. Sears

Polling places open again next Tuesday for the runoff primary. In Shelby County the races of greatest interest are those for superintendent of education, for one judgeship on the circuit court, and for one place on the county commission.

In the superintendent's race, Dr. Norma Rogers, principal of Valley Elementary School, and Ellie Glasscox, assistant principal at Thompson High School will each be trying to capture the votes that went to Charles Knowles in the first primary.

The contest for the circuit judge's position is the first such contest in Shelby County in years. The incumbent, Robert Armstrong, was appointed by Governor Fob James to fill out the unexpired term of Judge James Sharbutt, who took early retirement.

This is his first political race, and it is also the first for his opponent, Eason Mitchell. The race is generating considerable interest county wide, as well as in Coosa and Clay Counties, which are included in the 18th judicial circuit with Shelby County.

In the recent past, vacant judgeships in the circuit have been filled by appointment, or the incumbent judge has not had opposition at the polls.

J. Alpha Lowe and Leon Archer are waging a strong battle for the vacant place on the County Commission representing District 4.

Lowe has served two terms on the commission, and Archer is trying to unseat him.

On the statewide Democratic primary, the contest between George McMillan and George Wallace for the governorship is drawing top interest. In the primary, Joe McCorquodale outpolled both of them in Shelby County, and McMillan is now trying to capture the McCorquodale vote here.

The race for the State Supreme Court between Oscar Adams and Jim Zeigler has drawn many endorsements across the state for Adams.

For state auditor, Jan Cook and Kay Ivey are in a statewide runoff.

Shelby County voters will also cast their ballots next Tuesday for 12 amendments to the state constitution.

In the primary, official results show that more Shelby County voters cast ballots in the governor's race than in the local probate judge's race.

Governor candidates drew a total of 15,977 votes, with the biggest vote going to McCorquodale.

In the probate race, 15,308 votes were cast. When Red Walker, the runner-up in that race, withdrew after the primary, the office was left to the incumbent, Tommy Snowden, so there will be no contest in the runoff primary.

Most of the candidates are fearful that lack of interest might mean a low turnout at the polls next Tuesday, and are waging advertising campaigns to keep up voter interest.

In Shelby County the polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

There are no Republican party runoffs in this election in the county.

Calera Council haggles over budget proposals

by Fred Guarino

Monday night's meeting of Calera City Council was a lengthy one involving the city's proposed 1982-83 budgets.

The session, which also served as a public hearing for the revenue sharing budget, the sewer operation and maintenance budget, the general fund budget, and the gas department budget, produced three objections to the way city money will be used.

Councilman W. B. Watts was upset that an allocation for paid firemen was not included in the general fund.

Police Chief Harry Deal found an error in the police portion of the general fund budget in his favor and wanted to keep the funds to equalize the pay of his parttime help.

And, David Jones, maintenance superintendent, wanted an additional $2,750 added to his part of the general fund budget.

Watts complained that Calera paid salaries over 33 percent higher than other towns. He said, "We will never be able to have paid firemen as long as we keep upping (other) salaries."

He said, "Salaries are all out of proportion, our priorities are in the wrong place. We can find salaries and adjustments for every department but firemen. Our fire rating has saved people money. I will not vote for any budget like this."

Mayor Carl Prichard stated that he did not find salary increases unreasonable in light of the current inflation rate.

Councilman Roy Hadaway pointed out that a couple of city employees got increases of only $270 per year and he did not see the increases as excessive.

It was pointed out by other members of council that only one man got a $1,000 per year increase in pay. That man was the clerk of court Scott Vaughn who was being paid at the rate of a police dispatcher.

Councilman Doug LeSueur noted that to keep good employees you have to pay them. He said, "I want to keep them happy and I don't want turnover. Employees are not going to stay around if you don't give them something."

When asked where the money would come from to pay firemen and what he wanted, Watts suggested $45,000 resulting from the removal of two men from the street department and bumping one Calera police officer back to patrolman status.

He said that he wanted three paid firemen.

Prichard asked how many towns the size of Calera have paid firemen.

Fire Chief James Miles responded from his seat in the audience, "I don't know of any town the size of Calera with six fulltime policemen."

Watts stated firmly, "I am asking for three paid firemen and I want recognition."

A motion was made by Watts "to go back into the budget to see if cuts could be made so that we can have something we need. If cuts can't be made in employment, then something else."

Loftin seconded the motion which failed to pass when all other members of council voted against it.

Upon conclusion of the vote, Hadaway said, "This must mean that those of us against are not for the fire department. I don't like that."

Watts responded, "You have Double triple exposure?

If three sets of twins makes for a double-triple exposure, then this group shot of New Hope Christian Kindergarten students qualifies as trick photography. The trick—as their teachers, parents and photographer will attest—is getting them to stand or sit still for thirty seconds. The twins are (bottom to top, left to right—we think): Chrisy and Misty, daughters of Tommy and Polly Dodson; April and Jill, daughters of Steve and Janice Jordan; and David and Dana, belonging to Robert and Sharon Durbin. track was put down yesterday.

City fathers were told that two boxcars had been obtained from a railroad yard in Georgia and will soon be placed at the site.

Besides adding to the looks of the depot, Councilman Jack Reagin said the cars would also provide storage space.

During the short council meeting, the city's governing body agreed to let the local YM-CA separate their insurance coverage from the firm used by the city.

However, before finalizing the agreement, the panel stipulated

Big day

September 16 was a big day for Julica Duncan. After all, it isn't every day a person turns 90. To celebrate, she put on a fancy dress, and with a hand from her niece, Joyce Mallory, went to courthouse and registered to vote. (Photo by David F. Moore)

So you're turning 90? Then do something big like registering to vote

by David F. Moore

Julica Duncan caught a blue gill last Wednesday at Bentley Lake. It was the size of a cowboy boot.

But even the excitement of the blue gill didn't wash the blues from her soul.

Birthdays, if you let them, can get you down. And the next day—September 16—was Julica's birthday.

She neither looks nor acts her age, but 90 years is getting on up there.

"Anybody'll give out when there's count for it," she says. "When you gets old, you're just old!"

Julica lives with her niece, Joyce Mallory, on highway 47 near the Columbiana by-pass. To help her over her blues, Joyce suggested that her aunt do something monumental on her birthday—like, register to vote.

"I think I'm old enough," Julica agrees, a giggle sliding from her gums.

So instead of piecing quilts Thursday morning like she usually does, Julica slipped into a fancy dress and went down to the courthouse with her niece.

"It wasn't so bad climbing the stairs." And "I did all right" handling the registrars and the questions, she concedes afterwards, apparently already feeling better about the birthday.

On a lightly philosophical note, Julica explains her time tested approach to living on earth: "I try not to do no wrong to nobody. I don't bother them and I don't want them to bother me."

Now, Julica has decided to base her philosophy on elected officials along those same lines: "I wants to treat everybody right that I'm voting for. And I wants them to treat me that way."

Okay. So turning 90 wasn't so bad after all.

"...It could be worse. I could not be here," she says. "I'm just glad to be here. I could have been gone..."

After her husband, Harry, died "a real long time ago," Julica lived for over 50 years with her brother on the Egg and Butter Road in Columbiana. When he died, she continued living there, alone, for seven years more.

In May, her niece persuaded Julica to move in with her.

So for her 90th birthday, she finally registered to vote. What will Julica do next year to top this stunt?

"If I'm here, I'll do the best I can!" she proclaims.

Fireworks in Pelham could mean $1,500

by David F. Moore

There weren't any fireworks at the Pelham Council meeting Monday night.

But there was talk of selling them.

Two Adamsville businessmen representing Tanit Corporation told the council they want to sell fireworks inside the Pelham city limits—and they're willing to pay for the right to do so.

For the council's consideration, Bill Cairns and Brad Burchfield passed out sample ordinances other Alabama cities use to regulate the sale of fireworks.

"You know people are going to be shooting fireworks off here," Cairns said, noting the state's move to legalize minor explosives. "You might as well make money off it."

Cairns said most cities charge a $500 license to sell fireworks. Since he and Burchfield want to operate three stands in Pelham, he said that could translate into $1,500 for the city.

Besides the licensing fees, the sample ordinances list building regulations and safety requirements such as distances from gas pumps.

The men said they would sell the fireworks only during the July 4 season and around Christmas and New Year.

The sample ordinances were from Leeds, Hueytown, Bessemer, Northport and other

Alabaster depot is on track to dream

Does a depot need railroad tracks when it's located in a city park?

Not really. But that was the dream of Alabaster's Park and Recreation Board Chairman Carl Davis.

When the Siluria depot was moved to its present site, Davis envisioned railroad tracks placed nearby. And he even wanted some train cars on those tracks.

Members of Alabaster's City Council were told Monday night that Davis' dream had come true.

He and Street Superintendent Jack Zuiderhoek have been working on the project, and the Community ed opens in Calera

by Fred Guarino

The doors to Shelby County's first community education school opened in Calera Monday night. Housed at Calera High School, the infant program kicked off its first night of classes with 107 students registered for eight classes.

Community Education Coordinator Lamont Franklin said of the first night's success, "I am more than pleased. When I first started work I thought we would be doing well with four classes."

Classes offered are: Crochet, taught by Carol Tipton of Calera; cake decorating, taught by Ann McGaughy and Jannette Baccus of Calera; typing, taught by Mitzi Wheat of Calera;

Slimnastics, taught by Ann Ryals of Alabaster; woodworking, taught by Mancel Register of Calera; painting, taught by Carol Weston of Alabaster; and baton for girls ages 4-7 and 8-12 taught by Kenya Walker of Columbiana.

Franklin gives credit for the successful line-up of classes to Ken Chapman, Polly Vaughn, Nancy Brooks, Paula McLendon and Ollie Taylor. They served as advisors.

She said that these people met with the public to determine which classes would have the best chance of going over.

Franklin pointed out that only her position as coordinator will be supported by the City of Calera. The rest of the funds to operate the community education program will come from fees paid by students.

According to Franklin, 60 percent of the fees paid will go to the teachers and 40 percent will go to Calera High School.

The coordinator said that other funds will be accepted and that she plans to attend a seminar at UAB later this month to learn how other funds might be secured.

On hand to see classes begin were City Councilmen Jeff Pilgreen, Doug LeSueur, Bob Loftin and Mayor Carl Prichard.

Franklin stated that the whole idea of community education is not to make money but to offer services to the community. She called the school in Calera a pioneering effort in Shelby County.

What Does Jesus Teach About - Governments

Rom. 13:1-4 "Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers, for there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God. Whosoever therefore resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God: and they that resist shall receive to themselves damnation. For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? Do that which is good, and thou shalt have praise of the same: For he is the minister of God to thee for good. But if thou do that which is evil, be afraid; for he beareth not the sword in vain: for he is the minister of God, a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doeth evil."

Since our government is a republic, we must be responsible to elected officials who will indeed, by due process of law, be a terror to them that do evil.

Helena now has an official licenses inspector.

Monday night the Helena Council appointed Ray Rollan privilege license inspector for the city.

Mayor Charles Penhale said the position is not a job within itself, but is being tacked onto duties Rollan already has as assistant police chief. Penhale said Rollan has been unofficially acting as license inspector for the past several years.

The ordinance established Rollan as inspector for one year terms until a successor is appointed.

City clerk Frances Parrish said Helena has required business privilege licenses since 1935, but has not always had good luck in enforcing their sale.

OUR STATE SHOULD BE A PARTNERSHIP PULLING TOGETHER

As Americans we are used to pulling together when the going gets rough. When there's a big job to be done, we roll up our sleeves and do it. When we pull together, we forget to think whether the person working next to us is farmer or banker, labor or management, black or white.

We can put that spirit of cooperation to work in Alabama with a Governor who can bring people together to solve problems. But, we don't have much time to waste. A lot of self-respecting Alabamians have been hurt by 14% unemployment, and a lot more are afraid.

We need to elect a Governor who can bring Alabamians together and help us look beyond our individual self-interests.

George McMillan can bring Alabamians together. Get the work started. And best of all, get that good feeling of team work and self-respect going in Alabama.

THE McMILLAN FAMILY IS LIKE MOST ALABAMA FAMILIES

A God-fearing family, educated in our public schools. They all share a faith that the values that bind our families together can also bind our State together. They know what a belief in hard work, prayer and self-reliance can accomplish.

George McMillan believes that our State should be a partnership, pulling together. Just like our families do. With George McMillan as Governor, those values taught at home, Sunday School and Church are the same values that will guide our State into the future.

County fair breaks records

Hugh Strickland, president of the Columbiana Kiwanis Club reports the Kiwanis sponsored county fair was a huge success. Over 1,100 exhibits were shown this year, 200 more than have ever been shown before. The most popular exhibits were: 1. Photography, 2. Ceramics and 3. Painting and Sketching. Plans are already being made for better displays of these items next year.

The Beef and Dairy show on Monday night had over 50 cattle competing and the comments were all about the same, "beautiful cattle". Money paid out in prizes totaled $2,791, also a new high. Attendance was good and the scholarship fund for each high school in Shelby County is sufficient. The other charitable projects the Kiwanis Club supports will also be continued.

The Saturday night show featuring "The Back Door Rhythm Band", in the football stadium showed real talent. Shelby County can be proud of these talented musicians.

Strickland concluded, "The club thanks the many people who participated, particularly the Columbiana police force and the many exhibitors who brought their canned food, needle craft, art, photography, and produce to share with other people."

Calera budget expressed your support. Let your conscience be your guide."

In calculating paid holidays for Calera police, an error was made which resulted in that department's being allocated $968.43 more than it was entitled to.

Chief Deal wanted to keep the money in his budget and give his parttime employees a raise in pay to bring them in line with other police raises.

A motion by Watts to go along with the police chief was defeated with only Watts and Pilgreen in favor.

Prichard told the Reporter that the error would be corrected in the budget.

David Jones felt that his street department needed a mechanic on duty an hour longer each day to get an earlier start on morning repairs. He also wanted extra money in the budget to pay employees called out for emergency work.

Pilgreen made a motion to accept this request but it died for lack of a second.

Budgets slated for approval by the council at its next meeting are revenue sharing, $48,828; sewer operation and maintenance, $104,694; general fund $689,684; and gas department, $2,371,037.

Elect EASON MITCHELL Circuit Court

Paid for by friends of Eason Mitchell Committee: Bruce Green, Chairman, P.O. Box 766, Pelham, AL.

Under The Courthouse Dome

An inmate who escaped four weeks ago from the county jail has been arrested in Tennessee.

John Milton Tinsley, also known as "Rabbit," was arrested by authorities in Clarksville, Tennessee following a routine ID check. Tinsley was reportedly visiting relatives at the time.

The 25-year old Talladega man escaped from jail August 25 by kicking out the window in his cell.

At the time, Tinsley was awaiting trial on burglary charges. He has a record of burglary and escape convictions.

Other reports on the sheriff's department daily blotter for the ten day period ending September 16, include:

Two Columbiana juveniles were arrested for rape September 10. A Wilsonville woman said they raped her at her home.

Charges against one of the youths were later dropped, however, and the second suspect was released on $10,000 bond.

No charges were pressed against a man who apparently shot his cat with a .410 shotgun last Thursday afternoon. According to reports, the man shot the animal while it was on the front porch of his mobile home, located on highway 119 south at H&R Trailer Court.

Humane Society director Anne Speakman said that according to law, a person can shoot his or her own animal to put it out of misery. Speakman, however, strongly indicated that other problems may have led the man to take it out on the his cat.

Although neighbors reportedly heard the blast, none of them could swear that the man actually shot the cat. For this reason, Speakman said the man could not be charged for firing a gun in a residential area.

Two possible "dogsnapping" cases were also reported. Deputies have suspects in the case of a dog missing from Calera since September 7. On September 12, a Pelham man reported the possible theft of his six-month old silver and white Siberian husky.

A stereo tape deck, tapes and tools were among the items reported stolen in a growing list of car breakins in Inverness.

In all, 16 thefts and burglaries were reported during the ten day period, including: chainsaw from Inverness work trailer; 1977 Jeep from Altadena Rise; gun from an Alabaster woman; shotgun and tools from a Calera barn; stereo speakers from Maylene; various items from a house on highway 25 in Calais; jewelry from a Wilsonville residence; Remington 1100 shotgun from a Cahaba Valley Trace trailer; items from a Pine Grove Village residence; radiator from a bulldozer near Boothton; case of beer from a Lay Lake bait shop.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

They had a singing at New Hope in the Kingdom and we went, along with half a thousand others who like to sing the old songs. And did they sing 'em. Folks like Mrs. Lewis Horton and Rev. Lee Davis and Arlin Perry and High McDaniel, and many more, all the way from eight to eighty. Amy can sing, but I was living in the next house when He ran out of song-birds. But I'm a good listener and we have a fine time every time we go. It's a lovely way to spend a Sunday afternoon. So we always try to find out where they're singing.

The turnips came up, three little patches about the size of cigar boxes, and tried to make it for six days before the hot sun turned them into cracklins. I don't know why the deer skipped those three patches, but they did. The sun didn't and our turnip patch is one big deer hotel. But there's another side. I spent half an hour in A.D. and Etheleen Light's turnip patch four blocks down the road, and we had turnip greens and mustard for supper.

For the first time in forty years, I haven't had a mess of purple-top peas. We've been so busy we haven't had time to hunt any, and with Alfred Talton and Charlie Starnes both on the sick list, it just hasn't been a summer for pea picking. But we're gonna have black-eyed peas tomorrow. And that's getting about as close as you can get to purple-tops without getting 'em.

His name was Bird, the same as mine, and he was in the room with Leo Higgins, at Shelby Medical Center. We tried to find kinfolks in Harpersville and Pea Ridge but couldn't. So we settled for just being friendly. He's been reading my stuff for years, and that made it kind o' easy to get to know each other. I didn't find out how sick he was. But if he's still there Friday I'll see him again. That's how it is when you find a new friend.

Charges dropped

Charges of disorderly conduct against a concert promoter in Calera have been dropped.

Charges were brought against Jim Swann following a controversial, July 4 outdoor concert he promoted in south Calera near highway 6. The warrant was sworn by an area resident the week after the concert.

According to courthouse sources and Swann, the individual dropped the charges September 8 when the case came before District Judge Patti Smith.

Supt job is serious

Electing a superintendent of education is a serious responsibility, because the future of the children in the county depends on it. The position requires a person with a wide range of experience and expertise. Some of the responsibilities a superintendent has are:

Personnel, school law, finances, child nutrition, truancy, maintenance, transportation, vocational education, capital outlay, teacher and principal evaluations and curriculum planning.

When choosing the person to hold this all-important position, voters should make an educated decision -- laying aside prejudices, preferences for personalities, and politics. The issue quite simply is, "Who can best manage the Shelby County School system?"

Our children will live with the decision we make on September 28.

Walden sentences 14

When 14 defendants appeared before Circuit Court Judge Harold Walden for sentencing Monday, all 14 were given jail terms.

William Elgin Headley was given 15 years for attempted murder, 10 years for rape 2nd.

The six who were sentenced for burglary were: Bobby Joe Taylor, burglary 3rd degree, a year and a day; Gary Allen, burglary 3rd, a year and a day with a hearing for restitution Oct. 18; Randall Langston, burglary 3rd, 15 years, attempted burglary of auto, 6 months. Richard Smith, burglary 3rd, 2 years; Robert Knapp, burglary 3rd, a year and a day, restitution hearing Oct. 18; Dewayne Eddy McGhee, a year and a day, restitution hearing Oct. 18.

In theft cases, Thomas Wayne Taylor received a 3 year sentence for theft 1st; Wade Chester Morrison Jr., 3 years, theft of property 2nd (rustling); Raymond Grayson, 2 years, theft of property 2nd; Hubert A. Hopkins, 2 years, receiving stolen property.

Eula Banks was sentenced to 2 years for passing a forged prescription; Mary Beatrice Watson, a year and a day, forgery 2nd, restitution hearing Oct. 18; Terry Arthur Smalley, 2 years, escape 1st.

An alias warrant was issued for Stanley Mack Bruno, who has been convicted on two counts of receiving stolen property 2nd degree.

280 called controlled

A North Shelby County man who was given a ticket for failing to stop for an unloading school bus took his case to court and won.

However, State Trooper Sgt. Bud Light says that despite the decision in the case, tickets will still be issued to motorists on Hwy. 280 for that offense.

Walter D. Dickson, who was issued a citation for not stopping while a bus unloaded school children near Dewberry Engraving Co., contended that he was within the law.

His defense during the March 31 trial revolved around his claim that Hwy. 280, where the incident occurred, is a controlled access highway.

In her ruling dated August 4, District Judge Patti Smith agreed with the defendant that the highway is controlled access. That means that under the law, vehicles are excluded from stopping for unloading school buses.

However, Light disagrees, saying that Hwy. 280 is not a controlled access highway.

At the time he was issued a citation, Dickson had been driving on the opposite side of the median from the bus.

There are signs posted along Hwy. 280 warning motorists to stop for unloading buses, but there wasn't any testimony about the signs presented at the trial.

The state had argued that Hwy. 280 could not be considered a controlled access highway since the courts can force the highway department to give a landowner access.

It was also pointed out that it would not fit that designation since the state highway department does not actually purchase access rights.

According to the Circuit Clerk's office, only three tickets have been issued for failure to stop for a school bus since school began in August.

Courts need room

Circuit judges from other counties have recently presided over courts in Shelby County to help with the backlog of cases.

The step was taken as a result of a report by the state Administrative Office of Courts. (See July 22 issue of the Reporter for excerpts from the report.)

In that report, inadequate courtroom space was blamed for inefficiencies in Shelby County courts.

The report notes that the backlog in the county circuit court amounts to 85 percent of yearly filings, which is more than twice the recommended 35 percent. The report also notes the backlog is growing at the rate of 7 percent each year.

Besides sending in additional judges, the state court system has also recommended extending court hours from 4 to 4:30 p.m.

The original large courtroom was divided in two several years ago, to accommodate the court load. Although they both stand empty at times, they are overcrowded at others, and some court sessions have to be held in judges' chambers.

The report concluded that more courtroom space would be very helpful in serving justice in the county.

Note: Shelby County's population has roughly tripled from its 1900 level of 23,684, and the number of circuit judges has also tripled, from one to three.

Tax collector's work thanked

Letter to the Editor:

Please permit me to use this means to publicly thank Mrs. Fay Quick, our current Tax Collector, who will retire October 1, after over three decades of honest and professional service to the citizens of Shelby County.

No community, county, state or nation can rise higher than the character of their public servants. And, I must add, that if all public servants were of the same character as Mrs. Quick, this nation would be on cloud nine.

I hope that Mrs. Quick's years in retirement will be as fruitful for her, as her years of public service have been for the citizens of Shelby County.

Sincerely yours,
Ellis J. Rich

The Alabama Scene

by Bob Ingram

Buoyed by a poll showing that a substantial portion of the Joe McCorquodale votes will go to him in the run-off, Lt. Gov. George McMillan continued to express optimism in his trend-bucking run-off battle with former Gov. George C. Wallace.

If history is any guide--and in politics it probably isn't--McMillan's chances of winning the run-off against Wallace are slim.

For one, no runner-up in an Alabama gubernatorial campaign as far back as McMillan was on Sept. 7 has ever been able to turn it around. McMillan trailed Wallace two weeks ago by some 130,000 votes.

Secondly, only one lieutenant governor in history has ever been elected governor, though many have tried. Way, way back in 1918 Lt. Gov. Thomas E. Kilby of Anniston was elected governor.

The Capstone Poll, conducted by a branch of the University of Alabama, said some 56 percent of those surveyed who voted for McCorquodale on Sept. 7 indicated they would vote for McMillan next Tuesday.

As impressive as that is, McMillan needs an even higher percentage. In fact, if the same number of votes are cast next week as were cast two weeks ago (1,000,294), McMillan would need to get 75 percent of the McCorquodale/Folsom/McKinley vote simply to catch up with Wallace. Actually, it is doubtful that the turnout will be that great on Sept. 28 because the ballot will be much shorter.

Odds and Ends--The Alabama Education Association scored heavily in legislative races on Sept. 7. At last count, some 88 percent of the AEA-backed candidates for the House and Senate were nominated. This huge success could mean that the AEA will be in a strong position to name the next speaker of the Alabama House. A good bet for that post--Rep. Roy Johnson of Tuscaloosa.

Speaking of legislative leadership, look for incoming State Sen. Tom Drake of Cullman to be a powerful figure in the event Wallace is the next governor. Drake made a comeback this year after serving two terms in the Legislature in the past. He is exceedingly close to Wallace...

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

What involves danger, mystery and emotional upheaval?

Another clue to guessing this activity, is the possibility of being crushed to death.

By now you surely know I'm talking about football.

Although I've been to two or three games prior to this weekend, I really had my baptism by fire for the season Friday and Saturday.

Anyone on the sidelines at a football game naturally faces the danger of being run over by the ball carrier and those converging on him.

It happens to me at least once a season. And it came close to happening this weekend, but what bit the dust this time was my flash.

Somehow or other, the hurtling bodies missed me, but not that vital little gadget atop my camera.

I wonder how many times a piece of plastic can be fixed before the repairman just throws up his hands and says it's had it.

When my flash was broken last year, a friend loaned me his, which had just come out of the repair shop.

Then he took over mine after it was put back together. I wonder if I'll be able to talk him out of mine now?

The mystery I mentioned concerns what happened to the pictures I took before my flash crash. I was relieved that I'd gotten a few shots so there'd be something to go with the story.

But my film only had some dim images on it. As far as I can determine, everything was set the same way as it is every weekend, so I can't think of any explanation for the lousy results.

Maybe it just wasn't my weekend. Or maybe the sports editor bragged on my pictures once too often.

The body crush I referred to, came the following day at a college game. With general admission tickets, my daughter and I, and what seemed to be the entire student body, inched our way between upper and lower decks in search of a seat.

We pushed and shoved as far as we could go in one direction, when I thought I spied two seats.

But before my bottom touched the bleacher, I was informed "these seats are for season ticket holders!"

We had overstepped our bounds.

So we joined the throng who were struggling to go in the other direction, which was like swimming upstream.

I finally had the bright idea to go down onto the field and walk along in front of the stands until we spotted a seat.

"I don't think we can do, that," my daughter said as she followed me down the steps.

No one stopped us though, and we grabbed the first vacant spaces we saw.

We wound up next to the band which wasn't so bad. But I'll know never to take an aisle seat again.

College students, I learned, do not stay seated.

We tried to watch the game between people who were either climbing over us getting out, or climbing over us to get back.

I cannot imagine where they went on all those trips.

When it comes to the emotions, I'm sure every football fan knows about the frenzy that occurs when their team completes a pass, makes a touchdown, or gets a penalty.

We had plenty of all those things at our game. In fact, it was so exciting, I was worried my pregnant daughter might present me with another grandchild right there in the stands.

Even though football does take its toll in injuries both to the body and equipment and causes both anguish and ecstasy, I ask you, what better way could you spend a weekend?

I know a lot of folks could tell me - but don't bother. I'll go on loving football and taking the consequences.

Shooting leads to murder conviction

If Jerome Pelmer had been trying to defend himself, he only needed to fire one shot, Deputy District Attorney Bob Williams told a jury Wednesday.

The Harpersville man was convicted last week of murdering his brother-in-law, Billy Ray Norwood in a shooting July 5.

Evidence presented during the two day trial revealed that three shots had been fired at close range into Norwood's chest.

And Williams and District Attorney Billy Hill contended that the imprint of the gun muzzle on one of the wounds showed that the killing had been deliberate.

Norwood was shot to death in the early morning hours of July 5 outside Pelmer's trailer.

One of the two eye witnesses to take the stand during the trial was the defendant's 12 year old nephew, Anthony McConico.

The other person who was present when the shooting took place, was the victim's brother Richard.

Both witnesses testified that the young boy had gone from Pelmer's trailer, where he was visiting, to the nearby Norwood home to get Pelmer's wife Maple.

According to testimony, Mrs. Pelmer had gone to spend the night at her parent's home following an argument with her husband.

When he failed to awaken anyone inside the Norwood home after a second trip, the youth said Richard and Billy Norwood followed him back to Pelmers.

Relating that he had gone into the trailer, young McConico said he looked out when he heard the men arguing and saw Billy Norwood behind Pelmer choking him.

But in his account, Richard reported that Pelmer had stuck a gun in his brothers face when the two of them got close.

In the struggle to get the weapon, he said Pelmer fired the three shots into his brother and then fled.

Because the wounds were on the right side of Norwood's body, the prosecution pointed out that Pelmer could not have fired under his left arm as he claimed.

Had that occurred, with Billy Norwood holding him from behind, the shots would have gone into the opposite side of the victim's body, Hill told the jury.

Deputy Philip Walker stopped Pelmer on Hwy. 280 a short time after the crime took place. However, the name he gave, the deputy testified, was Jerry Jones.

The prosecution's case brought out the fact there had been bad blood between Pelmer and the Norwood's during the six years he and his wife had been married.

Both Mrs. Pelmer's father and her brother Johnny, known as Bubba, said she had told of a "tussle," with her husband the morning of the killing.

Lonnie Norwood recalled his daughter saying that her husband had threatened to kill her if she didn't accompany him to Birmingham to buy beer.

However, Mrs. Pelmer denied making those statements when she was on the stand.

Defense Attorney Dick Bell argued that Pelmer believed the two brothers had come to the trailer to harm him and had only acted in self defense.

Judge Harold Walden, who heard the case, will pronounce Pelmer's sentence Oct. 18.

If three prior convictions can be proved, the Harpersville man could face a life term without parole.

After failing to reach a decision by 8 p.m. Thursday, the jury was sequestered overnight. The verdict was brought in 30 minutes after their return to the courthouse Friday morning.

The panel consisted of: Robert J. Powell, Doris C. Lawley, Dorothy N. Phillips, Jo A. Vaughn, James C. Kilgore Jr., Mabel H. Herron, Sandra R. Bentley, Martha V. Betz, Etta E. Bailey, Claudia W. Taylor, Robert J. Spear, Grace D. Lindsey.

Fire parade planned

The Montevallo Fire Department's observance of Fire Prevention Week will begin on the morning of Oct. 2 and run into the evening.

In addition to the department's annual parade, which begins at 10 a.m., there will be competitive games between fire departments from all over the state during the afternoon.

The fire department will hold open house throughout the day, and the evening's entertainment will be a street dance with music provided by a live band.

A fire department spokesman reports that there will be 60 units in this year's parade, which will include an Army drill team, high school bands, Shriners and political candidates.

Westover festival set

The fall festival of the Westover Volunteer Fire Department promises fun for all ages.

The festival will be held September 25 on Highway 280 in Westover.

Featured are: games, contests, rides, food and drinks, crafts, bakery items, beauty contests for ages 2 thru 15, music by live bands and other planned booths.

All the local churches are participating in the day's activities. Everyone is invited to bring all the family and join in the fun and activities.

cities.

Mayor Burk Dunaway said the subject had never come up before, but the council would at least look into it.

Cairns told the Reporter that currently the Shelby County Commission has no real control over the sale of fireworks out in the county. For that reason, a number of illegal stands sold fireworks over the Fourth of July, he said.

A license to sell them in Shelby County now costs only $35, according to Cairns.

After elections are over, Cairns and Burchfield plan to present the county commission with a proposal similar to the one they offered Pelham for consideration.

Carins said Tanit operates 44 stands in Alabama, including three near Pelham. Some are operated under the name of Crazy Bill's Fireworks, he said.

"We'd love to have a few more stands down here," Burchfield added.

During the brief meeting,

Dunaway noted that the city was currently seeking bids on repaving Lee Street. The mayor remained optimistic that work could possibly begin late this week and be completed by as early as Saturday.

Councilman Bob Cleveland was out of town on business, Dunaway said.

Apparently Councilman John Tanner was also absent because of pressing business. Dunaway said Tanner was bringing his wife home from the hospital-along with their new seven-pound son.

Twenty-one inch John Freeman Tanner, Jr., was born to Debbie and John, Sr. September 16.

In a letter to the council, the Y's Executive Director Molly McGregor reported that by participating in the Metro Y's package insurance program, she could save $500 on the yearly premium the Y pays.

At the present time, the Y is paying a $600 insurance premium on the city owned building.

In other action, the council voted to accept the $4,200 bid of Lower Brothers Construction Co. for the last phase of work on the park tennis courts.

Attention Home seeks funds in Alabaster

Making the rounds of city councils, Attention Home Director Brenda Lee spoke to city fathers in Alabaster Monday night.

Since federal funding has been completely cut out for the Attention Home and Shelby Youth Services, Lee is seeking financial assistance from the county, municipalities, businesses and individual donations.

With 50 Alabaster young people receiving services from the facility, the city is second to Pelham in the number of juveniles who have been referred there.

Although sympathetic with Lee's plight, the council agreed that any financial help they might give would have to come at a later time.

Mayor H.A. "Doc" Rubin appointed a committee composed of L.O. Farris, Willie Arrington and Jack Reagin to evaluate what money might be available.

The council went along with Reagin's recommendation that the matter be brought up and discussed again in five or six months.

However, it was agreed that police department and in kind services would continue.

During her presentation, Lee reported that the Attention Home and Shelby Youth Services are presently working with 271 young people.

Her figures revealed a 96% success rate in the number of young people helped so far this year.

Giving the yearly cost of the program as $81,000, Lee explained that that averaged out to $180 per child.

She compared that figure with the $17,000 it costs to keep a juvenile in detention facilities such as Mt. Meigs.

Other counties, she reported, have been forced to close their facilities due to lack of funding.

With a 30% increase in the number of referrals for services and with only three full time staff members left, Lee finds herself between a rock and a hard place.

Although the county commission provided $15,000 last year, they still have not committed themselves to an amount this year, Lee reported.

She told the council that she has been able to stay afloat through fund raising events such as talent shows and golf tournaments and that churches and other groups donate food to the home.

Faith reaffirmed by return of wallet

by David F. Moore

A Shelby County woman has reaffirmed a stranger's faith in the human race.

B.G. "Bill" Hoyle, 45, who lives in Guntersville, made his first trip to Shelby County last Saturday. Co-workers at Hayes International in Birmingham had invited him to a dove shoot here.

The trip started on a bad note. Insects at the shoot were so bad, Hoyle left for a Pelham drug store to buy some repellent.

But at the counter, when he reached for his wallet, all he felt was that sinking sensation that hits whenever you realize you've lost something very important.

No wallet.

"I checked back in my truck and it wasn't there," Hoyle said. "I checked at the Pelham police station and no one had turned one in."

Later that afternoon Hoyle returned to the police station. Still no luck.

"With all the crime, and the economy the way it is, I imagine finding a wallet with cash and credit cards in it would be tempting to anyone," Hoyle told the Reporter. "But I commented to one of the policemen that maybe I was old fashioned, but I felt someone honest may have found it and turned it in."

Hoyle decided to retrace his steps, and asked the policeman if he could use the telephone. He called the drug store.

Sure enough, the wallet was there.

Mrs. Gordon Brown had found it in the parking lot and turned it in at the store.

Hoyle picked up the wallet, then drove to Southgate Trailer Park on highway 31 in Pelham, to personally thank Mrs. Brown.

The heroine, he said, was quite modest about the seemingly small thing she had done.

But for Hoyle, Mrs. Brown's deed saved more than just his money, credit cards and credentials. She reaffirmed something "old fashioned" he had wanted to believe about his fellow man.

"It's good to know there are still some honest people around," Hoyle said.

He added, "I'd say I had a very good first impression about Shelby County."

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PEOPLE OF SHELBY COUNTY

A vital philosophy which I believe most Christians live by is this: "I will be careful what I say, lest a careless word should serve to limit the influence of a good man's life." That is a rule for living worthy of every good man's support.

However, that in itself is not enough! It is also true that silence can sometimes keep a good man from achieving his full influence. I believe that most Christians in Shelby County want every Christian man and woman to reach their full potential for good. Therefore, as Judge Eason Mitchell's pastor, I would like to set the record straight concerning Judge Mitchell.

In recent weeks Judge Mitchell has been unjustly maligned, not by his political opponent, but a few misguided individuals. As Judge Mitchell's pastor I would like the citizens of Shelby County to know that Eason Mitchell is a Christian Gentleman of the Highest Caliber and that rumors to the contrary are untrue.

Vote your conscience on election day. But please don't allow yourself to be guided by petty attempts at character assassination, which only appeal to the worst in each of us.

Reverend Ken Chapman

It was a first... for me anyway. Last Thursday night I was invited to dine on Chinese cuisine at a friend's home.

Well, if it hadn't been for my mom, I would have probably 'chickened-out'. But my mother is, like most mothers, very persuasive, and so I tagged along to get my first taste of this oriental stuff.

Eight people attended the class-supper, taught by Mrs. Jackie DeMent Allison of Birmingham, who is the niece of our hostess, Miss Delene 'Tot' DeMent.

When the menus and recipes were handed out, everyone else who, like me, were raised on fried chicken, butter beans, and such, just looked at each other and smiled.

But before long we were all sitting around the table laughing and enjoying such delicacies as Egg Drop Soup, Egg Rolls and Wontons (which we rolled and fried ourselves no doubt), fried rice and sweet and sour beef.

Needless to say it was delicious... strange looking... but none-the-less delicious!

And so I learned once again, that 'mother knows best', and that after 22 years, I have developed a taste for a food that must be 'woked' before you eat it.

Shelby Church of God will hold revival services September 26 through October 3 at 7 p.m. nightly.

Rev. Bobby Morgan of Gadsden will be the evangelist for the event.

Pastor James R. Prince extends a cordial invitation to the public.

Influenza injections offered to public

Doctors call it influenza. But to the person in bed with sore muscles, fever, stuffy head and runny nose, it's the "flu." Some people run high risks of complications from the flu which, in extreme cases, can even cause death. For this reason, the Shelby County Health Department is offering influenza vaccines—flu shots, to the layman. The shots are strongly recommended for people with conditions that increase risks of complications, such as: heart, lung or renal diseases, diabetes, chronic or severe anemia, immune deficiencies, or anyone over 65 years of age. Children under 13 will not be vaccinated.

K-C doubles expansion plan

Kimberly-Clark Corporation is planning a $38 million expansion for its Childersburg pulp mill. The expansion will increase Coosa Pines plant's production of "roll fluff" pulp 35%, for an annual production of 140,000 metric tons, according to company officials. The expansion, however, is expected to create only a few new jobs.

The company is coming off a 12-day shutdown at the Childersburg plant, initiated because of a surplus in stocked newsprint. Three months ago the company announced a $36.5 million modernization of its Coosa Pines woodyard. Despite the temporary layoffs, company officials view the $75 million investment in the plant as a demonstration of K-C's confidence in its Childersburg facilities.

McMILLAN'S PLAN TO MAKE ALABAMA BETTER

McMillan's plan for ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Alabama is blessed with 10 percent of the entire Nation's natural resources. Our citizens believe in hard work. We are a productive work force. We have faith in the free enterprise system that has made our Country great. We have a good climate, rich agricultural lands, and the heavy industry that is essential to any strong economy.

We are located in the heart of the "Sunbelt" region. The "Sunbelt" emerged as the region with the greatest prospects for growth in the 1970's and 1980's. With our bountiful resources, we should be leading our sister Southeastern states toward this economic prosperity, but instead we have lagged behind.

Why have we suffered while our neighbors have prospered? We have allowed ourselves to be distracted by politicians who were more interested in grabbing national headlines than tackling the difficult job of managing State government. During the last eight years, in a single industrial field, Georgia attracted 26 new manufacturing firms while we attracted only one. As a result, Georgia put thousands of her citizens to work. While North Carolina was developing a billion dollar high technology industry, we allowed our attention to be distracted by inflammatory political rhetoric. George McMillan is tired of Alabama lagging behind. He believes that if we throw off the shackles of negative politics and concentrate on bringing jobs to our citizens, we can move our state forward.

AS GOVERNOR, GEORGE McMILLAN WILL implement an economic development plan that includes:

- An inventory of our assets.
 The Alabama Development Office will immediately take a county by county inventory. State government can help communities market themselves. Alabama has numerous assets which remain unknown to State government and unmarketed to the rest of the Nation.
- Devising a marketing strategy.
 We must develop a strategy that includes trained, qualified people to manage our recruitment efforts to market Alabama products and promote our State as a good place to live and work.
- Restructuring the Alabama Development Office.
 George McMillan will streamline our development efforts by placing them all under one agency. He will then create a board of trustees with staggered six-year terms, so no single governor can control it. He believes outstanding business and industrial leaders - not politicians - should have the authority to run this department.
- Improving our system of public education.
 George McMillan has a plan to insure that our system of public education stimulates economic development.
- Increasing our export capability.
 In Alabama today, farmland is lying underdeveloped and businesses are closing while overseas demand for their products is high. Sales of Alabama products in foreign markets will bring dollars into the State and open up new jobs. An increased export capacity will encourage present businesses to expand and offer prospective investors another excellent reason to locate in Alabama.
- Diversifying Alabama's economic base.
 No state's economy can be consistently stable without having a diversity of types of industry and business. The future growth industries have usually gone elsewhere because we have not provided them with the proper business climate. George McMillan will work to attract quality industry that will help Alabama weather hard times and give our citizens higher paying jobs.

McMillan's plan for EDUCATION

George McMillan knows that a strong system of education is an essential element in any plan to help Alabama achieve its full potential as a state.

In view of this, it is a sad commentary that some Alabama politicians use this important state function as a whipping-boy. Instead of leaders who seek to gain votes by attacking public education, we need leaders who recognize that education and economic development are inseparably linked.

Alabama ranks 48th out of the 50 states in financial support for education. Not surprisingly, Alabama also ranks 48th in personal income and has one of the highest unemployment rates in the Nation.

Education at any level is an investment in economic development. A good system of education provides a well-trained work force, stimulates the economy, increases personal income, and improves the quality of life.

McMillan will:

- Beginning with kindergarten, develop the skills that will allow our children to fully benefit from future vocational and professional opportunities.
- Tailor vocational, technical and trade programs to the quality jobs George McMillan will work to make available. Vocational education is vital to our economic well-being. He will support counseling programs which help students make wise career choices.
- Strengthen research and development at our state universities. Texas, California, North Carolina and Massachusetts have improved the research dimensions of their leading universities, and their economies have been greatly strengthened as a result of the new businesses these programs helped attract. Alabama must learn from the success of other states.
- Support extension and continuing education programs. In these times of rapid technological and social change, Alabamians in many fields need continuing access to educational resources. The time is past when a degree lasts a lifetime.

McMillan's plan to combat CRIME

George McMillan believes one of the most important responsibilities State government has is to protect the law-abiding citizen from the criminal. For too long in Alabama, elected officials have talked tough about crime, but what have the tough talkers done about it? Ten years ago, Alabama was 46th out of the 50 states in support of law enforcement. Today, we are 47th.

The fears which Alabamians have about crime are valid. The tragedy is that too often our politicians have only exploited those fears. They have talked tough on crime to get elected, but once in office, they have failed to take real action to reduce crime.

McMillan believes we can do something about crime in Alabama. But he knows that our problems with crime will only continue to grow unless we act now to elect leaders with the ability and willingness to tackle the root problems of crime-not just talk about the criminal behavior those problems produce.

Beyond prevention, McMillan will seek new classification for State prisoners in order to more effectively measure financial resources allocated to the prison system. Those convicted of violent crimes should be held in maximum security prisons. However, since this costs the public over $15,000 per inmate per year, those convicted of non-violent property crimes should be jailed in less expensive facilities. The cost savings of classification would permit more prisons to be built and thus fewer convicts would be turned loose on the street due to a lack of space in which to put them.

McMillan thinks it is also time convicted criminals started paying more of their way, instead of law abiding citizens footing the bill for the prison system. Greater use can be made of prison industry and work crews on public projects.

With McMillan's ideas and ability, his record of positive action, and your support, we will do something besides talk about crime in Alabama. With your help, McMillan will implement his plan for our criminal justice system along with his proposals in other areas such as economic development and public education. Things can be better in all of these areas with McMillan as Governor. We don't have four years to waste!

Tanner out of race for state legislature

There will be no runoff between John Tanner and Tom Stubbs. Tanner has been forced to concede his contest of the Democratic primary election results.

Stubbs now faces Republican Don Murphy in the November general elections for the state legislature, District 49.

Statewide, some dozen other candidates filed to contest primary election results. But they were all forced to concede after an oversight in state and party laws was discovered last week.

When the legislature voted to change the primaries from May to September, sections of the state code and Democratic party bylaws governing election contests were not changed accordingly.

Contest hearings, according to the unchanged laws, cannot begin until 10 days after election results have been certified. The contests also have to be resolved within 40 days of the general election.

The problem is one of mathematics. Now there are only 22 days between the primaries and runoffs to do what legally requires at least 50 days.

Tanner was contesting the results on grounds of accidental voting irregularities, especially at one Calera box, that could have put him in a runoff against Stubbs.

Tanner, a Pelham councilman, said he was "extremely disappointed" in not being able to see the contest through because of the "grievous oversight" by the state Democratic Executive Committee and the legislature.

If he pressed the matter legally, Tanner said the courts would probably uphold his contest and place him and Stubbs in a runoff. A court ordered runoff, however, would result in the county bearing the unfair burden of paying for a special election, he said.

Tanner called the 3,061 votes he pulled in the district a vote of confidence. Stubbs received 3,730 votes in the Shelby-south Jefferson district. William Charlie Brown finished third with 611.

Going up

Calera increases gas rates 18 percent

by Fred Guarino

The price of natural gas is going up in Calera.

As the result of action taken by Calera's City Council, Monday, the November billing cycle will reflect a price hike of 18 percent to customers.

Councilman Roy Hadaway made the motion to increase the rate, even though he said he hated it. The measure passed with only Councilman W. B. Watts opposed.

Hadaway explained to council members that the increase includes a 14 percent price hike passed on to the city by Southern Natural Gas. The other four percent is an increase in operating costs being passed on to customers by the City of Calera.

He said that the city absorbed an eight percent increase from Southern Natural Gas earlier in the year. He pointed out that the city has not increased its operating cost since 1979.

Hadaway stated that when people built their homes they had to decide how they wanted to heat them. He said, "Five years ago, natural gas was the bargain. It is not that bargain anymore."

Watts objected to the increase saying, "I don't feel right in adding four percent at this time. If we can pass on 14 percent, we ought to be able to afford four percent."

In other action, a proposed ordinance to regulate mechanical games in Calera by Mayor Carl Prichard failed to pass.

The mayor said that he brought the ordinance before the council because Calera has no law governing the operation of the games. He said that all the city does have is a contract with an arcade operator.

The council also agreed to allocate $500 or better to the Attention Home in Shelby County.

An ordinance repealing Calera's beer license was approved pending verification that the city has no objection.

The city agreed to share the cost of repairing a backhoe with the water board and appointed J. C. Rowe to serve on the Shelby County Health Council.

A request by Watts for the city to pay $100 in medical expenses for an injured fireman was approved with the understanding that the city will accept no further liability in the matter.

Helena proclaims CF Day, resident rallies to cause

Joe Coggins came to the Helena council meeting Monday night seeking support for the Cystic Fibrosis Bike-A-Thon.

He got more than he expected.

The council passed a resolution proclaiming Saturday, October 2 as Helena Cystic Fibrosis Day. Mayor Charles Penhale even suggested that the councilmen get their bikes ready to ride.

Then came the surprise: Helena resident and businessman Curtis Mims abruptly spoke up and offered $100 to the cause. His action brought a round of applause from the people in the council chamber.

"I've got five kids," said Mims. "All of them are beautiful, fine and healthy. But we've had people in our family who've had CF before..."

Mims said that his personal contact with a victim of the incurable childhood disease, left him "touched."

Coggins was obviously touched by Mims' offer, and quickly accepted his check.

The Bike-A-Thon project was started by Helena PTO president Grover Jackson as a school project, Coggins explained. But the idea is gaining such support, the PTO decided to involve the city, he explained.

So far, Coggins said about 100 people—mostly Helena students—have signed up to collect pledges for every mile they peddle their bikes and big-wheels around tracks that are being laid out near the school.

Local and state-wide prizes will be offered. The big-wheel track is open to kindergarten through third grade children. Bike riders of all ages are eligible to ride the larger track.

The CF ride will run from 9 a.m. to noon. Sponsorship forms can be obtained at Helena Elementary School.

According to reports, CF is the number one genetic killer of children. One out of 20 Americans is a carrier of the undetectable CF genes.

Coggins said 2,000 children in Alabama are affected by CF. The disease attacks the body's glands and eventually affects breathing, digestion or critical salt levels.

Proceeds from the bike-a-thon will go toward research into prevention and treatment of CF, Coggins said.

An open letter to the citizens of Shelby County:

The tactics used by a candidate in the effort to win election to office are a strong indication of the true character of the candidate. In my opinion, two of the most deplorable tactics which can be employed by a candidate are (1) use of the church and its leadership as a power base, and (2) dissemination of false information which is designed to discredit and damage one's opponent.

I refer specifically to the incumbent Judge of the 18th Judicial Circuit whose use of his position in the church and the endorsement and support of church leaders forms a major part of his claim to qualification for the office. At the same time, he has originated, or allowed his church-leader supporters to originate and publicize, rumors about his opponent which are untrue and vicious. Both actions are inconsistent with Christian conduct as I perceive it. The true Christian has no need to publicize that he is one; his actions and manner of life speak convincingly for him. Furthermore, the use of the church to gain power, political or otherwise, is a perversion of the purpose of the church.

These methods bear a resemblance to those of the Moral Majority and related movements which are viewed by many, including myself, as dangerous trends in recent political scenes. Religious fervor has a way of shifting attention from the real issues and qualifications of candidates.

Being the incumbent in an office affords a candidate the opportunity of using his record as evidence of qualification for that office. To use the methods employed by Judge Armstrong and his supporters indicates that the record will not bear close scrutiny. Indeed, examination of the record reveals numerous deficiencies such as failure to enforce the Alabama Victim Restitution Act in all criminal cases handled, a record percentage of cases reversed by appellate courts because of judicial error, and reduction of sentence to probation or fine in 20 of 21 drug cases handled in 1981.

In contrast, the record of Judge Eason Mitchell is one of commitment to enforcement of the Victim Restitution Act, intense educational preparation, broad legal experience, and strong support of law enforcement with tough sentencing for convicted criminals.

I believe that candidate records which have a direct bearing on qualifications for the office are the most valid basis for voter decision. The above-mentioned records speak loudly.

Columbiana water board complaints go on

The second verse was the same as the first when former Columbiana Water Board Chairman Bob Hume appeared at Thursday's council meeting.

But this time Hume had his remarks about the board printed in a three page memo which he handed out.

He knew he would be a victim of the council's "political machine," he noted, six months before his term ended.

Hume said that the word had gotten out that "council members are jockeying for various memberships on gas and water boards, and Bob Hume has to go, he's too controversial."

He contended there were "sell outs" and other maneuvering in order to get his predecessor Lewis Walker back on the board.

Choosing not to reply to those charges, the councilman simply reminded Hume his name had not been submitted for reappointment to the board.

"You're out - that's it - just forget it," Walker barked.

But Hume said he intends to pursue the matter. He informed the council that he will next address his questions to the water board at their Oct. 12 meeting and invited the panel and the press to attend.

Another council member accused of a "sell out" in order to get on the gas board said he had simply changed his mind about Hume serving on the water board.

Although he had nominated Hume for his first term on the board, Frank Owen said he'd decided to nominate someone else this time.

Mayor Buck Falkner was challenged on parliamentary procedure in the way he conducted the vote which resulted in Walker's election to the board.

The Mayor said he had not broken a tie vote, as Hume had assumed, but had simply cast his vote for Walker.

There were denials of any "sell-outs," but Owen admitted the matter had been discussed.

"But no more so than when we appointed you," he told Hume.

At the last meeting, the Mayor pointed out that the council decided someone else would have to take Hume's place because of all the "fussing and fighting."

Admitting that he was guilty of that, the former water board chairman said that every citizen should be doing the same thing.

"If that is what it takes to make elected officials do what is proper," Hume said they should do so.

Defending the operation of the water board, Walker said that it has always functioned well and would continue to do so.

He also reported that meters have been placed at well sites to record the amount of water pumped.

That had been one of Hume's complaints. The former water board chairman also contends there are violations of health regulations, unqualified personnel, poor record keeping, violations of the competitive bid laws and several other things.

These were listed in a letter

Hume wrote which was published in the Sept. 2 edition of the Reporter.

"No one is getting poisoned," Falkner remarked as the discussion wound down, "and I think most of the people in town are happy with it (the water system)."

Chicken question passed to Helena mayor

The chickens may have finally come home to roost, but apparently not in a Helena subdivision.

The Helena Council voted on Sept. 13 to authorize Mayor Charles Penhale to take whatever steps are necessary to remove a small flock of chickens from Sunnysbrook subdivision. Penhale, however, was not at the meeting.

The action came after the city received a nebulous opinion from the attorney general on the issue. An attorney interpreted the opinion as saying the city's zoning laws don't specify chickens in a subdivision as either legal or illegal.

Councilman Jim Kwater called the opinion a "technical flip-flop," adding that "after all the shouting's over, the chickens are in violation of the law."

ON BEHALF OF HONEST CITIZENS

Shelby County gave Judge Armstrong a 2400 vote lead over his run-off opponent. Now it seems that eleventh hour desperation smear sheets, incomplete and misleading files, and untrue ads have surfaced. This is highly regrettable. We sincerely hate even to have to mention it. We will not dignify them with a response, except to say they are ridiculous and shameful. We do ask you, though, to use your common sense and see them for what they are. Soundly reject such deceitful politics.

Judge Armstrong respects the ability of the citizens of Shelby County to investigate, search out the truth, and to reject deceitful tactics. Halftruths will not do. We welcome the opportunity to respond to any inquiry. We want citizens to have an active interest in our court system. The 18th Circuit is one we can all be thankful for.

Remember that, of all people, a Judge should have integrity and a reverence for truth. If you have any questions at all, please ask an attorney or court official whose opinion you trust.

Revel is best known as an actor and as the author of this year's winning College Night script. But the two one-act plays to be presented are in contrast to his usual comic or musical comedy style.

mystery novelist.

The evening will also feature a short play by Chekhov performed by Bill Murphrey.

A critique and open forum discussion about the plays will follow each night's performances. Audience members are encouraged to remain for this.

The two plays are directed by graduate student Rusty Willingham and senior Patience Whitman is assisting him.

The cast includes old faces and new faces such as D'Wayne Baxter, Kent Kipham, Gretchen Schmith, Cody Lyons, Renee Dillinger, Phillip Cooper and Robin Colestre.

Performances will be held in the Chichester Studio at 8 p.m.

Thompson has close call with Montevallo

by Fred Guarino

"Our group played up to potential. We may have caught Thompson looking to Vestavia."

That was the way Richard Gilliam explained how his Montevallo Bulldogs gave the Thompson Warriors all they could handle in Montevallo, Friday night.

Larry Simmons' Warriors upped their season record to a perfect 4-0 but not without a tremendous battle with the 'Dogs.

The Bulldogs were ahead on the scoreboard at the end of the first three quarters. They only yielded in the final three minutes of the contest when Thompson came from behind to leave the final score, Thompson 21, Montevallo 14.

If the fight dished out by Montevallo was not enough, consider the fact that Montevallo started the game with one of its key defensive players out of action due to an injury.

Barry Worthy has been sidelined due to an injured finger and still faces possible surgery.

Added to that, in the first series of play another top Montevallo defender, Van Hawks, was lost to a knee injury.

Gilliam told the Reporter that his four linebacker defense had been changed to a three linebacker defense to make up for the absence of Worthy. He said, "Losing Hawks threw everything off."

Looking as tough as usual, Thompson jumped on the Bulldogs early when it took advantage of a pass interception and drove 47 yards in six plays.

Demetrius Threatt took the ball into the endzone on a five yard run and Jeff Willis added the PAT. Thompson led 7-0 with 7:31 remaining in the first quarter.

Montevallo returned the favor, however, by driving 73 yards in 13 plays. The Bulldogs scored on a 23 yard pass from Howard Gaddis to Taylor Blackwell.

Gaddis hit Dwayne Jackson for a two point conversion and with 1:42 left in the first period, Montevallo led 8-7.

The Warriors were set to quiet down Montevallo fans on its next possession but something went wrong.

Gordon Kenney returned the kick to the Thompson 31 yard line and fumbled. Montevallo recovered.

The Bulldogs navigated the distance to pay dirt in four quick plays. Howard Gaddis capped the short drive with a 21 yard pass to Michael Grayson, who made a fine catch over a Warrior defender.

The extra point attempt failed but with only 14 seconds left in the first period, Montevallo led 14-7.

There was no scoring in the second period but there was a lot of action.

Threatt got Thompson down to the Montevallo eight yard line where the Bulldog defense and penalties shut the Warriors down.

Luvell Bivins and Threatt later got the ball down to the Montevallo 20 before the Bulldogs' Dwayne Jackson hit Bivins. The Warrior runner fumbled in the air and the loose ball was grabbed by Montevallo's Mark Jones.

Montevallo managed to get to the Thompson 34 before Thompson's Max Brown picked off a Bulldog pass.

Again Thompson moved on Montevallo but the drive fell short at the Bulldog four yard line as the horn sounded to end the first half.

The Warriors were able to reach pay dirt late in the third period but were still unable to notch the contest.

Capping a 52 yard, eight play drive, Bivins ripped into the endzone from ten yards out. The PAT, however, went wide and with 3:37 left in the third period, Montevallo held on to a 14-13 lead.

Montevallo had a chance to expand its lead when it took the kick off and marched all the way to the Thompson four yard line.

Thompson's defense rose to the occasion, however, sacking the 'Dogs back to the 12.

Montevallo then threw a desperation pass which was caught by Robby Allen in the endzone but the game officials ruled that he came down out of bounds.

With 9:35 left in the game, Thompson began its final touchdown march of the night and finally pulled the fat from the fire.

The Warriors covered 91 yards in 15 plays. But they had to put everything they had into it to make the final three yards.

Threatt got nothing on his first punch. He earned two and a half yards on his second try. He got nothing on his third effort. But on the fourth attempt, Threatt pushed into the endzone on a close call made by officials.

Robert Brasher hit Scotty Hawkins for the two point conversion just before the game ended, giving Thompson the win by a score of 21-14.

Thompson's coach Larry Simmons said of Friday's game, "We didn't play as well as we are capable and they (Montevallo) played exceptionally well."

When asked if Thompson was looking ahead to Vestavia, Simmons said, "I don't know. You get to hearing how bad you are going to beat someone. I try to tell them not to take anyone lightly but players can tell how you feel."

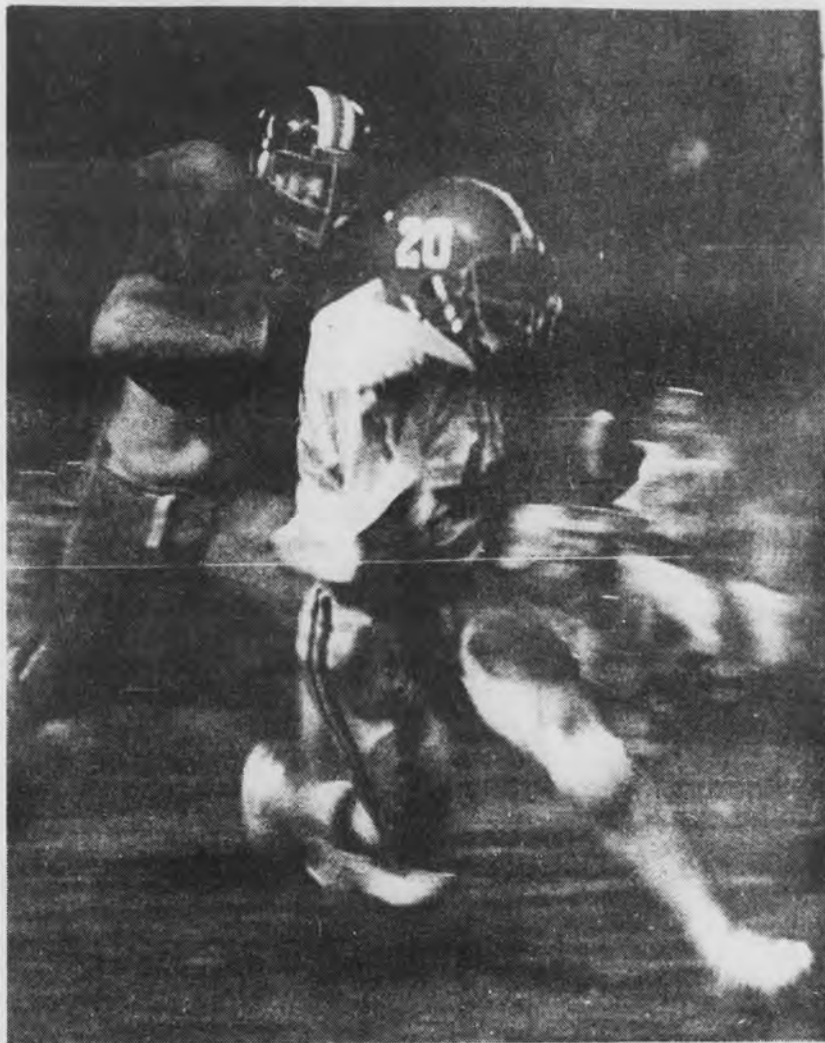

He said that if you went by how much they put into it, Montevallo deserved to win. If you go by statistics, we did. I am just thankful we won."

Simmons said that he lost another key player to injury Friday night. Arthur Johnson is out with a knee injury and Friday night Luvell Bivins had his shoulder slightly separated on the last play of the game.

Thompson rushed for 368 yards and passed for a total offense of 396 yards. The Warriors made 17 first downs and were penalized 90 yards.

Montevallo rushed for 104 yards but passed for 119 yards for a total offense of 223 yards. The Bulldogs made 16 first downs and were penalized for only five yards.

Montevallo will play Chelsea at Chelsea and Thompson will face Vestavia at home tomorrow night.

Murder!

Jemison hacks Chelsea 40-0

by Fred Guarino

Jemison should be charged with murder.

The high school football assassination squad took the opening kick and ran it 90 yards for a touchdown against Chelsea.

That run broke Chelsea's back and from there on it was slaughter as Jemison hacked the Hornets 40-0 before a devastated home crowd.

About the only thing Roger Hibbs' team had going for it were a good football field with nice grass, new stadium lights, and sharp looking uniforms.

Coach Hibbs' now 0-3 Hornets must face Montevallo at home tomorrow night. That should prove no cakewalk for Chelsea as Montevallo gave perfect Thompson a run for its life Friday night.

son a run for its life Friday night.

The Chelsea head football coach had nothing but praise for his opponents. He said, "Jemison's got an excellent football team. They have quality backs and their coaches do an excellent job in preparing them."

"They don't do anything fancy but just line up and challenge you."

Hibbs said of the opening kick return's effect on his squad, "It was like letting air out of a balloon."

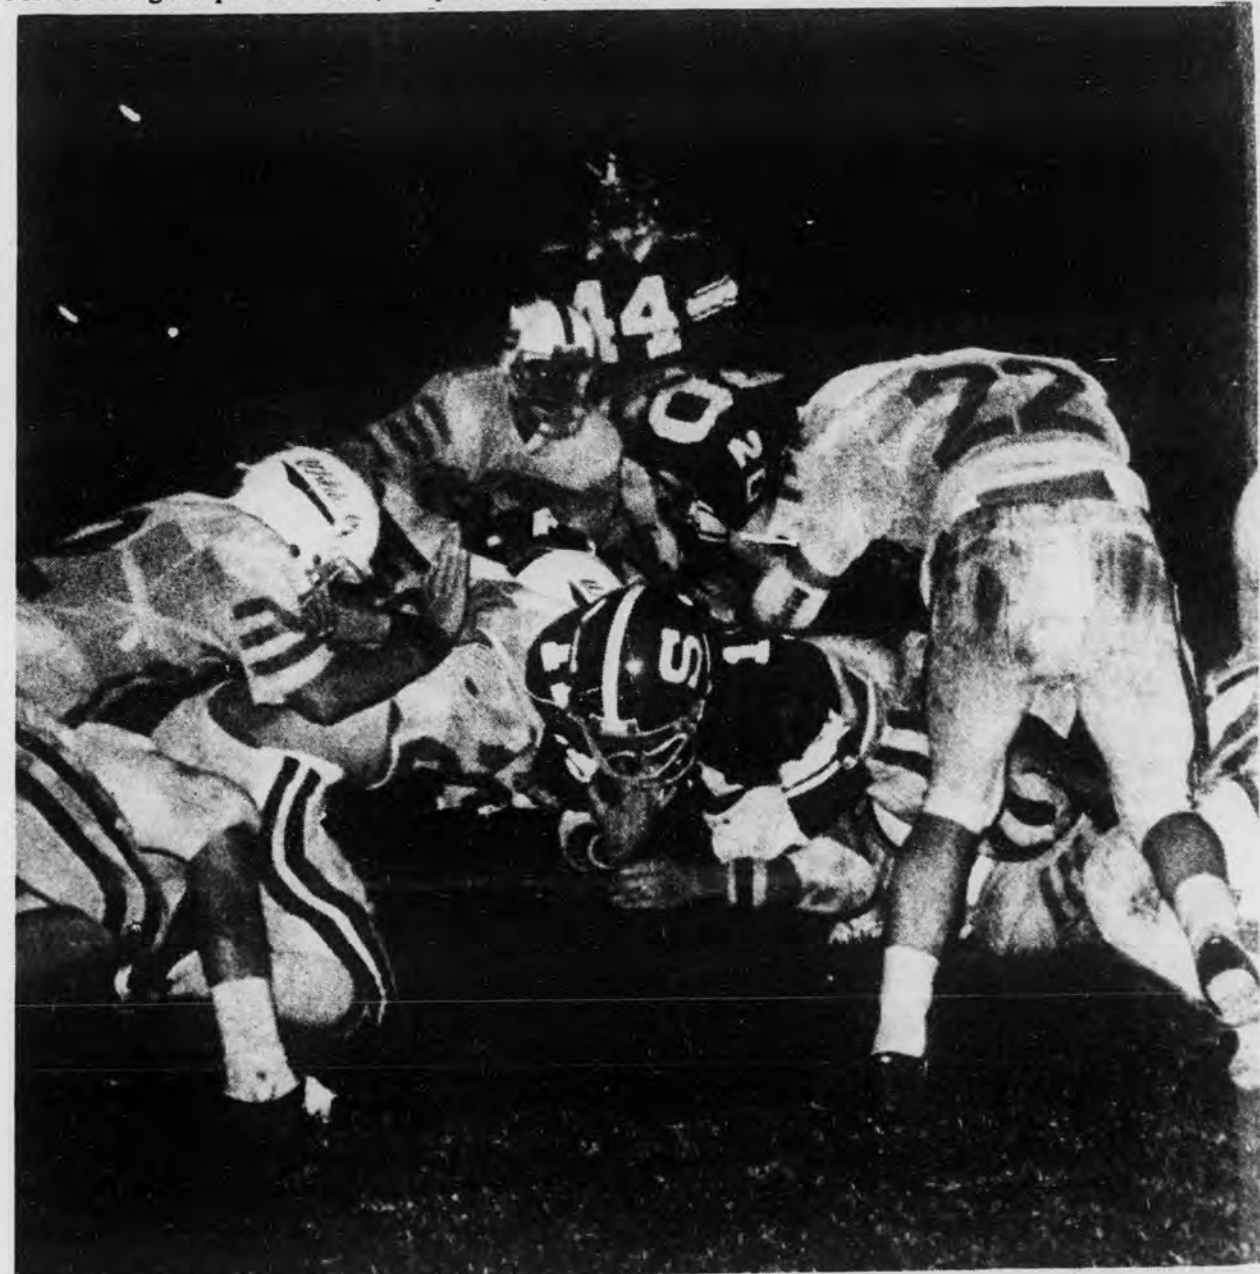

Chelsea could only manage 29 yards rushing and 146 yards by air in the contest for a total offense of 176 yards. The team suffered 118 yards in penalties.

Jemison rushed for 342 yards and passed for 26 yards for a murdering total offense of 368 yards. That team suffered 106 yards in penalties.

Chelsea made seven first downs while Jemison netted 13.

Shelby Academy slips, injuries mount

by Fred Guarino

If football players could only play offense or defense but not both, Shelby Academy would not have a team.

The Raiders entered Friday's disappointing homecoming contest against Springwood with 19 healthy players, but found themselves with only 17 when the horn ended the 34-8 whipping.

Coach DeWayne Kervin lost Jim Moore to a knee injury and Keith Knowles to a hip pointer.

When asked how he explained the defeat, Coach Kervin simply pointed to Springwood's record and the physical condition of his team.

Springwood has won the private school state championship back to back for the past two years. They brought 13 seniors to play against Shelby Academy.

Kervin said, "Our problem is with injuries and with no more depth than we have, we must stick people here and there. You can't play ball that way and it hurts."

He stated of his opponent in Friday's contest, "They were just too strong."

With all of the negative things kept in mind, the Raiders played good ball control in the first half and went into the dressing room trailing by only three touchdowns.

The Raiders hoped to make a comeback in the second half but three fumbles and two 15 yard penalties set up even more scoring opportunities for Springwood.

About the only thing Raiders' fans had to smile about was the crowning of their homecoming queen, senior Jo Lane Chapman and the announcement of her court.

Filling out the court were Julie Patterson, a sophomore; Lee Harris, a junior; Lisa Silvani, a freshman; Caryn Carden and Lee Snow, both seniors.

Adding a few more smiles at half-time was a performance by the Shelby Academy band and children from kindergarten to the six grade to the theme from "Annie".

Fans were also given a chance to cheer as Sherry and Larry Mitchell recognized Mr. and Mrs. James L. Carden as Shelby Academy Boosters of the Year. The Mitchells enjoyed the honor last season.

Shelby Academy fans had no reason to smile about the football activity itself until the fourth quarter. At that point, Springwood had scored all of its 34 points.

Springwood faced fourth down and six yards to go at its own 26 when Robert Thomas blocked a punt. That gave the Raiders a first and goal at the Springwood eight yard line.

Mike Silvani managed to reach pay dirt from six yards out with 9:34 left in the game. Dennis Ataway took in a two point conversion pass to make the scoreboard read Springwood 34, Shelby Academy 8.

When asked if there were any standouts for his team, Kervin said, "It is hard to say who stood out. I thought we hung in there when there was no hope and I am proud of that. I thought we played better team ball than we have lately."

The now 2-2 Raiders will face Tuscaloosa at home tomorrow night.

Driver's license required

Hunters buying a resident or nonresident hunting license should be prepared to show their driver's license.

For non licensed drivers, other proof of permanent residence will be required.

Game and Fish Director Charles D. Kelley points out that two acts signed into law require residents and nonresidents to have their driver's license number and state of issue posted on their hunting license at the time of purchase.

Panthers fight good battle

by Fred Guarino

The Pelham Panthers fell to Mountain Brook 35-0 at home, Friday night.

As Mountain Brook is a 4A school, ranked number seven in the state and Pelham is a 3A school, unranked, that score came as no surprise to anyone.

What did come as a surprise was the first half play by Pelham against a super football team.

Pelham trailed by only 14 points at the end of the first half and the score could have been tied at seven all.

Mountain Brook scored first to make the scoreboard read 7-0. After a couple of series by both teams late in the first quarter, Pelham drove the ball 80 yards to the Mountain Brook 10 yard line.

A fumble there killed Pelham's efforts and Mountain Brook went on to score again.

The 4A school took a two touchdown lead into the locker room.

Pelham's Coach Billy Tohill said, "We had battled them good for a half and had a chance to tie the game up." He said that contest was one of "ifs, ands, buts, and inches."

The coach indicated that if Pelham scored in the first half, the outcome might have been different. But he said proudly, "We hung in there real tough for a half with a real superior team."

It was reported that Mountain Brook dressed out 65 players for the Pelham game and played offensive and defensive platoons.

Pelham, on the other hand, dressed out only 34 players who had to play both ways. Coach Tohill commented in light of the player situation, "After the first half we were pretty well whipped."

About Mountain Brook, the coach said, "Three years ago they were all sophomores, getting whipped every Friday night. They stuck with their program and brought them along. I think they will deal some misery to other folks down the line."

En route to goose egging the Pelham Panthers, Mountain Brook gathered 18 first downs while rushing for 276 yards and passing for 82 yards. That gave the visitors a total offense of 358 yards.

Pelham could only manage 13 first downs, 138 yards rushing and 46 yards passing for a total offense of 184 yards. The Panthers were good for only three of ten pass attempts and suffered one interception.

While Pelham only received ten yards in penalties, Coach Tohill's team gave up one fumble which proved costly to the team's spirit and momentum.

Pelham will take on Bibb County tomorrow night.

Clanton comes back on Cats

by Richard Crosby

Just 66 years ago the Wildcat fans were ecstatic after playing Clanton.

Shelby County whipped the Tigers 62-0. Such was not the case last Friday night.

Clanton came from behind to win its homecoming contest over the Wildcats by 14-8.

Defense was the hallmark of the game. Shelby County surprised Clanton with fierce hits. The Wildcats didn't give the home team a first down until the second quarter.

The Shelby County offense was just as active. The first time the Wildcats got the ball they moved downfield toward the goal line.

Kevin Crumpton caught a 33 yard pass which brought the ball to Clanton's 20 yard line. Two plays later Crumpton caught a touchdown pass, but a penalty brought the ball back.

Two plays later the Tigers intercepted a Wildcat pass, ending the drive.

The next time the Wildcats touched the ball they headed for paydirt. Bruce Martin caught a 35 yard pass to the Clanton 12, only to have it nullified by a penalty which ended the drive.

But the third time was a charm. The Wildcats used nearly five minutes in the scoring drive.

The ball moved quickly from Shelby County's 31 to Clanton's four yard line.

Quarterback Kenneth Jones ran for 31 yards and passed to Jeff Denny for 15 more. The drive was also aided with a 15 yard penalty.

Five plays later, Ronald Benton passed three yards to Kevin Crumpton on fourth down for the touchdown. The PAT was blocked, making the score 6-0.

Clanton made its attempt to score before the half ended, but Kenneth Jones intercepted a pass on the six yard line to kill the opportunity.

In the second half, Clanton got rolling with its second possession.

The 51 yard march was capped as Bryon Callahan received a flair pass, sidestepped defensive cornerback Kenneth Jones and cawkwalked the last 20 yards to score.

The PAT put Shelby County behind 7-6.

In the fourth quarter the Wildcats went to the air in hopes of taking the lead. However, things didn't work out that way.

On third down, Jones was intercepted by Sam Cornell who raced 60 yards downfield for a Clanton TD. The PAT made the score 14-6.

The Wildcats made their last drive toward turning the game around with six minutes left. Starting from their own 26, with tailback Ronald Benton out of the game, Shelby County called upon Jason Head.

Head burst up the middle for 19 yards. Jones passed to Denny for 16. Head bulldogged for a few inside.... It looked as if it was destiny to win for the Wildcats.

Converting third down plays into first downs, the Wildcats found themselves at Clanton's 14 yard line with fourth down and inches.

It all ended when an off-tackle run for first down was short and Clanton took over.

The Tigers had only to run off the final minute for victory. Shelby County's prudent use of timeouts however, put the pressure on the Tigers. On third down, Clanton fell on the ball with 36 seconds left, forcing them to make a final play.

The Tigers lined up in punt formation from their own 20 yard line, snapped the ball to the punter who ran out through the endzone, giving Shelby County a safety (and two points).

The final score of 14-8 was a bitter pill to swallow for the hard fighting Wildcats. Turnovers were the key. Compiled with the penalties, Shelby County had too great an obstacle to overcome.

This week the 4-1 Wildcats take a breather and look to heal the wounded and patch up the offensive and defensive units. Shelby County returns to action Oct. 1 when it will host the Thompson Warriors.

Hoover suffers tie at hand of Warriors

In a thrilling defensive struggle, Thursday, September 16, the 105 lb. Thompson Warriors stunned the Hoover Raiders with a 6-6 tie.

This Thompson team is no stranger in impressing other squads. During the past three years it has accumulated 28 victories and two division championships under the direction of Coaches Bob Thames and Wayne Bunn.

The Warriors switched to the tough Jeffco League this year and crushed Gardendale 45-0 in its opening game.

With 11 seconds left in the first half, Thompson executed a fake reverse with Brian Bunn racing in for the score. The PAT failed and Thompson led 6-0.

In the second half Hoover lighted the scoreboard with a TD run of its own. Its PAT also failed.

Both coaches had praise for their squads and credited their defensive lines for extra hard work.

Outstanding plays are attributed to Ronnie Roan, John Mashburn, Bobby Knight, Jason Douglas and Scott Dupriest.

CVA shows defensive strength

by Fred Guarino

Coosa Valley Academy may have won a moral victory Friday night if not a game.

CVA took on one of the largest academies in the state in Bessemer and held them to only nine points.

Coach Gary Franks said, "I felt like our defense did a heck of a job. The first time they got the ball they scored and we held them the rest of the night."

Franks said that the 9-0 score, posted by Bessemer was the lowest that team has notched all season.

He said of his 1-3 squad, "I hope we can have a turn around Friday. We will be playing in our class."

CVA will play Lee Academy in Auburn tomorrow.

Dove shoot boosts band

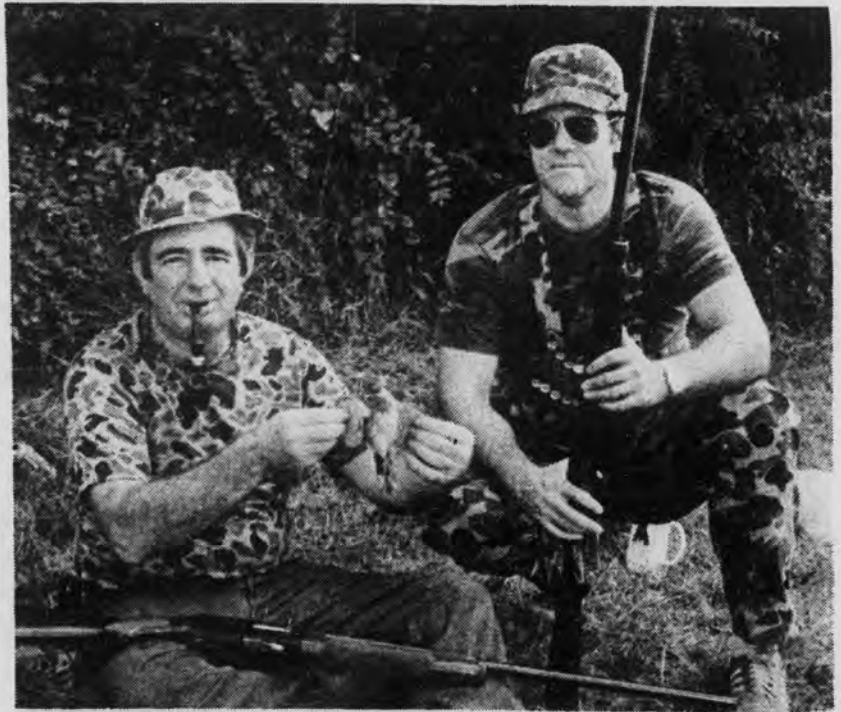

Fifty-one eager dove hunters showed up at Shelby Academy Saturday.

The event was a dove shoot on the first day of dove season to raise money for the Shelby Academy band. The shoot was sponsored by the school's band booster club of which Terry Snow is president.

According to Jack Williams, a member of the board of directors for Shelby Academy, the shoot raised $255 for the band. He stated that the money will be used for the purchase of a musical instrument.

Willard Shaw of Birmingham was the first hunter to shoot a dove at the school Saturday. He said that he had participated in a shoot sponsored by the school last year and this year he was ready for action with his shotgun.

Williams did not know how many dove were shot Saturday but he said confidently, "There were a good many of them."

Life turns upside down

Milton Smith, a management major at the University of Montevallo, tried his hand at the export business last summer.

He exported his quick moves on a basketball court to Australia, becoming the first former Falcon to play for pay.

Life as a pro "down under" turned Smith's vision of a guard's world upside down.

Where his college career had been devoted to getting the ball to the big man, the 5'10" Smith discovered that the name of the Aussie game is "Let the Americans shoot."

It was a small guard's dream... a 28.5 points per game average, a high game of 52 points.

Instead of the sometimes unappreciated task of moving the ball to the shooting stars, Smith got to baffle the Aussies with his slick ball handling and then make that "string music" so pleasing to crowds of any nationality.

"There were 12 teams in the pro league and each team could import only two Americans. We were expected to do the scoring," Smith said.

He reflected, "I remember one fast break. I got away, spotted a man all alone under the basket, made a magnificent pass play...and it bounced right off his chest. He wasn't expecting to get the ball."

Do Australians turn out for basketball?

Smith said that crowds averaged between 15,000 and 16,000. And they are really into the game.

Smith joined the Sydney Azard at mid-season, playing from late June to August 20.

He says, "A good player can earn as much as $20,000 in a five-month season. In addition, the team provides a car and an apartment and round-trip transportation."

Smith was brought into the Australian league by Larry Spicer, a 6'8" forward for the Harlem Globetrotters.

Smith said, "And the Sydney people asked him if he knew a quick guard. Well, he's a long-time friend of mine and he recommended me."

"The way the Australians look at it, if you're an American, you're supposed to score," Smith explained.

"They give you the ball all the time and they want you to score all the time. If you don't score all the time, they'll have something to say about it."

Despite the pressure, Smith played with confidence. His statistics bear that out. He shot 55 percent from the floor and 85 percent from the foul line.

He put some moves on the Aussies that are found only in a playground playbook, the kind of stuff a guy doesn't know unless he went to concrete-court kindergarten.

"I'd turn my eyes one way and make like I was gonna pass off that way and then I'd whip around the other way where they'd left open and shoot."

Smith's favorite moments were a minute and 15 seconds of stall-ball. "I was dribbling the whole time and I had 'em all running in to each other. The crowd loved it."

"A typical score was like 120-110. I never played in a game where my team didn't score 100 points," Smith said.

An American player's effectiveness is judged by how far his team gets in the playoffs. Smith and the Sydney Azard made it to the semifinals, a respectable performance in any league.

Because basketball is relatively new to Australia, there just aren't that many really good players, Smith explained. "They're lacking basketball sense, the things that you learn when you play the game a long time."

Will he go back?

That's up to the Australians but Smith says the chances look promising.

Smith expects to graduate in May with a degree in marketing and management. He already has exercised some business acumen. The money he earned in Australia went straight to his Memphis bank.

Then, he put it to work by investing with four other young men to open Tri-State Business Forms and Office Supplies in Memphis.

"We're targeting the companies that come under the government regulations requiring them to do a certain percentage of business with minorities," Smith said.

Eagles demolish Thorsby

by Fred Guarino

The Calera Eagles upped their season record to 3-1 Friday night by defeating a helpless team from Thorsby 39-0.

Coach Danny Alverson heaped praise on his squad's offense. He said, "We finally got things rolling with a 492 yard offensive effort. Edward Wilson lead the team with 13 carries for 195 yards."

Not only did Calera play well on offense but it played super on defense. Thorsby was limited to one first down for the entire game, only seven yards rushing and only ten yards passing.

The Eagles on the other hand made 18 first downs, rushed for 448 yards and passed for 44 yards.

About the only things which went against Calera were yellow flags marking 100 yards in penalties.

Scoring was as follows:

On the first Calera possession of the game, Edward Wilson ripped a 53 yard TD run. The PAT failed.

With 5:15 remaining in the first period, Wilson scored from eight yards out. Again the PAT was no good.

Striking with just 1:07 left in the first period, Wilson punched into the endzone for the third time of the night from three yards out. The PAT failed.

With just three minutes left in the first half, Calera upped its lead on a 16 yard pass play from Edwin Miltstead to Wilson in the endzone. The PAT was good.

Tony Faucett made the scoreboard blink again for the Eagles with five minutes left in the third quarter. He hit pay dirt from three yards out and this time the PAT was good.

The final points of the night came on a three yard run by Jamie Jones with eight minutes left in the game. The PAT by Ricky Posey was good.

Calera will host undefeated Jemison at home tomorrow night.

Briarwood rolls over Greystone

by Fred Guarino

The Briarwood Lions made a 200 mile trip to Mobile worthwhile Friday.

Coach Gary Fleming's team upped its season record to a perfect 3-0 by blasting Greystone 54-0.

The Lions' coach explained the bruising victory saying, "We opened up with a 60 yard touchdown run on the first play from scrimmage. From there it was one thing after another."

The score stood at 20-0 by the end of the first period, 28-0 at the half and away it went.

In the first quarter, Bric Baker scrambled the first 60 yards to pay dirt and Rob Holmes added the PAT.

Jeff Nelson took the ball in from six yards out and the PAT failed.

Baker scored the final first quarter TD from 55 yards out and Holmes added another PAT.

In the second quarter Bobby Welch scored on a five yard run and Kevin Kinerd added the two point conversion.

In the third quarter Welch ran the ball to pay dirt from one yard out and the PAT failed.

Welch later passed to Jeff Nelson for a 53 yard TD strike and the PAT was good.

Stephen Lindsey took in the final third period score running for seven yards. The PAT failed.

In the fourth quarter Nelson made the final TD of the night scoring from 20 yards out and the PAT was good.

Briarwood rushed for 199 yards and passed for 59 yards for a total offense of 258 yards. The Lions made eight first downs and only received 35 yards in penalties.

Greystone rushed for only 60 yards and passed for 70 yards for a total offense of 130 yards. The opponents were penalized 45 yards.

The Lions will face Coosa Christian in an away game tomorrow night.

Thompson Lady Warriors take 2nd

Thompson's Lady Warriors, undefeated in local volleyball play, finally met their match last weekend. Playing with nine of the state's best teams at the Lee High Invitational Tournament, THS lost a first place trophy to Huntsville High.

But that second place trophy didn't look too bad—especially when one considers the level of competition the 3-A Warriors challenged. HHS is 4-A and big. So are Grissom and Lee High.

Thompson opened Friday with a sound win over Grissom, but then dropped to a loser's bracket with an 0-15, 15-12, 9-15 loss to Huntsville.

"We were psyched out playing a big 4-A team like Huntsville," said coach Lynn Rushing. "And it was a long fight back from the loser's bracket."

In what turned out to be a four hour, 11 set marathon of Saturday volleyball, the team finetuned its set-ups and slammed back to trounce Grissom again in two sets.

The Warriors then beat 3-A Hazel Green and Lee in three set matches to earn another shot at Huntsville's girls.

"At least we stayed on the court with them the second time," said Rushing. The scores were close at 15-10, 12-15, and 12-15.

Senior Angie Harris and junior Tootie Scoggins were named to the All-Tourney Team.

Artists are encouraged to ready their palettes for entering the prestigious 1984-1985 Alabama Migratory Waterfowl Stamp Contest.

Interested artists desiring to submit an entry should contact the Alabama Department of Conservation, Game and Fish Division, 64 North Union Street, Montgomery, AL 36130 or call 1-832-6304 for information.

Minor football kicks off season

Columbiana and Calera's youth football teams met last Saturday at Calera.

The 75-lb. Bobcats kicked off Columbiana's season opener against Calera's undefeated Broncos. Leading point scorers for Calera were Brad Rollin and Angel Garcia, and Derrick Kelley and Terrance Bland scored Columbiana's 14 points.

The 85-lb. Leopards rolled to a 38-8 victory over Calera's 85-lb.

team. Perry Perkins and Donnel Underwood tallying up the points for Columbiana and John Jones carrying for Calera's 8 points. The bench warmers for Columbiana did get some experience in the final 3 minutes of the game.

Capping the night off was the 105 lbs. Calera's team devastated the Cougars of Columbiana with a 30-6 victory.

The next meet for Columbiana will be Saturday, Sept. 25 beginning at 5 p.m.

State now offers lifetime licenses

Commissioner John M. McMillan, Jr., of the Dept. of Conservation and Natural Resources says the game and fish division now offers for sale for the first time three types of permanent resident hunting and fishing licenses.

They are a lifetime resident fishing license costing $100; a lifetime resident hunting license for $200 and a lifetime resident combination hunting and fishing license costing $300.

The licenses were authorized by enacted legislation of the 1981 legislature.

All permanent licenses will be controlled and issued by the Game and Fish Division. The licenses are made of plastic, similar to credit cards. They are embossed in gold ink with the licensee's name, social security number, date of birth and the license number, according to Game and Fish Director Charles D. Kelley.

For most people the license will afford a real bargain, knowing their license fee will never be increased.

The major benefit of the program will provide the Game and Fish Division a unique opportunity to establish a special account, the funds to be invested to provide high interest income. The principal would remain intact to assure continued user funding of wildlife resources.

Alabaster citizens volunteer to serve

Alabaster citizens have shown that they want to live in a well kept city.

When a call went out for residents to serve on a newly created Beautification Board, the number of volunteers exceeded expectations.

At the Sept. 13 council meeting, Councilman Jack Reagan announced that the list of persons who had expressed willingness to serve totaled 31.

It was decided that board membership be limited to 25 with six people acting in an advisory capacity.

In the beautification ordinance which was adopted at the meeting, it says that the board shall develop and propose plans for improving the health, sanitation, safety and cleanliness of the city.

It goes on to say that this will include beautifying streets, highways, alleys, lots, yards and similar places.

According to the ordinance, the board will make recommendations to the council if enforcement is needed to clean up any area.

The board itself will not have any police powers, nor can it sue or be sued.

Terms of office will be for three years on a staggered basis beginning Oct. 1.

Residents who will serve on the board and as advisors are: Ora D. Marcus, Barbara Kidd, Jessie McDade, Robert Tolbert Sr., Elnora Lee, Rita Newell, A.B. Rush, Titus Flowers, Gene Sims, Laverne Rickert, Gladys Harper.

Betty Crim, Mary Kroell, Ethyl Mathis, Joan Stinson, Rod Hughes, Sherman Holland, Sammy Speigner Jr., Paul Cohill, Betty Fulton, Tommie Harrison, Ann Branyon, Christine Guy.

Al Hicks, Sibil Moreland, Wallace Glasscock, Chris Zeimet, Jo Cochran, Robin Haynes, Mike Tillman, Charlotte Draper.

When door opened they smelled 'pot'

Investigators said they smelled pot when the woman opened the door.

Subsequently, a Chelsea man and his wife were charged with possessing cocaine and marijuana for sale. A captain retired from the Homewood Fire Department and a 24 year-old Birmingham man were also arrested in connection with the case.

According to sheriff's investigator John Pratt, a drug warrant had been issued on Michael "Mikey" H. Brasher, 27, who lives off U.S. 280 on the Chelsea side of Oak Mountain.

Investigators knocked on Brasher's door about 3 p.m., September 2, to arrest him. His wife, Carmen, said he wasn't at home.

Pratt said as soon as she opened the door, investigators smelled pot burning. When they entered the house, Pratt said the other two suspects tried to hide marijuana cigarettes they were smoking.

Pratt said the raid netted about $800 worth of cocaine, and some two pounds of high grade marijuana valued at $1,200. According to Pratt, the drugs were bagged for sale.

Brasher later surrendered to deputies at the county jail.

James Dixon Hendon, 45, Homewood, was charged on one count of violating state drug laws. The retired fire captain is serving five years probation on other drug charges, Pratt said.

Terry Wayne Baker, 24, Birmingham, was also jailed on one drug charge. Bond for both men was set at $10,000.

Columbiana elects new judge

There were mixed emotions when the Columbiana Council was asked to vote on a new municipal judge.

The action was called for at Thursday's meeting since a new judge must be chosen by October.

Three attorneys had applied for the position now held by Columbiana attorney Conrad Fowler who did not want to be reappointed.

Council members said they were hard pressed to choose between two local attorneys. And Mayor Buck Falkner excused himself from the meeting while the voting took place since one of the men is his nephew.

With three members of the council voting for Mike Atchison, the mayor's nephew was elected to the position and will preside at the next court session Oct. 1.

One vote was cast for Joey Walden and one for Joel Watson, the only applicant with experience in that position.

A native of Columbiana, Atchison has been practicing here since 1979. He is a member of the Shelby County Bar Association, the Alabama State Bar and the Alabama Trial Lawyers Association.

Pratt said both Brashers were charged on two drug counts. Their individual bonds were set at $20,000.

Participating in the raid were chief investigator Reed Smith and investigators Bill Davenport, Richard Fox, and Pratt.

UAB dean's list

Three students from Shelby County at UAB were named to the dean's list for the summer 1982 quarter.

They are: Lynda A. DelVecchio of Helena, Elizabeth A. England of Maylene and Janice W. Fuller of Riverchase. They are in the School of Nursing.

United Way begins $9 million drive

This year's $9 million United Way campaign officially got underway recently with a kickoff luncheon at the Birmingham Hyatt Hotel. Ed Friend, a prominent attorney who is serving as this year's campaign chairman, announced from the podium that the crowd of over 600 people in attendance was the largest kickoff crowd in United Way's 60 year history.

He said, "this kind of visible interest" was a positive sign that people and companies in Jefferson, Shelby and Walker counties are committed to the success of the fund-raising drive.

Friend said the demand for services from United Way agencies is increasing sharply this year because of plant closings and layoffs. Job loss has resulted in greater stress on families, which has increased the need for a variety of counseling services to deal with those families.

The United Way helps fund 48 social service and health agencies in Shelby, Jefferson and Walker Counties.

Montevallo council hears library report

A new library for the city of Montevallo moved a step closer to reality on Sept. 13.

Anne Hamilton, chairman of the city's library board, reported to the city council that a contract for the services of an architect has been signed. She said that William Arnold will perform architectural and inspection services on the project. Arnold served the city as architect when the present city hall building was renovated in the early 1970s.

The library project involves the renovation of the former telephone company building, given to the city by Dr. Leighton C. Parnell, Jr. of Birmingham as a memorial to his father who practiced medicine in Montevallo for many years.

The possibility of a lease law for Montevallo has come under discussion again. A written request for a municipal lease law was presented to council members by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Cheatham. After a review of similar requests in past years, the proposal was referred to the public safety committee for further study.

Brenda K. Lee, counselor/director of Shelby County Youth Services and the Attention Home appeared before the council to request a subsidy for the Home. This request and others from the Humane Society and the County Health Department were referred to the city's finance committee.

In other action, council members nominated Mrs. Anne Hamilton for another term on the city's library board.

MADD seeks county members

The Jefferson County Chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Drivers (MADD) has initiated a membership drive according to Mrs. Debi Nowakowski, vice president.

"Membership is not restricted to just mothers" says Mrs. Nowakowski, "MADD is an organization of victims, survivors and concerned citizens determined to reduce the number of deaths and injuries resulting from driving under the influence."

"We encompass all types of people: young, old, male, female, mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers, any person concerned with the problem of intoxicated drivers and we extend an invitation to join us in our efforts to make our highways safe."

Shelby County residents are eligible to join. For information: 934-3334.

Insect collection

Faye Isbell shows off one of the larger specimens in the insect collection she is helping her granddaughter with for a school project. The praying mantis she holds is worth 100 extra points on the project.

Bug-loving grandma inspires children

Faye Isbell isn't your typical grandmother. She likes bugs and snakes and all types of "wiggly, swimming, crawly things."

Writing a poem for her oldest granddaughter, who didn't share her enthusiasm for nature's creations, the Westover grandma spoke of "garden spiders spinning webbs . . . grasshoppers and snails in shells."

While 14 year old Kim Jacobs has more appreciation now for the things that fascinate her grandma, "she still can't stand to kill anything," Isbell said.

For that reason, Isbell is helping her granddaughter gather the insect collection she needs for school.

And she related that her younger granddaughter, 11 year old Jennifer Dawson of Montevallo is helping her.

Jennifer's class at Montevallo Middle School was the recipient of the green snakes Isbell hatched from eggs she found in the woods.

Another live specimen that Isbell still has at home is a praying mantis. The insect resides in an aquarium, dining on live butterflies that Isbell catches.

She also has a mounted specimen, which, she points out, is worth 100 extra points on the school project.

Although she has always liked being outdoors, and has doted on gathering flowers and insects, the school project for her granddaughter has inspired a more thorough study of insect life.

Whenever she brings in an insect now, the collector looks it up in, "The Field Guide to North American Insects."

Asked where she finds the insects, Isbell replied "everywhere."

One of her best sources, she said, is the bug screen on her husband's truck. A good many can be caught at night, Isbell related, flying around the lights at service stations.

The Westover woman uses a butterfly net to capture the insects. Then she places them in jars and pops them in the freezer.

However, the sight used to upset her husband when he'd come upon them unexpectedly, Isbell remarked. "I guess he's kind of gotten used to it by now though," she laughed.

Neighborhood children love to visit her to look at her latest specimens, Isbell reported. And sometimes, she said, she takes one or two along on her walk through nearby woods, to observe and collect the wonders of nature.

Pelham city council splits decisions

by David F. Moore

The Pelham Council split the bill on a double shot of liquor requests at the Sept. 13 meeting. One request was canned, one passed.

Larry Trigg, who currently runs the T&L Cycle Shop on U.S. 31, said he wants to convert the place into the "Chism Lounge." He cited "economic survival" as the reason for changing his business.

Trigg's shop, however, is located next to the Believers' Chapel, a fact that compelled councilmen Ken Maynard and Ray Hamilton to move for a denial of the liquor license Trigg needed from the city.

Trigg pointed out that two other Pelham lounges, Fargo's and the Pour House, are located next to churches. But Mayor Burk Dunaway said there, the bar came before the altar.

"Do you think you could get the church to come down here and support you?" Hamilton asked.

Trigg said he had been unable to contact church officials. He didn't think they would object, however, since the chapel is used only on Sundays when the lounge would be closed.

The council disagreed and unanimously denied his request.

Pig 'n' Whistle owner Traywick H. Kittrell had more luck with his request for a package liquor license—but just barely.

Kittrell explained that he wanted to add a separate side entrance and a package store to his restaurant. His plans for "Boss' Package Store" meet all ABC requirements, he said.

Maynard opposed the request for the license, saying two liquor stores were enough for Pelham's size. Councilman Bob Cleveland sided with Maynard.

Councilman John Tanner said that without reasons such as next-door churches, it would be discriminatory to deny Kittrell's request. Hamilton agreed, Willard Payne threw the swing vote, and the request passed.

Tanner said it was time the city set up guidelines to regulate the sale of liquor on a non-discriminatory basis. "Until we set up such guidelines, we don't have any choice but to keep granting these requests," he said.

In any case, he added, the ABC Board can, and historically has, overturned similar denials by the Pelham Council.

In other action:

•Dunaway told businessman Eugene Bridges that paving should begin on Lee Street by the end of next week. Sewer construction there has left the street partially blocked and dusty for about a year, Bridges said.

•Dunaway told resident Skip Rockett that the city engineer was checking on smoothing out the bump on the Crosscreek Trail bridge. He agreed that a requested pedestrian bridge at the same place was probably needed, but indicated that it would be cost prohibited.

•A public Park and Recreation Board, consisting of John Lockhart, Coy South and Ed Gentry, was approved. The board will be able to seek tax-free bonds for a proposed wave pool and other such recreational facilities which might want to locate in Pelham.

•As a requested step towards historical registration, the city agreed to clean up and secure the abandoned Henson House (circa 1846) located in the city park. Dunaway, however, said the restoration committee needed to get all the "historic wine bottles" out before city crews come in to clean.

This is the poem Faye Isbell wrote for her granddaughter, to share with her the way she feels about nature's creations.

I like wiggly, swimming, crawly things
All the worms and things with wings
Garden spiders spinning webbs
Grasshoppers and snails in shells
Funny bugs of different size
Crocodiles and butterflies
Lizzards crawling everywhere
Bullbats and flying squirrels
Toads and all kinds of frogs
Stepping stones and foot logs
Cocoons and snake shed skins
Turtles with their heads pulled in
A little furry field mouse
And carrot baited rabbit traps
Dirt daubers, wasp and hornets
Even last years bird nests.

Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds so dear
Precious memories linger everyday Remembrances keeps him near
In our hearts
Your memory lingers
Sweetly, tender, fond and true
There is not a day dear Daddy
That we do not think of you Wife Bertha

Sons, Jimmy and Bobby and grandchildren

In loving memory of our son and father, Larry Pemberton who left us 4 years ago, Sept. 24, 1978.
There is no night without a dawn
No winter without a spring
And beyond death's dark horizon
Our hearts once more will sing
For those who leave us for awhile
Have only gone away
Out of restlessness, Care worn world
Into a "Brighter Day"
Where there will be no partings
And time is not counted by years.
Where there are no trials or troubles
No worries, no cares and no tears

Armstrong, Archer, Glasscox claim victory in runoff races

Armstrong, Archer and Glasscox were the favorites of Shelby County's voters Tuesday in the Democratic runoff primary.

The tally for Superintendent of Education saw Valley School principal Dr. Norma Rogers defeated by Thompson High assistant principal Ellie Glasscox by an unofficial vote of 8,611 to 6,759.

Countywide voting for District 4 of the County Commission resulted in Leon Archer defeating the incumbent, longtime political figure J. Alpha Lowe. Archer picked up strength in Beat 12, in the runoff, overcoming the lead Lowe had there in the earlier primary.

The unofficial tally: Lowe 6,881; Archer 7,383. The one local runoff race to cross county lines this time was for Judge of the 18th Judicial Circuit.

Although judgeship elections have been rarely contested in the past, this year saw the incumbent draw two challengers. Wayne Causey, the third place finisher on September 7, did not publicly endorse either of his rivals.

In a hotly contested race, Judge Robert Armstrong, the incumbent, polled 8,861 votes in Shelby County, and Judge Eason Mitchell polled 6,877.

The results in the other counties of the circuit were not enough to close the gap for Mitchell, although he carried both Coosa and Clay Counties. The unofficial total in Coosa County, gave 2,122 votes to Mitchell and 986 to Armstrong.

In Clay County Mitchell drew 2,286 votes to Armstrong's 2,229.

Nominations for four local offices and elections to seven party offices were made by Shelby County voters on September 7. The selection process for one office, Probate Judge, was completed the following week when C. P. "Red" Walker withdrew. The three remaining local races were decided Tuesday.

No GOP party offices remained in doubt after September 7, and no Republicans of any description appeared on Tuesday's ballot. GOP adherents could vote on the amendments, though, and some may have "crossed over" and voted to nominate Democrats.

In the four statewide nomination contests, Shelby County preferred George McMillan over George Wallace for governor. The total was 8,812 for McMillan; 6,806 for Wallace.

Jan Cook polled 7,440 Shelby County votes for State Auditor, while Kay Ivey collected 6,284 votes here.

Associate Justice of the Alabama Supreme Court, in place 3, Oscar W. Adams Jr., garnered 6,836 votes here, while challenger Jim Zeigler came out ahead with 6,915.

The race for State Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries saw Albert McDonald lead Bubba Trotman locally, 8,024 votes to 5,838.

Statewide totals often differ from those of Shelby County, and may reverse the results.

A series of amendments to the state constitution was also voted on.

Since none of them applied to Shelby County or had statewide application, they aroused very little interest here.

SMC offers to buy Montevallo building

Shelby Medical center is seeking office space for doctors in Montevallo and North Shelby County.

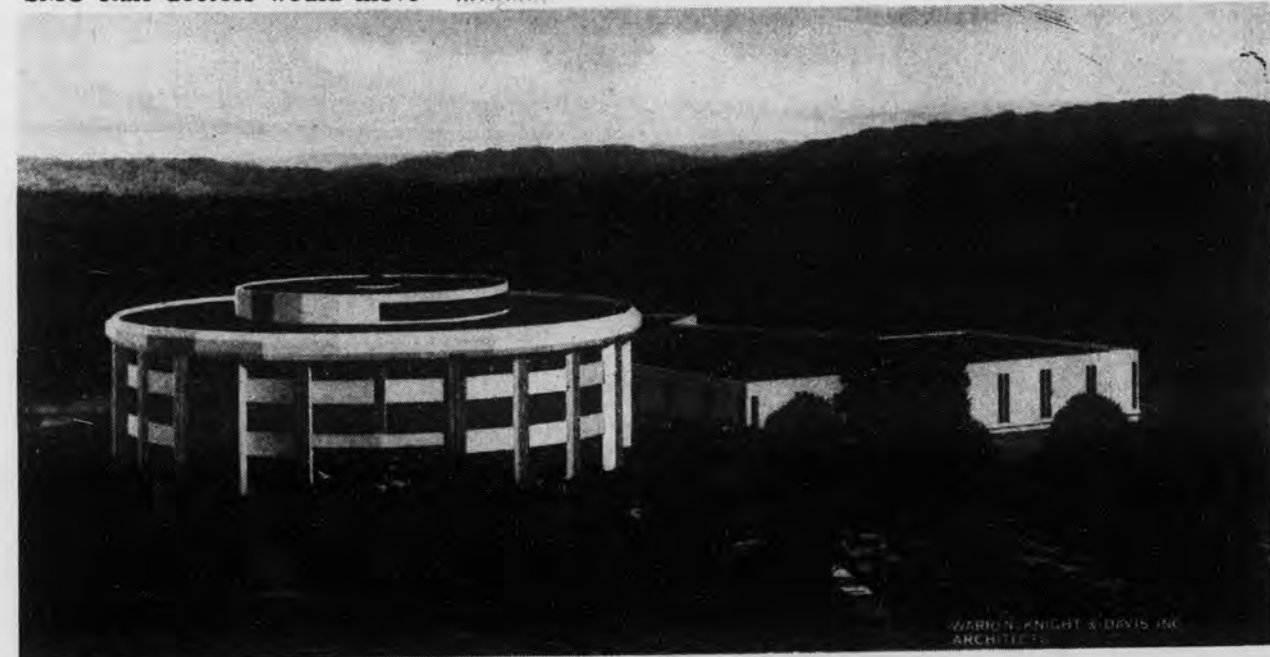

Tuesday night the hospital board approved an offer of $300,000 for the Medical Arts Building on Salem Road at Highway 119 in Montevallo. The building is currently owned and staffed by Montevallo doctors and dentists. The offer was to be officially transmitted to them Wednesday.

If the offer is accepted, future SMC staff doctors would move into the office to increase area medical service while procuring additional patient referrals.

Since a state agency has, for now, turned down all proposed hospitals in North Shelby, SMC is taking preliminary steps toward building a permanent doctor's office for its 15 acres on US 280.

Board chairman C. E. Carter said that any such office SMC might build there would be designed to fit in as part of the main floor of a possible future hospital.

WMU

The Woman's Missionary Union is beginning construction on its new 140,000 square-foot national headquarters in Shelby County. The round three story building will house about 130 employees, and is targeted for completion in early 1984. (Additional picture on page 3.)

WMU groundbreaking brought on a large gathering of the faithful

They came by bus. They came by car. They came from as far as California, Michigan and Maryland.

They came more than 300 strong to the top of New Hope Mountain to dedicate the future office site of the Woman's Missionary Union.

The WMU is an auxiliary of the Southern Baptist Convention, and representatives from at least 21 states attended the dedication ceremony last Thursday afternoon.

The round, three-story office with its adjacent warehouse area, is the newest of the released plans for a wave of development washing east from Birmingham along the U.S. 280 corridor and into Shelby County. The center is scheduled for completion in the first half of 1984.

Thursday's dedication was held inside the circular clearing for the office. The clearing was marked off by 10-foot studs representing the state conventions, and connected with colorful ribbons and topped with balloons.

Music was provided by the Samford University Band and included a rendition of the "Ode to Joy" from the fourth movement of Beethoven's 9th Symphony.

Guest speakers at the dedication did not fail to miss the point that an office is being built on New Hope Mountain.

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help," executive director Carolyn Weatherford said, quoting from the Psalms. "We will build a signal of faith here to all the world."

"The WMU looked for a mountain when we looked for a new location," she said. "Our faith will be able to move this mountain and all the other mountains (that present any problems)."

Muffler

A sound muffler wall goes up around fans at the University of Montevallo's new wood-fueled steam plant boiler. Acoustical engineers called in by the University recommended erecting the concrete block wall to muffle the blower sounds. The action was taken after some area residents became concerned about noise from the blowers.

UM baffles blower for new boiler system

The University of Montevallo is erecting a concrete-block wall around blowers in its new wood-burning boiler system to muffle sounds.

University officials decided to erect the wall after acoustical engineers recommended the project. The engineers were called in to evaluate sound levels from the blower units after several residents of the Cardinal Crest area complained.

Physical Plant director

Holland Floyd said the engineers will test the sound levels again when the walls are erected. They will also return periodically to the area to take readings.

The new wood-burning boiler has been used by the University now for a week (as of Thursday, Sept. 23). Floyd estimates that the University will save approximately 30 percent by burning wood byproducts compared to the equivalent amount of natural gas.

Valley school pleads for help

Valley PTO member Jeannie Harper tried to impress members of the Shelby County Board of Education with the urgency of constructing an activities building at the school.

Making a presentation at Thursday's board meeting, the school's legislative representative said she hoped the request could be included in this year's budget.

But with a less than bright financial picture forecast for the upcoming year, the board would make no commitment.

Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles told the Valley delegation who were present, that Calera and Columbiana were also listed on a critical needs list for such facilities.

He noted that there was no order of priority on the construction, but indicated that with diminishing finances, priorities might have to be set.

Although Valley has 20.4% of the elementary school population in the county, Harper pointed out that the North Shelby school has only received 2.9% of capital outlay funds.

Calling attention to the activities building being included in the construction of the new Inverness Elementary School, Harper remarked that Valley should have comparable facilities.

It was the intent of Valley's PTO to contribute labor and funds toward the construction of a building, Harper reported.

She said that $9,000 had been placed in the proposed budget for the school's music program this year and that $5,600 was already in the P.E. fund.

At the present time, enrichment classes lasting 30 minutes are held in the school cafeteria. Valley trustee Al Knight, who is running for a seat on the board of education, also chimed in on the request for the building.

"We're pleading for a place this year," he stressed, "to provide the proper surroundings for a music program which is already in place."

Tough act

Montevallo firefighters Ronnie Argo and Tony Thrash make a practice run through the obstacle course to get ready for a firemen's competition Saturday. Can you guess who's doing the balancing act? See story page 6.

"We hear you," responded board chairman Barbara Whitman, "but we're in no position to address your request."

She said that the board's goal is "to provide adequate permanent classroom space for all students in the county."

Montevallo

passes budget

A city of Montevallo general fund budget of $557,500 has been adopted for fiscal 1982-83. The fiscal year begins tomorrow, October 1.

The budget, largest in the city's history, was adopted Monday night during the city council's regularly scheduled meeting and is only 3 percent larger than last year's budget.

The new budget calls for no personnel raises. "We've figured it right down to the last penny," said finance committee chairman J.A. Brown. "We have a tight budget and there will be no extra services," he continued. "In fact we may have to curtail some services."

"If we have to cut," commented Mayor Ralph Sears, "we'll cut materials and supplies, not personnel." Sears said in spite of the belt tightening, the '82-'83 budget is the largest in the city's history.

The city's water board and gas system have separate budgets.

Cancer drive is success; county passes its goal

The Shelby County Chapter of the American Cancer Society has raised $18,060, which is 120 percent of the Chapter's 1982 Fund Raising Crusade. Don Murphy, Shelby County chapter president, made the announcement Thursday after a report meeting by Crusade Chairman, Norma Rogers. Mrs. Rogers made particular note of the work done by Charles Martin, committee chairman for the Walter Hagan Golf Tournament, which raised over $4,000 and put the fund raising project over the top. Also noted by Rogers was Tom Lloyd, county chairman for residential gifts; and Mary Kroell and Ira F. Barrett - co-chairperson for cook book sales. Ken Williams, Pelham businessman and cancer society state board member stated, "If every county chapter throughout the state would respond as the private and business community of Shelby County has, it would be a great accomplishment for the people of Alabama."

Employees' rep irked by commission position

by Fred Guarino

What began as a question from county employees representative Kenneth Walton turned into a dispute during Monday's county commission meeting.

Walton asked why longevity bonuses were approved for up to only 20 years of service when they were requested for 35 years?

In the past, county employees received a small increase in their pay, based on their years of service. Law enforcement personnel, on the other hand, received a bonus every Christmas which was raised $100 for every five years of service up to 20 years.

As county employees usually work longer than 20 years, they wanted an identical bonus system as that of law enforcement to replace their longevity pay. But, they wanted it to carry through 35 years.

The new system was adopted last January 25.

Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden told Walton, "The bonus request was the same as for the sheriff's department. That is what we did."

When Walton objected to Snowden's understanding of the request, Snowden said that the cutoff at 20 years was "what we kept hearing."

Walton retaliated, "I don't know where you heard that. I don't think you heard that from our committee."

Commissioner Jake Morris chipped in, "The general feeling I heard was you wanted to be like those employees in law enforcement."

Walton asked him, "Do you disregard what we put on paper?"

When Morris responded, "No", Walton said, "General talk bothers me. If you are going to listen to that I feel our committee is meeting for nothing."

Commissioner Don Murphy said that the county did what it did because it had to consider the budget.

Snowden said, "It is a start anyway. Maybe they (employees) are telling you one thing and your committee something else or your committee is making up their minds for them."

Commissioner Harold Davenport stated that as the county has an employees' committee it should listen to its request.

With the matter set aside, Walton asked the commission to consider an across the board $50 bi-weekly raise for employees in its upcoming budget.

Shelby County cancer officers gather for awards presentation by Ken L. Williams, right, state board member. Receiving the award is Crusade chairman, Norma Rogers. Serving on the project

Administrator's search leads to SMC lawsuit

A lawsuit against Shelby Medical Center and its administrator, Roland Bradford was filed in Circuit Court last week.

C.R. Covington, Jr. brought the civil action individually and as administrator of the estate of his late wife, Helen S. Covington. Mrs. Covington was an employee in the hospital's dietary department.

The complaint notes that she was killed in an automobile accident on June 3 and that on June 4, Bradford, "searched the place where (Mrs. Covington) stored her personal and private belongings without permission and contrary to the instructions of (Mr. Covington). It alleges that Bradford trespassed and invaded the privacy of the Covingtons.

Covington seeks general damages in the amount of $1,000 and punitive damages in the amount of $10,000.

The Woman's Missionary Union prepared an impressive ceremony on New Hope Mountain to dedicate the site for its new national headquarters. The WMU is auxiliary to the Southern Baptist Convention. More than 300 people from as far as the West Coast attended the dedication service last Thursday on U.S. 280. Besides scripture

Shots knock out Harpersville substation

by David F. Moore

An arrest warrant was issued Tuesday after a week-long investigation into the sabotage shooting of Alabama Power Company's Harpersville substation.

The warrant named a power company employee at the Gaston Steam Plant in Wilsonville. Shelby County Sheriff's deputies were expected to make the arrest Tuesday evening after the Reporter's news deadline.

Company officials and law enforcers would not release the name of the suspect until after the arrest was made.

A second arrest is also expected in connection with the September 22 shooting, according to APC media relations manager Ed Crosby.

Crosby said the steam plant employee's job classification was represented by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, but he did not know if the suspect was a union member.

For the past five weeks, 3,900 IBEW workers at the company have been on strike over a contract renewal. Strikers and APC officials are not currently negotiating.

"At this point, we don't have any way of knowing if (the arrest) is connected with the strike," Crosby said Tuesday afternoon when contacted by phone in Birmingham.

Crosby said the shooting caused $10,000 in damages. The employee is accused of first degree criminal mischief, a felony.

The substation is located on highway 62 about two miles north of U.S. 280.

Crosby said the shooting caused the substation fuses to explode, starting a fire in the transformer cooling oil. The explosion knocked out electrical service for about 2,000 customers.

The racket awoke Jimmy Gates, who lives about 300 yards from the substation. His power was out, his clock dead at 2:14 a.m.

"To start with, I didn't know if they'd thrown dynamite or what," said Gates, who quickly notified the sheriff's department. "It (the explosion) sounded like a locomotive coming through the field at me. I don't know whether the shots woke me or the explosion."

"When I looked out the window and saw it burning, I figured, 'Well, they done it again.'"

Gates said someone took three or four shots at the same substation about 5:15 a.m., Thursday, September 16. Those shots, he said, came from a "big" rifle.

Crosby later verified the first shooting, saying it caused minor damage.

Shortly after officials arrived on the scene, Deputy Phillip Walker found two spent 30.06 cartridges near the substation.

Alabama Power offered a $5,000 reward to any citizen offering information leading to an arrest and conviction in the case. Crosby said the reward is standard for incidents of sabotage against the company.

Crosby said power was rerouted to most of the 2,000 customers within two hours of Wednesday's explosion.

However, Harpersville Police Chief Aubrey Perrigin said power was not restored to the town's traffic light until about 8:15 a.m.

Perrigin, who had to direct traffic, said the outage nearly caused a jam because so many people were late to work from their clocks stopping.

The incident was investigated by APC's internal investigators, The Alabama Bureau of Investigation, Perrigin, deputy investigator Richard Fox, and Vincent Police Chief George Humphries.

Trailers draw protest

Is a rental trailer park going up in the residential section of Wilsonville?

About 20 residents of Valentine Circle believe there is and they appeared before town council Monday night to protest it.

Mayor Sherrell McClure told the residents that he would check the matter out. The person believed to be responsible for the trailer park is Bill Schaffner, reportedly of Hueytown.

In other action:

The council agreed to put up curbs in front of the business section on north Main Street.

The hiring of a new city clerk, Edith Hallmark of Harpersville, was approved. She will begin working for the town in two weeks and will replace former city clerk Margaret Ray. Kathryn Carey is serving as acting city clerk.

The council also agreed to purchase an ad in the Shelby County High School annual.

The Shelby County Commission will begin payroll deductions for employees who are participating in a life insurance and saving plan.

J. Barrett of Firemen's Fund Insurance appeared before the commission Monday to request that the deduction begins for those enrolled. He stated that his company has promised coverage for the employees for 100 days before the first payments are made.

The commission approved the deductions to begin in one month.

LIQUOR

Commissioners tabled two liquor license requests. Tabled were a request for Vines Package Store on Highway 25 in Vandiver and Town and Country Lounge on Highway 25, west of Calera.

The requests are being tabled until a recommendation from Sheriff Buddy Glasgow is submitted.

Approved was a change in name on the liquor license of VFW Post 4921 to Good Times Club Inc.

Commissioner Harold Davenport stated that the club has been open for six months without trouble and the request is for a change of name only.

CABLE

Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden requested commissioners Don Murphy and Jake Morris to look into cablevision complaints voiced by the people of Southern Pines. They were reportedly left out of service provided by Mountain Brook Cable Vision.

SHERIFF DEPARTMENT

Sheriff's Department Chief Deputy James Jones was approved $750 in expenses to attend an 11 week FBI school. The school was attended by Sheriff Glasgow in 1976.

In another sheriff's department matter, Jones was given approval to include a new computer phone service in the sheriff's department budget request.

Jones said that South Central Bell guarantees a basic rate for six years and that over the time, the sheriff's department can save $13,000 on phone expenses.

He also said that the computer service will provide additional trunk lines for the main office which will prevent the tying up of phones for internal communications during disasters.

BIDS

In other matters, the commission accepted bids from Joe Money Machinery and Tarrant Tractor for parts and repair of a dozer.

ROADS

The commission agreed to ask Gulf States Paper Company to reopen Brown Acres Road near Moore Town.

While former Circuit Judge James Sharbutt did not declare the road public in a past decree he called it an open road which cannot be closed.

The road is located between Columbiana and Saginaw.

TAX

A ten year tax exemption request was approved for Shelby Steel Fabrication in Vincent for machinery, over the objection of Murphy.

The company is requesting the exemption to carry through until the equipment which was purchased in 1979 is ten years old. According to the county attorney, a recently passed law allows for such exemptions on equipment already purchased.

The motion to approve the exemption was passed with the understanding that the county attorney would check out the legality of it.

Murphy voted 'no' because he made a motion at the last meeting that such a request should be made in time for the commission to study it before taking action.

Snowden said that the request was actually made in August but, the letter did not arrive at the courthouse until Monday's meeting.

Murphy indicated that in approving the request from Shelby Steel Fabrication, the county could be opening a can of worms. He said, "Every time someone purchases a new piece of equipment, they could come to the commission for a tax exemption."

HONOR

In recognition of Fay Quick, who is retiring as tax collector after 15 years, a resolution was approved honoring her.

The commission set October 10 as Fay Quick Day in Shelby County. A tea will be held to honor her in the Community Services Building.

Commissioners agreed to meet Monday for budget hearings.

The speed limit on Highway 22 in Dogwood will be reduced to 30 miles per hour from the crest of the hill to the intersection of County Road 221 in the east bound lane.

The road leading to the old cemetery near Shelby will be opened. The commission agreed, upon the advice of the county attorney, to require the road be opened until an alternate route can be provided by George Burton.

Murphy reported that he has received compliments over the commission's placing of a red light at the intersection of Valleydale and Caldwell Mill Road.

The county attorney reported that a suit has been filed to stop further development of the Sweet Alice Industrial Park.

The Shelby County Board of Registrars will be at Valley Elementary School on October 12 from 4-8 p.m.

The purpose of the booth is to register voters who live in Shelby County or to re-identify the voters.

County may help

The Shelby County Commission will consider financial assistance for the Day Treatment Program for youths.

The program provides educational instruction for youngsters who have been in trouble with the law and who otherwise would not be able to attend school.

District Court Judge Patti Smith told the commission, Monday, that the program will move from Columbiana to the building used by the Shelby County Mental Health Center in Siluria in October. While CETA will help the program with renovation of the building, Smith asked commissioners to consider county support for the rent.

Smith explained that the move was made necessary because the much appreciated house provided by the City of Columbiana was just too small. She reported that the house has only five rooms to house 18 children and eight staff members.

She said that rent for the new location is expected to be $300 per month, which she called reasonable.

The district court judge said of the program, "I think we are doing some really wonderful things, and I appreciate the support of the county commission."

She told the commission that CETA has come through with $80,000 for the program and that the board of education is providing $70,000 worth of academic support. She called the situation a strange marriage between the schools and the courts.

Smith said that the rent money will not be needed until October when the move to Siluria takes place.

Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden instructed Smith to submit a request in writing so that the matter might be considered when the budget is made.

Scrambled eggs

by Bert Seaman

Back in grandma's day, an item left behind by an absent minded child who had gone visiting might be returned by horse and buggy.

When mother had her family, a forgotten piece of clothing or something else deemed to be essential might be returned by train or car.

Since my dad was a railroad conductor, it was an easy matter to transport the forgotten item to the station and hand it over to him.

If that didn't work out, I always enjoyed making a return trip to retrieve the item in our humongous old Studebaker.

However, in this day and time, transportation has advanced so rapidly that my granddaughter recently had some forgotten items returned by helicopter.

But I must admit that still isn't a commonplace occurrence.

The reason for the return by air of a bottle of medicine, which wasn't a matter of life and death, and a favorite stuffed animal, somewhat more essential, was to give the pilot some needed flying time.

Since my granddaughter's daddy is working toward his helicopter license, he decided to kill two birds with one stone.

The Alabama Scene

by Bob Ingram

Here we go again....I am writing this column before the run-off election, but you are reading it after the election. I can safely say, "Congratulations George _____", on winning the gubernatorial run-off, but you will have to fill in the blank.

Whoever the next governor of Alabama turns out to be...George, George or Emory...he will inherit a major financial headache in state government.

As the state enters a new fiscal year this week it is already a certainty that both the general fund and the special education trust fund will be forced into proration.

Why, you ask? For the very simple reason that the Legislature appropriated more money than existing taxes will produce. The lawmakers can't say they weren't warned. A few months back when the legislators were voting big pay raises for the teachers, the state employees, the judges, they were told that what they were doing could lead to proration.

But with an election coming up, and the pressure groups turning the screws, the lawmakers couldn't say no.

Still later, Gov. Fob James tried to re-structure the fat retirement systems for teachers and state employees. It would have saved the state millions of dollars and perhaps avoided proration. Again the pressure groups flexed their muscles and the plan was rejected.

And while James was indeed trying in some areas to hold down spending, his hands are not entirely clean in regard to the financial crisis. He released several millions of dollars in conditional appropriations--money that is to be released only if the condition of the treasury justified it. It didn't.

Who will be the losers in this affair? Not those who got the big pay raises--salaries are not prorated. The losers, as usual, will be those who receive the services provided by the state--the taxpayers (and their school children).

Odds and Ends--The happiest guy in Alabama? Bill Baxley, who with the only minor party opposition in November, is a lead pipe cinch to be the next lieutenant governor. There is nothing quite so satisfying to a politician as to have your life-long, arch political enemies coming to see you, hat in hand, begging for forgiveness. That's what's happening to Baxley right now. He's loving every minute of it...

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

If you were half blind, you would've thought it was a bunch of blackbirds coming over, or another bunch already there, and another bunch passing on. But we weren't blind, Amy and I, and we knew it was middle-class America having a ball. That was the World's Fair.

Once, since everybody talked about how good it was, we lined up to see the China exhibit. From the court house, if it had been there, the line, four deep, would reach past the Baptist Church.

You could get a small hamburger and a middle size coke for $2.25. Another guy, who got cheese on his, put up another forty cents. But they were sort of warm, the hamburgers were, a cross between stagnant water and spilled milk. And the cokes, they were just cold enough to let you know they weren't coffee.

We went to the circus, a miniature circus, with miniature animals from Barnum-Bailey and Ringling Brothers, and all the other stuff that makes a circus enjoyable. They had it all, looking enough like the real thing to be real, but everything about the size of cigar butts.

They had the big horses from The Budweiser Company, all lined up in three stalls, with enough hay in there to feed a dairy.

One day, at 11 o'clock, we lined up to see another exhibit. It was our third one for the morning. The weather was 95 in the sun, but nobody seemed to mind. When we got inside at 11:37 o'clock it was 101 in the sun. I was as hot as a banty hen laying a domineer egg in a wool basket.

I didn't know why then, and I still can't make it out, but we spent every morning going down hill and every afternoon, after walking a hundred miles, climbing back up.

One place had a new kind of milk display. It came in several flavors and was supposed to stay fresh for days and days without refrigeration. They didn't say whether the cow had anything to do with it, and surely she did. At the very beginning, before those extra smart folks began piddling with it.

The weather was ideal. The man mentioned rain one morning, down around Havana, but not another time. It was hot, but no one seemed to mind. Everybody dressed for comfort. And not, as one old biddie decided, for pride.

We enjoyed it. Every minute of it. Just two little parts of middle-class America, having one tremendous time.

Senate contest heard for District 17 today

The fate of Lucile White's candidacy for the Alabama Senate from District 17 will be decided at 10 a.m. today. She defeated Doug Cook for the Democratic nomination in the September 7 primary. But a question on whether she met the residency requirements for the position is being contested.

District 17 includes a large section of northwest Shelby County, and parts of south Jefferson. The Republican nominee for the seat is Spencer Bacchus.

The hearing will be at the Commerce Center.

Delinquent daddies begin to pay better

Child support collections for children receiving welfare benefits are up for the third quarter of the fiscal year in Shelby County.

According to the State Department of Pensions and Security, Shelby County's collections increased from the quarter ending March 30, to the quarter ending June 6, by 44 percent.

The increase represents a climb from collections of $11,714 to $15,865.86 in the third quarter. The county collected an average of $20.82 per child, which is an increase of $6.45 per child.

"Obviously, I am pleased," said Shelby County assistant district attorney Robert McGregor, concerning the increase. Among his duties is the collection of child support for children receiving welfare benefits in Shelby County.

He said, "I think it is a result of gaining experience on my part and the system we adopted of monitoring collections."

McGregor explained that his office now gets a person into court the first time he misses a child support payment. He added that Judge Robert Teel has been very judicious in listening to excuses for why payments have not been made and in sentencing people to jail for five days when they don't have a good reason.

He stated that the punishment is not of the kind that would prevent a person from working but a punishment for a short period of time which quickly puts the person back out where he can work.

McGregor said, "If a person can't miss work, the judge sentences him to jail on weekends."

The results of this policy have been very good. He said, "One of our lost causes now has a job where he can pay $200 per month; $100 current support and $100 on arrears."

However, McGregor pointed out that the economy in Shelby County is not good and he is keeping his fingers crossed on collections.

He commented that while a

Calera criticized

An open letter to the Citizens of Calera:

This week at Calera's council meeting, the natural gas rate increase was discussed: the increase of 18 percent will become effective in November. Southern Natural Gas passed on to Calera a 14 percent price hike, which Calera passed on to its people, but as if the 14 percent hike wasn't bad enough, the city also passed on to its customers, 4 percent more for a total of 18 percent hike.

This is the first time in 25 years a maintenance cost has been passed on to the consumers of natural gas in the City of Calera to my knowledge. It has always been a standard procedure that the profit incurred by the department was so set for upkeep and maintenance to operate the system. According to this year's budget of close to $1 million, it is a lot more than the past years. It was less than $500,000 in 1980, as a matter of fact a lot less! There was enough left that Calera could have had three paid firemen.

Over the past two years for a budget to be more than double, it seems to me that with all the police cars and expenses to operate, it seems like we are over-paying somebody.

Has the crime rate in Calera increased so much under this present mayor and council, that they really need seven policemen to keep it under control, even though they do not go outside the city limits anymore. With a police chief whose salary almost doubles the past police chiefs.

In looking over the past year's budget, the town has $40,000 to purchase a piece of property for a new city hall, that in my opinion we do not need, due to the fact the annexation did not pass. The town has not outgrown its city hall. At the council meetings that I have been able to attend, I have only seen the council chamber, one time, when it could not accommodate all the people. Also the sidewalk that was constructed the past year for wheelchair use across the railroad tracks on Highway 31, is more dangerous now than trying to cross it the way it was, due to the fact even if the people are able to maneuver their wheelchairs upon it, if they went too close to the edge, they would fall off and be thrown in front of an oncoming car. So in my opinion this too, was a total waste of city money.

At a recent auction held by the city, of city equipment, I have never seen so much new equipment that was so misused! A new tractor purchased this last year for cutting right of ways, was totally inoperable.

As Mr. Watts, put it in the last council meeting, the people of Calera benefitted due to the hard work of the men and the accomplishments of the Fire Dept. for lower rates, in order for the City of Calera to improve on its ratings and maintain its high standard to all Calera citizens, we need to continue to upgrade its facilities.

Where are all the new stores? Where is the new growth? Where are all the new jobs? All this was promised two years ago. The only thing I've seen in the past two years have been, no fire, police, or rescue outside the city limits, and higher rates on everything. Even still all the counties as well as smaller towns near us have cable tv, but where did ours go astray? OR was it decided, we didn't need to watch what was shown on cable.

Come to the Council meetings, Calera citizens. Let's find out what is going on!

Wilsonville couple leads ping-pong life

by David F. Moore
 Novelist Tom Wolfe said you can never go home.
 But Bill Perry, his wife Iris, and their ping-pong lifestyle, don't necessarily agree with Mr. Wolfe.
 After all, Wilsonville's only

BILL PERRY

about a 1,700 mile flight from Panama City, Panama—not too far for a jet age ping-pong ball bounce.

Here's the bounce, so far: Perry, now 55, moved with his parents from Barber County to Wilsonville when he was young. He attended Wilsonville Elementary, graduated from Shelby County High in 1946, then joined the navy to see the world aboard a destroyer.

One year later he first saw the Panama Canal during a brief passage from ocean to ocean. It would be 13 years before he was to move there to live for the first time.

Ping: Following his four-year navy stint, Perry made the first of many returns to Wilsonville. A short time later he met Iris Chandler, a student at Alabama College in Montevallo. The couple married in 1950 and lived four years in Wilsonville before moving to Huntsville.

In 1957, the Perrys moved back to Wilsonville with their son, Joel, and Bill worked construction on the steam plant.

When the job ran out, the family moved to Arkansas where Bill helped build missile silos.

Pong: But something green began cropping up between their toes, so the Perrys packed off to Panama in 1960. Bill took a job drilling and blasting on a project to widen the Panama Canal 200 feet through the Galliard Cut.

During their two-year stay, the Perrys developed a fondness for the people and land of Panama. They would return—coincidentally in 13 years—but first it was time to ping-pong back to Wilsonville again.

Ping: This time Perry took a road construction job four-laning Columbiana Road in south Jefferson County.

Wilsonville was still home, but home was still a place to leave. The Perrys packed up again when Bill landed a mountain blasting job for a highway project near Madisonville, Kentucky. One road job lead to another and the Perrys later moved back to Alabama, this time to Oneonta.

Pong: From Oneonta, the Perrys moved home—Wilsonville—again.

"We'd had quite a bit of traveling, so we wanted to stay around for a while," Perry says. So he took a truck route out of Sylacauga, hauling beer and Dixie Color comic strips.

"A while" lasted six years. But in 1975, Perry heard of a job opening from a friend in Panama.

Ping: Off again.

So now Perry is captain of a 736-ton platform boat, drilling and blasting in the Panama Canal. Iris is a civilian employee keeping computerized tabs on Army supplies. Joel, now 28, studies art at Panama Canal College.

Remarkably, the Perrys have managed to stay put now for about seven years.

"We're at that age where we have to settle down—some," Bill grins.

"Iris and I like traveling. We're just not content to stay in one place for too long," he says. "But now we're hoping to stay in Panama another six and half years until we retire."

"It's a very beautiful country. When the Panama Canal Treaty passed in 1979, they had a few riots, but the transition has been very smooth.

"The Panamanians are good people. We have friends there, and we like it," he continues. "But somehow it's different from the people you grew up with, went to school with, and associated with all your life."

Pong: The Perrys get two months vacation per year, and usually spend at least part of it visiting home in Wilsonville.

They're "home" now until October 8. But with Iris' mother in a Huntsville hospital, and Bill's mother recuperating from 11 days at Shelby Medical Center, this trip home has a different tone from some of their others.

Perry says home—Wilsonville—has changed very little over the years. And that's comforting. His 82-year old father, Arlin Perry, still lends a hand at Bolton's cotton gin.

Ping? When the Perrys retire, they may return to Wilsonville semi-permanently.

"There's still a lot to see," Perry says. "And no one enjoys (traveling) any better than my wife and I."

"But regardless of where we go, Wilsonville is still home."

Teachers ask input

Conceding that the new attendance policy being implemented in the Shelby County school system has merit, the president of the SCEA contends that teacher input is needed.

After the plan and initial results were presented at Thursday's Board of Education meeting by Pelham Principal Dr. Ed Belue, Shelby County Education Association (SCEA) head Tommie Harrison pointed out the need for simplifying the process.

Since teachers must implement the policy, Harrison made the point that it added another demand on their already limited time.

She suggested that a form be made up for recording information.

In his report, Belue, who headed the attendance policy committee, said attendance had increased from this time last year in 14 schools with a slight decline recorded in eight.

The number of suspensions, he related, had been cut dramatically. In November 1981, 74 suspensions were listed while there were only 20 recorded in September.

Parents mainly approved the board's plan, Belue said.

Among the key points in the plan is tracking and reporting absences and early notification of parents before a serious problem develops.

During his report on money matters, the board's financial coordinator Jim Davis had some good news to impart.

He said that premium payments for insurance on structures put up by school booster clubs would be less than anticipated.

Placing the value of the buildings, which include press boxes and concession stands, at $404,900, and the value of the contents at $37,000, Davis reported the premium payment would amount to $4,000 annually.

The board found that figure to their liking and approved the payment, which will be added to the $59,000 premium already okayed for other school properties.

Because of the recent thefts of air conditioning units at Thompson Middle School, the board agreed that the situation be considered an emergency.

That allows the purchase and installation of a security alarm system without taking bids.

Davis gave the price of the system from Alarm and Security Contractors as $2,175.

In order to draw attention to their organization and the upcoming classes that will be offered, members of the Shelby County Amateur Radio Club set up operations at the Pelham Shopping Mall Saturday. The instruction that will enable interested individuals to obtain an amateur radio license (Ham), will begin Oct. 26.

Classes will be held in the new American Red Cross center on Hwy. 31 in Alabaster.

Parade kicks off day's activities

Anyone who has ever tried to negotiate an obstacle course wearing full firefighting attire will appreciate Saturday's competition in Montevallo.

A parade at 10 a.m. will kick off the day's activities calling attention to Fire Prevention Week. Fireman from various areas will try to outdo each other in competitive events during the afternoon.

Running the obstacle course in the cumbersome outfits will test the mettle of firemen in one contest, while laying hose and a bucket brigade will also reveal which department has the speediest members.

During the evening hours, Mack Rice and the Riverbottom band will provide music for a street dance in the Alabama Power Company parking lot.

Open House will be held at the fire department throughout the day.

Martha Ferguson, president of Cahaba Title, Inc., and her husband, J.D. Ferguson, were recently rewarded with a trip to Quebec.

They were guests of Safeco Insurance Company as a result of Cahaba Title's exceptional performance.

Mrs. Ferguson was also elected as Alabama representative to the board of directors of the Dixieland Title Association at a recent convention at Calloway Gardens.

DID YOU KNOW?

Since 1970, Alabama Power has spent over $366.7 million for environmental protection.

That's about $370 per customer over the last twelve years. Protecting the environment is an important—but expensive—undertaking. It's a cost of doing business these days and part of the reason for higher electric rates. We also are required to file 600 reports each year with some 30 governmental agencies.

What Does Jesus Teach About - Governments

I am very thankful for all you who read these articles, not because "I" write them, but because they teach Jesus' words. Jn. 8:32. "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." I Jn. 3:22. "Whatsoever we ask we receive of him, because we keep his commandments and do the things that are pleasing in his sight." God is our source of great and wonderful blessings in all things. Jas. 1:17.

You ask, what does all that have to do with me and Governments. Well, just as we must keep and do in spiritual matters, for instance Christ's Church (Acts 20:28) so must we also keep and do in earthly matters, for instance our Governmental elections. Matt. 22:21. Jesus said, "Render therefore unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's."

Our republic needs our attention. We need to vote responsibly, and take part where we can to see that just and honorable men lead us. "Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil." M. Hunt

A warm welcome awaits you at the Church of Christ at South Columbiana.

SHUTTLE BACK AND FORTH.

Now you can change from forward to reverse without touching the gearshift.

A manual shuttle shift makes it simple. And makes Kubota's L235 mid-size diesel tractor ideal for grounds maintenance chores.

No competitive tractor in its class makes shifting direction such a simple chore.

All you do to change from forward to an equivalent reverse speed is just disengage the clutch, stop the tractor and pull the shuttle lever down. Eight forward and seven reverse speeds let you match your speed to the job.

Standard features include a 23.5 horsepower diesel engine, 19 PTO hp, choice of 2- or 4-wheel drive, rear wet disc brakes, a 3-point Category I hitch, a 7.4 gallon fuel tank and implement position control.

News from all around the county

by Iris F. Smitherman

A 'Fall Fair' will be held on October 9 from 10-5 p.m. on the lawn of the United Methodist Church of Columbiana.

The event is being sponsored by the women of the church.

Everyone is invited to come and sell their crafts, quilts, wood-working, leather craft, Christmas items, dolls, artwork, ceramic items, needlework, cross-stitch and white elephant items.

Concessions will also be available.

For booth information and reservations contact: 669-7164 or 669-6382.

Congratulations to Charlie and Teresa Sampson of Columbiana who are the parents of a new daughter.

Carly Diana was born August 29 at Shelby Medical Center and weighed 6 lbs. 5 oz.

The new arrival has an older sister, Stacy, who celebrated her 10th birthday on September 16.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Grice of Nashville and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sampson of Mounsville, West Virginia.

Montevallo Middle School has scheduled a garage sale for this Saturday from 8-3 in the school gymnasium.

Now that the NFL players are on strike, you probably are wondering what to do this Saturday afternoon... right? Well, you're in luck because there's a ball game this Saturday in Pea Ridge and the players even playing 'free of charge'.

The Pea Ridge senior citizens will be the host to the Mt. Zion community from Alex City in a game of walk softball to begin at 4 p.m. on October 2.

The public is invited to this event which will be held at the Pea Ridge Community Center ball field located on Hwy 10.

Concessions will be available.

First aid room opens at TES

Whenever a student at Thompson Elementary School is sick or hurt, constant attention will be provided in the school's first aid room.

This year, the PTO at the school has undertaken the project of getting together enough qualified mothers to staff the room on a daily basis.

Even though the mothers aren't allowed to administer medication or treat injuries, the fact that someone is close by is usually comforting to the child, remarked a PTO member.

The reason for first aid training is due to the state's requirement that anyone working in a school first aid room must be qualified through a basic first aid course.

According to PTO president Jean Eason, the goal of the program is to enlist 30 qualified mothers so each person will only have to work one day a month.

She reported that eleven mothers recently completed the multi media first aid course given at the new American Red Cross chapter building in Alabaster.

About a dozen were trained last year, Eason said.

For others who are willing to volunteer their time to work in the school's first aid room, another eight hour course is being offered Oct. 18-19.

Interested persons do not have to be connected with the school to take the training, but the course is free only to those who plan to work in the school's first aid room.

PTO members Dot Freeman and Pat Macauley are co-chairpersons of the project.

ALABAMA'S FUTURE IS MINDPOWER

October 2 to 9 is National Higher Education Week and a time to celebrate the contributions of our colleges and universities to the progress and development of our state.

Alabama's four-year public universities graduate over 19,000 highly trained individuals each year for the state's work force. Such a pool of potential employees is a strong incentive for industry to locate in our state.

Another contribution is research. Alabama's research institutions are currently engaging in $65.5 million in research projects with much of these funds coming from federal agencies and private sources. Most of this research addresses the state's problems in economic development, food production, better health care, energy and the efficient use of our natural resources.

The state's colleges and universities are priceless assets. Alabama's Future is Mindpower and you can help develop our state's greatest resource by supporting our colleges and universities in every way you can.

Yellow Jackets surprise Comer

by Fred Guarino

In what had to be one of the biggest upsets of the football season, Vincent blanked B. B. Comer 13-0, Friday night.

The Yellow Jackets, who had won only one game in three outings, took on the former 3A squad before a home crowd.

A close contest would have satisfied fans.

Comer was 2-1 in the season and had crushed a 3A Childersburg squad which earlier this season had manhandled Pelham.

But there is an old saying, "On any given day, any team is capable of beating any other team."

That saying was proved true, if you look at Friday's contest from a statistical and chance-odds point of view.

However, if you ask Coach Harold Garrett, the reason for the upset was something quite different from chance.

He told the Reporter after the game, "Our bunch played like they can play. They believed."

The Yellow Jacket mentor stated with admiration for his squad, "The seniors called their own meeting Monday and met after practice. They said that they were tired of people not believing they could play."

He said, "There weren't a whole lot of people in those yellow stands who believed we could win. But those guys in those black shirts believed."

When asked if he could list any standouts from the contest with Comer, Garrett smiled and said, "I would have to list the whole roster."

The game began as one might have expected. Comer took the opening kick and marched from their own 15 yard line to the Vincent 23.

But then something unexpected happened.

Vincent's Tim Smith picked off a Comer pass to kill the Tiger drive and serve notice that the Yellow Jacket defense would not give.

The first quarter was scoreless. The second quarter showed Vincent becoming stronger and more confident. Comer was moving, but Vincent was tightening its defense on every play.

Suddenly with Comer facing a second and goal at the Vincent six yard line, the football popped loose and the Jacket's Craig Fair recovered for the home team.

The Jackets proceeded to march 80 yards in five plays for pay dirt.

With a first and ten at the Comer 45, Eddie Reynolds hit Smith with a perfect pass that dropped right over the shoulder of a Tiger defender.

Smith danced into the endzone and with the PAT good, the Jackets led 7-0 with 5:56 remaining in the half.

Defensive forces took over for the rest of the contest.

Comer could not dent Vincent's defense and the Jackets were finding Comer standing up to their every threat.

As the contest came near its end, Comer went to the air to tie or possibly win the game.

The first pass fell incomplete.

The second pass found its way into the hands of Mark Kelow of Vincent, who returned it all the way to the endzone for a Jacket TD. The PAT was blocked but with just 3:33 left in the contest, the lights had gone out for Comer.

The Jackets upped their record to 2-2 with the victory and Comer dropped its season mark to 2-2 with the loss.

The Yellow Jackets will host Winterboro at home tomorrow night.

Montevallo rips Chelsea 27-8

by Fred Guarino

The Montevallo Bulldogs raised their season record to 2-3, Friday night, at the expense of a crippled Chelsea squad.

Handing the Hornets their fourth straight loss of the season with a 27-8 whipping, Montevallo showed the stuff it used to give Thompson a hard time last week.

Chelsea Coach Roger Hibbs called that stuff, "size, strength and talent."

Hibbs said of the Bulldogs, "Montevallo did a good job of coming back after a big loss last week. They came out and were ready to play. They took it to us early and made a couple of big plays which hurt us."

Something else that helped Montevallo was a tremendous goal line defense by the 'Dogs and the fact the Chelsea was unable to play six starters due to injury.

According to Bulldog Coach Richard Gilliam, "Chelsea took 24 snaps inside our ten yard line and scored only once."

Montevallo's first touchdown of the night came as the result of a big play. Howard Gaddis returned a Chelsea punt from Montevallo's own 35 yard line to the Hornet 33.

J. J. Moore iced the quick attack by running the ball into the endzone from 13 yards out. The PAT was no good and with 8:22 left in the first period, Montevallo led 6-0.

Montevallo's second score came as the result of a big break as well. Anthony Prentice recovered a Hornet fumble at the Chelsea 37 yard line.

With only 13 seconds left in the first period, Jeff Chism scored from five yards out. Howard Gaddis hit Dwayne Jackson for a two point conversion and the Bulldogs led 14-0.

Another big play resulted in the third Bulldog touchdown of the night. Howard Gaddis hit Taylor Blackwell in the endzone on a 48 yard pass with 12 seconds left in the half.

The PAT was no good but Montevallo took a 20-0 lead into the dressing room.

Montevallo cashed in its final points of the night early in the third quarter. A fumble by Chelsea set the 'Dogs up on the Hornet 24 yard line.

J. J. Moore took the football the entire distance to pay dirt. Howard Gaddis booted the PAT true and Montevallo led 27-0.

Chelsea did manage to light up the scoreboard, but not without a great deal of trouble.

The Hornets drove to the Montevallo five yard line where the Bulldogs held.

J. J. Moore attempted to run the ball out from the shadow of the goal posts for Montevallo, but fumbled the ball back to Chelsea at the ten.

It took the Hornets ten plays to go ten yards. A pass interference call against the 'Dogs gave the Hornets first and goal from the one.

On fourth down, Montevallo intercepted a Hornet pass but again pass interference was called.

With 11:57 remaining in the game, Greg Conkle finally pushed into the endzone for Chelsea. Conkle followed the touchdown with a two point conversion pass to Walt Tatum and the score stood Montevallo 27, Chelsea 8.

Chelsea will face Maplesville in an away game tomorrow night and things do not look bright for the Hornets.

Hibbs told the Reporter that during Friday night's contest with Montevallo his team saw six starters on the sidelines with injury.

He said of his winless squad, "We are awful crippled and beat up."

There was one sour note for Montevallo during the contest.

J. J. Moore was ejected from the game for illegal use of his forearms. When Coach Gilliam protested the call, he was also ejected.

Gilliam said that the call against his player was one of the worst he had seen in 23 years. He said his athlete was being held by Chelsea and was using his arms in a legal fashion to free himself.

Montevallo will face a very tough team from Jemison for its homecoming tomorrow night.

While injuries suffered by the 'Dogs are not as great as that suffered by the Hornets, Gilliam reported that his team has lost Van Hawks to a knee injury for the season.

The linebacker was injured in Montevallo's tremendous battle with Thompson prior to the Chelsea contest.

Gilliam stated that Hawks came to Montevallo's team weighing in at only 114 and pushed out a 190 pound player for his position.

He said of Hawks, "He was not a great football player but he had guts and desire. As he is a senior, he is through for the season. He has been an inspiration to us."

For the record books, Montevallo accumulated 268 yards against Chelsea Friday while the Hornets managed only 85 yards total offense.

Warriors stay perfect; Vestavia is fifth victim

by Fred Guarino

The Warriors took an exam Friday night before a huge home crowd and passed.

That exam was one entitled PHGYA "Prove How Good You Are" and it was handed out by Vestavia.

The Warriors took on the 4A giant which has been a state champion in its level of play and a runner-up several times, and whipped it 11-7.

In addition to giving the Warriors the scalp of a super team, the win gave Thompson a perfect 5-0 record for the season.

Coach Larry Simmons was happy to give out gold stars for his team's passing the test and keeping its unbeaten string going. He said, "I was proud of the way we played Vestavia... It was a challenge for us to play them... I felt we could play. We ran 325 yards total offense. Over 220 rushing and the rest passing."

The Warriors lighted the scoreboard early in the contest with a 69 yard nine play drive. Demetrius Threatt scored with 5:35 remaining in the first period on a run from three yards out.

The PAT was blocked but Thompson led 6-0.

Thompson upped its lead to 9-0 with 8:30 remaining in the first period when Jeff Willis hit a 26 yard field goal through the uprights.

Vestavia's defense, which has not given up more than two touchdowns to any team this season, made the only points for its squad.

With just 11 seconds remaining in the first half, Vestavia blocked a Thompson punt and covered it in the endzone for a touchdown. The PAT was good and the Warriors lead was only 9-7.

But Thompson's defense proved tough as well and accounted for two Warrior points.

Buddy Cofer sacked the Vestavia quarterback in the endzone for a safety with 8:27 left in the game.

Threatt had an outstanding night for the Warriors. He gained 137 yards.

Richard Brasher proved to be a super passer completing seven of 12 passes for 91 yards.

The Warriors will be looking to up their season record to 6-0 tomorrow night when they take on the Wildcats of Shelby County on the Columbiana field.

Upset

Montevallo's Coach Richard Gilliam shows the anger that got him ejected from a football game for the first time in 23 years.

Bad breaks cost Pelham

by Fred Guarino

Miscues and injuries were contributing factors as the Pelham Panthers slipped to Bibb County 20-0 Friday.

Coach Billy Tohill called Bibb County the second best ball club around next to Thompson. But he added that if it had not been for injuries and miscues, his team could have won.

He pointed out that his team played without the services of five injured starters which he said severely limited his offense.

But looking at the game away from mistakes, Tohill said, "We were in the game. A break or two goes our way and we win."

Pelham is now 1-3 on the season. The Panthers will face Fultondale at home tomorrow night.

Emerging

Bursting onto the football field, Thompson's Warriors are emerging as a high school football super power. Thompson upped its season record to 5-0 by beating Vestavia Friday night. (Photo by David Moore)

Calera plans supper to honor Eagles

Tickets are available from the Lady Eagles or Central State Bank, and proceeds go to Calera athletics.

The Lady Eagles also have a (very) few "Love Ya Blue" tee

The boosters meet at 7 p.m. Monday nights in the school gym, and welcome anyone who wants to help support Calera athletics. They recently elected the following officers for the school year: second term president Margie Killingsworth, vice president Donna Chandler, and secretary-treasurer Deegee Schroeder.

C'burg bests Columbiana

Columbiana's youth football team saw defeat last weekend at the hands of Childersburg's welter-weight teams, in Childersburg.

The Columbiana Leopards, who were undefeated until last Saturday night, took a narrow loss to Childersburg 16-14.

Carrying the ball for the Leopards were Perry Perkins and Donnell Underwood.

Derrick Kelly and Roger Vanderslice were the ball carriers for the Bobcats, who were taken by Childersburg 26-16.

The Cougars fell to Childersburg 20-12, with Kip Horton and Patrick Green as scorers for the group.

The Columbiana teams will take on Vincent this Saturday night at Columbiana beginning at 5 p.m.

Young Panthers keep winning

The 85 pound Panther record remains unblemished. The Panthers downed Leeds 52 to 8 in a game in which they put together a total offense of 330 yards. Pelham was sparked by a 65 yard fumble recovery and run back by Slade Holladay. George Golliday

Bands compete

The Thompson High Marching Southern Sounds will host the fourth annual Central Alabama Marching Band Festival Saturday, October 30.

The event usually draws 20 or more high school bands from across midstate to compete for trophies in four classes.

Each band marches to several pieces and is judged on its sound, formations, and looks. Besides the bands, judges rate color and rifle guards, majorettes, drum majors, and drum lines.

The judging starts at 1 p.m. and lasts into the evening.

There is still time for area bands to enter the competition.

The public is invited and admission charges go toward traveling expenses for the Thompson Band.

Tide may have been cursed

by Fred Guarino

We live in a modern time when jinxes and curses are considered laughable.

But are they? Are they as silly as people who do not believe in them, think they are?

After Saturday's, 24-21 win over Vanderbilt by Alabama, I am no longer certain...

A few years ago I remember going to a home game for Alabama in Tuscaloosa. I was to watch Bama play a team of no rank in a contest Bryant's boys were supposed to be a prohibitive favorite to win.

My mother and sister asked me with some nervousness and excitement in their voices (both are big Bama fans) "How will Alabama do?" I answered, "Don't worry about it; it will be a romp for Alabama."

I explained proudly that a romp meant that the Tide would demolish the other team.

As that game drew to a close, I could not believe my eyes as a young field goal kicker had to make an important chip shot with eight seconds left in the game for Bama to win.

The Crimson Tide had been over confident. It had not taken that particular team seriously and the outcome was awful. Bama won, but was humiliated at the same time.

Never again would I say that Alabama would run over anybody. I swore it that day and I stuck to it...until Thursday night of last week...

I apparently did not remember that Saturday afternoon of years ago or the oath I had taken...until it was too late.

Thursday night, my mother, my sister and my wife asked me how Alabama would do in their upcoming game against Vanderbilt.

I responded almost automatically, "Don't worry about it; it will be a romp for Alabama."

"Oh no," I thought. "I said it and I swore I would never say that again. Could this mean another unlucky day for the Tide? Could I, Fred Guarino, have brought a curse on my favorite team?"

As Saturday came around, the sun was bright and the air was cool and crisp as the crowd filed into Bryant-Denny Stadium.

I watched as the fans, wearing their multi-colored football day clothes, seemed to flow into the stadium, spread out and cover it.

It was a sight I had seen many times before and which always reminded me of the way a bacteria culture is grown in a lab, spreads and covers the container in which it is kept.

The sound of laughter and bits of various conversations reached my ears as I looked down at the bright color of Bama's astro turf field.

I found myself battling an obsession of the mind I could not drive away. "Could it happen again?"

My stomach began to gnaw at me.

I smiled at my mother, my sister and my wife, who seemed to be enjoying themselves. They had placed blind trust in my prediction of the game's outcome.

With a little rationalization...thinking how silly I was...thinking how the Bear has taught his boys not to take anyone lightly again...I finally began to dismiss my curse theory.

But still...I wondered...

Alabama kicked off to Vanderbilt who promptly marched all the way down to field for a touchdown. The PAT was good and a stunned home crowd blinked as the scoreboard read Vandy 7, Alabama 0.

"No, no, no..." I thought. "This just can't be. It's only luck. The real Bama will come out to play and things will be all right."

Alabama then scored to tie the game and continued to score until it led 24-7.

But suddenly the score was 24-14 and then 24-21 and rain was beginning to fall.

"Not only have I cursed the Tide but the heavens are dumping on me to prove it," I thought.

I vowed that I had learned my

Thompson takes tie

With 29 seconds to go, Thompson's 105-pounders won a moral victory when they tied Vestavia.

The Vestavia 105-pounders had beaten Thompson worse than the score 6-0 indicated.

A drained Thompson defense had maintained the tough Rebels until early in the 4th quarter when the Rebels consistently bulldozed thru Warrior territory for the score.

The PAT failed. Each time the Thompson offense threatened, Vestavia defense crushed all hopes.

Thompson needed a miracle! Their final chance began with 29 seconds left in the game.

On the 3rd down a pass interference call was made as time ran out on the board. Thompson was given one last chance.

From the 40 yard line QB Thames connected with receiver Alan Barefoot who zig-zagged his way to the goal amid excellent offensive blocking.

The roaring Thompson crowd had to settle for a tie as the PAT failed but one miracle a night "ain't bad".

lesson. I would never predict a run-away for Bama again and this time...I meant it.

Maybe there was no curse. With less than 30 seconds left in the game, Vanderbilt was unable to complete a touchdown pass in the endzone and an interception saved the contest for Alabama as the final horn sounded.

Maybe the curse was only in my head...

Maybe...but I wasn't laughing.

I could almost see Rod Serling of the "Twilight Zone" standing by a goal post. I could almost hear him saying, "Are curses imagined? Can the outcome of football games be affected by those brought on by over zealous fans? Witness a young man who has reason to wonder in the Twilight Zone...."

Jemison wins again; another county team falls

by Fred Guarino

Jemison claimed its fourth straight victim Friday night when it dropped Calera on its home field 18-7.

However, Coach Danny Alverson had nothing but good things to say about his team in the face of the loss.

Alverson told the Reporter, "We played up to our potential. I am proud of our offense for the way it moved the ball. Our passing game is nothing to write home about but I am pleased to be 3-2 at this point."

Jemison drew blood with 8:21 in the second quarter when Mike Jones hit Ricky Smith on a four yard touchdown pass. The PAT was no good and Jemison led 6-0.

Jemison scored again on its first possession in the third quarter. James Taylor capped a 71 yard drive with an eight yard run to pay dirt. The PAT again was no good and Jemison led 12-0.

Calera managed to strike pay dirt with 8:30 left in the contest.

Jemison suffered a bad snap of the ball and Calera recovered the fumble which resulted on the 12 yard line.

Five plays later, Edward Wilson went into the endzone on a five yard run. Ricky Posey kicked the PAT true and the score stood Jemison 12, Calera 7.

Jemison broke the game open when it drove 68 yards for a touchdown with 1:08 left in the fight. Johnny Nunn capped the drive with a 25 yard run. The PAT was no good.

Calera will not play tomorrow night but will face Verbena for homecoming October 8.

SA loss proves bitter

by Fred Guarino

Friday night's 30-6 whipping at the hands of Tuscaloosa proved bitter for Shelby Academy Coach DeWayne Kervin.

Kervin explained to this newspaper that Tuscaloosa was an average team and the loss was due to a poor effort on the part of his squad.

He said, "I'm not sure everyone's heart was in it. We don't play as 'one'. We just can't hold together as one unit."

The coach said after Friday's home game, "It showed especially tonight. There is no way we should have lost that badly. Someone is always letting us down somewhere."

Kervin pointed out that his Raiders were burned badly on three pass plays by Tuscaloosa, indicating that someone on his squad had fallen down on the job.

He commented that though it was hard to believe, being down by 21-0, he felt his team could have still been in the game if it played together.

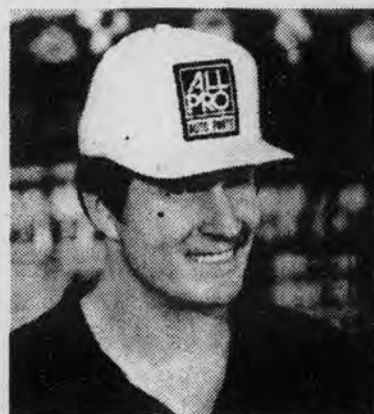

Shelby Academy made its only touchdown on a one yard run by Brian Russell.

For the night, the Raiders managed only 114 yards rushing and only 41 yards passing for a total offense of 155 yards.

Tuscaloosa rushed for 117 yards and passed for 146 yards for a total offense of 263 yards.

The 2-3 Raiders will face Lowndes in an away game tomorrow night.

Everybody's going to country fair

Question: What do Miss Alabama, Country Boy Eddie, the Pelham High Band, and UAB basketball coach Gene Bartow all have in common?

Answer: Their plans for Saturday, October 2.

That's the day Our Lady of the Valley Catholic Church holds its 7th Annual Cahaba Valley Country Fair. All the above mentioned guests are part of the entertainment line-up.

Arts, crafts, trash, treasures and an "antique" auction are also on the fair bill, along with clowns, balloons, train rides, barbeque, and homemade bread, cakes, pies and candy. Video games will even be featured along the "midway."

Admission is free. The fun starts at 10 a.m. and lasts until 9 p.m.

The "fair grounds" are located at the intersection of Cahaba Valley and Caldwell Mill Roads (highways 119 and 29).

Church holds Dilcy Daniel Day

Dilcy Daniel keeps active despite her age.

Even though she celebrated her 92nd birthday Aug. 26, the Alabaster woman still doesn't wear glasses or a hearing aid.

Her activities include regular attendance at the church which she helped found.

Inspired by her example, members of Alabaster's Emmanuel Temple Holiness church recently dedicated a day in her honor.

To show their appreciation for her contribution to the church and community, the church membership presented Daniel with a check and gift.

Elder William Fitts serves as pastor of the church.

Did she drink it?

Baby holds up 'whole city of Pelham'

by Fred Guarino

Lindsey's mother was busy putting things back on the shelf that her 20-month-old girl had put in a grocery basket.

When Wanda Powers of Sterrett turned around at Pelham's Winn Dixie store, there was Lindsey with a bottle of ammonia open in her hand and spilled on her dress.

Did she drink any of the ammonia?

While the answer to that question might never be known, it created a drama.

To make sure, Pelham's Rescue 85 was called to the scene and arrived moments later with sirens going and lights flashing.

Brian Cleveland and Lt. Jerry Lamb gave the little girl syrup of ipecac to make her body give up the ammonia if she actually drank any of it.

As Lindsey showed no signs of burns accompanying the ingestion of ammonia, the syrup was given as a precaution upon the advice of a physician assigned to Rescue 85.

Lindsey proved to be a very active child and led her mother and rescue workers on a merry little chase outside the store. She showed no signs of giving up any liquid.

Her mother begged, "Come on. You are holding up the whole City of Pelham."

Moments later the syrup did its work and Lindsey appeared to be a little tired, irritable and red faced over her ordeal.

Lt. Lamb, in an educated guess, stated that he did not believe Lindsey had actually taken any of the ammonia.

If she did, she would be just one of over 15,000 Alabama youngsters who have gotten into poisonous substance this year alone, reported to Children's Hospital Poison Control Center in Birmingham.

Bill King, manager of the center told the Reporter that any time a person is suspected of having taken poisonous substances, help should be sought immediately.

At this time of year, King stated that poke berries have been a source of trouble. He said that 10 to 20 of them could be a fatal dose for a child.

The berries, which grow in clusters on large droopy leaf plants, are attractive to children.

Anyone with a poison ingestion emergency is encouraged to call the Poison Control Center at 933-4050 or 250-9210.

UM fire marshals

Montevallo assistant fire chiefs Joe McGaughey, Lt. Alan Blackmon and Dianna Baugh, are shown with newly appointed fire marshals at the University of Montevallo. They are: Carol Bradford, Denise Dickinson, Pamela Whitson, Sonya Hale, Teresa Knaps, Karen Goza, Kathy Kane, Teresa Ray, Rebecca Scheetz, Jennifer Graitte, Nan Alonzo, David Johnson, Robbie Avery, Ron Blanton, Marcus Cochran, Fred Glover, Alan Paris, Vivian Jackson, Kristin Krzyminski, Mary Lilian Sonders, Charles B. Dorning, Dan Twilong, Genelle Powell, Nancy Dunlap.

New fire marshals learn basics

by Bert Seaman

If a picture is worth a thousand words, then the Montevallo Fire Department got an important message across to new fire marshals at the University of Montevallo.

At the first meeting of the two groups Thursday, the students fire marshals were shown a film on some of the worst fires in this country's history in which there was a high loss of life.

Students saw that prompt action would have averted disaster in some cases. In other instances, outward opening doors and sprinkler systems would have reduced the death rate.

In order to ensure the safety of UM students, the Resident Hall Association has adopted the fire marshal program this year.

The plan calls for a fire marshal on every floor of all UM dorms. And each month, members of the Montevallo Fire Department will hold meetings at different dorms to keep abreast of how things are going.

Duties of the fire marshals are to: inform occupants of proper exits for drills and actual emergencies; develop and announce escape plans; check on the operation of extinguishers and fire related equipment.

They will also inspect for overloaded circuits and general fire hazards and serve as liaisons for the fire department should a fire occur.

A long range goal of the group is to acquire and install universal symbols showing the location of fire escapes.
